PREMIERS HOLD FINAL SESSION OF CONFERENCE

Dominion Promises Consideration, But No Action On Provinces' Request.

SHELVE SUBSIDY ISSUE.

Withdrawal of Federal Aid To Technical Education Forecast in Debate.

OTTAWA, Nov. 11.—Without having achieved definite results upon any of the problems which it had debated, the Dominion-Provincial Conference reached the end of its agenda paper early last evening and adjourned.

Important subjects occupied it for the last day of its deliberations. They include old age pensions, Federal aid to education and road building, the control of water power sites, and the Alberta and Nova Scotia coal problems. The Federal Governments, furthermore communicated through Hon. Mr. Robb its attitude upon the agitation which the provinces had waged for increased subsidies.

Upon none of the matters which were brought up, however, did anything tangible materialize. The most which the provinces gained on any point was promise of Federal consideration. This represented the sum total of their three-day battle for larger subsidies after Hon. Mr. Robb had made his pronouncement. It also represented their attitude upon the question of old age pensions.

Upon the power control issue, the Federal Government's attitude again consisted in an inclination to consider the provincial viewpoint, which in this case was that a submission of the whole matter should be made to the courts for determination. With regard to Alberta coal the tendency of the Dominion Ministers was to divert attention from the immediate problem by emphasizing the encouragement which they were giving to substitute fuels by the establishment of coking plants.

Technical Education.

One interesting development loomed upon the horizon during the day, namely, the withdrawal of the Federal Government from the field of technical education. Up to the present time the Dominion Government has contributed to the support of this work, recognizing its importance to the country's industry. When the matter came up for discussion yesterday, however, indications were not wanting that Federal authorities intend to withdraw their aid from this field, just as they have previously done from that of road building and agricultural education. So far as Ontario is concerned, such a change of policy will cost the provincial treasury some $400,000 to $500,000 per year.

Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance ,in discussing the question of Federal subsidies at the concluding sitting of the Provincial Premiers' conference last night, stated:

"The discussion which has taken place concerning the financial problem of the dominion and of the provinces has been fairly complete. On the one hand there have been requests by the provinces, or some of them at least, that the Dominion should assume certain service now undertaken by certain of the provinces.

Broadly speaking, I think it may be said that these services are considered to be unprofitable, in fact liabilities to the provinces, and that if the Dominion were to take them over that for the moment at least their operation would involve an increase in expenditure on the Federal Treasury. From the viewpoint of the Dominion it has been submitted that the duty of the Federal authorities is to see that the credit of Canada is maintained both at home and abroad, and at the same time to reduce taxation so far as is possible in order that industry in all its varied branches may be encouraged.

Are Double-Edged.

"The recommendations of the provinces are double edged. First there is the demand for increased expenditures by the Dominion Government—and on the other hand that we should withdraw from certain fields of taxation and revenue. Recommendations have been made that subsidies should be increased, that certain expenditures for varied means of transportation should be undertaken, that the old age pensions should be at the sole expense of the Dominion government, etc. On the other hand it has been urged that the Dominion should withdraw from the income tax field, and other direct taxation sources, that we should reduce the customs and excise duties on liquors etc. I have not made a minute calculation but off-hand would estimate that the varied recommendations involve either in expenditure or in the drying-up of sources of revenue, 100 millions of dollars annually.

Reduced Taxation.

"The Dominion government has been able to reduce taxation and to no slight extent clear the field for the provinces, but our margin is none too broad considering obligations that we must meet year to year. The further we proceed the more it becomes apparent to all that in justice to the taxpayers, the Premiers and Ministers here assembled, having heard the varied recommendations,

H. G. Wells Opposes Countess of Iveagh

LONDON, Nov. 10.— (A.P.)—H. G. Wells, the novelist, has written a letter, the Westminster Gazette's correspondent at Southbend-on-Sea says, in support of the Hon. Dougall Meston, the Liberal candidate opposing the Countess of Iveagh, Conservative. Mr. Wells is quoted as saying in his letter:

"The Baldwin government is heading stranght for war. In every constituency it is the business of sane and sensible men to vote against the Tory as effectively as possible and put an end to this disastrous drift towards armaments and aggression."

Mr. Wells further explains that he himself is a socialist-laborite, but declares that labor has no chance to win in Southbend although the liberals might have a chance. Hence he urges laborites to vote for the liberal.

Erskine Harper is the labor candidate.

DAIL REJECTS REPEAL MOTION

LONG DEBATE.

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Nov. 11 (Associated Press).—Eamon de Valera's motion for repeal of the Public Safety Act was rejected in the Dail Ereann last night by a vote of 76 to 71.

The long threatened resolution of Eamon de Valera, Irish Republican leader, for repeal of the Public Safety Act was moved in the Dail yesterday, but long debate which followed its introduction showed that there was no lessening of the Government's moral small majority and hence the Act is expected to remain on the statute books.

The Government made a concession, however, in agreeing to limit to two instead of five years the drastic law which was enacted after the assassination of Vice-President Kevin O'Higgins several months ago.

De Valera, in moving his resolution, denounced the Act as a public danger and attempted to recount abuses of power by the Government since 1922, but the Speaker of the House intervened. He asked the Dail to refuse its consent to debate these old events. Laborites, while supporting the plea for repeal of the Act, endorsed the Speaker's vote on bringing up past events.

OCTOBER WEATHER AIDED LATE CROPS

Shown in Crop Report Issued By U. S. Agricultural Department.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 11.—Practically all late maturing crops were described yesterday by the Agricultural Department as having been helped in October by favorable weather, which averaged three degrees above normal, making it the warmest October since 1918.

In its November crop report yesterday, the department said corn improved to the extent of 150,000,000 bushels during the month, the preliminary estimate of production being 2,753,249,000 bushels, or 116,000,000 bushels more than harvested last year.

Frosts and freezes were delayed far beyond their usual rate, the report said, and in only a few sections was October rainfall so heavy as to interfere seriously with harvesting operations. As a result, prospects for corn, potatoes, sweet potatoes, buckwheat, flaxseed, rice, grain sorghums, sugar beets, tobacco, peanuts, grapes, pears and some late vegetables substantially improved over a month ago. Apples, however, failed to reach the expected size and prospects have declined three per cent., with a total crop of 119,333,000 bushels in prospect.

For all crops combined the average yield now appears to have been 2.4 per cent. above the average during the last ten years. Crop production, however, is about three per cent. less than it was last year, as yields generally are lower and a smaller crop acreage has been grown.

The corn crop is an exception, the acre yield being 28.2 bushels compared with 26.6 bushels last year. It is estimated that 75.2 per cent. of the corn crop is of merchantable quality, compared with 72.6 per cent. last year.

ARMISTICE DAY 1927

BY BRUCE CATTON

A bugle rings beyond the stars
And stirs the ghosts the cannon laid;
And phantom ranks from all our wars
Step in time to the plaintive bars—
"Hats off! the dead are on parade!"

Again we hear the rolling bea.
Of distant drum taps, far removed
And tingle to the tramp of feet
That tread again the home-town street—
"The boys we lost, the boys we loved."

A hush descends as they go by,
Silent, with unregarding eyes;
Then, ringing clear to the empty sky,
Sounds the despairing, echoing cry—
"How do you honor our sacrifice?"

How shall we honor them—what can we do for them
Showing our love for the men that are gone?
Build up a cenotaph, shining and new for them?
Raise up a tablet of finely-carved stone?

Here is the word from the ghostly ranks
Telling us how we may show our thanks:

"We went to our rest while life was young,
And many the joys we missed—
There were songs of youth that we left unsung,
There was honey of life for the tip of the tongue,
There were sweethearts we might have kissed.

"But our part is done; and you that remain
Harken to this, our warning:
See that our sacrifice be not in vain,
See that the Empire, ever again,
Works for the world's new morning.

"We ask for no temple of graven stone,
Pay us this homage, instead;
Keep freedom aloft on her golden throne,
With justice and truth to guard her alone—
Thus honor your soldier dead!"

Then, in the haze of the far stars' light,
The phantom battalions pass from sight,
And the call of the bugles rings out through the night;
Lights out!
Soldier, sleep.

May Teach Children History By Radio

CHICAGO, Ills., Nov. 11 (Canadian Press).—Sitting atop the Wrigley Tower, Mayor Thompson or one of his supporters may teach 500,000 Chicago school children their daily lesson in American history, if the latest move materializes for solution of the city's history squabble.

The plan to broadcast Mayor Thompson's 'America First' principles to school children and to citizens alike through radio station "WHT" on the Wrigley Building first was broached in Washington a few days ago when representatives of the station, owned by the Mayor and his friends, appeared before the Federal Radio Commission to protest against cutting down their allotted time.

Since then members of the Board of Education have been considering the plan which provided for placing radio receiving sets in every Chicago class-room and having history matter approved by Mayor Thompson broadcast daily to the pupils at appointed hours.

CASE ADJOURNED.

Material Witness Absent in Slander Action at Cobourg.

COBOURG, Nov. 11.—The hearing of the case of Rham vs. Moore, a civil action which was on the docket for Wednesday, was ordered held over till a future sitting of the court. It was pointed out to His Lordship that a very material witness was not present nor was his immediate address known. It was supposed that he was in Montreal, but a more definite address was unknown. John Harris, Port Perry, submitted the request to the bench. Earl Lawson, Toronto, and J. A. McGibbon, Oshawa, counsel for the defence, attempted to have the case dealt with at once. They claimed that the witness in question was as necessary to them as to the plaintiff.

The case is one of slander and damages arising out of a statement alleged to have been made against George Moore, on the eleventh day of March this year.

DISTRICT UNDERTAKERS FORM ASSOCIATION OF FIVE COUNTIES AT MEETING HELD IN THIS CITY

J. Comstock Elected President at Organization Banquet Last Night.

MANY GOOD ADDRESSES.

Leaders of Profession Urge Improved Methods and Changed Laws.

Of all the numerous and diverse meetings that have been held in the Empress Hotel, it is doubtful if any have been as unique in character or as lofty in sentiment as was the convention there last night of the funeral directors of this district. The array of visiting speakers was of unusual eminence. Of their number were men of the highest rank and positions in their respective vocations, men who head the lists in various phases of the undertaking business, standard bearers of an ancient and honourable profession and heralds of the dawn of an era of increased efficiency and competence in the administration of those last sacred services to their fellow men which has long been the dream and ambition of the noblest minds of their calling, and which is now shedding lambent rays of encouragement over the horizon of glorious achievement.

Included among the distinguished speakers and guests from other centres were R. U. Stone from Toronto, and director there of the Stone Funeral service and probably the foremost plastic surgeon in America; J. A. Mundell, of Orillia, president of the Ontario Funeral Service Association, Inc.; James O'Hagan, field secretary of the association and editor of the Canadian Funeral Service; F. M. Moffat, Toronto, secretary of the association; J. H. Percy, manager of the Hamilton branch of the Dominion Manufacturers, and E. G. Cross, special demonstrator of the same company.

First among the items of importance which were brought up by the chairman, J. Comstock, was a motion drafted at an afternoon conference to the effect that there be formed a district associa-

Flagpole Sitter Performs On Plane

CURTISS FIELD, N.Y., Nov. 11 (United Press).—The art and science of flagpole sitting rose to new heights yesterday when Alvin "Shipwreck" Kelly demonstrated a refinement by successfully sitting on a flagpole on a biplane 500 feet in the air.

Rigged up in the centre of the top wing of a plane piloted by M. M. Merrill, was a ten-foot iron pole with a one-foot cross-bar near the top. Kelly perched on the cross-bar.

"I did it to prove the infinite possibilities of flagpole sitting," said Kelly when he landed, "and also to show these would-be flagpole sitters all over the country they're up against a fighting champion."

German Girl Puts Flowers In Abbey

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 11. — (Canadian Press.)—The spirit of Locarno was exemplified in Westminster Abbey to-day at the tomb of the unknown soldiers, where a small circle of yellow flowers placed there by a "German girl" was found amongst the many floral tributes set in honor of Armistice Day. On the flowers was a note reading: "To the great unknown soldiers of all nations, from a German girl."

DAM BUILDERS SERVE SUPPER

DAM HALF BUILT.

The Construction and Engineering Company which is building the new dam at Lock 24 entertained a few friends from this city and district to a chicken supper last night in the dining room of the bunk house at the dam.

Work was commenced on the dam this spring and at present the north half is almost completed and the water has been pumped from the southern half of the new dam, and it is hoped that before it becomes too cold the cement work will be laid to the level of the water.

It is over 30 years since the dams on the canal were constructed. Then concrete was just beginning to be used. The locks were built of concrete, but for some reason the dams were build in the old style, with stone filled cribs. The life of these dams was limited and the old stone ones were hard to keep in repair. A few years ago the government engineer visited the dams, and as a result of his investigation the department decided to start rebuilding a new dam each year.

Some years ago the dams at Lakefield and Nassau were rebuilt in concrete, leaving between these two the dams at Locks 22, 23, 24 and 25. The dam at Lock 23 was finished last year by the Construction and Engineering Company and plans were prepared for constructing a new dam at Lock 24.

At this dam the Canada Cement Company has one of its power houses, the other two being at Young's Point and Lakefield. The contract for constructing the new dam was let this spring to the same company as built the one at Lock 23. The estimated cost is about $90,000.

The northern half of the dam adjoining the power house has been completed with the exception of the platform and two breast walls, which are left out while the southern half if being built. A few weeks ago work was started on the southern half, adjoining the Douro shore. This was enclosed by the coffer dam and the water was pumped out by Thanksgiving Day. It was in building this coffer dam that T. Northey was nearly drowned. Excavating commenced this week and considerable concrete has been poured.

CANADIANS HONOR MEMORY OF THOSE WHO GAVE LIVES; ARMISTICE DAY OBSERVED

Two Minutes of Silence This Morning as Tribute of Remebrance.

MANY CEREMONIES.

Those in Capitals of Canada and the United States Are Foremost.

OTTAWA, Nov. 11 (Canadian Press). — Canada today joined with the rest of the world in remembering Armistice Day, the day in which the conflict that had for four years been waged on three continents and had exacted a toll of unnumbered dead and wounded came to an end. Throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion solemn ceremonies of praise and thanksgiving were carried out, some in shrines dedicated to the memory of war dead, others in front of cenotaphs whose presence wherever they have been erected is a constant witness to the sacrifice, suffering, and hardships undergone during the struggle which ceased nine years ago today.

In conformity with the wishes expressed by His Majesty the King, Canadians everywhere interrupted their labors at 11 o'clock this morning and for two minutes stood in silence, a tribute of remembrance to this nation's sixty thousand war dead and to those who still carry with them the marks and scars of service. Impressive in their solemnity, the ceremonies lost nothing with the passing of years and were participated in not only by those who had known the Great War, in all its grim reality, but by that younger generation which has grown up since and to whom war is only a faint echo rapidly becoming fainter.

Nine years ago today saw Canadian soldiers fighting the last battle of the War, delivering the Belgian city of Mons from the grasp of the German army, but one hour before mid-day hostilities ceased on four hundred miles of front, from the English Channel to the Vosges mountains and the ravaged world which had undergone all the agonies of four years of bitter warfare knew that peace had come.

Apart from the importance of their local services, Canadians today found their thoughts directed to the Capitals of both this country and the United States. At Ottawa this afternoon a ceremony in the Memorial Chamber of the Victory Tower was planned to synchronize with the unveiling in Arlington Cemetery, Washington, of Canada's national tribute to those citizens of the United States who served and gave their lives in the Canadian Army.

Throughout the country to-day like ceremonies were carried out the Canadian people again renewing their thanks for sacrifices that had been made on their behalf.

Nobility of Sacrifice.

TORONTO, November 11. Canadian Press. — That Canada might ever keep before it the glory of sacrifice, was the aspiration voiced here to-day by General Sir Arthur Currie, who commanded the Canadian troops in the Great War. Sir Arthur was present at the Armistice Day service at the cenotaph in front of the city hall at the invitation of Mayor Foster and the city council, and delivered the principal address in connection with the ceremonies in honor of the gallant dead.

Only by sacrifice for the right could an individual or a country become great, said Sir Arthur, and so the sacrifice of the country's youth shone through the great gloom of the awful night of war like a star apart, a guide forever to Canada, when her honor is in the balance, and an invisible witness to the sovereignty of the spirit. The memory of those honored to-day triumphantly testified to the supremacy of the moral forces of the world, he said.

Canada in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11. Canadian Press. — Canada took a prominent part in the armistice day program here to-day. The outstanding event of the day will be the unveiling this afternoon of Canada's Cross of Sacrifice erected in Arlington National cemetery to the memory of United States citizens who fought in the Canadian forces, and gave their lives in the great war.

At the noon day service, at which the American Legion paid tribute to its war dead, the Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian Minister at Washington, conveyed greetings from the people of Canada, and the band of the Royal 22nd Regiment played the National airs of the Dominion.

Hon. Dr. J. H. King, minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment in Ottawa, laid a wreath on the grave of the unknown soldier in Arlington cemetery during the afternoon.

OBSERVED IN ONTARIO.

TORONTO, Ont., November 11 (Canadian Press). — Upwards of ten thousand persons stood hushed in City Hall Square to-day to hear General Sir Arthur Currie, commander of the Canadian Corps in the Great War, deliver his message on the glory of sacrifice during the municipal ceremony that was the feature of

WOMAN SAVES TWO CHILDREN

Climbs Through Window To Kitchen Roof When Home Burns.

HUSBAND AWAY.

ST. THOMAS, November 11. Canadian Press. — Great heroism and presence of mind was displayed by Mrs. W. Brown, wife of a railway fireman, early to-day, when she awoke to discover the lower portion of her home a seething furnace and flames breaking through the walls of her bedroom.

Taking her two children, one and two years old in her arms, she broke through a bathroom window, and crawled out on to the roof of a lean-to kitchen. Her cries failing bring assistance, she dropped the tots into the shrubbery below, where they landed safely.

Mrs. Brown was taken from the roof later by the firemen. The house was completely gutted.

Stealer of Clothing Stripped In Court

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 11. (United Press.)—Donald Gibbons, confessed clothing thief, appeared in court yesterday, was identified by his victims, and sentenced to 30 days in jail.

"But wait a minute—how about my coat," one of the victims said as Gibbons was led away to a cell. The Judge ordered the prisoner to turn over the coat.

"And those are my pants," "That's my shirt," "My hat," others pleaded.

Gibbons was taken from the court room, shivering in his underwear. Some one loaned him a pair of overalls for the trip to the work house.

RED CROSS AID IN RELIEF WORK OF FLOOD AREA

Provide Food, Clothes and Medical Supplies For Stricken Towns.

STUDENTS AT WORK.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 11.—(A.P.)—Order began to emerge yesterday from the chaos created by last week's flood in New England as relief and reconstruction measures took more definite shape. The red cross, in direction of relief work in Vermont, pushed forward the provision of food, clothing and medical supplies to the stricken towns, while army and civil authorities and railroad officers assisted by volunteer workers dug away mud and debris, built temporary bridges and repaired highways.

The most picturesque group of workers yesterday was seen in vigorous action in Hartford, Vermont, of which town the principal village is White River Junction, an important railroad centre. This consisted of a large proportion of the student body of Dartmouth College at Hanover, N. H., a few miles away across the Connecticut river.

384 Bridges Gone.

A more definite idea of the extent to which the flood swept away bridges in Vermont was obtained when highway district commissioners meeting in Montpelier reported that 384 bridges were gone in nine of the 12 districts of the State. They estimated that the total for the State would reach 600 and were given authority to expend up to $600,000 for the construction of temporary bridges.

Air Mail Service.

Regular air mail service to Vermont points started from Concord, N. H., yesterday. Five plains also went to Vermont from Boston with mail, food and blankets. One of them carried Major General Preston Brown, commandant of the First Corps area, who announced that he would fly back and forth every day or two during the emergency.

Citizens took an active part in providing relief funds. Among the contributions reported yesterday was $1,725, given by seven rotary clubs in the 37th district, in New Hampshire. The Associated Industries of Massachusetts reported $6,490 in contribution from its members.

HISTORIC BODY 100 YEARS OLD

British Printers' Pension Corporation Hold Centenary Meeting in London.

LONDON, Nov. 11 (Canadian Press)—Tyrants and humbugs would have everything their own way in all countries if it were not for printers, Charles Dickens once said.

He paid that tribute to typesetters 63 years ago when he acted as chairman at the annual meeting of the Printers' Pension Corporation, which is holding its centenary in London, with Prince Henry in the chair.

Dickens was twice chairman of this corporation in 1843 and again in 1864, and on the last occasion said:

"The printer is a faithful servant, not only for those connected with the business but for the public at large, and has, therefore, when laboring under infirmity and disease, an especial claim on all for support."

King Benjamin Banished As Ruler Of House Of David Religious Cult

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., Nov. 11 (Canadian Press).—The aged ruler of a religious cult, King Benjamin Purnell, has been banished from his throne.

Circuit Judge Louis H. Fead, of Newberry, yesterday entered an order in the Berrien County Circuit Court decreeing that a layman, business man or attorney shall assume the direction, as receiver, for the House of David Colony which the State of Michigan sought to dissolve as a public nuisance.

The order is emphatic, that Benjamin, whom the State charged practiced fraud and immorality behind a cloak of religion, must leave forever the colony he founded a quarter century ago.

Title to the reputed vast holdings of the cult which now reposes in Benjamin and his consort, "Queen" Mary, said to exceed one million dollars in value, will be transferred to the receiver.

The plea of the State for complete dissolution of the colony is denied, the court granting the members of the faith permission to continue their community life, carry on their religious teachings and operate their enterprises but always under the direction of the receiver appointed by the State.

Because he believes many members of the colony are not prepared to meet the problems of the outside world, Judge Fead decided they should be allowed to remain or to leave as they will and those who may leave are privileged to seek recovery of property deeded to Benjamin and Mary.

Judge Fead leaves with the Berrian County Court the duty of appointing a receiver, which is expected to take several days, allowing the colony's attorney opportunity to file an appeal from his decision.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—A charge of criminal conspiracy to inluence the verdict of the Fall-Sinclair Teapot Dome trial jury was laid yesterday against another of Harry F. Sinclair's associates, Sheldon Clark, wealthy Chicago sports and oil man.

Following in the footsteps of Henry Mason Day, vice president of the Sinclair Exploration Company, Clark stood upon the ground of possible self-incrimination in refusing to testify in the grand jury investigation of the oil jury scandal.

Like Day, he was hustled from the Grand Jury room across the street to the office of United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage, where the complaint was laid and a bail bond of $10,000 required and furnished.

Clark was suave and smiling when he went into the Grand Jury room for the second time shortly after noon. He was red of face when he came out a few minutes later, and his apparent nervousness increased during the proceedings before the commissioner.

An immediate hearing was demanded by Clark, but Neil Burkinshaw, Assistant District Attorney in charge of the Government investigation, objected, the upshot of a sharp argument being the fixing of November 25 as the time for the preliminary examination into the government charges.

After the date for the hearing was fixed, Clark had to wait in the rather dingy little office for fifteen minutes until the representative of a surety company could arrive to furnish the $10,000 bond.

NEW HIGHWAY IS PROPOSED FOR DISTRICT

Would Pass Through Cavan, Bethany and Yelverton to Port Perry.

LINK IN LONG ROAD.

Will Fit Into Plan of Sarnia-Ottawa Route—Benefit to Peterborough.

A highway to connect the Peterborough-Port Hope highway with the Whitby-Lindsay highway via the 9th Line of Cavan township, through Cavanville, Bethany, Yelverton and Port Perry to Manchester, was discussed at a meeting in the Bethany Town Hall last night.

Representative members were there from the townships and municipalities that would be affected by the building of such a highway. W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P. for Peteborough, was elected chairman of the committee, with members in George A. Gillespie, president of the City Chamber of Commerce, James Juby, and all government members whose ridings would be affected by this project, also the Reeves and Deputy-Reeves from the interested townships.

This committee will conduct a thorough investigation of the possibilities of the proposed highway and eventually seek an appointment with the Minister of Public Highways, Hon. Geo. S. Henry, probably during the time of the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto.

On the suggestion of one of the delegates present, a subscription was taken up to defray the working expenses of this committee and to cover the cost of a partial survey of the route of the proposed highway by a competent engineer. Frank G. Stinson consented, at the request of the meeting, to have the survey made and volunteered the use of his car in this connection as a means of accurately determining the mileage of the route in view.

It is anticipated that the committee will meet once more before proceeding as a deputation to Toronto. The meeting will be at the call of the chairman.

The secretary of the committee, F. C. Dawe, of Bethany, who is quite enthusiastic about this matter, pointed out that this highway would provide a shorter route from Peterborough to Toronto than as at present by way of Port Hope. Also it would relieve congestion on the front highway in addition to improving Peterborough through providing the means of ready access to Peterborough from a rich farming district, the produce of which has previously been diverted to other communities, thus depriving this city of considerable trade and the consequent revenue following in the wake of increased trading conditions.

This whole district is badly in need of good roads and a highway through it would prove to be of advantage to a greater number of people than if it were to be built along any other route. Furthermore it is the most logical routing for this section of the country when it is taken into consideration that the government is planning a trans-provincial highway north of and parallel to the existing highway from Montreal to Detroit, connecting Sarnia with Ottawa.

J. Wells Fraser, manager Bank of Nova Scotia, and immediate past president Chamber of Commerce, James Juby, president of the Peterborough Automobile Club, J. A. Dewart, and Frank G. Stinson, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, comprised the Peterborough delegation to the meeting.

CARRIER SYSTEM IS INAUGURATED

C. N. Telegraph's New Circuit To Winnipeg Has Many Improvements.

TORONTO, Nov. 11 (Special to The Examiner).—A new chapter in the annals of telegraph and telephone development was written this week, when W. D. Robb, Vice-President in charge of colonization, development and telegraphs, Canadian National Railways, formally opened the new carrier current system of the Canadian National Telegraphs to Winnipeg. Apart from providing the latest word in telegraphic trasmission to the patrons of the Canadian National Telegraphs, the new carrier system is singularly immune from earth current disturbances which frequently prove embarassing to the ordinary type of line transmission, and at the same time, also provides direct telephone communication over the same wires for the transaction of executive railway business.

1.—Immunity from Aurora Borealis on earth current disturbances, a factor which has seriously interfered with telegraph companies for years.

2. — Freedom from inclement weather conditions, such as heavy rains, wet snow and fog.

3.—Elimination of mechanical repeaters, with the resultant saving in wire space and the hazard of signal distortion.

4—Utilizing existing wire plant and increasing its capacity without increasing maintenance forces and the expense incidental to the upkeep of heavy pole-line."

An interesting feature in this connection was that while the wires were used for telephonic purposes, two Morse operators were also despatching messages to Winnipeg over the same wire from the same room. Following the demonstration, the guests were taken for an inspectional trip to the operating room, where the operation of the carrier current system was fully explained to them by Mr. Robb and Mr. Barber.

The opening of the carrier current system marks the completion of the second link of the installation from Montreal to Vancouver of the carrier system. The first link, that from Toronto to Montreal was put into active service on April 26, and the system will be extended to Vancouver as rapidly as possible. When it is completed, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Saskatoon and Vancouver will be so arranged that by operating a few switches, it will be possible to make any or all of these stations terminals and therefore to transmit messages to any or all of them.

The development of the carrier system has only recently within a period of approximately the last five years reached a point where it is of value in commercial use, and while the Canadian National Telegraphs is the first to introduce it into Canada as a commercial medium for the despatch of telegraphic messages, the system has been in operation in the United States and Europe and in the Province of Alberta, where its use was restricted to telephone purposes only. In no case however, have these previous systems reached the vast mileage which will mark the completion of the Canadian National Telegraphs system.

For "Goodness" Sake

beware of any baking powder that contains alum. It is apt to give your cakes, biscuits, etc., a bitter taste. Besides that, health authorities do not consider alum to be good for the health. Far better to use the old, reliable—

Magic Baking Powder
It contains no alum

We could reduce the cost by using alum, but we would then be lowering the quality. The only ingredients in Magic Baking Powder are the finest grades of phosphate, starch and soda, expertly blended. "Magic" gives you best results and is truly wholesome. Refuse all substitutes—even if you are offered "free" crockery as an extra inducement.

WITNESSES FOR PROSECUTION ARE HEARD AT SEYMOND TRIAL

HEARS DEFENCE TO-DAY.

Fatality Outside Roadhouse East of Oshawa is Described By Those Present.

COBOURG, Nov. 11.—The case before the Supreme Court at the Fall Assizes here yesterday was one of manslaughter, in which Peter Seymond, Oshawa, is appearing as defendant. The trial arises as the result of the death of Mrs. Helen Brown on the Kingston Highway near the driveway of "The House That Jack Built," a roadhouse approximately two and one-half miles east of Oshawa. For the defence, D. A. J. Swanson, K.C., of Oshawa, pleaded, while the prosecution was directed for the Crown by R. V. Sinclair, K.C., Ottawa. Mr. Justice Wright presided over the proceedings, and the twelve jurors were Eber Luxton, Reuben Payne, Cecil Osborne, Ernest Blanchard, Thomas Waldie, Herbert Watson, R. J. McKnight, George Rogers H. B. Wilson, Richard Logan, and James Walters. The prosecution witnesses were heard before adjournment.

The prosecution began the case by calling W. J. Ward, former Toronto police officer, to the witness stand. It was known to the court that Mrs. Helen Brown was riding in his car prior to her death. In his evidence, Ward related the events of the evening when he had driven a party of friends from Toronto to Oshawa and later to "The House That Jack Built." He also named the people who had been in the car with him as Mrs. Dorothy Lavigne, Henry Levy and Miss Florence Appleton. Asked as to the time he had reached the roadhouse, he stated that it was eleven o'clock in the evening. Upon further questioning he admitted that Mrs. Brown had come out and got

OLD MASTERS

All that I know
Of a certain star
Is, it can throw
(Like the angled spar)
Now a dart of red,
Now a dart of blue,
Till my friends have said
They would fain see, too,
My star that darties the red and the blue!
Then it stops like a bird; like a flower, hangs furled:
They must solace themselves with the Saturn above it.
What matter to me if their star is a world?
Mine has opened its soul to me; therefore I love it.

5TH PETERBOROUGH TROOP.

The meeting opened up with the troop leadler in charge. We had a good turnout, the three patrols being out in force. After introductory exercises the patrols were dismissed to their respective corners. Several games followed, in which all took part. Then followed a short talk on first aid ,after which the council fire opened. Many songs were sung and the boys had a good time. Hikes were discussed. Meeting came to a close with the singing of the National Anthem and Scout silence.

Last week's meeting was more exciting, which opened up with the scoutmaster in charge. After introductory exercises we were dismissed to our corners for patrol instruction. We were then inspected by the officers in charge. The scoutmaster, thinking we were a bit stiff, gave us some lively exercises. Mr. John, president of the Boy Scouts' Association, and Mr. Turner, commissioner, accompanied by Rev. Mr. Paterson, paid us a visit. After inspecting us they congratualted us on our work. Games were played, followed by the council fire, at which each patrol had to put on a stunt. After singing the National Anthem the meeting came to a close.

In Peterborough Churches

PARK STREET BAPTIST.

Armistice evening at the Park Street Baptist Church, the Rev. J. L. Harton delivered a lecture on "The Cross from Eden to Marne." He traced its history in a very comprehensive and able manner as will be readily gained from the following verbatim report of his speech which Mr. Harton was good enough to supply to The Examiner.

Another feature of the service was a program of special singing by the junior and senior choirs of the church.

The lecture which appears below is divided into three parts, legend, tradition, and truth. The first part concerns itself entirely with the Swastika Cross.

The Swastika
(Legend)

"Here is a symbol which, beyond all others, goes back to the deluge and perhaps to the Garden of Eden. In Genesis 2:10 we learn, 'And a river went out of the place of pleasure to water Paradise and from thence it divided into four heads' which means that the river with its tributaries flowed toward the four main points of the compass.

"And Adam lived some 130 years. With time the religion of Adam was forgotten; new forms and ideas took its place but these ideas were woven around the fragmentary and mutilated traditions of the past. Thus when the people came to the worshipping of gods of their own fashioning, they naturally gave to the god of Fertility and of Water the symbol of the four rivers of paradise.

"Today the jeweler will tell you this design with each of its four arms bent to a right angle is called the Swastika and that it carries with it good luck and prosperity for the one who wears it. Whether or not this be so, I cannot say. But this we do know, the mysterious symbol wherever found in Europe, Asia, Africa and America is always affiliated with the religious conceptions of the people.

"One hundred and fifty years before Christ it was the symbol for the water god of the Gauls. It was emblazoned on the sail of Cedric, the Gaul of the Isle of Man. It was the symbol of the war god of the Scandinavians. It was found cut in the temple stones of ancient Troy and it had been found burned in the terra cotta ruins of Mexico. It was chiscled 1,000 years before Christ on the stones of the Cave of Elphanta, India. It is today engraved on the breast of Buddha, the god of China. It was revered by the Druids of Ireland, Scotland and England. In the Boston Museum it may be seen on a large painting on silk. Six hundred years ago it hung in the temple of Buddha, in Japan. The picture is of Buddha decorated with a brilliant Swastika—this being one of the marks by which his people are to recognize him on his return.

In America it dates back to 713 A.D. and plays an important part in religious rites of Navajos and Papagos of Mexico. The Peruvians' emblem of the sun periods was smoke in four directions. Thus we have the culture of the Ancient World, savage of the desert and of the plain, wild man of the mountain, all revering the Cross—the Swastika, and believing in its power for the good of man.

Tradition.

"M. T. Ebbutt, M.A., archeologist, in his legends of the British Race gives us another cross. The narrative is taken from the Apocrophal Book of Nicodemus.

"Adam lay sick. His son Seth went to the entrance of Eden and begged from the angel a cruse of oil from the Tree of Mercy. The angel moved with compassion gave him a small branch off the tree saying: 'Return and plant on your father's grave. Tell your mother that this tree when grown will bear precious fruit.' Seth returned and planted it. It grew and in the time of Solomon was most beautiful. It was ordered to be cut for a temple pillar but was found too hard for the workmen's tools and was cast aside and used later as a foot bridge. It is said that when the Queen of Sheba was visiting Solomon that she hesitated in crossing the bridge and prophesied that one would be the fruit of the bridge tree at the end of the time of the Jews. Solomon later ordered that it be buried deep in the earth. There came a time when the Jews made a pond for washing sheep. It was called the Pool of Bethsaida and later scriptures tell us how at certain times the waters were troubled and were of healing power. Tradition tells us that on the morning of Christ's betrayal this log floated on the water and that in the haste of the Jews and Romans it was picked out and used by the carpenters for building the cross of the crucifixion of a certain malefactor, at Nazarene.

"Now our legends become tradition. After the crucifixion the three crosses were thrown into the valley of Geherna to await its burial there re the Jewish custom. In the years 312 A.D. the great Emperor Constantine, on the eve of battle with the Huns, had a dream. An angel bade him look up. In the sky he saw a glorious cross and on it engraved. 'With this shalt thou conquer the foe in the conflict and with it shalt thou hurl back the host of the heathen.'

"At dawn he called his men, ordered a cross to be constructed and had it carried by the standard bearer at the head of his troops. Victory came to the Romans. Returning home he called his wise men, raised the standard and said, 'Can any may tell me by spells or by ancient lore
Who is the gracious God, the Giver of victory
Who came in his glory with a cross for his token
Who rescued my people and gave me the victory."

"After a while one answered, 'The cross was the sign of X the King of Heaven. Emperor Constantine was converted to Christianity and sent his mother to find the cross. She travelled to Palestine, hired men and they dug around the foot of Golgotha Hill. They found three old weather worn marked crosses. The crosses were carried to the city—the dead were laid thereon and on one they were revived.

"Oh, I don't know but that tradition becmes truth. Men do not seem as interested today in this old rugged cross. Yet it stands today as it ever has with its message of goodwill and advantage to men. It stands for forgiveness: When that old rugged cross had been set in its place Jesus looked upon His murderers with pity on those to whom He had done no harm but who now tortured and tormented Him, on those for whom He held no unkind feeling, and uttered this prayer, 'Father, forgive them for they know not what they do.' Could you find a grander expression of forgiveness? No, not unless it be the cross itself as an expression of God's desire to make a way of forgiveness for men."

Then followed some striking illustrations of all saving grace and munificence of our Lord. Illustrations that showed His redeeming power and what a wonderful change comes into the lives of those who have strayed from the path and have finally seen the light and entered the fold. They went on to show that there is a ready forgiveness for sinners of great iniquity, all of which led to the point that true Christian relationship with our fellows, as in the case of Christ, calls for the spirit of sacrifice over and above the willingness to forgive.

Mr. Harton went on to say, "Jesus said, 'Come take up your cross and follow me.'

"I blush with shame at the small service I have rendered for all His goodness toward me. I think of the Day we commemorate; I think of the boys over there—so many brave valiant spirits."

"Men of the Northland they:
Land of the floods and floes:
Whelps of the old sea dog:
Forth from their nature shows
The blood of the conquering Celt,
Blood of the old sea Kings,
Blood of the Norman sires,
Blood of the Athelings:—
There midst the poison fumes, there in the carnage pit,
There where the shrapnel sang, each man did his bit."

"Oh laddie, little laddie, come with me o'er the hills
Where bloom the white May lillies and dogwood and daffodils;
For the spirit of spring is calling to our spirit that love to roam
Over the hills of home, laddie—over the hills of home.

Laddie, little laddie, here's hazel and meadow be
And wreaths of rare arbutus a blowing for you and me,
And cherry and bill-berry blossoms and hawthorne white as foam
We'll carry them all to Mother, laddie, over the hills of home.

Laddie, little laddie, your childhood is passing by,
And the gleam of a noble purpose I see in your thoughtful eye:
You have many a mile to travel, you have many a task to do,
Whistle a tune as you go laddie, whistle a tune as you go."

Laddie, little laddie, a call comes o'er the sea,
A call to the best and bravest in this land of liberty;
To shatter the despots power—to lift up the weak that fall,
Whistle a tune as you go laddie, to answer your country's call.

Laddie, little laddie, the spring has come back again
And the voice from the windy hill-top is calling your name in vain;
For never shall we together midst birds and blossoms roam,
Over the hills of home laddie, over the hills of home.

Laddie, little laddie, somewhere in France you sleep,
Somewhere 'near alien flowers and alien winds that creep;
Bravely you marched to battle, bravely you laid life down,
You unto death were faithful, yours the victor's crown.

Laddie, beloved laddie, how dim has the sunshine grown,
As mother and I together speak softly in tender tones,
And the lips that tremble and falter, have ever a single theme.
As we list for your lost, lone whistle, laddie, over the hills of dream.

Laddie, beloved laddie, how soon should we cease to weep,
Could we see through the golden gateway, whose keys the angels keep;
But love, our love that is deathless, can follow you where you roam.
Over the hills of God laddie, those beautiful hills of home."

SHOULD BE SUPPORTED.

The proposed new highway connecting the Peterborough-Port Hope highway with the Whitby-Lindsay highway, via Cavanville, Bethany and Port Perry, deserves, and will undoubtedly get, all the support locally that can be given the proposition.

The advantages to Peterborough of such a link are obvious.

It would provide ready access to this city for the people of a rich farming section, many of whom because of poor road facilities have been trading in other centres.

That in itself is a consideration of importance.

There is the second advantage that the proposed highway would give Peterborough people an alternative route to Toronto, that would be shorter than the Port Hope-Kingston road route, and this, of course, would have the desirable effect of relieving some of the congestion along the lakeshore highway.

It is satisfactory to note the steps that have already been taken to impress the desirability of constructing this highway upon the Department of Highways, and the committee in charge should be given assistance and co-operation by everyone who is in a position to help.

The more good roads leading to Peterborough the better.

AN ENCOURAGING SIGN.

It is an encouraging sign that while Premier Ferguson is planning for better facilities for the teaching of French in Ontario, Hon. Athanase David, Provincial Secretary of Quebec, hopes to make it possible for the young citizens of that Province to obtain a better command of the English language.

Mr. David is quoted on the subject as follows:

"I do insist that our young French-Canadians be armed with the weapon with which they will be able to fight their way through the domain of industry and commerce. They must be given a perfect command of the English language."

Both the Ontario Premier and the Quebec Provincial Secretary are on the right track.

It is obviously to the best interest of French Canadians that they should speak English fluently since it is the language of 120 million people on this Continent today.

At the same time a knowledge of the French language would undoubtedly be an asset to many Ontario people, and open the way to promotion in many fields of business and industry.

A proficiency in both tongues by the peoples of the two Provinces again would lead to a closer entente and a much better feeling.

THE OSHAWA SITUATION.

A Petition signed by several thousand citizens has been sent to the Liquor Control Board asking for the establishing of a Government liquor store in Oshawa, and The Oshawa Daily Times, in objecting to the location of a store in that city, points out that those opposed to the sale of liquor have taken no effective means of submitting their views to the Control Board.

Looking at the thing from all viewpoints, it is difficult to see why a liquor store should not be located in the Motor City, or why, when the sale of liquor is legalized in the Province, there should be any considerable amount of opposition.

With liquor being sold on both sides of Oshawa, the present situation must make law-breaking and bootlegging inevitable.

The Motor City is filled with workers from far and near who, according to the law of averages, cannot all be total abstainers.

Those who are not have their choice of going west to Toronto or east to Port Hope for their supplies, and for the benefit of those who do not find it convenient to make the journey, there must undoubtedly be many individuals in Oshawa who are willing to furnish the desired refreshment at a price that allows a margin of profit, of course.

Oshawa cannot be kept dry merely by shutting out a Government store; all that can be accomplished by such a course would be to maintain a profitable field for the illicit seller.

What more could a bootlegger ask than a prosperous, fast-growing industrial city with its workers earning good wages?

ARMISTICE DAY.

It's so easy to forget; and 1918 was nine long years ago.

Yet there are some things that we must never let ourselves forget. And Armistice Day brings some of them to our minds.

There is no danger, of course, that we will actually forget the war. Yet already the details of it are getting a bit hazy for some of us; already memory is beginning to play her old trick on us, softening the harsh outlines of past events and bathing unpleasant happenings in a soft, rosy light that makes them seem actually enjoyable, in retrospect.

When the average non-combatant thinks of the war, for instance, what are his emotions? He thinks of the easy money that prevailed then. He thinks of the waving flags, of the pleasant, spine-tingling thrills of patriotism that came to him so often. He thinks of the wave of idealism that swept the land in those days, under which the humblest citizen could feel that he was part of a great army of brothers. All in all, the war doesn't seem half bad, in retrospect.

And the ex-service man; how does he feel about it? As like as not he, too, has memories that, on the whole, are not unpleasant. The horror and the terror that were part of his life do not intrude themselves so much nowadays. Instead he remembers the easy comradeship, the happy-go-lucky good fellowship of the army. He recalls the songs he used to sing, the mates with whom he went on escapades, the times when he went gaily A.W.O.L. and eluded the M.P.'s.

This is as it should be. Yet today, the ninth anniversary of the war, is a good day for jogging our memories, for reminding ourselves that the war wasn't all skittles and beer.

War is quite all that General Sherman said it is, and a casual inspection of one's memory of the days of 1917 and 1918 will bear out that statement.

The non-combatant might recall the daily casualty lists; the worry and anxiety over absent loved ones; the unsightly spectacle of profiteers waxing fat on a situation that was bringing grief and destruction to all of Europe; the sky-rocketing prices, so often rising faster than wages and salaries rose.

And the soldier might recall—well, he knows what scenes of horror he can turn his mind to, without our telling him. He can recall the mud, the filth, the machine guns, the shrapnel and the rest; and he knows that, however many tricks his memory may play on him, these things were not pleasant.

Such are the memories we might stir up for today. And why?

Not to advance the cause of "peace at any price," surely. Not to make ourselves a pacifistic nation, willing to accept any situation rather than fight to end it.

Simply to remind ourselves that we went through a terrible experience a few years ago, and that that experience had a definite purpose. If we pledge ourselves again to the task of seeing to it that that purpose—the bringing of freedom and peace closer to every man on earth—is brought nearer fulfillment, it will be well. If we do not, our memories may arise to torture us again.

A MILE OF LITTER.

Apparently Canada is not the only country in which the countryside is all too frequently disgraced by a mass of litter carelessly and untidily thrown aside by passing motorists and stray picnicking parties. Feeling in Great Britain has been aroused by the same condition of affairs, and the Social Service Bulletin, in an effort to arouse official action, recently undertook a census of rubbish and litter on one mile of the main road between Oxford and Abingdon. No attempt, it is stated, was made to pry into the undergrowth or into ditches, but only such rubbish as could be easily seen by any pedestrian making use of the highway was enumerated. The result was astounding. Here are the things that the representatives of the Social Service Bulletin found lying alongside one mile of this main road:

Cigarette packets, 277; match boxes, 92; tobacco wrappers, 7; newspapers, 61; omnibus tickets, 334; pieces of cardboard, 2; chocolate wrappers, 51; orange peels, 21; banana skins, 9; bottles, 13; food wrappers, 275; rags, 29; unclassified paper, 582; miscellaneous, 50. Grand total, 1,803.

It is interesting to observe that the miscellaneous articles included one straw hat, seven heaps of cinders, five piles of carbide, a broken plate, two broken cups, several tins and jars, a rope, a telegraph wire insulator, and a piece of bread. The remains from a large luncheon party which had been cast into a ditch defied closer investigation and were counted six amongst the food wrappers.

Apparently those who make use of the Canadian highways have no monopoly of untidiness. Yet we venture to say that any person having a mind to delve into such things might very easily chalk up a mark equally black against practically any mile of main road in Ontario. There is nothing that mars the appearance of any beauty-spot more than a scattering of unkempt litter and, unfortunately, since it is the beauty-spots that are most greatly patronized by picnicking parties, they are very often the scene of the greatest disorder. The suggestion has often been made that the establishment of proper receptacles at intervals along the principal highways might relieve this condition about which there is much complaint. We doubt it. The experience at such places of public resort where receptacles have been installed is that there has been no pronounced lessening of the nuisance. People still throw their filthy papers egg-shells and peelings about rather than take a few steps to deposit them in the receptacles, and it is so much easier to cast a banana skin from a moving motor car than to stop and place it where it properly belongs. Nevertheless, the highways department might very well incorporate a plea for greater roadside cleanliness in the campaign for improvement in motorists' manners that it is conducting.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

TAUGHT PREMIER.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Ont., November 11 (Canadian Press). — There was some demand from New York exporters for wheat on the Montreal grain market yesterday, but owing to the small offerings in nearby positions the volume of business was curtailed and only sales of a few loads of No. 2 Northern were made at 17½c per bushel over the Winnipeg November option, c.i.f. Montreal. The United Kingdom demand was quiet.

In sympathy with the strength in oats futures at Winnipeg, spot prices for grades were advanced one cent per bushel. The demand was fair.

Owing to the strength that had prevailed in the Winnipeg cash wheat situation of late, a stronger feeling developed here for spring wheat flour and prices were marked up ten cents per barrel. The trade was moderate.

The undertone to the winter wheat flour was also firmer, and indications are that prices will be advanced in the near future.

Prices for bran and shorts in the millfeed market were advanced $1.00 per ton. This was attributed to the improvement in the demand of late, and especially so from the United States. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was fair and values were firm.

The demand for all grades of eggs continued good, and prices ruled steady. The receipts were 192 cases.

A fair amount of business was transacted in potatoes ,and prices were firm. Sales of car lots of Prince Edward Island Mountains at $1.35 per bag in bulk; Cobblers at $1.30 per bag in bulk ;and Quebec varieties at $1.00 to $1.10 per bag in bulk, ex-track.

Prices for imported beans were well maintained under a moderate demand. Car lots of choice white hand-picked were sold at $2.50 per bushel on spot ,and to arrive at $2.60 per bushel ex-track, while smaller quantities sold at $2.75 per bushel, ex-store.

The butter trade was without any new feature to note, the undertone being steady, with a moderate amount of business passing. The receipts were 398 packages.

Owing to a marked improvement in the demand from English importers for cheese, a fairly active busi-

BILL-BOARDS

To the Editor of The Examiner,

Sir,—The beauty spots which people have gone to so much expense to build up are again being used by advertisers, who put up big staring advertisements of their wares. When did they own the landscape, the highways and all that goes to make Canada and Peterborough beautiful.

It is a shame and ought to be righted at once.

—Lover of Beauty,

PRAISES CONCERT.

The Editor, Examiner.

Sir,—I attended the Sunday concert last week at the Capitol Theatre, and would like to ask whoever may be responsible for same to repeat at some early date. Every item on the programme was very enjoyable, and was well received by an attentive audience, many of which, I am sure, join me in hoping that more of these concerts are organized.

Trusting you will publish this letter, so that those in authority may read, and thanking you.—Yours truly, C.W.

LAUDS MUSICIAN.

To the Editor, Examiner.

Sir,—It was my good fortune to hear one of our foremost violinists, conductor and composer, at the Conservatory of Music, Peterborough on October 26th.

This recital was one of the best I have ever heard. Miss Dawson at the piano was exceptionally brilliant in her two numbers. What surprised me was the small audience, though they were very appreciative of the artists' efforts, and those who heard them were amply rewarded.

Of all the numbers rendered, I think Donald Heins' own compositions were the best, showing excellent merit, and will rank with the best classics of to-day. When we are fortunate enough to have artists of their calibre in our midst, we should not miss the chance to hear them. I would suggest that these artists be invited once again, and give the local music lovers the opportunity to hear one of the outstanding violinists and composers of to-day.

Trusting you will insert this in your valuable paper,—Yours,

LOVER OF MUSIC, J.E.

CRIME

To the Editor of The Examiner,

Sir,—Self-satisfied Ontario, with its crime-wave of the last ten years shows up poorly in comparison with Quebec in that particular where crime of a more serious character is largely imported and not the fault of the Quebecers. This is primarily due to keeping to the old standards of religion there.

Being free to criticise the Scriptures as our so-called "scholars" do, has opened the gates of doubt to our people generally with the result that the air is no longer filled, even once a week, with the spirit of observance for divine things.

Now, visitors to Italy praise the dictatorship of Mussolini to the skies, especially women like Lady Eaton, who have spent some time there. Whatever Mussolini prohibits is prohibited beyond all question, and there is no escape. How much better it would be with us if people who attack the Bible were forbidden to do so, and immediately put in the penetentiary. This so-called criticism sapping as it does the very life and hope of our best people, is doing infinitely more harm even than whiskey. Promiscuous freedom of the sexes should also be limited by the issuance of permits and thus would be stopped one of the worst of our causes of decadence.

Then stop all drinking of all kinds of alcoholic or narcotic liquors at any time. Never mind if they do good. See what much greater harm they are doing.

Oh! For a Mussolini in Ontario. The argument for "freedom" to search for truth and criticise the Bible is as fallacious as "freedom" to do anything else.

—R. M. L.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

King Alfonso of Spain was thrown from his horse during a polo game. Stealing some of the Prince of Wales' publicity ideas?

A young man needn't look forward to being heavyweight champion or president any more. Any young fellow stands a chance of being chosen the average man.

One of these days we can look for the headline: POOR BOY BECOMES AVERAGE MAN.

We've hardly tagged the World war and put it away on the shelf when along comes Big Bill Thompson and wants to know who won the Revolution.

The Kansas correspondent who wrote that Mr. and Mrs. Somebody-or-other were driving a new sedan forgot to mention which one had the wheel.

Levine, returning from Europe, declined movie offers, refusing "to make a show of himself." What he probably meant to say was "refusing to continue to wake a show of himself."

CAT INTERRUPTS ELECTRIC SERVICE

Plunges Part of Ottawa Into Darkness—Loses Nine Lives.

OTTAWA, Nov. 11 (Canadian Press).—A black cat was unlucky last night. The feline plunged a considerable portion of the city into darkness. The lights were out for several minutes in the central portion of the city, including the parliament buildings, the post office, and all the night lunch rooms. The trouble was in the Slater Street sub-station and was believed at first to be due to a grounded wire. However, the charred remains of a cat indicated that in her stroll about the sub-station where she had sought shelter from the cold, she had climbed onto the main feed wires of a three-phase circuit. Her forefeet on one of the wires and her hind feet on the other did the trick and she lost all nine lives in quick order.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, November 11 (Canadian Press). — Grain traders received a big surprise yesterday afternoon, the United States Government estimate of 1927 corn production being far in excess of the highest unofficial forecast. So completely did speculators fail to anticipate the bearish showing, corn prices actually advanced yesterday, the report not coming to hand until after the close of business.

Final quotations on corn were firm, ½c to ½c net higher; with wheat unchanged to ¾c up; oats a shade to ¼c off; and privisions varying from 47c decline to a rise of 20c.

Prevailing unfavorable weather had much to do with the fact that corn prices advanced after a decline at the start. About the only apparent influence of the expected Government report on corn was to promote evening up of accounts and to hold fresh speculative selling in check. The average of private estimates of corn yield was 2,646,000,000 bushels and a carry-over of 114,000,000 bushels. The highest unofficial estimate of yield was 2,657,000,000 bushels.

In contrast with what was looked for, the total supply of corn in all positions, including farm reserves, about as expected, is 32,000,000 bushels in excess of last season. With weather over the corn belt unfavorable, however, and with a forecast out indicating widespread rain or snow, all breaks in corn prices yesterday met with a fair class of buying and the close was at nearly the day's top level. Oats had no decided trend.

Wheat values averaged a little higher yesterday, helped by the fact that export business from North America totalled 700,000 bushels. Besides, Argentine despatches said reports of damage from recent frosts were coming from a few northern points. Meanwhile, there were advices also of crop damage in Western Kansas counties because of dry weather. On the other hand, announcement that harvest has begun in Argenitna had some bearish effect, and so likewise did predictions that the Canadian official estimate to-day would show a decided increase.

In the provision market the chief feature was a sharp setback in quotations of bellies, selling orders disclosing a dearth of buyers.

MINISTER THINKS WIFE IS IN WOODS

Believes She Has Started To Live "Back To Nature" Life.

CLAREMONT, N. H., Nov. 10. — (United Press.)— While search for his runaway wife was unsuccessful to-day, the Rev. Dascombe Forbush, of Canandagua, N.Y., was confident she had been living a back-to-nature existence in the woods near here.

Mrs. Forbush, an attractive blonde, disappeared from a Washington theatre where she and her husband had been attending a performance about three weeks ago.

Informed that a woman answering the description of his wife had been living the life of a wild creature in this vicinity, Forbush fought his way across the flooded country. "I am convinced the woman seen by several people near Claremont is my wife," Forbush said after interviewing Napoleon Leclair, a farmer who lives near here.

Leclair identified a photograph of Mrs. Forbush as the woman he encountered walking along a country road.

WHITE SLAVE HUNT IS FINALLY ENDED

Charges Against Hamilton Man Are Dropped By Crown.

HAMILTON, November 11 — Canadian Press. — Pinis was written on the story concerning the alleged operations of white slavers and drug traffickers in this district to-day, when the Crown dropped the charge against Fred Coates of interfering with a ward of the Church of England's Waifs' Society. Coates' arrest followed the finding of a local girl (Frances Tooke) in a drugged condition in a Chinese cafe at Port Corborne some time ago. His name was also mentioned in connection with the disappearanec of Margaret Spall, a Toronto girl, who was employed by a local resident at Port Colborne.

Crown Attorney Ballard announced to-day that the charge was to be dropped. The girl, Frances Tooke, was charged with vagrancy and turned over to the Big Sisters' Association.

Friday, Nov. 11

WHATEVER DATE may be set aside by legislation for observance of the proclamation of the Armistice, to all who remember November 11, 1918, THIS IS THE DAY.

The earth, once sown with the salt of hate and watered with the blood of Heroes, has at last grown fertile, and now yields the fruits of peaceful toil.

Hearts, once closed in enmity, are to-day open in goodwill.

But we remember . . .

And to-day we are thankful that we can pay silent tribute to our Martyred Youth, the pride of Peterborough homes.

It is to them that we owe the Armistice.

POPPIES SOLD AT LAKEFIELD

Taggers Meet With Generous Response to Annual Appeal.

LAKEFIELD NEWS

LAKEFIELD, November 11.—Saturday was Poppy Day, and practically everyone was to be seen wearing the flame-red flower of remembrance. A band of young people were engaged in selling the poppies all day and until 9 p.m. Mrs. Dudley C. Chads was in charge of the work this year, and the campaign was organized and carried through successfully, with proceeds amounting to well up to $90.00. More than seven hundred poppies were sold, and the emblem of service and sacrifice was noticeable everywhere.

The taggers worked faithfully and cheerfully, and bravely trudged about regardless of weariness till they were called in at 9 o'clock at night. The following were the young people who sold the poppies: Jean Gaivin, Mary Dever, Eileen Brown, (these three representing the C.G.I.T.). Lillian Mason, Mary Webdale, Coleer. Junkin, Josephine White, Marie Allen, Margaret Tanner, Vera Moore, Betty Montgomery, Helen Porter, Mrs. T. M. Wesley, and Ducie Chads.

The contents of the boxes was counted by Messrs. Fred Moon and Lawrence Charlton, and after the result was announced the group was entertained at a jolly little supper party arranged by Mrs. Marling, Mrs. Wesley, and Mrs. Chads. This was a pleasant finish to a busy and profitable day, and the young people expressed pleasure at being able to serve even in such a modest way.

Thanksgiving Dance.

The annual Thanksgiving dance at The Grove was the big social event of the week-end in Lakefield, and was held on Saturday night. It was attended by about seventy-five, including the Old Boys who plan year by year for the annual week-end at "the old school on the hill." This week-end forms an important part of the school chronicles of the year, as it includes the holiday dance, the re-unions of old friends, the visit on Sunday morning to the old Parish Church where the Old Boys sit again in the school pews and join in the familiar service, then on Monday morning the football match of The School vs. Old Boys. What fun is crowded into the week-end, until it too becomes a part of memory's garden, and the Old Boys scatter, leaving an impression on the new boys of the "spirit of the school," and what it means. The holiday dance of 1927 was, as usual, informal, Rev. and Mrs. Mackenzie receiving the guests, making all feel at home and in tune with the spirit of the evening. First-class music was provided by Ferdy Mowry and his Collegians of Peterborough, and was particularly good, consisting of all the most popular numbers of the season. The programme was appreciated as dancing was kept up till nearly midnight, when the merry group dispersed. The evening was a medley of happy-faced boys and pretty girls, the latter wearing the daintiest of dance frocks in the popular shades, older people, happy too, good music a perfect floor, and plu-perfect hosts.

Next Sunday will be Children's Day in Regent Street Church, and it will be particularly observed at the morning service when the children will occupy the front seats and the music and sermon will be especially for the younger members of the congregation.

Presentation.

A delegation representing the members of the Baptist Church called on Miss Etta Bolton recently and presented her with a china dinner service and a linen table cover as a mark of their esteem and to express their good wishes on the occasion of her marriage. A more elaborate presentation had been planned, but owing to the serious condition of Mr. Bolton the affair was quite informal.

The following is the accompanying address:

Lakefield, Ont., November 5, 1927.

Dear Etta,—We wish you every success and happiness for your future life. May your married life be a long and prosperous one, and may every joy be yours. We ask you to accept this little gift as a token of our love and respect for you.

Signed on behalf of the members of the Baptist Church,

Mrs. Spencer,
Mrs. Johnston.

Miss Bolton replied in fitting terms, thanking the ladies and the Baptist people for their generous recognition of her marriage and assuring them of her continued interest in the church and its work.

The fourth of the series of St. Paul's card parties was held on Friday evening in the rooms of the Holy Name Society, over Leonard's store, and was very successful, everyone having a delightful time. Miss Odell Watson and Mr. Charles R. Armstrong were the prize-winners, while Miss Margaret Bissonette and Mr. John McFadden, Jr., carried off the consolation trophies.

The second of the series of card parties given by the A.Y.P.A. was held on Thursday evening last. Fifteen tables were played, prizes were won by Mrs. Charles Lake and Mr. Braden Blewett, while Miss Alice Pringle and Mr. Clarke won the consolation prizes.

The Nicholls party are hunting at Eagle Lake. The party consists of Messrs. Peter and Theodore Nicholls, W. Nicholls, George Graham, all of North Smith, and A. Heiser and Ted Dingely, of Akron, Ohio.

The Charlton party, hunting north of Apsley, consists of Messrs. S. J. Charlton, D. H. Charlton, Bruce Charlton, B. Q. Dench, R. J. Jory, G. G. Connell, and Charles Lake, of Lakefield, and J. C. Strickland, of Peterborough, and J. W. Allen, of Rochester.

Rev. Thomas Webster Pickett, father-in-law of Hon. Geo. S. Henry, Ontario's Minister of Highways, is dead. For more than 35 years he had been in the Methodist ministry, rendering service in Montreal, Bay of Quinte, Manitoba and Toronto.

WITNESSES FOR

into the car. She was wearing a coolie coat over some other clothing. The blue garment which was exhibited to him was identified by him as the garment the unfortunate woman had worn.

Asked what he did then, witness stated that Mrs. Brown had suggested a trip to Oshawa to see the streets in the gay colours for the Rotary Street Fair. The main street was barricaded and they watched the festivities for some time without getting out of the car. Further questioned, witness stated that they had returned to Wavely Inn, a roadhouse on the opposite side of the Highway and not far from "The House That Jack Built." Returning, he stated, he had driven on the north side of the road and parked on the south side facing west, but off the pavement. It further developed that he stopped so that his car door opened directly on the path leading to "The House That Jack Built. Only his courtesy lights were lighted. He thought these could be seen for a mile on level ground.

Under a fire of questions from Mr. Swanson, witness admitted that the grade east of his car might interfere with an approaching driver's vision and the lights not be seen. Asked if he saw the car approaching, he said that he had seen it following a wavering course up the grade, and the next thing he knew his car had been struck.

Found Two Women.

He got out and ran around to the rear of the car and found Miss Appleton, whom he thought was going into the house with Mrs. Brown, lying on the ground moaning with pain. Thinking Mrs. Brown had gone to the house he called for her and found that she was not there. Then he started to look for her. He stated that he found her some time later lying in the ditch some eighty feet away. Asked if he had ever seen a car parked in the manner his had been, he said that he had and that it had not confused him because he had always slowed down. He would not make any definite estimate of the speed of the other car, but thought it was travelling about thirty-five miles an hour.

The next witness called by the Crown was Walter Green, at whose home in Oshawa both Seymonds and David Prusky were domiciled on the night of the accident. In his evidence he told of Seymonds leaving the house in Prusky's car. The evidence of Vera Green, his wife, was of the same nature.

T. W. Mitchell, Provincial officer, stationed at Oshawa, related how he was summoned to the scene of the tragedy and how he had seen the body of Mrs. Helen Brown in the ditch on the south side of the road. He also found the abandoned car with license number 57-332. His next action was to telephone the detective bureau in Toronto to have the owner's name searched for.

In his description of the car, he mentioned that it was a light make, and that the radiator was still warm. The lens of the right headlamp was broken and the lamp bent back. There was also a dent in the right front fender and striations along it. Blood stains were on the running board. There was also a small piece of blue cloth underneath the headlamp. He identified a piece of cloth shown him as the same one which had been under the light. The ribbed material of the coolie coat which Mrs. Brown had been wearing would, he thought, be responsible for the marks along the fender.

Under cross-examination by Mr. Swanson, witness admitted that the only authority he had for stating that the stains on the running board were blood stains, was that they looked like blood stains.

At this stage of the trial Ward was recalled to the stand by Mr. Swanson. He was asked who had moved his car from the scene of the accident, and replied that he did not know. It had been moved before the ambulance arrived. He thought it had been driven around to the back of the house by one of the men who came with the ambulance. He would not say definitely that this had been the case. He merely thought so at the time, as he had noticed that the car was gone and the ambulance was parked in approximately the same place. But while his car had had all four wheels off the pavement, the ambulance had only the two wheels on one side. He thought that the constables did not know exactly where his car had been standing except by what he had told them.

Two Witnesses Absent.

Dr. C. E. Wilson and Henry Levy, who were summoned to appear by the Crown, were again called by the court crier, but they were not in the court room nor in the lobby outside. It was Dr. Wilson who had pronounced Mrs. Helen Brown dead on the night of the fatality, while Levy had been one of the members of the party in the ill-fated car. The men did not answer and the Justice remarked that witnesses who did not answer to their names received no witness fee.

George Ernest Cookman was the next witness. He is the Provincial constable stationed at Whitby. He related how, when he arrived at the scene of the accident in response to a telephone call, he immediately telephoned the police of the neighboring towns along the highway to be on the alert for the car which he then described to them. He further described how he had found the prisoner asleep in a car in a garage in Newtonville, about five or five-thirty the afternoon of August 25th. Constable J. H. Fewtrill, Cobourg, after duly warning the man, made the formal arrest on the manslaughter charge. His description of Seymonds was as rather pale, although as he looked again at the prisoner in the dock, believed that he was naturally pale. His linen, said the officer, was dirty and his jacket was removed, and a tear in his trouser leg near the knee had been temporarily repaired by the use of a tie pin. Asked if the prisoner was drunk or smelled of liquor, the officer replied that he was not nor did he smell of liquor. Those with him at the time the arrest was made were Traffic Officer W. H. Reid, Provincial Constable T. W. Mitchell, and Provincial Constable J. H. Fewtrill, who made the arrest.

Prisoner Not Frightened

"Did Seymond look scared or frightened or like a man who was trying to get away?"

"No," came the reply, "I wouldn't say that he did." In reply to further questions, the officer stated that the garage was a public place and that anyone might enter, but added that he thought the officers would be more closely watched.

The next witness called to the stand was David Prusky, owner of the car which is alleged to have killed Mrs. Helen Brown. Prusky is now resident in Oshawa, but formerly of Peterborough. When he was taking the oath, His Lordship noticed that witness had his hat in one hand and was told to place his hat on his head.

In his evidence, Prusky related how he and Seymonds had been at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Green on the evening of August 24th. His statement was that the prisoner had asked for the loan of his car for the purpose of driving a friend home. Prusky granted the request, but had not seen Seymond drive away. He did not see the car again for two weeks, as it was in the hands of the police. About to retire from the witness box, he was halted by a question from Mr. Sinclair, who asked if it were true that the prisoner's car was not in running order. Prusky did not know.

W. H. Reid, highway traffic officer, when called, told of seeing the scene of the accident and of being present when the measurements were taken. He also stated that he had seen Ward there and told of seeing the car parked opposite the lane. He did not see the body but saw the spot where it had been found. He also saw the blood on the highway and telephoned to the police to watch for the car. Reid was also able to identify the piece of cloth which had been taken from under the front light. His description of the finding of the prisoner tallied with that given previously by Cookman. His reason for ordering the car towed to a garage was to have it held by the police.

Mrs. Green was then recalled to the stand. She said she had seen the car but did not know whose it was till told by the police. Although she had seen it taken away, she was unable to say who had removed it, but supposed it was a garageman.

At this point, the crier again called for Dr. Wilson and Henry Levy. They failed to answer to their names and His Lordship threatened fines and possibly bench warrants.

Drove With Prisoner

Philip Pritchard, Oshawa, told of meeting Seymonds on the street in Oshawa and of going with him to the Green's residence. They got out of the car and went into the house. The car, he described as a Ford roadster and Seymond had left for home in it at 11.45 that evening. He had not seen the prisoner since that time and had loaned him nine dollars the same evening.

Sidney Baldwin, employee of the Luke Burial Company, Oshawa, told of going to the house and seeing cars, people and the body of Mrs. Brown. He also identified the blue coolie coat as the garment worn by the victim, and which he had given to the Oshawa police. The marks on the body were one leg broken, scalp wound, bruises on arm and side, and a scratch on one foot, which was only slight.

Kenneth Cruise, son of the owner and operator of The House That Jack Built, testified that he was awakened, he thought, by the crash. It was either that or the confusion which immediately followed. He was in bed and after dressing hurriedly rushed outside and found the woman lying beside the car. It was Miss Atherly. He saw the ambulance coming and noticed that the car was gone from the end of the lane. He claimed to be the one who found the body of Mrs. Helen Brown. She was lying, he said, with her head to the south-east and her feet to the north-west, in the very bottom of the ditch. He tried to life her in his arms to carry her to the house, but was not sufficiently strong. He did assist the officers to do so. He also described the bruises on the body and also the blood stains, as well as identifying the blue coolie coat. He claimed that the car was a Ford roadster and that it was moved shortly after the accident.

His Lordship then granted a brief recess for the double purpose of refreshing the court officials and giving the prosecution an opportunity to locate the two witnesses, Dr. Wilson and Henry Levy, required for the completion of their case. After the court re-assembled and the witnesses had not appeared, the Judge decided that there was nothing to be gained by proceeding with the defense as the hour was late and it was almost time to adjourn the court for the afternoon. In allowing the jury to leave, His Lordship cautioned them against discussing the case with anyone outside themselves and reminded them that it was a serious offence to do so. It was also a serious offence for any person to attempt to enter into such a discussion with them and an affront to their intelligence as well. It was their duty to report anyone who made such an advance. Upon orders from the bench, the crier adjourned the court.

Legal and Reception.

We received a letter from the City Solicitor suggesting that an attempt be made to have the following amendment inserted in the Hospitals and Charitable Institutions Act, 1926:—"In the computation of time the time during which an indigent person is an inmate of a children's, infants', maternity, or other boarding house, a correctional or charitable institution, a hospital or any home or institution for custodial, medical or other care or supervision shall not be regarded." We recommend that the City Solicitor prepare a bill in accordance with his suggestion and that the Mayor, the Chairman of this Committee and the City Solicitor interview W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., and request him to introduce the bill in the Legislature at its next session.

In accordance with the authority given this Committee at the last meeting of the City Council we made a grant of Fifty Dollars ($50.00) to the Entertainment Committee of the Anglican Young People's Association to assist in entertaining the delegates to the meeting of the Dominion Association.

We recommend that the letter from H. Hopkins claiming compensation for damages caused by his motorcycle slipping on an oiled street, be received.

We received a letter from the St. Lawrence Underwriters' Agency saying that if the City would assume the first One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) of all claims they would give the City public liability insurance for $3,360.00 for a year. We recommend that the City carry its own risk of public liability.

We recommend that a Claims Committee of three members be appointed each year to act until their successors are appointed, and to be known as a Claims Committee, to investigate claims for accidents that may be made against the City and with power to settle all claims, and tha the City Treasurer be authorized to pay such claims when settled on the certificate of the Chairman of the said Committee, and that the Committee be now appointed and be composed of Ald. Macdonald, Chairman, the City Clerk and City Treasurer.

We recommend that One Hundred and Twenty-five Dollars ($125) be appropriated to entertain the Peterborough baseball teams which did so well in the past season.

Fire, Water and Light.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee reported as follows:

We recommend that the provisions of the Act passed at the last session of the Ontario Legislature providing for a two platoon system in fire departments, and a six-day week for employees be carried out on January 1st next.

We received a letter from the Peterborough Utilities Commission, in reply to a request from the Chairman, regarding improved street lighting on King, Rink and Harvey Streets, saying that the increased cost would be as follows:

King Street

Install three 300 watt lamps	$54.00
Remove three 60 watt lamps	27.00
Increased cost per year	$27.00

Rink Street.

Install three 300 watt lamps	$54.00
Remove three 60 watt lamps	27.00
Increased cost per year	27.00

Harvey Street.

Install five 300 watt lamps	$90.00
Remove six 60 watt lamps	54.00
Increased cost per year	36.00
Total increase	$90.00

We recommend that these suggestions be approved and the changes carried out.

We also received a letter from the Peterborough Utilities Commission re commending the removal of eighteen 60 watt lamps from Rubidge Street between Charlotte Street and Rink Street, costing $162.00 a year, and the installation in their place of twelve 300 watt suspended units at a yearly cost of $216.00 a year.

We recommend that these suggestions be approved and the changes carried out.

We recommend that the Chairman of this Committee be requested to look into the street lighting on London Street between George Street and Aylmer Street and report on it.

A tender was read from the American LaFrance Fire Engine Company offering to install a 600 Imperial gallon LaFrance pumping unit on the chemical apparatus now in the fire hall, with accompanying appliances for $6,950.00, not including transportation.

We recommend that the tender be received.

We recommend that the Chairman of this Committee and the Chief of the Fire Department have a by-law prepared in regard to the storage of gasolene and coal oil.

We recommend that the Chairman of this Committee and the Chief of the Fire Department have a by-law prepared to provide regulations for the government of the department.

We recommend that the Chairman of this Committee and the Chief of the Fire Department be authorized to sell the horses and harness in the fire department, and to ascertain what price can be obtained for the steam fire engine and the horse-drawn ladder truck and hose waggon.

Several other improvements in street lighting which the Chairman reported verbally were passed.

With reference to the request of the Kiwanis Club that the name of Albertus Avenue be changed to Kiwanis Avenue we recommend the Club be informed that a by-law will be prepared for this purpose provided the Club gets the permission of the Township of North Monaghan for the change, as Albertus Avenue is a boundary between the City and the Township.

We recommend that Joseph Crowe's resignation having been accepted, the services of the other two operators at the Sewage Disposal Plant be dispensed with from December 9th, 1927, and that they be notified by the City Engineer, and that the Mayor and the City Engineer be appointed a special committee to recommend substitutes for these positions and to report at the earliest possible time.

This was adopted with the exception of clause five, which was referred back to the committee.

OFFICIAL TELLS OF W.M.S. WORK

ADDRESSES GIRLS.

Miss Evelyn Mitchell was the interesting speaker who addressed the Young Women's Auxiliaries and the Mission Circles of the city on Wednesday evening in George Street United Church. Miss Mitchell is Travelling Secretary for the W.M.S. Dominion Board, Toronto, and the reception accorded her shows her high standing among the many fine speakers who have come to Peterborough in the interest of the Woman's Missionary Society.

Her description of actual experiences met in hospitals, social service homes, training schools, and in the everyday life of the missionary, as she travelled from coast to coast, struck a responsive chord in the hearts of her listeners.

Touching briefly on the W.M.S. work accomplished in Korea, where forty-five years ago no missionary had entered, she said that to-day the women of that Far Eastern country are taking part in practically all the affairs of the nation. They teach and preach. They dispense medicine in hospitals, they meet in convention with men and debate on all questions of importance. In fact, they have almost the same freedom as their Western sisters. She also spoke of conditions in Japan and in Angola, West Africa, citing instances both amusing and pathetic.

As so large a share of the W.M.S. work is centred in Canada, Miss Mitchell dwelt particularly upon the home field and the responsibility it brings to the church here. Foreigners who came here but a few years ago, ignorant, uneducated, and unbelievers, are to-day among the most efficient and valued workers, missionaries in the home of their adoption. She maintained that "love" is the great motive power which has given the W.M.S. its wonderful success in winning the foreigner.

Mrs. William Knox, president of George Street Mission Circle, presided at the meeting. St. Andrew's Y.W.A. was represented by Miss Jean Anderson and St. James' Circle by Miss Connie Wagar, who took part in the opening exercises. Mrs. (Rev.) J. I. Brown introduced the speaker, saying that Miss Mitchell had a story to tell, and would tell it in a telling way.

A beautiful solo, "The Living God" (by O'Hara) was sung very effectively by Mrs. G. F. Liddle, accompanied on the piano by Mr. G. F. Liddle.

Mrs. Coon, of George Street Auxiliary, voiced the appreciation of the gathering in a vote of thanks to Miss Mitchell. The motion was seconded by Mrs. W. H. Morton, Mark Street Circle, and responded to by a hearty clap of hands.

Prayer, offered by Rev. Dr. J. I. Brown, closed a very inspiring service.

This was the last of a series of meetings throughout Peterborough section, Lindsay Presbyterial, during the past two weeks, Miss Mitchell speaking to large and interested audiences at Lakefield, Norwood, Cottesloe, Havelock, and Fairmount, as well as at three city churches — at Trinity to the Auxiliaries, at Knox Church to the C.G.I.T. groups, and Mission Bands, and in George Street to the Y.W.A.'s and the Mission Circles.

A competitor in a recent golf tournament in England has a remarkable experience. He had hit a good iron shot, which appeared to finish near the green, and as the ball came to rest, a dog ran across the course, picked up the ball and carried it off. As it was not retrived, the golfer had to play it as a lost ball.

CHRISTMAS SEALS.

The Christmas Seals for the Peterborough Health Association have arrived and are now in the hands of the secretary, Dr. G. S. Cameron. A cut of them, which is about twice the size of the regular Seal, is being shown. The double barred red cross in the corner is very appropriate and denotes the work for which the proceeds will be used. With this on your Christmas mail or parcels the person to whom it is addressed will know you are doing your bit and are helping the cause of Health and Happiness in the city of Peterborough.

The posters, window cards and other display material will soon be on the streets or in the windows. When you see them just remember that if everyone does his bit to help, Peterborough can be given a happier Christmas and made a better place in which to live .Some business ladies have already answered the appeal for help in addressing envelopes, and it is expected many others will follow suit. When you receive your letter with only a dollar's worth of seals, do not hesitate for a moment, but think of the good right here at home your dollar may accomplish, and return it to the Health Association in the envelope which will accompany the seals.

SHE IS NOT MINE.

A child stood waiting before the gate,
Poorly clad and of humble mien;
Worse than orphaned, a waif of fate,
She asked from hands unseen.
The lady paused in the busy whirl
Of life of ease, from the book she read;
"I cannot care for the little girl;
"She is not mine," she said.

A homeless puppy lay on the street,
Tired and famished, and asked to live;
A starving kitten was dropped at her feet,
Because she had wealth to give.
"I have no room for the speechless throng;
No time to see if they are warmed and fed;
My life is crowded with joy and song;
They are not mine," she said.

Death came; the lady was called away
From her beautiful home and jewels rare;
Thousands of voices bade her stay:
"Too lovely, she is too fair."
She stood where we all will stand at last,
When the record of life is closely read;
The angel paused as he scanned her past:
"She is not mine," he said.

INFANT DEATH TOLL LOW HERE

CREDIT TO CLINIC

Dr. Jessie Birnie draws to the attention of The Examiner some facts of interest with regard to infantile mortality in this city. An article that appeared recently in these columns said in part:

"In the year 1926, Canada lost 23,671 babies under one year of age. Of these, 7,089 were still-born. In one province, the infantile death rate was 58.6 per 1,000 living births, and in another province the rate was 142.6."

In Peterborough, according to figures submitted by Dr. Birnie, the birth rate total for 1926 was 555. Of this number, 27 were still-born and 17 were premature; that is ,they died within a space of time ranging from a few seconds to a couple of days after birth, from unavoidable causes that included mal-formation and cerebral hemorrhage. Of the number remaining, 514, there were seven deaths under one years of age from preventable causes, such as pneumonia, bronchial pneumonia, infantile paralysis, diarrhoea, convulsions and smothering, or a percentage of about 13 deaths per 1,000 living births.

Comparing these figures with others from the province, it can be seen that Peterborough's infantile mortality rate is very low, and this city could do very little to swell the list of deaths as quoted in the two provinces above mentioned.

Much of the credit for this desirable state of affairs is undoubtedly due to the very efficient work done throughout the year by the Well Babies' Clinic, which labors unceasingly to prevent in every possible way the increasing infantile mortality rate noticeable in many other sections of the Dominion. By way of weekly clinics, of examinations of infants and advice given to mothers, by pre-natal instruction and by care and attention to such things as feeding and clothing and teeth, the Clinic endeavors at all times to keep at a low figure its infantile death rate.

On the 14th, 15th, and 16th of this month, the moving picture, "Laddie," dramatized for the screen from Gene Stratton-Porter's book of the same title, will be presented at the Regent Theatre, under the auspices of the Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E., who are selling tickets for the benefit of the Well Babies' Clinic. A ticket purchased from any of those who are selling for this cause will augment the funds of the Clinic, while tickets purchased at the theatre itself do not count in this way.

Giles Plans Hop To New Zealand

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 11. — (Associated Press)—Captain Frederick Giles, British aviator, said yesterday he planned to hop off next Saturday from Mills Field, South San Francisco, for New Zealand. Giles made this announcement after completing a gasoline consumption test with his Hess Blue Bird biplane Wanda. He previously had intended not to start until Monday.

His route to New Zealand calls for stops at the Hawaiian Islands, the Samoan Islands, Fiji Islands and Australia. The tests yesterday showed the Wanda used about ten gallons of gasoline an hour. His first stop will be 2,400 miles to the flying field near Honolulu.

HIKING DRUMMERS BUSY.

Long-distance drumming is a new sport in Belgium, and there is strong competition as to who has the strongest legs and arms. A fifty-year-old Poulet drummer in the Walloon district recently won a wager that he could march from Fosses to Namur, a total distance of 25 miles, without stopping and without ceasing to beat his drum, except for an hour for luncheon. A Nimy drummer, named Robillard, aged 59, then made a drumming journey from Mons to Ath and back, covering 34 miles in 11 hours. Then a drummer to Maurages stepped the 40 miles to Brussels and return to the beat of the drum. The competitions are popular among workers, especially miners.

REMEMBRANCE

BY J. KINNAIRD, PETERBOROUGH

I see them again, my comrades brave,
As I saw them in years gone by,
When we waited in silence in our dug-out
To advance and drive the enemy out.
When the order was given we rushed with a shout
To capture their lines or die.
And Oh, how it thrilled us, that word "Advance,"
As we passed it along the line,
With a ringing cheer, we went over the top,
No hail of bullets, our advance could stop.
We pressed on and on until our last lap
We reached in the shortest time.
The smoke and flames like Hell let loose
We faced with a grinning smile,
Our ranks were raked by machine gun fire
As our comrades fell, our souls inspired
To keep on advancing, and never retire,
And drive them before us for miles.
No wire entanglements, could stop that push
Or their planes dropping bombs from the air,
Once more I hear our officers shout,
"Jump into their trench, and ferret them out,
Bomb them, bayonet them, put them to rout,
Don't spare a man of them there."
Then, Oh, what a dreadful fight began
As we jumped in their deep dug lair,
We were far beneath the surface soil,
Fighting like demons. My blood recoils
At the thought of slaughter, and great turmoil,
And the slain and wounded there.
"Push on, push on," the order was given,
"Push on to their second line."
Before our bayonets the enemy fled,
Their trenches blocked, with dying and dead,
And the mud beneath, turned crimson red
From the victims left behind.
On, on, we pressed to their second line.
Our bombers leading the way,
As our bombs exploded thick and fast
A gap was made, and we rushed past,
Got into close grips to finish our task
On that terrible bloody day,
Our foemen fought us, man to man,
And tried to hold their line
No mercy they sought, and none was given,
Each plunge of the bayonet in a victim driven,
And the cry of pain that arose to heaven
Re-echoes today through my mind.
Reinforcements came, rushing up to our aid—
With a cheer they plunged into the fray;
Our foemen staggered, when they heard that shout,—
They began to waver and were soon cleared out.
Their lines were captured, they were put to rout,
Defeated, confused and dismayed.
Now Armistice time has come round once more,
Oh, fond may my memory keep
The gallant fight of my comrades brave,
Who fought so hard and their lives they gave,
For Freedom's sake they lie in graves
Not dead, but in peace they sleep.

Poetic Found Ad. Has Quick Results

ROSENEATH, Nov. 11.—Among the papers hanging around the post office the following notice was found, but for only a few hours. One of our citizens, after finding a small sum of money on the sidewalk, put up a notice in the post office, reading as follows:

Some friend of mine has lost his kale,
And I'm the guy who found it,
I tried to annex it myself
But find I can't get 'round it.

Don't think the one who found your mon,
A thief, a rogue, or villain,
But call at once and get your dough,

BOY FOUND GUILTY.

Sixteen Year Old Durham Youth To Be Sentenced To-day.

COBOURG, November 11. — Behind closed doors barring the general public and all others not vitally concerned, a 16 year old boy of Durham county was arraigned before Mr.Justice Wright and a jury, on two serious charges of a similar nature. The plaintiff was a girl of 11 years of age. This was the first case yesterday and all the witnesses except those testifying at the moment were denied entrance to the court.

R. V. Sinclair, K.C., Ottawa, appeared for the crown ,and F. M. Field, K.C., Cobourg, conducted the defence.

The jury consisted of E. E. Patterson, Dilbert Adams, Harry Allen I. M. Nattrass, George Wildbur, Henry Beckett, James Dixon, W. H. Trewin Gordon VanCamp, Chauncey Waite, Charles R. Ough and John Aird. Their verdict was guilty of one charge and not guilty of the other.

It is expected that sentence will be given to-day after the criminal case now before the court has been completed.

It is interesting to note that one juror was set aside by the prosecution and one challenged by the defense.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

HOSEA PREACHES GOD'S LOVE

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Nov. 13. Hosea Preaches God's Love. Hosea 11:1-4, 8, 9; 14:4-8.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of The Congregationalist

A little later than Amos comes Hosea with very much the same clear vision of righteousness and truth, that inspired Amos in his criticism of the morality and essential prosperity of his age, but striking a somewhat deeper note of religion in its spiritual aspects.

A man may be highly moral and yet his life may lack the elements of great tenderness and beauty. Just as two men may see a sunset, each looking with sincerity and clearness of vision but the one man seeing a glory of light and color that for the other is hidden. Hosea was not a greater prophet than Amos but there is a certain tenderness in his message that is not so conspicuous in the herdsman denouncing sin.

The method of Hosea is more that of the quiet husbandman and fruit-grower tenderly caring for his vine, though he knows that the welfare of the vine depends upon relentless pruning. He represents God as thinking of Israel as a child, a beloved child who has been tenderly cared for, but who, despite their tender care, has gone astray.

"I drew them," he represents God as saying, "with cords of a man with bands of love"; a figure, the beauty of which has persisted to this day when we speak of life's deepest promptings and relationships. To speak of drawing one with the cords of love suggests as lofty an ideal for human life as can well be presented.

Love Is the Power.

Here we have a foretaste of that gracious love of God, moving men to repentance, which was to find its fulfillment in the gospel and example of Jesus of Nazareth. This love is the power that turns men from their sin and backsliding, and, even when they have wandered, brings them back into the true way.

It is one thing to feel the denunciation of Amos of sin, and another thing to feel beyond this denunciation of sin the promptings of righteousness and the conditions of true life for individual and society; but still another thing to feel the power of this love that can restore man and society even when they have gone astray and have met disaster through their waywardness.

How tenderly and beautifully Hosea expresses this love of God for a wayward nation! "I will heal their backsliding, I will love them freely: for mine anger is turned away from him. I will be as the dew unto Israel: he shall grow (blossom) as the lily, and cast forth his roots as Lebanon. His branches shall spread, and his beauty shall be as the olive tree, and his smell as Lebanon."

In Life, Too.

This also is true to life and history. How often both men and nations have been purged of their sins, sometimes through trying experiences, but they have found the revelations of God's presence and leadership, and through these things they have come to newness of life.

The gospel of God's love moving men to repentance has been widely preached in relation to the individual. Have we preached it as widely in relation to society? To-day the forces that make for the reformation of society are largely legal in their nature. We live in an age of inhibitions and restrictions. Laws forbid us to do this and that, and society is ever more and more under strict regulation.

All this in a complex age is both inevitable and necessary. We should very likely have chaos if there were not laws regulating in many ways the action of the individual with a view to preserving the greater liberty and the welfare of all. But just because this is so is there not all the more need that we should perceive and emphasize that deeper spirit of love and gentleness which wins men rather than controls them, which helps to make men see and desire the right way?

The fact of the matter is that we never attain the highest end with the truest result of law until law brings us to intelligence and liberty, and if our laws do not make for this end then our laws somewhere are defective. But love and law, especially in the modern world, must work together and love ultimately is the stronger and higher force, for law can bring man only so far toward righteousness and liberty; it is love alone that is the fulfilling of the law. Hosea, with all the clearness of vision that Amos had, had discovered in his age the foregleams of this great New Testament truth.

Text: Hosea 11:1-4, 8, 9; 14:4-8.

When Israel was a child, then I loved him, and called my son out of Egypt.

As they called them, so they went from them: they sacrificed unto Baalim, and burned incense to graven images.

I taught Ephraim also to go, taking them by their arms; but they knew not that I healed them.

I drew them with cords of a man, with bands of love: and I was to them as they that take off the yoke on their jaws, and I laid meat unto them.

How shall I give them up, Ephraim? how shall I deliver thee, Israel? how shall I make thee as Admah? how shall I set thee as Zeboim? mine heart is turned within me, my repentings are kindled together.

I will not execute the fierceness of mine anger, I will not return to destroy Ephraim: for I am God, and not man; the Holy One in the midst of thee: and I will not enter into the city. (14:4) I will heal their backsliding, I will love them freely: for mine anger is turned away from him.

I will be as the dew unto Israel: he shall grow as the lily, and cast forth his roots as Lebanon.

His branches shall spread, and his beauty shall be as the olive tree, and his smell as Lebanon.

They that dwell under his shadow shall return; they shall revive as the corn, and grow as the vine: the scent thereof shall be as the wine of Lebanon.

Ephraim shall say, What have I to do any more with idols? I have heard him, and observed him: I am like a green fir tree. From me is thy fruit found.

'AMBASSADORS FROM MARS'

Two Virginia children, Willie and George Muse, of Roanoke, missing for many years and alleged to have been held in virtual slavery for the last four and a half years with Ringling Brothers Circus, were discovered recently by their parents with the circus and have been restored to their home. The children were exhibited as "freaks" and called "Ambassadors from Mars," according to a bill of attachment filed for $100,000 against the circus.

Girls, Earn Money

During Your Spare Time!

Personal and social news is the greatest asset any newspaper can have. It has the greatest reader interest and pleases the greatest number of people. Besides being of interest as reading matter, it serves many good purposes. To the sick it brings messages, flowers, and good wishes. Among holiday-makers it lets their friends know they are away, and oftentimes saves time and inconvenience.

The Examiner is known even among the progressive daily newspapers of Ontario for the amount of local news it carries every day, but The Examiner wants more personal and social news.

A limited number of girls and women are invited to participate in a contest in reporting for The Examiner such items as personals, general news about persons, social events, and so forth. There is NO LIMIT to the amount of space The Examiner will devote to this feature.

The regular space rate for all published news will be paid. Considering the carte blanche the reporter has, this space rate is higher than the rate paid by most city newspapers for their correspondence.

And in Addition

there will be a prize of $2.00 every week for the next eight weeks, awarded the person sending in the most usable news, and a grand prize of $10.00 for the person sending in the most usable news before December 17. This will come in handy for Christmas. Other prizes will be announced later.

Contestants must be at least sixteen years of age. Readers of The Examiner will be allowed to send in their own contributions and have them credited to their favorite contestant.

Note that too many contestants cannot work efficiently, so get in your application early. The city editor reserves the right to limit the number of contestants, and choose the applicants who seem best fitted.

All who register and are accepted will be given instructions and helpful tips, and furnished with paper and other supplies. Everyone will be paid the regular space rates, and the prizes are additional awards.

Readers of The Examiner are asked to co-operate in making this newspaper more newsy and in encouraging the contestants to get this valuable training. All contestants will be cautioned not to publish personal matters when requested not to do so, and against giving offence in any way. Readers are reminded, however, that if they enjoy reading the personal news, they should be willing to contribute to it.

The Contest Starts on November 12th

YOUTHFUL POSEUR GETS THREE YEARS

Found Guilty of Theft to Keep Up Pretence of Rank.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 11.—Stephen Hastings, 19 years old, alias 'the Right Hon. John Keith Trevor,' appeared for trial yesterday before Magistrate Mikel in Police Court, charged with the theft of $50 from Harold Gardner's garage, Foxboro, on the night of October 20. He was also charged with escaping from the Ontario Reformatory on July 5 last. Hastings pleaded guilty to the charges, and was sentenced to three years in Portsmouth Penitentiary for the theft, and two years for escaping from lawful custody, the terms to run concurrently.

B. C. Donnan, Crown Attorney, before sentence was passed, gave a short history of the case. The accused, he stated, was convicted by Magistrate O'Rourke in Trenton on Feb. 5 last on a charge of breaking and entering, and was sentenced to two years in the Ontario Reformatory. Hastings escaped from the institution and came to Foxboro, where he changed his name to that of "Right Hon. John Keith Trevor," son of Sir John and Lady Trevor of Scotland. He was fond of romancing and make-believe, and he wrote letters to himself, pretending these came from his mother. Telegrams, flowers and telephone calls were sent by himself to himself, the calls all dealing with estates and property in Scotland, of which he claimed to be the rightful heir. Money then began to run short, and he turned to theft to recuperate the bankroll, argued the attorney.

EXECUTIVE OF WATERWAYS IS PLANNING NEW PAMPHLET

Will Also Arrange For Exhibit at Annual Motor Boat Show.

MEETS IN ORILLIA.

Representatives of Various Municipalities To Discuss Increase in Tourist Trade.

The Orillia Board of Trade will entertain the members of the executive of the Trent Waterway Development Association, when they convene in that town for a special meeting Thursday, November 17. The two items of major importance which appear on the agenda have to do with the arrangements for the annual exhibit of the Association at the Motor Boat Show in New York City, and the preparation of a new de luxe pamphlet illustrating the Trent Waterways and its attractions in a better and more comprehensive way than in the past.

These pamphlets will be ready in time for distribution at the New York Show and will be available for similar purposes during 1928. Indicative of the broad appeal which the Trent Waterway Development Association carries to tourists is the fact that there has been no difficulty in disposing of 10,000 to 15,000 of these books per annum in recent years. They go to interested residents of the United States and thus materially increase the influx of tourist traffic from year to year to the parts which are advertised.

This publicity campaign represents the co-operative effort on the part of all communities in the vicinity of the Trent Waterways to draw and to hold tourist patronage. Not a small part of its success has been due to the annual exhibit at the Motor Boat Show in the Grand Central Palace in New York City, which has made tremendous strides in growth since its inception.

The fact that the Association's exhibit has been the only one from Canada lends special significance to its advertising value. The exhibit has been appearing annually now for the last six years. Acting in the capacity of representative of the whole Trent system, the Secretary, Frank G. Stinson, of Peterborough, has contributed very valuable services and last year in particular succeeded in giving the Association a considerably higher prestige by virtue of a very successful speech relative to the Trent Waterways, which was broadcasted over station W.O.R., 1440 Broadway, New York.

Last year the beauties of the Trent Waterways were filmed and shown at the Motor Boat Show. Arrangements were also successfully negotiated by Mr. Stinson with various motion picture circuits, with the result that these films are now doing good service in theatres throughout the United States.

It might be of interest to have one or two concrete facts as to the advisability of incurring the expense in connection with the New York exhibit. As intimated in a recent letter from the secretary of the show the advance in public interest has increased so much in the last three years that it has been necessary to increase the floor space from one to three floors. The booths, which are 200 in number and range in price from $175 to $892.50 each, have already been oversubscribed on the main and mezzanine floors for next year.

While primarily a motor boat show, the thousands who attend are all potential motor or rail tourists to Ontario. As recent statistics have gone to prove, this aggressive type of publicity has resulted in an almost doubled amount of money left in the Trent Waterway district during the past three years, in all approximately $1,500,000, and for this particular vicinity about $500,000.

Such returns are indicative of a high rate of interest on the sum expended. The officers and directors of the Association are as follows:

Officers — Honorary President, G. K. Fraser, Burleigh Falls; Honorary Vice-President, F. D. Kerr, K.C., Peterborough; President, W. M. Fowlds, Hastings; First Vice-President, J. B. Hanly, Midland; Second Vice-President, W. C. Moore, Bobcaygeon. Frank G. Stinson, Secretary-Treasurer, Peterborough.

Board of Directors.—Mayor W. A. Fraser, Trenton; Reeve H. Miller, Frankford; Mayor G. A. Kingston, Campbellford; W. M. Fowlds, Hastings; R. C. Doxsee, Hastings; F. D. Kerr, K.C., Peterborough; Ald. C. H. Ackerman, Peterborough; J. W. Fraser, Peterborough; Reeve C. S. Tanner, Lakefield, J. F. Lillicrap, Lakefield; G. K. Fraser, Burleigh Falls; Reeve W. C. Moore, Bobcaygeon; T. H. Stinson, M.P., Lindsay; J. A. McCrea, Lindsay, M. H. McCallum, Fenelon Falls; Geo. R. Yule, Beaverton; M. O. Tremayne, Sutton West; Arthur W. Smith, Barrie; Geo. J. Overend, Orillia; F. Stanton, Port Stanton; C. P. Stocking, Waubaushene; E. B. Brown, Victoria Harbor; Jas. C. Young, Port McNicholl; J. B. Hanly, Midland, H. M. Warnock, Penetang.

CONTINUE HEARINGS OF FISHERIES BOARD

Counsel Stresses Need of Transportation Facilities For Fishermen.

LOUISBURG, N. S., Nov. 10.—(Canadian Press.) — The need for transportation facilities which would permit fishermen of Gabarous to get their fish to market was stressed by J. S. Reid, of that place, when the Royal Commission on Fisheries resumed yesterday afternoon. Mr. Reid suggested extension of the railway from Louisburg to St. Peters. He wanted the harbor at Garabouse dredged.

Another delegate from Gabarous, William Macdonald, complained of prices paid for lobsters in the district from whence he came. He urged upon the commission the necessity for advising the fishermen beforehand of prices which the packers were going to pay.

Chief Commissioner MacLean said he did not know just how this difficulty could be met. He suggested that lobster packers might be required, at the time they obtained their licenses, to post prices.

"The beam trawling is a ruination to our shore fisheries," Daniel Fleet of Louisburg, declared to the commissioners. In the old days, he said, fishermen were "cursing" the dogfish. They had transferred their curses to the beam trawler.

The beam trawler had cut the price of fish down until shore fishermen could obtain only one cent a pound for their product. Mr. Fleet said that a few years ago the shore fishermen were paid two and a half cents a pound.

"The beam trawler does not seem to have many friends," interjected the chairman. "We may find some in other parts of Nova Scotia."

The bounty for fish should be paid only to Canadians, fishing in Canadian boats, Mr. Fleet said. He objected to the bounty being paid to Newfoundland fishermen, even though they were fishing in Canadian boats. Also, he wanted the fishermen advised of market prices for fish.

"I don't remember one dollar being spent for the fishermen since I've been in Louisburg," declared Mr. Fleet, in asking that a government wharf be constructed here.

The beauty killer

HERE, it strikes a beautiful woman—and in a few years her charm will have fled. . . . Here, it grips a promising man—soon he will sink, with blighted prospects, into obscurity.

What a deadly affliction constipation is! Thief of youth. Robber of strength. Evil forerunner of disease and misery! It destroys health! It kills beauty!

What a blessing that there is relief from this dreadful scourge! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation—promptly.

Why ALL-BRAN alone is effective

ALL-BRAN has "bulk." This bulk absorbs moisture and carries it through the intestines, gently distending them—cleansing, eliminating poisonous wastes. How different from part-bran products which contain so little bulk that there is hardly enough to have any effect at all. That is why doctors recommend ALL-BRAN. Because ALL-BRAN is 100% bran.

Different from habit-forming drugs

And contrast ALL-BRAN with dangerous drugs and pills—which become useless unless the dose is constantly increased. ALL-BRAN is delicious with milk or cream — and add fruits or honey. Let it soak a few moments to bring out all its nut-like flavor. Serve it with other cereals. In soups. Recipes on every package.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

Don't risk a part-bran substitute. Insist on genuine Kellogg's — the original ALL-BRAN. Sold by all grocers. Served at hotels, restaurants and cafeterias. On diners. Made by the Kellogg Company in London, Ontario. Write for free "Treatise on Constipation."

Gain pounds of weight with New YEAST and IRON

Pleasant to take—Quick results—or pay nothing

You don't want to be underweight, nervous and always tired—an object of pity to your friends. Start IRONIZED YEAST now and put pounds of good flesh on those bony arms, hollow cheeks and scraggy limbs. See ugly lines give way to graceful curves. Feel a new vitality and healthy strength that you haven't known for years.

How Yeast Builds Weight

IRONIZED YEAST is two tonics in one—weight-building Yeast and strengthening Iron. The yeast is the same used in making malt, and which makes malt so beneficial.

This yeast is treated with iron taken from fresh vegetables—spinach, lettuce and celery. In this form iron is easily assimilated by the body, making rich, red blood and toning up nerves and muscles.

Only when Yeast is Ironized in this way is it most effective—for iron is needed to bring out the weight-building values of Yeast. By this formula IRONIZED YEAST gives you results in half the time required by yeast and iron taken separately.

IRONIZED YEAST brings pounds of weight in astonishingly quick time. Letters say: "10 pounds gained in 3 weeks," "one full treatment added 7 pounds," "11 pounds and better health." The blood is toned up, too, because the iron adds strength and richness to the blood, clearing up the complexion and increasing your vitality. IRONIZED YEAST comes only in pleasant-tasting tablets—60 to a bottle. Safe for everybody. Does not upset the stomach nor cause gas or bloating.

First treatment gives results —or no money

Ask the druggist now for a full course treatment. It will prove that you can gain many pounds, or your money will be refunded. If inconvenient to buy at the drug store, send $1.25 to the CANADIAN IRONIZED YEAST CO., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont., Desk

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Faith followed Bob to the door that Saturday morning, tremulously happy over his unexpressed but very evident approval of her attitude toward her father's marriage to Kate Lundy, her former servant.

"Listen, dear," she began, linking her arm in his with affectionate tenderness; "since Joy is not going to be with us any longer, don't you think we might get along without a maid? There will be only four of us, counting the baby—"

"And the baby counts for about four herself, in the amount of your income that she uses up," Bob retorted. "No, you can't wheedle me out of my determination for you to have help in the house. You may enjoy doing enough work to keep two strong women busy ten hours a day, but I don't enjoy having you do it, and that's that! There are other ways of economizing than by ruining my sweetheart's health. Cherry is contributing twenty-five dollars a week for her board. Get a good maid and plan to have some free time of your own. If the devil finds mischief for your idle hands, I won't kick," he grinned at her fondly.

"Maybe you'd like me better if I did become a little devilish," Faith suggested jealously, but pleased at his thoughtfulness.

"Fishing?" he teased. "You do pretty well! But I simply can't abide the martyr type, and any woman who does as much work as you've been doing is bound to get a martyr complex and expect her husband to spend his evenings polishing up her halo. Want me to drive you down this morning to look over the candidates at the employment agency? I'll wait till you powder your nose. Cherry doesn't seem to be ready yet. She's probably punishing me for daring to scold her."

When Faith was ready five minutes later, she found Cherry and Bob in the sedan before the house, Cherry on the back seat staring sulkily straight ahead of her and Bob unconcernedly reading the editorials in the morning paper.

"What does an employer do when his secretary won't speak to him?" Bob demanded humorously of Faith, as he assisted her to the front seat beside him.

"I'm afraid, dear, you're only her brother-in-law until you've reached the office," laughed Faith.

The rest of the drive through the resident sections and on into the business district was like a thrilling adventure to Faith, for Bob sat beside her, conversing easily and naturally, even gaily, calling greetings to other business men driving to work, laughing at their glances of surprise directed at the handsome young woman who sat beside him. She had the delicious feeling that Bob was proud of her, eager to interest her, pleased that she was beside him.

"Get a good-looking girl," Bob called out blithely, as Faith left the car at the employment agency's building. "Blonde preferred! Then my harem of beauties will be complete."

Faith felt quite proud of herself that Bob's teasing brought her not a faint twinge of jealousy. It was nice to have him joke with her!

It was a picnic which started Mrs. Louise Fenner on the career which has associated Southern cooking with her name. Returning to her home in Nashville after some years in New Orleans she baked a picnic ham Creole style, which was so much appreciated that she began to turn out plantation cooking as a business. Now the big oven in her New York City apartment produces ham and fruit cake which are especially sought by the Southern population of the metropolis.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

A beige velvet coat frock for winter afternoon wear is smartly trimmed with narrow bands of brown fur.

No one has ever devised a more becoming background for a woman's throat and wrists than fine fur, and if fur lacked entirely its warmth-giving characteristics it would still undoubtedly have been chosen as a material and trimming for women's clothes. From the point of view of the fur-bearing animals, Nature did too well in her task of providing them with beautiful clothing.

You may not be able to afford fur trimmng on a frock or so and even the first-class dressmakers are willing to employ the cheaper peltry for this purpose of trimming. Why should any one expect to have sable to trim a frock that is perhaps to be worn only a dozen times when a good grade of coney or French rabbit expertly treated is almost as beautiful and every bit as becoming?

A trp to the counter where fur trimming is sold in the department store ought to be an inspiration to any woman who makes her own clothes, some of the furs are surprisingly expensive, so expensive that to pay the price demanded would prevent any sort of economy in making clothes at home. But there are various sorts of dyed rabbit and goat furs that can be had at reasonable prices. It is not difficult to apply them yourself, though if you hesitate at this task you can have this finishing work done for you at some reliable little fur shop at a reasonable cost.

Some of the new winter frock and coat ensembles consist of a frock with fur trimming on the collar and cuffs and a coat cut so that the fur on the frock extends below the coat sleeves and above the top of the coat when worn. There is quite an advantage in this arrangement, since in milder weather the fur-trimmed frock makes an excellent street costume, and the attractive bit of fur is not laid aside with the coat.

JAPANESE DEVELOPMENT EXPLAINED TO KIWANIANS

H. S. Sneyd, Y.M.C.A. Official, Is Speaker at Weekly Luncheon.

GROWING NATION.

Japan Has Progressed Rapidly During Years Since Known To Whites.

A splendid address on Japan was delivered to-day at the Kiwanis luncheon by H. S. Sneyd, secretary of the Y.M.C.A. in Japan. Mr. Sneyd told of the development of that little island nation, of how she had taken her place in the Great War, and today sits at the council board of the great nations of the world. He attributed this wonder of the age to the great interest Japan has taken in education and to her educational system In Japan there is compulsory education and 99.12 of all the children between the ages of 6 and 14 are attending school. She is spending vast sums of money on educating her teachers and professors in foreign countries and her pupils are getting an idea of international problems such as the young Canadians are not getting.

The booster of the day was J. B. Nelson, B.S.A., district representative of the Department of Agriculture. "There is a programme laid out for the next ten years for Peterborough County whereby the conditions of the country will be greatly improved," said Mr. Nelson.

The prizes were won by Charlie Cook, Charlie Elliott, and Harry Huffman. Douglas Carlisle was the special soloist for the day, and in his fine manner and rich voice sang the very suitable song, "In Flanders Fields."

The speaker was introduced by J. Wearing.

Four Eras

Mr. Sneyd has been in Japan for the last 15 years, and during that time he has travelled much in the Orient. He has studied its problems and its relations to the people in the West. He classified the modern development of Japan into four eras: That before 1854, when Japan was on probation; from 1854 to 1905 was when Japan was growing up and when she reached her majority; from 1905 to 1914 there was Japan of the Orient, during which period she defeated both China and Russia, annexed Korea and established herself in Manchuria and as leader of the Orient; from 1915, there is Japan of the world. "She took her place in the Great War and among the nations of the world has played her part well. She was at the peace table, and in the government of the world Japan is there and her voice is always listened to," said Mr. Sneyd.

The speaker said Japan's development in the last fifty years has been one of the marvels of the age. She has shown her ability to imitate and in this way she has developed. "Japan alone of all the non-white nations has been able to withstand the impact of our civilization and has grown stronger. She is the only nation to retain her national integrity, and her population in the last fifty years has increased eighty per cent.

"The greatest outstanding feature in Japan's development is her modern education. The Japanese are natural learners and they are eager for knowledge. Their students are most diligent. The school is the most conspicuous building that one sees when travelling through Japan. Her higher education is being developed and along this line the Y.M.C.A. helps, for in one city it has a school where 3,000 boys are being educated.

"The education authorities want nothing but the best, and for this they send their teachers and professors to foreign countries to study, and today there is not found a high school where there is not one or more teachers who have been abroad and studied the best things that they can get. These teachers bring the student body into contact with international problems and ideas such as our students are not getting today.

"The influence of the press in Japan is great. There are 1,000 dailies which are edited by leaders who are graduates of modern universities. There are also 15,000 magazines printed."

Her Problems

Japan is a very small country with a population of 56 million people, which is increasing at a rapid rate. The United States does not want them, Canada and Australia say the same thing. Japan must find an outlet. At present there are 111,000 Japanese in United States and 17,000 in Canada. Japan today is developing industrially, so that she may look after part of her increase in population. She is building a navy to protect her trade routes, for she holds the same position in the Far East as England does in the West.

"I wish that the people of the West would show a greater eagerness to know more of the problems of the East. Japanese trade is growing and at some future date our businessmen will be increasing their business with Japan. Whether or not we want them, they are at our doors and their problems are going to be ours. I, today am in Japan as an ambassador of friendship," concluded the speaker.

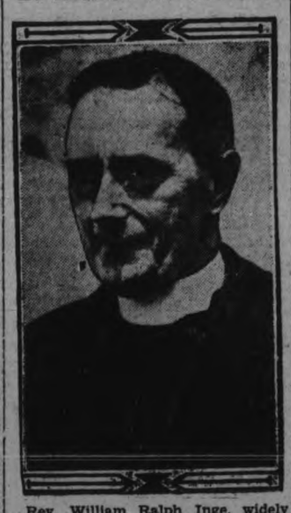
H. McCannon move a vote of thanks to the speaker and the soloist.

Armistice Day

Armtistice Day was observed by a minute's silence while the members stood at attention, and President Isaac McNabb placed a poppy wreath on the club banner.

Secretary John R. Heron was chairman for the day.

IN 'HERESY' DISCUSSION.



Rev. William Ralph Inge, widely known "Gloomy Dean" of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, who has been taking a prominent part in the "heresy" discussion in England.

FINE WINDOW FOR ARMISTICE

Canadian Department Stores Display Is Striking In Its Simplicity.

CROSS OF SACRIFICE.

Considerable attention has been drawn to and favorable comment evoked by, the Armistice Day window display of the Canadian Department Stores, Limited. The whole arrangement is simplicity itself, and it is therein that its beauty lies. On one side is a large Union Jack draped over an upright and topped by an ornamental fern in a pot of burnished brass. To the extreme right is a fairly large reproduction of a cenotaph, which is designed after the fashion of the cross. Drooping down to the carpet of imitation grass is another flag. On the steps are a vetcraft wreath and a steel helmet which lends the touch of gravity to the scene. On the green sward poppies bloom and impart a fairly realistic atmosphere.

A herald angel, clothed in flowing robes of white, occupies the centre of the scene and is a very unique symbol of the reward which cometh to those who lay down their lives for others. Surmounting the whole hovers a white eagle. All in all, the picture presented was one of more than passing merit, and is illustrative of the true spirit of that day whereof we hold this day in reverence.

ADVENT OF MOTOR-SHIPS

Two modern motor-ships of Norwegian ownership have recently discharged Douglas fir lumber at Melbourne and Sydney after having made the voyage from Oregon in 35 and 33 days respectively, writes Trade Commissioner D. H. Ross, Melbourne, in the forthcoming issue of the Commercial Intelligence Journal. Each ship carried approximately 4,450,000 feet of lumber. Given fair weather conditions a reduction of at least two days from this time is predicted. Concurrently with the arrival of these ships, was the arrival of a number of large sailing vessels, also loaded with lumber from Pacic coast ports and their voyages considerably exceeded 100 days. The doom of this slower and more uncertain method of transport seems assured.

Toronto Trading Dull; Most Stocks Decline

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 11.—(Canadian Press.)—Depression settled over the Toronto stock exchange this morning and with the decrease in volume of trading some moderately substantial losses occurred. The unlisted section again provided most of the trading, with British American Oil one of the few firm leaders. British American gained a half at 37. Brazilian, Brompton, Gooderham and Worts, and F. N. Burt lost from one to two points each in light dealings.

International Nickel firmed a quarter at 65 7-8. Hiram Walkers, sharing the active leadership with British American Oil, lost fractionally at 58 and McColl Brothers lost 1 3-8 of its recent advance by declining to 52. Northern Bakeries eased downwards, selling around 41.

Mine Market Active, Tendency Downward

TORONTO, Nov. 11.— (Canadian Press.)—In a boiling market on the standard mining exchange this morning the volume of transactions went well past the two million mark. The general tendency was lower, but no sensational losses were recorded despite large turnovers. Columbus Kirkland, the outstanding leader, sold down to eleven after opening at thirteen and at noon at eleven registered a net loss of half a point. Howey Gold sold down eight at 152. Potter Doal firmed two at 20. Bidgood, Amulet, Aconda and Kirkland Hunton all lost moderately on heavy dealings.

DRINK WATER IF KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts If Back Pains or Bladder is Irritated.

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

CANADIANS HONOR

Toronto's observance of Armistice Day. The lowering sky and gloomy atmosphere was in keeping with the solemnity of the occasion.

At the University of Toronto, the Officers' Training Corps was at full strength for the ceremonies at the Soldiers' Memorial Tower. Various other memorial ceremonies took place throughout the city. Buglers stationed at the principal intersections played the Last Post during the two minutes' silence.

Other towns and cities of Western Ontario were also holding their Armistice celebrations. Woodstock's observance of the celebration was the most impressive since the war came to a close nine years ago. Rev. Joseph Tully was the chief speaker at Brantford. Weeping skies heralded the two minutes' silence at Guelph. London's observance was more than usually solemn, while time bombs were exploded in several parts of Hamilton as eleven o'clock approached.

OBSERVED IN PETERBOROUGH.

St. Peter's Cathedral was filled this morning for the special solemn requiem mass sung at eight o'clock by Rev. P. Costello, for the repose of the souls of all Canadian soldiers and nurses who paid the supreme sacrifice during the last Great War. Rev. Father Costello was assisted by Rev. K. Corkery as deacon and Rev. G. Maher as sub-deacon.

During the two-minute silence observed in the city this morning, in memory of the ninth anniversary of Armistice Day and the conclusion of the Great War, the pupils of all the Separate Schools in the city knelt in prayer for the repose of the souls of the soldier dead.

In the Public Schools and Collegiate Institute the students stood in silence in their classrooms during the two minutes at 11 o'clock.

SERVICE AT HASTINGS.

The ninth anniversary of Armistice Day was held in Hastings, under the auspices of the Hastings Branch of the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League.

This Thanksgiving and memorial service was held for those who were killed in action or died of wounds or sickness during the Great War. Service commenced at 10.30 a.m. with the Excelsior Orchestra assisting with the music for the occasion.

The service opened with a few remarks from the chariman, Reeve Dr. J. H. Hess. He congratulated the local returned men on their ambition in organizing a branch here of the Canadan Legion. Hymn "Onward Christian Soldiers" was then sung, and Psalm 46 was read responsively with Rev. Major Belford. Mr. Belford then led in prayer. Hymn, 'O God Our Help in Ages Past" was sung, after which Major Belford gave an address.

He stated he was very pleased with the manner in which the citizens of Hastings attended the service dedicated to their fallen heroes. He was also very pleased with the turnout of the children. These, he stressed, were the ones who were building the nation and they should be properly educated to observe Armistice Day and remember the meaning of this day; how the men and women had sacrificed their lives for those at home so that there might be liberty, freedom, life and happiness throughout Canada and the British Empire. "Many important changes were noticed in the Great War," quoted Mr. Belford, "such as implements of destruction and warfare, but the greatest change was the spirit of fellowship and heroism which was manifested during the war.

"This spirit must not die out and when we think of the sacrifices at home and abroad during the war, we must dedicate our lives to the upbuilding of Canada that we may have freedom, liberty and right-thinking and also that the memory of these soldiers be the inspiration of our souls."

A two minute silence was here observed.

"Unrest is always prevalent, but if we follow these principles mentioned we will thus avoid further war."

The "Last Post" was then sounded by Sergeant C. Blackburn.

There were a large number of wreaths placed on a Union Jack draped table, which was placed beneath the banner bearing the names of the soldiers from Hastings who fought overseas and died, and also of those who fought and returned.

Mrs. T. W. Chaplin sang a solo, "O Valiant Hearts."

Reeve Hess, on behalf of the local branch of the Canadian Legion, thanked the citizens for their large attendance, as the Town Hall was nearly filled.

The service was concluded with the Benediction by Rev. Major Belford.

The wreaths were then taken to the monument where they were placed.

Chain Stores Are Strong Earnings Expand Steadily

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (Canadian Press).—Early hesitancy in to-day's Stock Market was followed by a period of strength in which several of the merchandising and tobacco issues reached new ground. Wall Street seemingly paid little attention to the extra dividends of $2.50 on General Motors, which was generally expected, and an increase of nearly $13,000,000 in brokers' loans, but it found bullish encouragement in the announcement of high steel prices by subsidiaries of United States Steel Corporation.

Steadily expanding earnings of chain store and mail order companies, coupled with expectations of record-breaking holiday trade stimulated buying of such issues as May Department Stores, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, all of which touched new peak prices for the year or longer.

MINERS OBSERVE ARMISTICE DAY

Keep Two Minutes of Silence During the March to London.

COLD BOTHERS THEM.

BATH, Eng., Nov. 11 (Canadian Press.)—A. J. Cook's little "Coxey's Army" of unemployed Welsh miners, who are marching on London to press for action on the unemployment situation, observed the Armistice Day silence at eleven o'clock this morning and then started over the hills toward London. Nearly half of the marchers were without overcoats and some of them have threatened to quit unless given more clothing to ward off the icy winds which have accompanied them thus far on their march. The leaders of the little army, however, say they are helpless to comply as they have no extra supplies of clothing. The marchers expect to arrive at Chippenham about dusk.

Plans to complete the Conception-Puerto Armuellas railway have caused the starting of development of a number on coffee and banana plantations in Panama.

Ye Olde Tyme Village Quartette

(By Jeanette.)

"Ye Old Tyme Village Quartette" of Toronto, appeared in St. Paul's Presbyterian church last night, and received an enthusiastic reception from an audience totalling between five and six hundred people. So fine was the programme presented by these artists, and so generous were they in their response to appreciative applause, that their audience enjoyed thoroughly every minute of a varied and delightful entertainment. When Rev. Wm. Allan, who introduced the quartette asked them at the conclusion if they would return at a later date, they promised to do so gladly, and those who enjoyed them last night, as well as those who did not hear them, will have another opportunity of listening to this talented quartette of musicians and their associate artist, Miss Pearl Smith, a reader of much charm and ability.

Presenting a Potpourri of old and and modern songs and sayings the four ladies and two gentlemen in the company were gowned in costumes of a mid-Victorian type, the men with powdered locks, long-tailed blue coats and flowing ties of a Pickwickian flavor, the ladies in ruffled crinoline frocks of rose, white and yellow, made in "off the shoulder" style, with old-fashioned nosegays and pan cake beflowered hats, over long ringlets. Even the appearance of their printed programmes carried out the old-tyme idea which flavored the entertainment from first to last, and brought from its hearers an appreciative harking back to the songs and music of a bygone day.

The blended voices were exceptionally smooth and sweet, with a graceful quality of restraint that made the quartette music harmonious and very attractive.

The soprano Miss Marjorie Waters, had a voice of lovely quality, sweet, clear true, soaring upward in unstrained fashion that made her solo numbers delightful in the extreme. Miss Strethel Walton, contralto, was possessed of a creamy, deep-toned voice, while the director, A. C. Chapman, had a strong, sweet tenor, and the bass, W. H. Norris, demonstrated the melodious tones of a vibrant, 'cello-like voice of much richness and depth. Piano accompaniments were adequately played by Miss Maude W. Chapman.

The reader, Miss Pearl Carter, was a decided addition to the vocal programme and earned repeated tributes of applause which brought two encores for each number. With a pleasing voice and a bright, sparkling delivery, combined with a real talent for mimicry, she contributed many interesting numbers to the entertainment of the evening.

The quartette opened the programme, after announcing themselves as a "family party" and asking the audience to join in the choruses of old favorite songs, by singing "The Birthday of Confederation" as sung by them before the grandstand at the Canadian National Exhibition, to commemorate the sixtieth year of Confederation. A medley of old songs and an arrangement of the Old English nursery rhyme, "Dickery, Dickery, Dock," completed the opening group. Later, they sang the always lovely number by Ernest Seitz, "The World is waiting for the Sunrise," with "Rose of My Heart," and another collection of old songs that included such charming bits as "Long, Long Ago," "Drink to me only with Thine Eyes," and "The Mocking Bird," finishing with some gay morsels in "My Bonnie," and "Jingle Bells," sung with the vivacity that characterized all the offerings of this apparently very happy group of musicians.

To the applause which followed the presentation of this group, the quartette gave a charming, whimsical rendition of the old favorite, "Old King Cole," in a dramatic, jolly rendition of the trials of the harassed monarch.

Mr. Chapman, director of the group, interspersed the musical programme by a brief talk relating some of the work done in broadcasting by this quartette, who are now in their sixth season. He read several humorous little letters received from "listeners in" who enjoyed the old-tyme programmes, and spoke of the work done by the quartette in helping bed-ridden soldiers, in the raising of the sum of $8,000 to buy head-sets for every inmate of a Military Hospital in Ontario.

One of the loveliest of the quartette numbers was the sweetly plaintive strains of a "Serenade" adapted from the beautiful "Berceuse" from the opera "Jocelyn." A medley of old songs included a bass solo, "Old Black Joe," a soprano solo, "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny," a contralto solo, "My Old Kentucky Home" and the tenor number, "Silver Threads Among the Gold.' Other old-tyme melodies followed, the quartette's programme finishing with a splendid rendition of "Abide With Me."

A trio for soprano, contralto and tenor was entitled "Oh Memories." The bass singer, Mr. W. H. Norris, gave "Bells of the Sea," with an encore in "An Irish Lullaby," the contralto, Miss Strethel Walton, sang "The Second Minuet" and a "pickaninny" number, and the soprano soloist, Miss Marjorie Waters, was heard to wonderful advantage in two Scotch songs, "The Standard on the Braes o' Mar" and its encore, "Aud Socteh Sangs." For this appearance, Miss Waters wore full Highland costume in the Royal Stewart tartan, and sang, in duet with the tenor, Mr. A. C. Chapman, the old Scotch favorite, "When Ye Gang Awa, Jamie."

The tenor solo by Mr. Chapman, was one of the high lights of the program, in "The Holy City," sung with a restraint and beautiful quality of interpretation very seldom heard. "Lucky Jim" was the following encore.

The reader, Miss Pearl Smith, had a delightfully varied program of pathetic and humorous selections. A reading delineating the trials of the Smith family, going to church on Sunday morning, was her opening number, with an encore in the squeaky reminiscences of "The Old Maid's Proposal." A second group included "The Little Stowaway" and its encore, "They Never Quarrelled," a tale of newly-weds and their difficulties, with a further encore in a "kiddie" number. A final reading was received with the same enthusiastic applause which greeted each of the numbers on the programme of the Old Tyme Village Quartette, whose appearance was sponsored by the Amos Club of the church, and much of whose program was made up of "request" numbers.

LEGION LADIES OPEN BAZAAR

Annual Sale of Work By the Ladies' Auxiliary is Begun.

GREAT VARIETY.

The annual bazaar of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion, British Empire Service League, opened yesterday afternoon in the Canadian Legion hall on Murray street. The ladies in charge have a splendid display of everything in the line of dainty Christmas gifts, of staple and fancy linen pieces for household and table use, aprons and lingerie, quilts and dainty home-made cooking and candy, toys and novelties, and good, useful articles in the rummage sale, in fact, all the sections of a real bazaar, arranged in a hollow square formation that is a departure from the usual mode and gives the vendors and patrons plenty of room for examining the various wares. The idea of naming each section after a portion of the home, as a dining, bed and kitchen section, with a display in each of articles appropriate to the room, has again been carried out, with attractive paper decorations in various colors. There is also a fish pond for the juniors, a fortune-telling booth and a little tea-room, with flower-decked tables.

The bazaar was formally opened yesterday by W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P. and Captain James Abraham, president of the Canadian Legion branch in this city. A pleasing musical accompaniment to the sale was provided at intervals during the afternoon by Mrs. R. Bugg. Last evening, those taking part in an enjoyable program were Mrs. A. C. Foster and Mrs. R. Lynch, in vocal numbers, and Mr. and Mrs. S. Buckton, playing pianoforte duets. Miss Margaret Flowers played accompaniments for the songs.

Lucky winners of raffled articles last night were Mrs. William Stanley, winning the ham with Ticket No. 18, and Mrs. W. Metheral, winning a twenty pound sack of flour with Ticket No. 17.

The president of the Ladies' Auxiliary, Mrs. J. Mills, acts as general convenor of arrangements. Mesdames E. Dormer, G. Chambers, A. M. Evans are in charge of the sale of aprons, Mesdames W. Hughes, A. Mackness and T. Greenwood have the sale in the dining room section, Mesdames E. Delong, M. Meeks, Waterman, Lillico have the sale in the kitchen section, and Mrs. B. F. DISTRICT UNDERWRITERS FORM ASSOCIATION tion to include the counties of Durham, Northumberland, Haliburton, Victoria and Peterborough, and to be known as district No. 9 of and affiliated with the Ontario Funeral Service Association. This motion was passed without any opposition.

Following this Mr. O'Hagan was called upon to outline the policy, aims, ideals and problems of the association, which he did in an able and comprehensive manner. The fundamental reason for its inception was to bring about legislation to remedy some of the flagrant ills of the present existing conditions so that only thoroughly competent operators would be allowed licenses. Also earnest endeavors are being made to have all minor faults, troubles, difficulties and differences amicably and sensibly solved through the district organizations and to find the major grievances which will be brought forward at the provincial convention and there settled.

As an evidence of the success of the Ontario Association instances were given showing that in comparison with the other provinces, the Ontario undertakers enjoyed much better legislative measures, and, indeed, there were no United States bodies which had proven to be of more widespread good to their members and as a rule they were considerably below the Ontario standard. Particularly was the point stressed that great strides had been made in bringing rival undertaking firms into more friendly relations and thus making possible the presentation of a united front to the everyday problems facing them.

Officers Elected.

At the conclusion of this address the meeting proceeded with the election of officers for the ensuing year. Those elected were given unanimous votes and are as follows: J. Comstock, Peterborough, president; Nelson Tait, Cobourg, vice president; James Mackey, Lindsay, secretary-treasurer. Representing on the executive the districts of Durham, Haliburton, Northumberland, Victoria and Peterborough respectively are: Beverley George, W. H. Curry, N. Tait, J. Mackey, J. Comstock.

Fire Chief Gimblett appeared to be at home at the convention as guest of Messrs. E. G. Cross and J. H. Percy. His name coupled with that of the Chief of Police, Samuel Newhall, was entered on the books as honorary member of District No. 9 of the Funeral Directors' Association.

The speaker then pointed out the marks by speaking in glowing terms of the past history of the association and dwelt optimistically on the future. He spoke of the benefits that had accrued to other professions by virtue of forming themselves into strong organizations and consequently being able to have legislation passed that materially aided all their members alike. Moreover he stated in no uncertain terms that the profession ranked 100 per cent with any other and although it is at present beset with numerous obstacles on the path to eventual banding together and securing the same rights as other professions, yet he felt confident that they would be all the stronger for having to pass these stumbling blocks.

Mr. Mundell then pointed out the means of obtaining a 100 per cent membership and strongly urged that every undertaker join the parent body. In fact, he said, it was not only advisable but that it was a duty to join in the best interests of one and all. Concluding his speech he offered some very valuable suggestions in connection with the operation of the district association. One of these was that a $2.00 fee be charged each member in order to defray incidental expenses. This was afterwards adopted.

Next Convention Here.

In his observations Mr. Moffat made public the fact that the annual convention of the provincial association would be held in Peterborough next year. He told of the inside working of the association and gave some interesting data on its history. It is one of the oldest, if not the oldest, association of funeral directors in America, having operated for about 45 years under one name or the other until it assumed the present one four years ago. Of the 1000 men holding licenses, 350 of the leading men belong to the association, and it was expected within a year or so to increase that number to at least 800.

E. G. Cross detailed the method of operations in the progress of similar associations standing highest in efficiency and protection of the state laws. He gave what he considered as the ideal plans for elevating the standards of admission to the embalmers' ranks. A forecast was made that plastic surgery would in a few years' time supersede the present process of embalming. Whereas the latter gives preservation, it fails to present the life-like appearance desirable. Instances were described corroborating his statements. He concluded with an exhortation for the introduction of even more scientific methods than at present existing.

Plastic Surgery.

The climax of the evening came with the address of R. U. Stone, who spoke on the subjects of Plastic Surgery and Business Economics. He illustrated his talk on the former by a practical demonstration wherein it was shown what realistic effects could be obtained by the use of commonplace materials and instruments. For a model he used a plaster figure head.

Mr. Stone has had the distinction of assisting at the funerals of some of the most prominent men in the public life of the continent. He also had charge of the embalming in connection with the great Titanic disaster. Perhaps his most unique event was that of conducting the world's first airplane service.

Notwithstanding his great fame and the international call for his services in times of special significance or calamity, he is always ready and willing to lecture before any audience for the promotion of education for undertakers. He does this not for purposes of personal aggrandizement, but because he, along with the officers of the association, has volunteered time and talents to educate those not so learned as they in the particular avenues of their endeavors. This educational campaign is chiefly for the advantage of those in the outlying districts whose number of funerals each year do not merit the expenditure of time and money in keeping abreast with modern methods.

Couching his thoughts in impressive language and speaking with that fluent affability peculiar to one wholeheartedly engrossed in his work, as one who has a great responsibility on his shoulders in using his talents to their limit in his service to the public, he poured forth a message which will long live with those who were privileged to be his auditors. It was a message which is entirely foreign to the average layman and which cannot be too much emphasized. The gist of it was that the legislation which is sought is not to the advantage of the undertaker but to the public. The most important feature expressed was that certain legislation now in effect, while primarily for the purpose of preventing the spread of contagious disease, in reality provides more scope for it. Only drastic changes in the ruling will do away with this danger.

Should such a change be effected it would greatly increase the labor of the undertaker and put him in great danger of contracting the disease himself. Incompetent embalmers are another thing to combat he said. It is an undertaker's duty to prepare the body of the dead so that those remaining behind will be left with memories of the departed as pleasant as possible, which can only be done by experienced and understanding men when in charge of preparing the body for its last resting place.

Concerning business economics, Mr. Stone was brief and explicit. His remarks might be summed up thus: figure out the overhead, the number of working hours in a year, the interest on the investment, and then arrange a scale of prices which will allow for a fair living and a profit above that to care for any possible emergency in the later years of life. Charge for all services rendered, but be fair with the public.

The adjournment was preceded by a hearty vote of thanks to those whose efforts had made possible such an educative, interesting and friendly meeting. The hope was expressed that more conventions along these lines be held throughout the coming year.

GEORGE YOUNG OUSTS O'BYRNE

Swimmer's Mother Will Be His Manager in Future.

RETURNING TO TORONTO.

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Nov. 11.—Henry O'Byrne announced yesterday that he had been "ousted" as manager of George Young of Toronto, who swam to fame in the Catalina Island marathon. He said Young's mother, who will take over active management of the youthful swimmer, was responsible for the trouble which ended in his being "ousted."

Young is still under contract to O'Byrne until the first of next year. O'Byrne declared the swimmer was in good physical condition except for a period of recuperation necessary after having his tonsils removed. He insisted there was no truth to the reports that Young was ill, but said that the swimmer's spirit was broken. He doubted if Young would achieve any more success.

Mrs. J. A. Young said here that the report from Toronto that Young was ill was true in every respect and that the doctor had ordered no swimming for six months. She said her son would return to school until finished and then be free to follow his own inclinations. The mother and son expect to return to Toronto within the next two weeks.

PARALYSIS—THE CAUSE AND CURE

The immediate cause of most attacks of paralysis is a blood clot on the brain, due to the rupture of a blood vessel or an injury to the brain from a blow. A cure will depend upon the absorption of the blood clot as soon as possible.

The stricken one should be kept warm, and hot towels applied to the spine every half hour. No food of any kind should be given until the absorption of the blood clot has been completed. If no food is given to the stunned body, the thinned blood stream will slowly take away the blood clot which is pressing on the vital nerve centers in the brain. Keep up the fast for one week or even longer if necessary. Every morsel of food taken at this time will interfere with the cure; nourishment taken in the form of enemas will even produce more harm and create a larger amount of toxemia. A two or three weeks' fast will accomplish more at the start than the next two or three years of treatment by any other method.

Remember the simple rules I am giving you in this article, and your knowledge may be the means of bringing about a quick cure of a paralysis which may occur to some loved one in the future.

In the event that paralysis has occurred a long time ago, the same fasting treatment will be the most effective form of treatment it is possible to employ. However, the results will not be as quickly felt, as the absorption of the old blood clot will be very slow. Appropriate physiotherapy treatment should then be given to increase the blood circulation and to encourage development of muscular power in the parts affected by the paralysis.

High blood pressure, with hardening of the arteries, is usually present. A correct diet should be used after the fast to encourage the absorption of the calcareous deposits on the walls of the arteries. All grain foods should be strictly prohibited because of their large percentage of starch and minerals. Plenty of fresh fruits should be used daily, and at least one meal of only orange or grape-fruit juice should be used.

Exercises of all kinds must be taken to re-educate the deadened muscles and restore proper tone. Constipation must be overcome or daily enemas taken to insure a free elimination of intestinal poisons. Daily massage of the entire body will be of great help.

While these methods of treatment are being used to restore the body to the normal, every care must be taken to prevent a recurrence of the attack. The blood pressure must be reduced to normal with dietary measures, assisted by the employment of any mental means which will develop a tranquil, poised mind, free from anxiety and care. Self-control must be developed, and temperate habits formed to avoid another more serious attack.

Questions and Answers.

Question: Henrietta writes: "When I am walking my hands swell up so much that they pain me terribly, especially when I touch them. At times only one hand will swell and the other will be perfectly all right."

Answer: Swelling of the hands is quite common when walking rapidly or for any great distance. The swinging of the arms forces the blood into the hands, but should not cause any discomfort unless you are suffering from rheumatism. Sometimes an impingement of the nerves which issue from the spine and go to the arms will be the controlling factor in causing one hand to swell and not the other. An osteopath or chiropractor could tell you if this cause exists.

Question: Marie asks: "Is it healthful or not to drink a whole (not beaten) raw egg in milk?"

Answer: I do not recommend the mixture of raw milk and eggs. If these foods are used together they should be cooked in the form of custard.

Question: Mrs. T. R. asks: "What can be done for a six-year-old boy who is constantly making faces? The doctor calls it some form of nervousness. Have had his tonsils removed and had him circumcised, but certainly cannot see any improvement, and his face is gradually growing out of shape. Would be glad of any help."

Answer: The greatest cause of such nervousness is from irritations of the gastro-intestinal tract. Irritating food mixtures have an effect upon producing irritation all over the body. I have never seen a case of these troubles with children that could not be quickly cured by putting them on a well balanced, non-irritating diet.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

THE THING I MISS

A thing I miss
As I grow old,
A thing I miss
I've never told,
But once when I
Had found my street,
I heard the sound
Of running feet,
I heard a laugh,
A baby's call,
The thing I miss
The most of all.

She's now too big,
She's much too wise,
A daughter's love
To advertise,
And so I find
My way alone
Along the street,
Up steps of stone,
I see the light,
I reach the door,
But, oh, I long
For something more.

My hair is gray,
So I've been told,
But it's not that
That makes me old,
I wish some night
I'd hear again
The call I heard
So often then,
A sound of feet,
A daughter's kiss—
Oh, that's the thing,
The thing I miss.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

"ROSE OF THE GOLDEN WEST" IS COLORFUL STORY OF OLD CALIFORNIA.

A pulse-stirring romance that rocked three nations and played a dramatic part in the winning of California, which opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre.

George Fitzmaurice, who gave the screen "The Dark Angel," "The Tender Hour," and other successes, offers the theatre-going public a thoroughly satisfying and thrilling love story in a gorgeous setting, that of the rich country by the Pacific, when it was ruled by the Spanish dons.

Gallant caballeros ride at midnight to keep tryst with starry eyed senoritas. Hot blooded patriots battle the intrigue of nations fighting for possession of the golden western empire. Adventure, hand to hand struggles between a handsome hero and his antagonists, a gorgeous moonlight fiesta beneath the cypress trees of Monterey, appealing love scenes between a handsome youth and a beautiful girl—these are some of the elements of "Rose of the Golden West."

Mary Astor reveals still further beauty and artistry as the English-Spanish heroine who is instrumental in endangering her lover's life and who then makes a great sacrifice to save him. Her opportunities are greater than in John Barrymore's "Don Juan" or "The Rough Riders," and she has obtained full value for each of them.

Gilbert Roland is amazing as the young patriot-hero. He fits into the romantic caballero costume because born to it and proves himself one of the screen's greatest lovers. This youth who became famous with his portrayal of the role of Armand in Norma Talmadges "Camille," acquits himself in his First National picture with a deep sincerity that wins his audience immediately. He has the stature and carriage of a young Greek god, and his love scenes with Mary Astor are sure to cause his fan mail to increase heavily.

In addition to presenting an intensely interesting story, Fitzmaurice has made each scene a pictorial triumph. The picture was made in the identical historical locations.

Montagu Love, Gustav von Seyffertiz, that sinister appearing individual and Flora Finch are excellent in important featured roles.

AT THE REGENT.

The very essence of the romance of railroading has been captured and immortalized on the screen in "The Runaway Express," the Universal-Jewel, now showing at the Regent Theatre.

It is a picturization of the famous novel by Frank Spearman, "The Nerve of Foley," and the photoplay adheres to the story of the book with amazing fidelity.

Mammoth engines, virile with pulsating energy, stand panting at sidings waiting impatiently until the right of way shall be obtained. Stripped overalled engineers gaze frequently at their watches and then glance at the train orders.

Call boys dart to and fro in search of missing officials. Roundhouse helpers, armed with oilers and cotton waste busy themselves about the arrogant monsters of the rails. Bells ring, whistles blow. All the confusion of a railroad junction is realistically and graphically portrayed.

Jack Daugherty, celebrated motion picture favorite, plays the leading role, that of Joe Foley, the young engineer, who is discredited, and who by a final mangnificent gesture, redeems himself, and wins the love of the pretty little waitress.

TEX RICKARD TO MANAGE EX-CHAMPION

Heavyweight Champion Says He is Not Under Promoter's Management.

DUNDEE HOAX AIRED

Winner of Martinez - Divodi Match to Have Chance at Crown.

SPECULATOR, N.Y., Nov. 10 (Canadian Press).—Tex Rickard has informed at least half a dozen persons that he appointed Leo P. Flynn as Jack Dempsey's "adviser," allowing them to understand that he (Rickard) actually was managing the fighter. Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion, stated last night when informed of Billy Gibson's statement that he was "mightily peeved" over the Rickard rumor.

"That is common knowledge in New York," Tunney said when informed of the rumor. "Rickard has told at least half a dozen people that he appointed Flynn as Dempsey's adviser or mentor or call it what you want to."

"I am not under Rickard's management," the champion added.

Tunney said he was "curious to see" if Jack Kearns, in his suit for $333,333.33 against Rickard, would really charge managerial relationship of Rickard and Dempsey.

Of Gibson's statement, that he would fight at least twice in 1928, Tunney merely said that Gibson was wrong in this statement as he would fight three times.

Tunney showed no indication of being "peeved" with the present development of the Rickard-Kearns feud, appearing to view it only as a spectator who passed the "common knowledge."

Feared for Title

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Nov. 11 (Canadian Press).—Fears of Joe Dundee, welterweight boxing champion, and his manager that the title might be lost unless George Blake was the third man in the ring entered into Dundee's refusal to meet Ace Hudgkins, Nebraska "wildcat" here last Thursday night, Dick Donald, promoter, declared yesterday.

Donald also charged that Seth W. P. Strelinger, local member of the State Athletic Commission, planned to violate a secret agreement of the two other boxing commissioners to name Blake as referee.

"Dundee was afraid he would lose his title without Blake as the referee unless he knocked out Hudgkins," Donald asserted.

"Dundee's manager, Max Waxman, said a few minutes before the fight was called off, "I know I'm going to blow the title if Dundee goes into the ring. I wouldn't let him go in under these circumstances for all the money in the world."

R. D. Nickerbocker, attorney for Donald, declared Strelinger told the promoter just before the fight that Blake would not referee and that Blake's presence at Wrigley Field was "simply a blind."

No referee was named officially, the customary procedure being to announce the official just prior to the opening bell. Sports writers and the public generally understood that Blake was to have the assignment.

Dundee based his refusal to meet Hudgkins on the grounds that Donald had failed to pay him his guarantee of $60,000.

Strelinger early yesterday announced the indefinite suspension of the champion and his manager, and Donald's lease on Wrigley Field was cancelled, definitely putting a stop to efforts to re-stage the bout here November 21.

Welterweight Title

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—A world championship boxing match for the junior welterweight title now held by "Mushy" Callaghan of Los Angeles, was practically assured yesterday for the winner of next Monday night's match at Madison Square Garden between Hilario Martinez of Spain, and Andy Divodi of New York.

Tentative arrangements for Callahan's defence of his somewhat synthetic 140-pound crown were announced at Madison Square Garden where the match is to be held. The date has not yet been decided.

Since coming to this country a year ago Martinez has won eight of eleven fights and gained a widespread reputation as a knockout puncher. Odds are 7 to 5 on the Spaniard to beat Divodi and win the chance against Callahan. The champion knocked out Divodi in two rounds last February.

U.F.O. WOULD CUT HUNTING SEASON

Great Slaughter of Deer By U. S. Hunters Reason For Request.

TORONTO, November 10. — Canadian Press. — Owing to the 'great destruction of deer in Ontario by United States hunters," the United Farmers of Ontario will present a resolution to the Ontario government asking that the open season of thirty days be reduced to fifteen days, and the use of dogs prohibited.

should give the whole matter their mature consideration. It is submitted that it would be unfair to the taxpayers of Canada were we of the Dominion government immediately to attempt to lay down to-day a line of action that the Dominion Government is prepared to follow towards any part of Canada. The whole question we feel must be given a thorough scrutiny before commitment of any nature should be given and in the light of all representations made at this conference we will carefully consider the problems."

American League Still Trying To Revise Advisory Council.

CHECK ON LANDIS

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Among eastern clubs of the American League, this little query is going the rounds: "Why is the Advisory Council and what has become of it?"

These eastern clubs think it is time that their league drew something more in the way of national recognition. It is hard for them to believe that the days are over when they could report after baseball fight that Ban Johnson has won again. And so they are asking where the Advisory Council comes in.

The Advisory Council is composed of the Commissioner of Baseball, Judge Landis, and the President of each major league. Its duties are to prepare rules for the World Series and to make rules in regard to all contacts—not contracts—between the major leagues. It has the power to make all forms of contracts and rules for government of players.

There is also a provision which says that the Advisory Council shall recommend to the major leagues the clerical and administrative expenditures necessary and proper for the discharge of the Commissioner's duties. This function could be made the cause of a lot of unpleasantness. If the two league Presidents on the Council did not agree with the Commissioner, there would be plenty of ways to throw tacks under his feet.

It has been the opinion in organized baseball that Ban Johnson, while serving as President of the American League tried to toss some of these tacks under Judge Landis when Johnson attempted to learn about the expenses of the Commissioner's department. That was the yarn spread in Chicago and it travelled elsewhere. At that time there were American League owners who were secretly gratified at what Johnson had done, but when the showdown came—at which it was a case of either Landis or Johnson retreating—the friends of Johnson withdrew in an expeditious and none too dignified manner.

The American League, however, has not abandoned its efforts to restore the breath of life to the Advisory Council. Some of the league members have remarked that there is no Advisory Council now except in ghostly garments, since the President of the National League would always vote loyally with Commissioner Landis and thus make the American League more or less a negative party to its own reactions.

In other words, the condition at present is similar to that which the National League complained about when its members accused Garry Herrmann of siding with Ban Johnson on all matters of legislation and judicial significance. That led to the downfall of Herrmann.

The National League is not a bit put out because its organization is in accord with Commissioner Landis. The National League enjoys the present situation hugely. When he was asked about the present status of the Advisory Council, a National League wag replied merrily:

"Where does the Advisory Council come in? It may come in, but it will also go out. The last vote is always with the judge, and what's the use of coming in and going out only to have the judge say: 'Blessed be those who dwell in peace and amity. I vote aye'."

Raynor's Application Turned Down By Judge McLean at Picton.

PICTON, Ont., Nov. 10 (Canadian Press).—A further application for bail for R. H. Raynor, awaiting trial on January 17 on thirty-two charges involving financial transactions, was made today by Raynor's counsel before Judge McLean. The application was refused.

In view of the judge's refusal of bail, he intimated his willingness to fix an earlier date for the trial if the accused so wished.

PREMIERS TAKE UP TEHNICAL WORK

Discuss Industrial Research and Vocational Education.

OTTAWA, Nov. 10. — (Canadian Press.) — The Dominion Provincial Conference to-day turned its attention to technical education and industrial research any man of the speakers expressed themselves as strongly in favor of expansion along these lines. Several provinces were anxious for further development of technical education in agriculture. Hon. James Malcolm, Minister of Trade and Commerce, announced that the government was giving the question of industrial research careful attention, intimating that there would be an extension along these lines in the form of a central bureau which would combine functions as exercised, for example, in the Bureau of Standards at Washington and the Mellon Institute at Pittsburgh. This bureau would be open to industrial students and would undertake the matter of standardizing materials.

Dr. Tory, president of the National Research Council, declared that if such an institution were established there would be a saving to the nation equivalent in twenty-five years to the national debt of Canada.

It is just 75 years since Yale inaugurated the practice of awarding a "Y" to those students who distinguished themselves in the field of sports. In all these years the celebrated "Pudge" Heffelfinger is said to have been the only Eli to win his letter in the four major sports, football, baseball, rowing and track athletics.

STATE PROFITS BY RING BOUTS

Michigan Tax so Far This Year Amounts To $43,895.

ROUND-TABLE CONFERENCE

LANSING, Mich., Nov. 11.—Thomas W. Bigger, Boxing Commissioner, and member of the State Athletic Board of Control, will hold a round-table conference with boxing promoters, managers and club representatives in Detroit, Dec. 8.

Efforts will then be made to introduce new rules governing the holding of boxing contests, which are growing rapidly in all principal Michigan cities. The State's 10 per cent. tax on boxing exhibitions this year has already reached a total of $43,895, as compared with $14,926 collected during the whole of 1926, it was disclosed at a meeting of the Board yesterday.

The licenses of Frank Grover, Kalamazoo boxer, and his manager, Jake Latshaw, Battle Creek, were suspended on account of the former's failure to appear for weighing-in at 3 p.m. on the day of a scheduled contest.

Charlie Moore, manager of a string of boxers in Detroit, who was suspended some time ago for arguing with Referee E. W. Dickerson, of Grand Rapids, was reinstated.

BRIDGENORTH WINS IN SOFTBALL GAME

Defeats High School Team 8-3 in League Match at Lakefield.

LAKEFIELD, November 11. — The ball games announced for Tuesday night were poorly attended, the poorest attendance of the season, and apparently it was an off night all around, as the game arranged between Douro and the Busines men, failed to come across. The former team produced no players, and the latter two men, so the game was omitted. An exhibition game was played for four innings between the Bridgenorth team and a composite Lakefield team resulting in a score of 14-4 for the visitors.

Following this the scheduled game between Bridgenorth and the High School took place and for the first three innings it looked like anybody's game, but in the last of the fourth Bridgenorth increased their lead and tightened up, and the High School were unable to break through, although their snappy field work kept the score seven and no innings was allowed to become a merry go round of runs.

The following is the lineup:

Bridgenorth: H. Dormer p; A. White, c; N. Bradshaw 1b; W. Shearer 2b; G. Dormer 3b; M. Wilson and C. Nicholls, ss; M. McWilliams and F. Wood, field.

High School: E. Moore p; H. Stabler, c; J. Gibson 1b; R. Kemp 2b; N. Sherin 3b; E. Kemp, P. Allen ss; N. Lemay and W. Pluard, field.

J. Sabatino umpired the plate while E. Northey, Jr., took the bases.

The score by innings was:

Bridgenorth .. ..040310x—8
High School .. .. .0030000—3

KING OF DROP-KICKERS

Here is Canada's king of drop kickers, "Pep" Leadley, former Queen's star, now with the Hamilton Tigers, who has made football history this season by his drop kicking prowess. Leadley "booted" the Rough Riders to defeat at Ottawa and virtually did the same thing against Montreal at Hamilton. He is in a class by himself as a field goaler.

The Army and Notre Dame have met regularly on the gridiron since 1913, with the exception of 1918, when the war interfered. Of the 13 games played to date Notre Dame has won 9 games and the Army 3, with one game a tie.

MARMORA, Nov. 11. — Gordon Fraser of Walkerville, who has been spending the Thanksgiving season at his hunting camp north of Marmora with his friend, Earl Drake, shot a fine specimen of a bear on Monday about two miles east of Shanick. Two more bears were tracked by these men in the afternoon of the same day without success. They returned to Walkerville on Tuesday evening.

CHARGES DISMISSED

Men Accused of Forgery and Other Crimes Freed.

TORONTO, Nov. 11.—Eighteen charges of perjury, fraud, uttering and forgery on Thursday were dismissed for lack of evidence against Newton Carmen Shaver, Dr. Kenneth Campbell, Ross Ormerod, James Hunter, Fred Halley and William Mogridge by Magistrate Jones in Judges' Chambers. The accusations grew out of the attempt to probate a document purported as the will of the late William Henry Hill, the Crown contending that the men knew it to have been forged.

The fleetest girl in the world hails from Japan. Miss Fumiko Terao exchanged her kimono for running shorts, and earned her title of the "swiftest girl alive" when she won the 100 metres sprint in the All-Japanese Sports Carnival held recently in Tokio. Her time was 10 4-5 seconds. The famous Charlie Paddock's time for the same distance is only two-fifths of a second faster.

Putting out a modern successful football team these days entails as large an outlay of capital as does the establishment of a business.

TWO KILLED IN ELEVATOR

AT PORT ARTHUR.

PORT ARTHUR, November 10. — Canadian Press. — Henry Lawlor, 21, of Port Arthur, and Hubert Willison, 19, of Whitneyville New Brunswick, were killed at the new terminal of the United Grain Growers, under construction here, to-day. The men were employed with a stripping gang removing wooden forms from the cement grain tanks. They were two of four working on a scaffold. The cable attached to one end snapped, precipitating them ninety feet to the hopper bottom of the tank.

Kerry Downey, Fort William, and Frank Connors of New Brunswick, clung to the scaffold and were later rescued.

BOMB DAMAGES FINE NEW SCHOOL

Million Dollar Building at West Pittston Rocked By Dynamite.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Nov. 10. — (Canadian Press).—The uncompleted million dollar West Pittston High School was rocked by a dynamite bomb early to-day. The school is located in the centre of the borough's fine residential section and was to be occupied by students at the first of the year. The extent of the damage to the school has not yet been determined.

A workman on his way to work near the South Pittston Station found a fuse burning in the centre of the railway tracks. Extinguishing the fuse, he discovered that it was attached to a tin pail containing fourteen sticks of dynamite. The scene of this attempted outrage was several miles from the school.

Ten thousand girl members of the Girls' Life Brigade recently held a three days' festival at London in celebration of the twenty-sixth anniversary of the organization. They were from all parts of Great Britain, and some were not yet old enough to attend school, while others were in their teens. Conspicuous on the arms of the girls' tunics are badges gained for swimming, signalling, cookery, needlework, laundry, and many other accomplishments. Many of the girls took part in nursing and first-aid competitions, the successful competitors receiving shields. Demonstrations included infant care, needlework, millinery, photography, raffia and leather work.

THE CONQUEST OF THE AIR — III — by Nicholas Afonsky

In the reign of one of the emperors Constans in the twelfth century, it is said that a Saracen tried to fly around the hippodrome at Constantinople. He wore a voluminous white garment stiffened with rods. Mounting a tower, he spread out his arms, and the rods attached to them, and jumped. For a moment he hung in the air, then he crashed to the ground, and was so badly injured that he soon died.

Apparently the Far East had its early aspirations for flight. There is record of a balloon ascention at Canton, China, to celebrate the coronation of the Emperor Fe-Kien in the beginning of the fourteenth century.

In 1383, Count of Burgundy wished to capture a citadel near Naples. A magician came to one of his generals and offered to take the citadel by forming a cloud on which his soldiers could cross over to the walls of the citadel.

He was condemned by the Count to death, for he was looked upon as a man possessed of a devil. But he may have had an idea of some sort of balloon which could carry soldiers.

How to Play BRIDGE

Series 1927-28 by Wynne Ferguson

Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

Copyright 1927, by Hoyle, Jr.

ARTICLE No. 9

In the previous article, it was stated that any valid objections to the informatory double should be based on its misuse by players who do not thoroughly understand it, and not on the informatory double itself. Here is an example of the misuse of the informatory double that the writer noticed the other night:

Hearts — A, 8, 7, 5
Clubs — K, 7, 5	: Y
Diamonds — A, J, 9, 4	: A B
Spades — 5, 3	: Z

No score, rubber game. Z bid one no-trump and A doubled, (informatory). This double is very unsound because A has only two spades, and if his partner should bid two spades in answer to the informatory double A not only could not help the spade bid but is also too weak to bid a suit of his own or two no-trump. In other words, A is not prepared for the two spade bid by B and, therefore, should not double. In this particular hand, Y passed the double, B bid two spades and Z, who was one of those players who doubles for business after bidding no-trump, doubled two spades. A now realized that his bad double had got him into trouble, but he was not strong enough to bid two no-trump or three of another suit, so was obliged to pass. Y and B also passed and the hand was played at two spades doubled, A-B losing their contract by 400 points, plus 40 honors.

If A had passed as he should, Z would have played the hand at one no-trump, and with a diamond opening A-B would have made three diamond tricks, one heart and one club trick, just enough to save game. Let this hand be a warning to those players who are apt to make an informatory double when they are not prepared for any bid partner may make. Let that be the test and use that test before you double. Ask yourself this question: "If my partner bids my weak suit, am I strong enough to make a bid of my own?" If this question is answered in the negative, then you should not make an informatory double.

Much has been said and written recently about four-card suits and the value of bidding them on the first round of bidding rather than the no-trump. There is no doubt that this plan brings good results in many cases and the following example is a good illustration:

	Hearts — J; 9, 8, 5 Clubs — J, 8, 4, 2 Diamonds — Q Spades — 10, 8, 7, 4
Hearts — 4, 2 Clubs — 10, 7, 6 Diamonds — J, 10, 7, 6, 4 Spades — J, 6, 2	: Y : : A B : : Z :	Hearts — Q, 6, 3 Clubs — A, 5, 3 Diamonds — K, 8, 5, 2 Spades — A, 5, 3
	Hearts — A, K, 10, 7 Clubs — K, Q, 9 Diamonds — A, 9, 3 Spades — K, Q, 9

No score, rubber game. Z has the choice of bidding one no-trump or one heart. If he bids the former, he must lose his contract by one trick. On the other hand, if he bids one heart, he can make four odd in hearts against any defense. Study this hand very carefully for it is a type that comes up frequently.

Whether you decide to bid the four-card suit or the no-trump with this kind of hand, do it consistently. There is nothing to gain by doing one thing with one hand and another with the next. Make up your mind to bid either one way or the other and then stick to it with all hands of this type; but watch results carefully. It may be that you will find you have selected the wrong theory and when convinced that you have, don't hesitate to change. The writer favors the bid of the four-card suit with this type of hand, rather than the no-trump. It is a close question, however, so make up your own mind what to do and try it out. But be consistent!

Problem No. 12

	Hearts — 10, 9, 7 Clubs — Q, J, 6 Diamonds — A, J Spades — none
Hearts — A Clubs — 9, 8 Diamonds — Q, 8, 6, 5, 2 Spades — none	: Y : : A B : : Z :	Hearts — 5, 3, 2 Clubs — 7 Diamonds — 10 Spades — 9, 7, 2
	Hearts — K, Q, J, 8 Clubs — none Diamonds — K, 7 Spades — 8, 6

Spades are trumps and Z is in the lead. How can Y-Z win six of the eight tricks against a weak defense? How can A-B so play as to make three tricks, irrespective of Y-Z's play? Solution in the next article.

WEDDING BELLS

McCONKEY—TULLY.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the Baptist parsonage, Lakefield, by the Rev. Mr. Spencer on Nov. 9, at 1.30 p.m., when Jean B., second daughter of Mr. Jas. Tully, Selwyn, became the bride of Mr. Orville H. McConkey, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert R. McConkey, Smith.

The bride looked charming in a gown of pink georgette, with pink stockings and black satin shoes and black velvet hat.

After the ceremony the happy couple left for Toronto, where they will reside.

BEAVIS—McCOLL.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the George Street United Parsonage on Wednesday, November 2nd, when Clarice Irene McColl, of Norwood, was united in marriage to Wilbert Newton Beavis, of Hastings. The pastor, Rev. J. E. Todd, officiated.

CORNISH—RAYNER.

On Friday, Nov. 4th, at St. Dunstans Church by the Rev. T. A. Nind, Marion Euphemia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Rayner, to Gordon Leonard Cornish, of Vancouver, B.C., son of Mrs. A. F. Cornish and the late A. F. Cornish.

CHEDDARATION

The English Cheddar Cheesemakers' Federation has recently received a grant through the Ministry of Agriculture from the Empire Marketing Board, writes Trade Commissioner Douglas S. Cole, Bristol, in the forthcoming issue of the Commercial Intelligence Journal. The English Cheddar Cheesemakers have appointed two graders, who will examine all cheese submitted to them, and will affix the Federation's trade mark to it provided it satisfied the standard laid down—88 per cent of points awarded for flavour, texture, keeping qualities, colour and finish. The trade mark applied for consists of two "C's" with the word "Cheddaratic" in a panel crossing them. It is understood that the farmers in the Cheddar district are joining the Federation in considerable numbers, and the trade-marked cheese is meeting with a good reception from traders. The trade mark of the Cheshire body consists of three intertwined "C's" (Choicest Cheshire Cheese").

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of my dear husband, Alfred Sherwood, who died November 11, 1926.
In my heart your memory lingers,
Sweetly tender, fond and true,
There is not a day, dear husband,
That I do not think of you.

Remembrance is the golden chain
Death tries to break but all in vain
To have, to love, and then to part
Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart.
—Inserted by his wife.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of Harry Burkett, who died November 11th, 1925:
Short and sudden was the call,
Of our dear Harry, loved by all,
The blow was great, the shock severe,
We little thought his death so near.

The golden gates were open
A gentle voice said 'come,"
And with farewell words unspoken
He calmly entered home.

The midnight stars are gleaming
On a lone and silent grave,
Beneath sleeps one we dearly loved
But who we could not save.

The happy hours we once enjoyed,
How sweet their memory still
But death has left a vacant place
That never can be filled.

ALL SAINTS' PEOPLE VISIT SPRINGVILLE

Play Friendly Game of Carpet Ball—Home Team Wins.

On Wednesday evening the basement of Springville church presented an animated scene, when a large contingent from All Saints' Church, Peterborough, made a social visitation.

The visitors provided the whole outfit for a friendly game of carpet ball. Both sides entered the contest with becoming zeal and if the visitors did get beaten that did not lessen the gaiety of the occasion.

Springville was well represented and at the close the ladies served a dainty lunch.

The Rev. A. H. McConnachie was the first speaker. He thanked Mr. Paterson and the members of All Saints' for providing a unique and delightful social event. He spoke of the profit of such meetings. A church was strong in proportion to the number of its social and religious contacts. Often there was more religion in a friendly game than in the prayer meetings of the "unco guid." In the social atmosphere people forgot their differences as churches and remembered only that they were members of one Great Family.

The Rev. J. Douglas Paterson replied in his happiest vein. Like Mr. McConnachie, he was Scotch, coming from a county not far from Ayr. Scots were supposed to be of a fighting disposition. He was not inclined that way, but he hoped to live to retrieve the defeat of the evening. He hoped to return some night, and if the cars were out of business, he would gladly organize a sleighing party. He gave some account of the history of the club which was exercising such a wholesome influence in Peterborough, as well as proving a real auxiliary to the church. He touched on the fact that the churches' own halls were closed against the public most nights of the week, and the very people who built and paid for them were excluded. Instead of finding social recreation in the atmosphere of the church they were compelled to seek other centres where they paid dearly for their entertainment. He belonged to the Kiwanis Club, and thought that every church should share their spirit and be a live social centre in the community.

Mr. Paterson then called on Mr. Whaley who proposed a vote of thanks to the ladies of Springville for their hospitality. Mr. S. S. Stanley replied suitably on their behalf.

Mr. Wiggins, president of All Saints' Club, also spoke and invited Springville folk to spend the evening of the 23rd with them in the parish hall of All Saints' church.

The invitation was very heartily received and endorsed.

IN PETERBORO CHURCHES.

Anniversary services were held in Mark Street United Church last Sunday morning and evening. Rev. J. R. Watts, D.D., of the Chair of New Testament Theology in Queen's Theological College, Kingston, conducted both services, preaching two scholarly, eloquent and inspiring sermons. In keeping with the day his morning subject was Thanksgiving. He showed in a most convincing way that gratitude expressed in worshipping God and bestowing blessings upon men is the greatest means of grace to the individual. He used numerous quotations from the example of Jesus and St. Paul to establish this promise.

In the evening Dr. Watts' subject was Travelers on the Road of Life, as illustrated by the parable of the Good Samaritan. 1, the man who fell among thieves. Those who through rashness or necessity travel a dangerous road. 2, the highway robber—those who prey upon others. 3, the priest and levite—those who, though seemingly indignant against sin, do nothing to prevent the wrong or relieve the injured. 4, the Good Samaritan—those who pity and help. Mr. Watts also preached at Stewart Hall in the afternoon. Although quite a number of the regular worshippers were spending Thanksgiving away from home there was a fairly good attendance at all of the services. This was Dr. Watts' first visit to Mark Street.

Special Thanksgiving anthems by the choir and solos by Mrs. R. Williamson added much to the interest of the services.

ONE OF THE "OLD TIMERS"

Among the list of well-established business firms in this city, who have "weathered the storm" for the past twenty years is that of Mr. George R. Record, proprietor of "My Valet". Twenty years ago yesterday, November 10th, Mr. Record embarked in the clothes-cleaning and renovating business, at No. 173 Simcoe street, where he has continued to conduct an ever-growing business ever since.

Previous to starting in this line of business, Mr. Record was favorably known as an expert merchant tailor, which he gave up to fill an apprenticeship with a large clothes-cleaning firm in Minneapolis, U.S. On his return to Peterborough twenty years ago yesterday, he started his present business, where he has been "going strong" every year since.

Mr. Record has been receiving the congratulations of his numerous friends and extends "the glad hand" to those who still remain to remember him when he first put his "My Valet" shingle at No. 173 Simcoe street. He desires to express his sincere thanks to all his friends and patrons for their long-continued patronage, and hopes he may be able to continue his good Record for good work for many years yet to come.

Garrison Dinner Marks Armistice Day

Officers of the C.E.F. Recall Days of War In Happy Gathering

COMRADESHIP OF ARMY SPANS ETERNAL HILLS SAYS PROPOSER OF TOAST TO ABSENT COMRADES

Trench Songs Are Not Forgotten By Those Who Sang Them in Dark Days of 1915 and in Victorious Pursuit of 1918—Many Guests.

Memories, first, of the trenches in 1915 to 1918. Last night these officers of the Canadian Expeditionary Forces were in festive dress and dined sumptuously on viands supplied by an outstanding caterer; nine, ten, eleven, and twelve years ago they were muddy and weary and their food was turnips salvaged from the fields and the omnipresent canned ration.

But last night's jubilation carried the participants back farther than that in memory—back to the days before the war, days of the old Militia, when men who are now staid and wise with the wisdom of years were joyous young Lieutenants just starting on the crimson-and-blue clad path of militia training; back to the years when some of these medal-bedecked young officers raced from the school yard to see the old Regiment on parade.

It was a memorable occasion, this first Armistice Dinner, seething with memories, and holding out bright visions of a united garrison that will build upon old traditions a new and wider militia organization in Peterborough. It was joyous, too, but for a minute when the toast to absent comrades was given and a silence fell over the dinner hall as the company stood with uplifted glasses. There is something appealing and yet terrifying in these silences, like the stillness that fell over many a battlefield at zero hour as the guns paused to make their first lift in the rolling barrage; welcome but affrighting. Yesterday morning at eleven the Allied countries halted from work and were quiet while for two minutes the silent legions swept past in the minds of the people; at Kiwanis Club there was another tribute of silence to that silent army; and then, last night, the comrades of those men paid homage to their valor and sacrifice. Out of the marching hosts every man could pick the face of one whom he knew in stirring advance or red retreat, maybe a company, perhaps hundreds.

It is not the way of the army to display sentiment, and when emotion does for a moment gain the ascendant it is quickly suppressed. It was so last night, but the jollity that followed the thought of absent comrades did not indicate that the feeling was any less deep. The songs were the old chansons of war days: "Pack Up Your Troubles," "There's a Long, Long Trail," "Mademoiselle from Armentieres," "The Old Grey Mare," "Hello, Hello, Who's Your Lady Friend?" "They Wouldn't Believe Me," "A Broken Doll,' and the satirical

"Oh !Oh! Oh! It's a lovely war.
Who wouldn't be a soldier, eh?
Oh! it's a shame to take the pay;
As soon as "Reveille" has gone,
We wake up as heavy as lead,
But we never get up till the Sergeant brings our breakfast up to bed.
"Oh !Oh! Oh! It's a lovely war.
What do you want with eggs and ham
When you get plum and apple jam?
Form fours, right turn!
How shall we spend the money we earn?
"Oh !Oh! Oh! It's a lovely war.

Lt.-Col. Hall.

Lieut.-Col. W. Gordon Hall, V.D., Officer Commanding the Peterborough Rangers, presided, and in his opening remarks explained the idea of the Armistice Dinner. It was, he said, the first combined dinner of overseas officers since their return after demobilization ,and it is hoped that the Armistice Dinner of the Peterborough Garrison will be an annual event. If any overseas officers in the city had been overlooked, Col. Hall asked forgiveness of the committee for the oversight.

Regarding the Militia, which is preserving the traditions of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, Col. Hall remarked that not as much support is given by the Government as would be liked, but this year there had been a substantial increase in the maintenance allowance ,and hope is held that 1928 will see another improvement.

INMATE OF JAIL HAS SMALLPOX

George Clapper, Sentenced on Thursday, Taken Ill To-day.

KEPT ISOLATED.

All the prisoners at the jail have been advised to be vaccinated by Dr. T. W. H. Young, M.O.H., and Dr. J. A. Morgan, jail physician, as a result of an outbreak of smallpox there.

George Clapper, who was sentenced on Thursday by His Worship Magistrate O. A. Langley, to a term of two months in jail for indecent assault, developed smallpox this morning. Dr. Morgan has isolated him from the other prisoners, and the greatest possible care is being taken to protect them. There was confined along with Clapper, Earl Laporte, who pleaded guilty to the same charge. Medical authorities claim that the disease had been contracted before the prisoner was admitted to the jail.

FORMER LOCAL MAN IS KILLED BY FALLING BAR

Ernest Moore Meets Tragic Death in Accident at Detroit.

WELL KNOWN HERE.

Deceased Was Employed as Foreman Carpenter on B ig Construction.

Ernest Moore, formerly a well-known resident of Peterborough, was instantly killed in Detroit last week when an iron bar falling eight stories from a building under construction hit him on the head.

Mr. Moore, who was born here forty-two years ago, and had lived in this city until nine years ago, was a brother of Norman Moore, 350 Smith Street. He was employed as a foreman carpenter in the construction of a 42-storey building in Detroit, and was at the seventh storey studying some blue prints when the bar, weighing 40 lbs., was dislodged from the steel work at the fifteenth storey and crashed down upon his head.

The deceased, who was married only four months ago, was buried in Evergreen Cemetery, Detroit, on Monday. He is survived by his widow, his mother, and one brother Robert in Windsor and by Norman of this city. He had a large circle of friends in Peterborough, who will be shocked to learn of his sudden death.

PREMIERS CONFER WITH E. W. BEATTY

Believed Opening of Branch Railroad Lines Subject of Discussion.

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 12.—(Canadian Press.)—The Premiers of British Columbia and Alberta held a conference here yesterday with President E. W. Beatty of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Mr. Beatty refused to comment after the meeting. It is understood, however, that Premier Maclean and Premier Brownlee discussed the need for an outlet from the Peace River District to the Pacific Coast. One report says that the western Premiers urged the Canadian Pacific Railway President to consider the building of a line to link the Edmonton-Dunvegan and British Columbia Railway, now operated by the C.P.R., with the Pacific Great Eastern Railway. Approximately 300 miles of track would be required to link these two systems.

The Premiers came to Montreal following the conclusion of the Premiers' conference at Ottawa.

United States Moral Assembly Is Informed

MADRID, November 12 (United Press). — The United States is one of the most moral countries in the world, speakers said yesterday at the closing session of the National Assembly Against Immorality.

But the delegates decided Spain needed a good morality crusade, and the Assembly decided to launch one which would touch the most inaccessible hamlet in the nation.

The Minister of the Interior promised Government support for the morality movement which hopes to abolish pornographic literature, censor films and fashions, curb the use of morphine and other drugs ,and stop public profanity.

Immortal Visions Of An Epic Day

(By ROBERT W. SERVICE)

It seems I'm in a giant bowling-alley:
The hidden heavies round me crash and thud;
A spire snaps like a pipe-stem in the valley,
The rising sun is like a ball of blood.
Along the road the fantassins are pouring,
And some are gay as fire, and some steel-stern . . .
Then back again I see the red tide pouring
Along the reeking road from Hebuterne.

And once again I seek Hill Sixty-seven,
The Hun lines grey and peaceful in my sight;
When suddenly the rosy air is riven—
A "coal-box" blots the boyou on my right.
Or else to evil Vimy I am stealing,
Past sentinels who hail with bated breath;
Where not a cigarette spark's dim revealing
May hint our mission in that zone of death.

I see across the shrapnel-seeded meadows
The jagged rubble-heap of La Boiselle;
Blood-guilty Fricourt brooding in the shadows,
And Thiepval's chateau empty as a shell.
Down Albert's riven streets the moon is leering;
The hanging Virgin takes its bitter ray;
And all the road from Hamel I am hearing
The silver rage of bugles over Bray.

Once more within the sky's deep sapphire hollow
I see a swimming Taube, a fairy thing;
I watch the angry shell flame flash and follow
In feather puffs that flick a tilted wing;
And then it fades, with shrapnel mirror's fashing;
The flashes bloom to blossoms lily gold;
The batteries are rancorously crashing,
And life is just as rull as it can hold.

Oh! spacious days of glory and of grieving!
Oh! sounding hours of lustre and of loss;
Let us be glad we lived you, still believing
The God who gave the cannon gave the Cross.
Let us not doubt, amid these seething passions,
The lusts of blood and hate our souls abhor;
The Power that Order out of Chaos fashions
Smites fiercest in the wrath-red forge of War . . .
Have faith! Fight on! Amid the battle hell
Love triumphs, Freedom beacons, all is well.

CANADIANS IN NEW YORK HOLD ARMISTICE DAY CELEBRATION

Canadian Club Luncheon and British Veterans' Ball Major Features.

SEVERAL ADDRESSES.

Canon Scott and Rev. Father Francis Duffy Principal Speakers.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(Canadian Press.)—Hundreds of Canadians and their friends in New York centred their observation of Armistice Day on two major functions, the Canadian Club of New York luncheon and a ball given by the British Great War Veterans of America at a fashionable Fifth avenue hotel.

So large a number of persons sought admittance to the Canadian Club luncheoen that the accommodation which had been arranged in the club's large main dining room proved inadequate, and many of the guests were served in the corridor and a small room adjoining the large hall. The two speakers of the day were both famous war-time chaplains—Venerable F. G. Scott, Arch-Deacon of Quebec, and Rev. Father Francis P. Duffy, of New York.

Makes Appeal.

Canon Scott appealed to those Canadians who had served overseas during the Great War not to allow the memory of their comrades who lie buried in France to die out among the younger generation of Canadians. Father Duffy, who was born in Cobourg, Ont., and won fame as the esteemed chaplain of the "Fighting Irish" 16th Division of the American Expedition army forces, united with others present in paying a tribute to Canon Scott.

Father Duffy then proceeded to contrast conditions to-day in Canada and the United States, remarking that there was a sufficient difference between the two nations to make the contrast interesting and that for more than a century there had never been a marked tendency in either country in favor of fighting or uniting with the other. Should there ever in the distant future be consummated a union of the English-speaking countries of North America, he said, he thought it likely that the situation would be similar to that which followed the annexation of Scotland by England. It was likely that, just as the Scots had taken over the government of England and her dominions, he explained jokingly, the Canadians would undertake the management of the United States and her dependencies.

Baldwin Message Read.

A message cabled by Premier Stanley Baldwin of Great Britain to the British Great War Veterans of America, was read at the luncheon and prominently displayed at the ball last evening.

"In conveying to you my heartiest greetings and good wishes on this solemn anniversary," read the cable, "I feel in common with every son of the British Empire, the momentous significance of this yearly gathering. We celebrate to-day from the towns and villages of the Motherland to the uttermost bounds of our great commonwealth of free nations not merely the triumph of a great cause but also the re-establishment of peace and the hope of reconciliation for the future. Our pride and our joy in victory is tempered and ennobled by the thought of those who, true to British tradition, gave their lives that the men of succeeding generations might be free. Our thoughts are with those crippled and distressed by the misfortune of battle whose sufferings prevent their presence among their more fortunate comrades. In our hearts to-day we have a place for the widows and families of those who paid without flinching the supreme sacrifice they were called upon to make. It is not only right, it is our bounden duty, to pause for a moment in our rejoicings and to think of those who in varying degrees paid the price of victory."

King Opens Ceremonies.

LONDON, Nov. 12 (Canadian Press) —Once again the great silence of the armistice hour fell on London and spread to the farthest corners of the Empire as Britain paused yesterday in a gesture of remembrance for her million dead in the world war.

Ceremonies at the cenotaph with King George, his sons and high officers of State present, opened the day of commemoration and through the hazy afternoon and far into the night a procession of those seeking to honor the war dead wound along Whitehall and through Westminster Abbey, where is the grave of Britain's Unknown Soldier.

The crowds which converged on the cenotaph and Westminster Abbey from all parts of the city and surrounding country were estimated to be even larger than those of last year.

Observe Armistice In Downpour of Rain

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 12.—(Canadian Press.) — Montreal's celebration of the ninth anniversary of the signing of the armistice was carried on in a heavy downpour of rain.

The Centotaph in Dominion Square was the centre of the ceremony of remembrance. A guard of honor being present while the religious service was conducted and wreaths were laid. The whole city joined in the two minutes of silence when a signal gun boomed from Mount Royal.

At several centres in the city groups of notables gathered to hear the broadcast from Albert Hall, London, England. The proceedings there came through with considerable clarity although the reception was marred by fading.

VERMONT FLOOD IS DESCRIBED BY LOCAL LADY

Mrs. Carleton Perry Now Lives at Proctor, in Stricken State.

NOT SO BAD THERE.

Creeks Overflowed Banks But Flooded Only Parts of City.

Mrs. Carleton Perry, formerly of Ashburnham, but who is now living in Proctor, Vermont, has written a rather vivid description of the effects of the flood in the town in which she lives, to her sister-in-law, Mrs. F. M. Glover.

Proctor was not as badly damaged through the flood as some other cities in Vermont, but still the property damage is large.

It is in Proctor that the Vermont Marble Company had its main plant.

The account is as follows:

"No doubt you will have heard of stricken Vermont ere this. Previous to Thursday night we had a continuous downpour for 36 hours, but no one ever dreamed of a flood. About eleven o'clock on Thursday night the Otter Creek began to rise, and by seven o'clock on Friday morning it had risen twenty feet. Quite a number of dams had broken away, so the water was surging like a Niagara Falls. The creek divided in two and part of the water went rushing through a railroad cut and down Powers Hill amongst the cheaper houses. Two large tenement houses went down with the onrush like so much matchwood and the people barely got out with their lives. They saved nothing; pianos, radios, and everything else went. A great many of these poor foreigners have put every cent they have in an automobile and are likely paying on time, and some of them are sunk in mud right out of sight.

"The road over Powers Hill is cut off, as if by a knife, and as it was nearly all filled ground, there is a hole fifty feet deep with huge trees uprooted and a span of railroad

New Fuel and Steel Policy Made Public

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 12 (Canadian Press).—In connection with the Dominion-Provincial conference whose sessions ended on Thursday night, the fuel and steel policy of the Nova Scotian Government was made public here yesterday in a statement issued on behalf of the Maritime administration. The policy, sponsored by Hon. Gordon S. Harrington, Minister of Public Works and Mines in the Nova Scotian Government, follows:

"That the Dominion of Canada adopt a national fuel and steel policy, the aim of which is to produce in Canada the fuel and steel consumed in Canada; that the recommendations of the Duncan Commission framed towards this end be made effective forthwith, and that all steps necessary from time to time to give full effect to this policy be taken by the Parliament of Canada.

"Present steps recommended:

"1. Coking plants.

"2. Subventions for carriage of coal west of Montreal.

"3. Tariff consideration for imported coke, anthracite screenings and bituminous coal.

"4. More favorable transportation rates.

"5. Abolition of Customs drawback for foreign coal entering Canada for coking as now allowed."

Impressive Scene At the Unveiling of Canada's Memorial

Monument Dedicated To United States Men Who Served in the Canadian Ranks Presented By Hon. Vincent Massey and Accepted By Secretary of State Kellogg.

CANADIAN GUARD OF HONOR TAKES PART IN CEREMONY AT CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 12 (Canadian Press).—Along the roads and byways of the old Dominion, as they used to call Virginia, a crowd of people travelled yesterday in all sorts of vehicles and all sorts of moods to witness the first gathering of a foreign people in the famous shrine of Arlington Cemetery, where rest the war dead of the United States. Some had special permits to admit them to official enclosures. Some were cramped in army lorries with busbies under their arms. Some tramped familiar furlongs between their barracks and the scene of many an official Armistice Day function. Some were brought by curiosity. All of them stayed to pray in their own particular way, and a few of them to weep.

They gathered about a pillar of bunting that flung itself up from the lawn surrounding the great amphitheatre. Hundreds climbed to the top of the Corinthian collanade which surrounds the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. These looked down on such a gathering as has not been seen in tranquil Arlington since the etombment of the Unied States unknown soldier. They had come to celebrate the unveiling of Canada's memorial to United States citizens who died in the uniform of the Canadian Expeditionary Forces.

Against a background of trees which were still half in foliage and under a sun which was as warm as early September, the British and United States flags stood out as the centre of a reverent group.

Open Ceremony

When clergymen and choir boys had opened the ceremony with prayer and song, Col. J. L. Ralston, Canadian Minister of Defence, untied the blue cordon which held in place the intertwined flags of the two North American countries, and the flags drifted apart, revealing the slender stately cross of sacrifice which is so familiar in Canadian military burying grounds, but has never before been seen on this side of the line.

Four hundred and fifty soldiers, half Canadian and half Americans, came to attention, and Canadian buglers played the Last Post. In a couple of sentences, Hon. Vincent Massey, presented the memorial to Secretary of State Kellogg, who was the senior United States official present. As briefly Mr. Kellogg accepted it.

Nine Years Ago

Col. Ralston delivered the oration for Canada. He recalled that it was "nine years almost to a moment that a great silence fell over 400 miles of battle front." Those who felt it, he said, would never forget "the uncanniness, the unreality of that sudden hush. It was too solemn for cheers. A sence of awe rather than jubilation filled men's souls. It meant that the greatest conflict ever waged between man was over. It signified that reason had once more resumed the sceptre in a world which for four years had been ruled by force." In Arlington there was "a cloud of witnesses" implied in the innumerable rows of graves, witnesses to a unity "within" cemented by men's honest blood and with a world of tears.

Of the men of the United States who crossed the Canadian frontier to enlist in Canadian forces while the United States was still neutral, Col. Ralston said:

"Restless spirits perhaps you thought them, rushing on regardless

ATTENDED O.T.A. MEETING.

A. J. Reynolds, who acted as delegate for the local Chamber of Commerce at the annual meeting of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce at Kitchener, reports that the convention was very well attended and was quite a successful one. It was held under the chairmanship of J. J. Duffus of this city, and many items of business importance to the Province were dealt with in the two days' session.

The Peterboro Chamber of Commerce introduced to the convention five resolutions, all of which were accepted on debate. One of the most important local resolutions was the necessity of taking proper measures against wild-cat promotions and fraudulent salesmen that are beginning to flood the country as a result of the recent prosperity. Other resolutions dealt with traffic matters, more particularly regarding automobiles

Mr. Reynolds also attended the annual meeting of the Ontario Tourist Association in Toronto, the operation of which organization has now been taken over by the Ontario Government, with an advisory council appointed from the Tourist Association to co-operate with the Government Department in encouraging in every way this trade of growing importance to the provinces to this district.

THE WEATHER

The temperature this morning was 42 degrees. A change to colder condition is now approaching. Our cold weather apparently comes from Alaska, and likely originates in Eastern Siberia. According to radio messages received by the Department of Marine and Fisheries at Ottawa, Hudson Bay and Hudson Straits are still quite free from ice, and the weather is mild. Even in far-away Greenland, which we are apt to associate with eternal snow and ice, the temperature has been around 40 each day. Last year the first snow of any account came on Dec. 3rd when we had 1½ inches, the following day an equal amount fell, and on the 5th 4½ inches came down. This furnished good sleighing, which continued. The first zero was on Dec. 4th, 3 below; on the 5th it was 7 below; on the 6th, 9 below; and on the 7th, 12 below. This was an unusually early cold dip. There were seven other zero days in December.—W. R.

GREAT OVATION GIVEN FLIERS

New York Turns Out To Welcome Ruth Elder.

WILL TRY AGAIN.

NEW YORK, November 12 (Associated Press). — Two aviators who faced death fearlessly over the lonely wastes of the Atlantic were abashed yesterday when they returned to the thunderous welcome New York accords its heroes.

Miss Ruth Elder and Captain George Haldeman showed their trepidation when Mayor Walker, at the City Hall ,gave them an illuminated scroll lauding their courage and extolling their accomplishments.

The girl flyer from Dixie, blushing like a school girl, said with a choking voice: "My dear Mr. Mayor, I'm sorry you asked me to speak, because I can't speak, especially in a crowded place like this. My heart sticks in my throat. But I want you to know how much I thank you. It is much more than we expected."

Captain Haldeman, who followed, said:

"When Miss Elder and I started our flight we wanted it to be a success for commercial aviation and for the interest of flying in general. Although we did not reach our goal, we hope that our trip will in some way be a benefit to flying in the future."

And both retired as fast as they could from the ten thousand persons who jammed the square in front of City Hall.

Crowds Line Streets.

From the time the city tug Macom took them off the liner Aquitania, they had heard the shouting crowds and the shrieking sirens that welcomed them home. Up Broadway to Miss Elder's hotel the cheers followed them.

"Hey, Ruth," the crowds called. "You'll make it next time, Ruth."

Miss Elder, waving her hand, flashing smiles and blowing kisses, had but a few minutes' respite at the hotel before starting downtown again for the mayor's formal reception.

Lyle Womack, Miss Elder's husband ,was one of the first to greet her, and as he clambered over the side of the Macom, his wife was waiting with outstretched arms.

At the formal reception at City Hall, both were shy and obviously ill at ease.

"I have no intention of giving up flying," Miss Elder said, "and although I have made no plans for the future, I'll try again to fly across the ocean if no other woman beats me to it."

Captain Haldeman, too, was enthusiastic over the prospects of another attempt. "If Miss Elder wants another go at it," he said, "and if she wants me as co-pilot, I'll be tickled to death."

Try in Spring.

But a second trial at the trans-Atlantic flight will not be made until next spring, Miss Elder indicated. Meantime her plans are vague. She does not think she will be a movie actress, but no picture contracts have been offered her. She was certain, however, that she will not go back to Panama with her husband right away.

"I've washed a lot of dishes in my time," she said, "and I don't intend to go back to that right away. Just what I will do I don't know yet."

NEW YORK, November 12. Canadian Press. — The metropolis yesterday roared its welcome to the two daring aviators who called King Neptune's bluff, Ruth Elder and Captain George Halderman.

Just a month from the day of their take off in the "American Girl" for a non-stop flight to Paris, the flight which came to grief when they fell into the ocean off the Azores, and were rescued by the Dutch tanker Barendrecht, they came back to their starting point to receive the cheers of thousands.

New Yorkers who have had lots of practice in welcoming returning aviators in the last few months, Lindbergh, Commander Byrd and his fellow adventurers, Chamberlin and Levine, gave them a typical reception.

Harbor craft shrieked a greeting, the Mayor's reception committee met them down the bay, and took them from the Aquitania at quarantine and thousands roared them a welcome as they proceeded from the Battery up Broadway to their hotel.

Lad Locked Butcher In His Own Ice-Box

BUFFALO, Nov. 12.— (United Press.)—Locked in an ice box by a 15 year old boy, Albert Carnoske, meat market proprietor, was forced to "refrigerate" while the boy rifled the cash register of $70 and calmly departed. Carnoske was released later by a customer.

KING BENJAMIN STILL A POWER

Many Believe That He Still Has Divine Attributes.

DETHRONED BY STATE.

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., Nov. 12.—King Ben Purnell, who enjoyed 23 years of ease, plenty and power, found himself yesterday without a kingdom.

He has long been the central figure in the religious colony which he called the House of David. He has been credited with divine power. He has been assailed as a philanderer.

He was shorn by the state of Michigan of his power and the right to guide the destinies of his colony, Thursday.

But to-day King Ben's followers, undaunted by the adverse verdict, again came to his aid with intimations that they planned to appeal Judge Fead's decision.

They still believe in Ben Purnell's "divinity," and think he can provide everlasting life.

BEES GO ON WARPATH.

ANDOVER, Kan., Nov. 12.—Mr. and Mrs. William Cook had quite a fight with a large swarm of bumblebees which had taken possession of their chicken house. The bees were getting the better of it until Cook thought of the garden hose, which dampened their ardor and cooled them down.

CAMPAIGNS IN CANOE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—George Dyson Friou, Republican candidate for Alderman in Brooklyn, never had any political training in Venice, but he knew just what to do when torrential rains flooded the streets in his district recently. Friou got a canoe and paddled up and down the street making speeches. He promised, incidentally, adequate sewer facilities to carry off similar floods in the future.

FORD PREPARES A WORLD DRIVE

New Model Car For British Market Will Be Shown in December.

EXPANDS FOR SUPREMACY.

LONDON, Nov. 12. — Indications that the Ford Motor Co. is setting out to become a greater factor in the world market than heretofore is found in information released here by the Messrs. Carmo, Lt., who handle Ford cars for London and the Home Counties. It is stated that the British showing of the car will take place in December.

"The new model for the British market," they state, "is of a definitely low horse power, and is designed specially for the British market. It has entirely new and graceful lines, is built low and has wire wheels. In fact, it has none of the characteristics of the old model.

"The price is believed to be in the near neighborhood of the old touring model, $625. Tests for flexibility and stamina have been very satisfactory. There will also be an American model of higher horsepower for those who want more power ,and a new commercial truck of increased carrying capacity."

Has 15 Horse Power.

While not contained in the dealer's statement, it is also reported here that the horsepower of the British model will be 15. Much space has been devoted to the new car in the British press but this is the first seemingly authentic information that has been given regarding it.

Announcement that a special model is to be built for the British trade is taken as a sign that the company intends to wage a vigorous campaign for supremacy throughout the world. The British market is supplied by directly owned branches of the parent company, The British Empire outside of England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales is supplied by the Ford Motor Co. of Canada, Ltd.

Even before the announcement that a special model would be built for the British trade, it was generally believed that the new car would become a great fatcor in the British and Continental fields because of the reports that it gives a greater mileage per gallon of petrol than usual.

Fuel a Big Factor.

Economy of operation is a determining factor in the sale of cars in the European market because of the high cost of fuel. A car of low horsepower has a decided advantage also because of the high license fees, which are based on horsepower.

The other motor car manufacturers have not been unmindful of the competition they will receive from Ford in the sale of cars in Europe is shown by the great attention they have been paying to the market.

Personal surveys of the field have been made by the highest officials of the American plants and one of the largest organizations is reported to have designed and will put into manufacture early in the new year a car especially designed for the European trade.

The oil rush in Colombia is compelling railways and steamship lines to add more cars and boats to care for the rapidly increasing volume of freight.

LABOR MOTION NOT SUSTAINED

OPPOSE SALE OF SHIPS.

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 12. — A vote of censure against the government of Prime Minister Bruce was launched by the Laborites yesterday following the introduction of the governments proposal to sell the commonwealth shipping line to private interests.

After sharp debate it was defeated by 40 votes to 23. Labor is preparing to fight the progress of the bill all along the legislative line, while forced by the facts of the situation to admit that the line has been run at a loss, and may have to continue that way, they contend that there is a big margin of profit for the country in the saving as accomplished in freight and passenger rates, and charge that the government, in its sell out policy playing deliberately into the hands of Lord Inchcape and the shipping trust.

CROP REPORT.

OTTAWA, Nov. 12 (Canadian Press).—The following is the crop report for the Dominion:

Quebec.—North and South of the St. Lawrence, the grain, as well as the root and fodder crops, appears to be turning out well, and in most cases yields are about the five-year average. Wet weather in a number of localities has made harvesting difficult. Potatoes are suffering from rot in some districts, owing to the wet weather, but in others they are a very satisfactory crop. In the Eastern Township there has been a good harvest, although rains have affected the quality of the grain. Fall ploughing is well advanced and prospects are good. In the Montreal district conditions are very satisfactory on the whole.

Ontario. — The continued dry weather throughout the province has delayed fall ploughing, except in parts of the South and Central sections, where rain has recently fallen and work is well advanced. More rain is needed over the whole province. Northern Ontario has especially suffered from adverse conditions. Grain crops are only fair, except barley and spring rye, which are above average. Potatoes are a fair crop only, but of a good quality where not injured by blight or rot.

Manitoba. — Fine weather during the last two weeks has enabled farmers to finish threshing. Unfortunately, the wheat has not turned out very well, grading low, tough or damp in many cases owing to the ravages of rust, continued wet weather at the time of cutting, and the early frosts. Oats have suffered the most, and in many districts the crop is almost a total loss. A considerable quantity has been cut for green feed while much grain has been left standing. Barley has turned out better and should be a fairly good crop, where not injured by frost. The potato crop, as well as other root crops, appears to be good. A great deal of Fall ploughing has been done, being farther advanced at the end of October, in a number of localities, than for some years. The pastures and hay crops are of good quality. This has helped to place the live stock ,in gool condition for wintering.

Saskatchewan—Unfavorable weather interfered with threshing in early October, but during the last ten days of the month good threshing weather prevailed. The yield of oats was considerably reduced by rust, especially in the East-Central and South-Eastern districts. Rust has also reduced the expected yield of wheat. The grades of the wheat, threshed early in October, suffered because of the wet weather.

Alberta.—Threshing, generally, is over half completed and in some localities practically completed. Operations were considerably delayed by the wet weather earlier in the month, but fine weather was experienced later, while much of the grain, especially wheat, oats and barley, is yielding high, the grade has been lowered by extreme dampness. In some instances it is better than at first anticipated. Very little fall ploughing has been done to date but should be well under way with a continuance of fine weather. Pastures are good and feed is abundant.

British Columbia.—Frequent rains during September and October caused considerable loss to oats and wheat ,also shrinkage of the grades of grain. Harvesting of roots, also Fall ploughing is unusually backward. Pasturage conditions continue excellent.

WINNIPEG WHEAT

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 12.—(Canadian Press.)— Excellent buying of wheat futures by millers featured yesterday's trading on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Seaboard houses also contributed to the spirited movement, while commission houses were moderately active. Prices were buoyant throughout the day with closing gains from 1-8 to 1c.

While the United States report on corn caused some surprise among local traders, the estimated increase in yields failed to undermine wheat values here.

Rye continued in good demand, prices being boosted 3c. at the peak. Prices for other coarse grain commodities held firm.

Edinburgh has a campaign against betting on the streets.

AGENTS SEIZE LIQUOR CARGO

VALUED AT $100,000.

CAPE MAY, N.J., Nov. 12 (Canadian Press).—A Canadian schooner with a $100,000 liquor cargo seized at the Delaware Breakwater was on the way to Philadelphia last night under guard.

Seven men were arrested by coastguards of Base 9 here after they boarded the handsomely equipped schooner. Thirty cases of assorted liquors valued at $90 a case and 275 barrels of malt valued at nearly $100,000 was seized, coastguards said.

The schooner, named the Charles and Edward, was said to be from Nova Scotia, although it was reported the crew said the cargo was taken aboard at St. Pierre.

J. A. Oszerberg was in command of Unit 113 which surprised the men on Thursday, just outside the breakwater, several miles from here. They were comfortably ensconced in staterooms.

Joseph H. Green, Philadelphia Customs house inspector, came here yesterday and took charge of the crew. He took them to Wilmington, Del., where they will be given a hearing to-day before a United States commissioner.

It was said the cargo of choice liquors was billed for Cape May, where it was to be distributed for the Christmas holidays. The names of the crew were withheld by the coastguard pending the hearing.

OBITUARY.

ROBERT KERR.

PONTYPOOL, Nov. 12.—Probably the largest funeral ever held in this district took place on Sunday last when the late Robert Kerr was laid to rest. The deceased had been in fair health until a short time ago, when it was found necessary that he undergo an operation. He died in Toronto. About two hundred cars were at the house and it required two cars to carry the flowers to the cemetery.

Deceased was very well known and respected by all who knew him. He was a foreman of the Warren Paving Company during the summer months, and resided on his farm at Yelverton for the winter. He was very fond of sports and was much interested in baseball, as his three boys played on the Yelverton team. He leaves his widow and three sons to mourn his loss.

BAPTIST STUDENT IS SUSPENDED

Denounced Professors of McMaster University in Ottawa Address.

TORONTO, Nov. 12.—(Canadian Press)—James McGinley, student pastor, Baptist fundamentalist and ardent supporter of Rev. Dr. T. T. Shields, has been suspended from lectures at McMaster University for a week "because of further unwarrante dand outrageous language concerning members of the faculty which he is reported in The Press as having used in Ottawa and elsewhere," according to an announcement from the University today. Final action in his case, indicating the possibility of expulsion from the University will be taken next week.

Rev. McGinley who has a pastorate in Western Ontario, speaking at Ottawa recently denounced statements made by Prof. Marshall of McMaster at recent Baptist convention.

NAVY GETS APPLESAUCE.

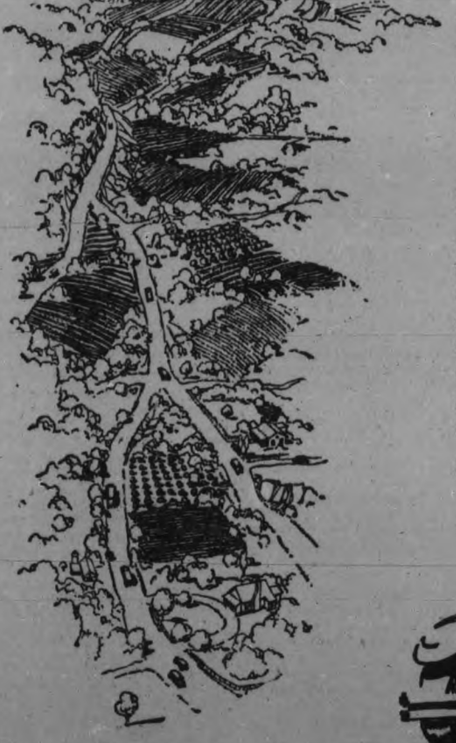
Lover of Highway and Byway



SHE loves them all, does the Reo Flying Cloud. Be it the spirit-level smoothness of Pennsylvania's concrete, or the lava-shingled trail of Nevada, she sweeps to meet them with that joyous thrill of motoring that only the Reo Flying Cloud gives.

Hour after hour, mile upon mile, day after day, those who drive a Reo Flying Cloud are learning the meaning of a "pleasure car."

Swung upon long, flexible springs, cradled by hydraulic shock absorbers, she irons out the bumps of every road. She has power for the hardest pulling and speed for the swiftest flight. Yet no matter how fast she is going, how treacherous the roadbed beneath you, she comes to a quick and gentle halt when you touch her velvet stop brakes.

Give her a chance to tell her story in her own sweet way. Take her out for a trial spin. If she can't sell you, no one else can.

MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

A CERTAIN DEVOTEE OF BRIDGE, a woman of good repute, and of ample means, I have been informed, has her tables, her mantels and whatnots strewn with trophies and prizes won in battles of bridge. These prizes are the pride of her home and she makes no secret of how she won them. Even her children boast of her skill in winning at cards. A suggestion that she has been guilty of gambling would bring down the indignation of the whole family upon him who made it. But everybody who knows anything about the pastime that was said to have been invented to amuse a crazy monarch, knows that a gambler is what she is, and it is the merest sophistry to pretend that she is something else.

LIKE MOTHER, LIKE SON!

On one occasion this woman's seventeen-year-old son was arrested in a gambling den, and as a kindness to the mother and family he was permitted to enter a name that was not his own. When he had paid his fine he remarked with a tone of sarcasm in his voice, that hereafter when the gambling fever came on he would go with mother. A hard-hearted policeman grunted that his "Ma" had better burn her bridges and stop infecting her own offspring.

There are people always, and not a few of them, who refuse to believe that fire will burn until they have poked their own fingers into the flames. Nothing short of the bitter experience will convince them that fire is not a thing to be played with. Fire will burn others, but not them.

This woman would not believe that fire would burn until she had scorched her own fingers. If she had been at all observant of the ways of the world she would have known that the habits of boys and girls are caught rather than taught, are learned by example rather than by advice.

PLAYING WITH FIRE.

No man or woman can successfully teach honesty or decency unless they practice these virtues. The life of the boy or girl is a mirror in which is reflected the daily lives of those with whom they come in most intimate contact.

The man or woman who thinks that either the laws of nature or of morality can be violated with impunity, is playing with fire. Somebody has said that and this saying is just as true as "preachin'." Every crop of wild oats yields a harvest of disease, of imbecility, or of crime, somewhere down the line of descent. The fire will burn somebody, that's certain. Still men and women will keep on playing with fire knowing that somebody, possibly their own children, must suffer from the burns.

MORTGAGING THE FUTURE.

Playing with fire is placing a mortgage upon the future—making the future bear the expenses of today. It is drawing on tomorrow to pay today's excesses, on old age for youth's extravagances. Playing with fire starts conflagrations that burn from generation to generation, ending only when the breed is burned out. And still people poke their fingers into the flames, unmindful of the experiences of others.

Of course, this philosophy is not popular with society folks today. It is easier to sink conviction, be conventional, and go with the crowd, than to stick by your convictions and stand alone. It may be all right in mechanics to choose the line of least resistance, but it usually leads to disaster in ethics.

If some women that I know knew the word of God as well as they know a pack of playing cards they would count for more both in church and at home.

A REFORMED GAMBLER.

Quinn, the reformed gambler, could not have been far wrong when he declared: "The parlor card table is the kindergarten to a gambler's hell."

A boy must first learn to play cards before he is likely to be admitted to a gambling hell. If your boy or mine should present himself there, the first question would be, "Can you play cards?" They have no time to teach a "greener," but he can go to a respectable parlor, even of some church member, where they will give him his primary lessons and start him on the card highway back to the rambler's hell and ruin;

So if I were compelled to choose I would rather have a score of gambling joints in the block where I live than one refined parlor of moral and religious people who play cards. The one will more surely trap the boy than the twenty.

PINK TEA AND CARDS.

A grand jury's report in the United States had this to say: "A pink tea where society plays progressive euchre and gives prizes to the winners has the same degrading influence as the gambling-house, where roulette and poker are the attraction, the difference being only one of degree. It matters very little whether the prize is a silver thimble or a silver dollar. Progressive euchre parties are made alluring with prizes, refreshments, and the knowledge that the local papers will print the names of guests and winners. All are common gamblers, and deserve to be fined."

BREAKING UP A CARD PARTY.

I am ready to admit that it is rather hard to declare that some of the loveliest women, among them even some church women, are in the eyes of the law nothing but gamblers. When men play for a jackpot of silver and women play for a silver creamer, there can be no difference in the world except in the shape of the silver. The Chicago minister was within the bounds of law, ecclesiastical and state, when he notified the police lieutenant to send the patrol to a home where a club of his church women were playing for prizes.

A medical journal, in an editorial, has this to say about cards:

"Card-playing is a pure and simple mental dissipation, that grows upon the victim like all other dissipations, to the eventual exclusion of logical and close thinking."

ONE FOOT IN THE GRAVE AND THE OTHER UNDER A CARD TABLE.

There are some people I know who are so card-crazy that they are in danger of going from a bridge party to their own funeral. For all church people who are more devoted to a card party than they are to a prayer meeting I would like to suggest that every card game be started with the Doxology and closed with the Mizpah Benediction. When some folks read this I won't need the assistance of a mind-reader to tell me what they are thinking. What they will do in heaven—if they ever get there—is more than I know. A poker face will be out of place there. Bridge parties may be found in hell, but I am sure they will not be found in heaven.

—Allan Fairbairn.

The Road To Success

THE MAN who succeeds is the man who gets his goal in his mind's eye and works toward that goal, doing what there is to be done enroute. He mustn't be afraid to soil his hands with honest dirt. He mustn't permit himself to be ruled by false pride; to fear criticism by those with whom he comes in contact. Dig in, work hard, be honest, keep your nerve and don't wobble —that's the road to success.

Ready For Anything

SOME little boys were playing at soldiers one day. One of them had on his shoulder an R.F.A. badge. An officer of the British Army who was watching them said to this lad: "So you belong to the Royal Field Artillery, little man?" "Oh, no, sir," he said, "I belong to the 'Ready For Anything.'"

What About Tomorrow

HAVE YOU ever heard of the little girl that wanted to see tomorrow? She'd wake her mother up in the middle of the night and whisper: "Mommie, is this tomorrow?" Each time her mother would answer: "No, child, this is today."

Lots of grown-up folks are not much different from the little girl. They're going to start a bank account—tomorrow. Or, they are going to take out some insurance—tomorrow. Most of their improvements are going to be carried out—tomorrow.

It is possible that when they wake the last chance out of a sound slumber and whisper, "I'm ready—is this tomorrow?" the door of hope will shut behind the answer: "No, foolish one, this is today!"

"USE IT—OR LOSE IT"

Churches And Churchmen

RUSKIN tells us what God could make of the mud which lies on the paths of some grimy manufacturing town if it would give Him time. He would take the clay, and refine it till it was fit to make the finest porcelain. He would refine it further till he made of it an opal. Of the sand he would make a sapphire, and of the soot, a diamond. And of the water He makes many shapes, and all are beautiful, from the dewdrop to the snow crystal.

But what He does in nature is not any more wonderful than what He does in grace.

In the work of building the true church He takes the most unlikely material and, in the quarry of every-day living, fashions and polishes the redeemed soul till that soul becomes a reproduction of the divine image.

The Glare of the Street.

SIR OLIVER LODGE recently said: "One of the greatest curses of our age is the noise of the material. We cannot hear the voice of the spiritual."

This can be illustrated in another way.

The fame of the artist, Turner, brought to his door visitors from all over the world to see the paintings in his private gallery. They were ushered into a darkened room where at first they could see nothing. As their eyes became accustomed to the gloom they could discern others waiting. The quiet and the darkness brought a feeling of restfulness, and the glare of the street faded from their eyes. Then an attendant ushered them into a brilliantly lighted gallery hung with the paintings whose coloring is still unrivalled. The artist's explanation of this delay was suggestive. "No man," he said, "can see the color of my pictures with the glare of the street in his eyes."

The deepest and most beautiful things of life do not force themselves upon us. They can be seen only by those whose eyes are not blinded by the glare of the street. They can be heard only by those who listen in quietness of spirit.

Hence the imperative necessity for quiet and for prayer in this bustling age. We must find a place for private devotion and for public worship in our crowded and hurried lives. "Be still and know that I am God." Let the glare of the street fade out of your eyes while you wait in quietness, and the splendors of truth shall be revealed.

(If the above means as much to others as it has meant to me I shall be well repaid for culling it from a New England church leaflet and adapting it to the needs of this column.)

The Pew Versus the Pulpit.

SERMONS are not toys to be played with or pretty pieces of rhetoric on which every member of the congregation is expected to pass judgment. To ask, "How do you like the sermon?" is to drag it down to the level of a crazy quilt or a piece of crochet work.

A sermon is not an exquisite bit of literary bric-a-brac, to be chattered over and judged by the technical rules of art. It is not a dumpling into which every self-constituted critic is invited to stick his fork that he may praise or condemn the cook.

A sermon is a solemn warning, a bugle-call to duty, a burning condemnation, a mighty stroke against a giant wrong, an exhortation to high endeavor, the illumination of a majestic truth.

A layman may, with a little practice, develop amazing dexterity in counter-acting the influence of his pastor. After the preacher has kindled by his sermon a fire in many hearts, a layman may, if industrious and enterprising, extinguish the fire in all the people near him. It is a critical season in the week, the brief period immediately succeeding the benediction. In those few moments a layman can, if he will, do infinite mischief. He can turn his back on the stranger that stands nearest him, and show by his conduct that the pastor's sermon on brotherliness is a mere theory, not intended to be reduced to practice; at least, in the church.

How did you like the sermon?

Asking that question has become a habit which it will probably take centuries to eradicate. It is a demon which can be cast out only by prayer and fasting. Even the saints are addicted to the use of it. When strangers come to the church the first question at the close of the service often is, "How did you like the sermon?" No wonder spiritual results of preaching are so meager. What can be expected from preaching unless laymen realize that they are to follow up the work of persuasion by driving home the word set forth by the preacher!

(I am greatly indebted to Dr. Jefferson, pastor of Broadway Tabernacle, New York, for the ideas set forth in the above article. May it be widely read and produce results both deep and abiding is my very sincere wish.)

Long-Distance Sermons.

MADELINA PATTI, in giving the location of her Welsh castle in the district of Brecknockshire, always said that it was "twenty-three miles from everywhere and very beautiful." The description fits rather exactly a good many sermons. They are very often beautiful and a long way from everywhere. A sermon ought not be more than a mile away from a place where people live and move and have their troubles.

—I. Seewell.

WE are standing in the immediate neighbourhood of an ancient city. The situation is picturesque, ranges of rocky hills are all around, and the narrow valley in which the city is situated runs north and south. A visitor stands among the townspeople who treat him with marked respect. He is evidently no stranger to them, although in the present instance he has not been living in their midst, but has travelled some distance for this important conference. His is a striking personality as he stands there; kings ere now have fled before him, and his sword has taken captives and set captives free, but his is now no war-like mission; this princely looking man, this great leader and chief is himself a suppliant, but his mien is so noble, and the circumstances of the case are so touching that the hearts of all are bowed in sympathy, and doubtless he will obtain his request.

Constant Biography

A MAN awoke one morning to the consciousness of himself. Looking about he saw the familiar sights of his own home, and soon he heard the voices of his wife and children. Ere long the little people were on their way to school. The man proceeded to his work, while his wife took up her domestic duties. He returned in the evening with the proceeds of his day's labor added to his stock of goods. He partook of the evening meal and then indulged in the pleasure of "the children's hour." He later called upon a friend who had met with sorrow and in the trouble of his friend he found a fresh reminder of his own affliction. He retired in due season to his slumber and went forth the next morning to make the like round of the day.

We need only obey. There is guidance for each of us, and by lowly listening, we shall hear the right word. —Emerson.

ARMISTICE DAY.

Once more it has been demonstrated that an adequate celebration of Armistice Day is impossible under the present arrangement of combining Thanksgiving Day with the armistice and holding the dual holiday on the Monday before November 11th.

The Examiner believe that all Canada should unite in a dignified and impressive observance of the anniversary of the end of the war on the actual date, November 11th

Let Armistice Day and Thanksgiving be celebrated together, if it is desired, but make the date of the holiday November 11.

Such an arrangement would eliminate the week-end holiday that is convenient to a number of people, but when the question resolves itself into a choice between a Monday holiday and a proper celebration of Armistice Day there should be no difficulty in arriving at a decision.

Surely the anniversary of the end of the greatest war in history is of sufficient importance to justify it bein gset apart as a day of national remembrance and thanksgiving.

WANT MR. CRANE TO RUN.

Although the majority of citizens are unfortunately apathetic as a rule, toward municipal affairs there are indications that some of the voters realize that a civic election is only just round the corner and that it is desirable to make some effort to secure the candidature of citizens capable of good service.

One indication of this is the attempt that is being made to have John Crane, who recently resigned from the managership of the local branch of the Dominion Bank, become a candidate for the Utilities Commission. Citizens who have followed Mr. Crane's successful business career and his record in municipal affairs feeling that he would bring to the Commission the benefit of long business and executive experience.

W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., whose term as a member of the Commission expires at the end of the year, has intimated that he will not be a candidate. Those who have been seeking to have Mr. Crane stand for the vacancy point to his record as a member of the Board of Education, his long service on the Nicholls Hospital Board, and his other activities as indicative of his ability to do excellent service on the Utilities Commssion, where they claim the presence of a man of business is desirable in the general interest.

WHY NOT CANADA?

The Examiner is in receipt of a long article, reprinted from "The British Australian and New Zealander", giving a splendid report of the sailing of the White Star liner Vedic from Liverpool to Australia last month, carrying 650 hand-picked British emigrants.

These had been carefully selected by the Migration and Settlement Department of the Salvation Army, and included 200 boys who had been efficiently trained in agriculture at the Army's farms at Hadleigh, Essex. All of the 650 had been approved by the representative of the Australian Government in London, and the report declaring that these emigrants were off to "the land of the better chance", heralded the occasion as "another indication of how the tide of British emigration is turning from westward to eastward.

There was a civic send-off at the Guildhall, given by the Lord Mayor of London, there was a message from The King and Queen wishing the new Australians good luck, and altogether the affair seems to have been one quite out of the ordinary.

But the article makes sad reading to a Canadian who studied the photographs of some of these fine lads and realizes that they are the type we need in this country.

Why Australia and not Canada?

Why should the tide of British emigration be turning southward?

OLD AGE PENSIONS.

The Dominion-Provincial conference by reason of the attitude shown by the representatives of the majority of the province toward the question leaves little doubt that the aged residents of Ontario and most of the other provinces will get no benefit from the Old Age Pensions Act passed by the Federal Parliament at the last session.

That Act provides that the Dominion Government will pay half the cost of old age pensions in any province that agrees to provide the remainder of the necessary amount.

Only British Columbia has taken advantage of the provision and there are no present indications that any other province save British Columbia — unless it be Manitoba—will do so.

The discussion of the question at the conference showed no provincial enthusiasm for the Pensions Act, representatives of most of the provinces declaring that the responsibility for looking after the aged should be completely assumed by the Federal Government and pointing out that the provinces had not been consulted before the present Act was passed.

The deliberations reveal the fact that there is no present chance of the Maritimes, Quebec and Ontario entering into an agreement with the Federal Government in the matter and the Prairie Provinces, with the exception of Manitoba, are not much more enthusiastic.

All speakers, of course, favored the general idea of old age pensions but most provincial delegates declared that the whole expense should be met by the Dominion Government.

A CURFEW FOR THE RADIO.

The call heard in some quarters for a radio curfew is not without certain justification. The good which might be attained by compulsory muzzling of loud-speakers at unseemly hours is undeniable. But like other curfew regulations, a time limit on the noisy neighborhood radios would bring about nothing which cannot be brought about in a different way. Just as proper control of children by parents would render the ordinary curfew bell unnecessary, so the owners of radio sets, with due regard to courtesy and the fitness of things, could eliminate all demand for a law to silence loud-speakers after a stated evening hour.

In theory, the advocates of the radio curfew want the common air free of noise after 10 o'clock. There is nothing at present to prevent the owner of a set from disconnecting his horn at 10 o'clock and settling down to listen, with earphones securely attached, to a musical program of the kind he desires. Some folks who live in apartments, or near a neighbor who retires early, already adopt this procedure. The curfew fans would make it obligatory. They say there are hundreds of places in every city where neighborhood sleep is disturbed after 10 o'clock by the ill-chosen programs of some radio owner who doesn't possess such a saving thing as a set of earphones. Jazz and opera persist in some sections, it is said, until 11 o'clock, and in comparatively few cases the annoyance is complained of as late as "midnight, the outpost of advancing dawn."

Unfortunately modern apartments are not soundproof, although some of them are better in that respect than others. It must also be admitted that everybody doesn't like radio, and it is not human nature for one man, lacking the means to possess a set, to be constantly delighted with the sounds from the loud-speaker of a neighbor who not only has the means to buy an outfit but also the ambition to let the whole world hear it far into the night. But it is doubtful if a curfew scheme is just the thing that is needed. It is unlikely that the policemen of London or any other city could be properly trained to make themselves heard each evening with the necessary cry: "Oyez! Oyez! Ten o'clock and all loud speakers must be disconnected!" Perhaps it would be better to apply the idea in a limited way first. Try it out in large apartment houses where complaints of nights made hideous are said to exist. Entrust enforcement to the janitor, who could be stationed on the roof with a pair of pliers and a watch. If saxophones and sopranos were still audible after 10, the janitor would only have to sever the aerial.—London Advertiser.

THE NEW PROCEDURE.

Ottawa dispatches note with interest the new rules of the House of Commons that are to be put into force when Parliament resumes, probably after the first of the year.

Chief among the changes is that limiting the length of speeches. Up to now there has been practically no limit. No one member, probably, ever spoke as long as Mustapha Kemal, the Turkish leader, did the other day —400,000 words in 36 hours—but some of the addresses have seemed that long. In future, however, a maximum of 40 miutes may be consumed. If a man cannot say all he has to say about one topic in 40 minutes then he has failed to get his subject well in hand. This rule, quite properly, does not affect the Prime Minister, the leader of the Opposition, a Cabinet Minister moving a Government order or a member making a motion of "no confidence" in the Government and a Minister replying thereto.

Thus is a long-talked-of reform to finally come about. The length of parliamentary speeches and the endlessness of parliamentary debates have constituted something of a popular joke for a long time back. Parliament has at last risen to the occasion and placed a time limit upon those who contribute, or attempt to contribute, to its thoughts. The reform is overdue, but welcome nevertheless. It will save the country a good deal of money directly and add considerably to the national chances of getting the nation's business handled in a business-like way.

Parliament has also acted wisely in deciding to do away with all night sittings. Under the new rules, the House must adjourn not later than 11 o'clock on any evening it may be in session. On Wednesday evenings adjournment will come at 6 o'clock. The all-night gatherings are to be a thing of the past, and it is well that this is so. Imagine a Commons chamber with a scant quorum of members, some yawning, some frankly sleeping in their chairs, making important decisions, putting through important business, with one member after another getting up to drone a speech in which no one beyond himself—and the Hansard reporters, who are paid to listen—has the slightest interest.

Parliament has taken a step in the right direction in deciding to cut down on the length of speeches and on the length of sessions. Perhaps at the next session we may find some courageous soul moving to reduce the number of members. How such a step will be received —if it is made—remains to be seen. But someone is going to move along these lines and eventually the idea will be accepted. The same trend that is responsible for shortening speeches and hours of meeting will inevitably produce the other obvious reform—a substantial reduction in the size of Parliament. East Essex Conservatives wanted to incorporate a plank to this effect in the national platform of the party, but their resolution failed, like many others, to receive consideration at Winnipeg. There wasn't time.

Governmental reforms of various kinds are needed in this country. Canada could use, to great advantage, smaller governing bodies and fewer governing bodies. The wind is blowing in this direction. Desirable reforms eventually come about.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

After all you won't be doing that Christmas shopping very early if you start next week.

According to Mr. Robb the provincial delegates to the conference just ended merely wanted to take from the Dominion Treasury $100,000,000 annually. The provinces evidently thought there was no harm in aiming high.

When the streets are wet or glazed with ice motorists should be more than usually careful. Speeding under such conditions is nothing short of criminal negligence.

Fortunately the ceremony in the Arlington National Cemetery yesterday will do more to strengthen the ties of friendship between the people of the United States and Canada than any foolish words or action of Mayor Thompson could possibly weaken those ties.

The Man Who Had No Use For Life Insurance

THIRTY years ago, he was a prosperous merchant with a business worth $50,000.00. His ambition was to develop it to a value of $100,000.00.

For months, he resisted all arguments to buy life insurance, but, finally, signed an application and received a thirty-year endowment policy for $3,000.00.

At the end of thirty years he wanted to retire. But times had changed. His business had not grown, as he expected. Instead of the $100,000.00 of his early ambition, he salvaged only $11,000.00!

Accumulated profits had brought the total payment he received on his $3,000.00 endowment to $7,200.00.

Thirty years ago he had little or no use for life insurance. Today he says insurance is like an anchor in the cross-currents of life.

Congratulations To Mr. Geo. R. Record On His 20th Anniversary in Business.

Among the list of well-established business firms in this city, who have "weathered the storm" for the past twenty years is that of Mr. George R. Record, proprietor of "My Valet". Twenty years ago yesterday, November 10th, Mr. Record embarked in the clothes-cleaning and renovating business, at No. 173 Simcoe street, where he has continued to conduct an ever-growing business ever since.

Previous to starting in this line of business, Mr. Record was favorably known as an expert merchant tailor, which he gave up to fill an apprenticeship with a large clothes-cleaning firm in Minneapolis, U.S. On his return to Peterborough twenty years ago yesterday, he started his present business, where he has been "going strong" every year since.

Mr. Record has been receiving the congratulations of his numerous friends and extends "the glad hand" to those who still remain to remember him when he first put his "My Valet" shingle at No. 173 Simcoe street. He desires to express his sincere thanks to all his friends and patrons for their long-continued patronage, and hopes he may be able to continue his good Record for good work for many years yet to come.

CHURCH SOCIETIES MEET AT OMEMEE

Anglican and United Ladies Transact Much Business.

OMEMEE, Nov. 12.—The Women's Guild of Christ Church held their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. William Burgess on Thursday afternoon. The final arrangements for the Bazaar on December 7th were completed. Booths include a white embroidery, colored embroidery, knitting and apron, candy and home-cooking.

Mrs. V. Jones and Mrs. S. Nurse assisted Mrs. Burgess in serving dainty refreshments at the close.

The November meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Trinity United Church, was held in the Sunday School room on Thursday afternoon, with an attendance of about thirty. Reports were heard from the Secretary and treasurer, the latter showing the amount contributed toward the recent thankoffering to be $45.65.

Mrs. Harold Laidley and Mrs. Robert Wilson were appointed a program Committee for the next three months. After a short discussion, as to the bringing of articles ordered to the Bazaar it was the decision of the ladies to display same. The time set for the opening of the Bazaar was 4 o'clock.

The President asked the opinion of the meeting regarding the three quilts which are completed and it was decided to have the Corresponding Secretary make inquiry as to where the need is greatest.

A grateful acknowledgment was received from the Deaconess Home, and the Fred Victor Mission, Toronto, for the three crates of fruit sent recently. A letter of appreciation for kindnesses shown by the Society during the time of bereavement was received from Mrs. G. Haygarth. Other business included a request from the ladies in charge of the fancy work booth—that all articles for the Bazaar be sent in the Saturday previous.

After the singing of a hymn, the Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. R. H. Williamson, followed by prayer by Rev. E. W. Rowland. The devotional leaflet entitled "Our Responsiveness to Human Need" was ably given by Miss N. Rutherford. A very pleasing solo was rendered by Mrs. Harold Laidley. A splendid synopsis of the second chapter of the Study Book, New Paths for Old Purposes, entitled "A New Frontier of Christian Missions was given by Miss Eva Race.

Mrs. R. Bradley kindly consented to take charge of the subject for the next meeting. The President, then extended words of welcome to Mrs. Mulligan and Miss McCrea, of Lindsay, who were visitors to their home society before leaving shortly to spend the winter in France with their sister, Lady Eaton.

Mrs. Rowland closed the meeting with prayer, after which a social half-hour was enjoyed with Mrs. A. Fee, Mrs. J. Shield and Miss Lila Parsons as hostesses.

Attacked by Sciatica and Bad Backache

Chas. Edwards Found Relief In Dodd's Kidney Pills

"I had a severe attack of sciatica in the fall of last year," writes Mr. Chas. Edwards, 1524, 13th Avenue West, Calgary. I also had pains in my back and tried several remedies but got very little relief from any of them. I remembered we had a Dodd's Almanac in the house which I got and read the many testimonials of those who had got relief from Rheumatism, Lumbago, and Sciatica by using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I made a start at once and soon felt they were doing me good. I took three boxes and felt all right."

A PRACTICAL HOME OF GOOD DESIGN

(By C. W. Barnes, Architect.)

Adherence to any particular period style has been abandoned in the design of this home, that the owner may have absolutely the utmost in efficient, comfortable accommodation for every dollar spent. This by no means, however, implies that beauty of exterior design has been forgotten as a glance at the perspective will show.

In general, the plan resembles that of the central hall Colonial type. The living-room which may be entered by wide sliding doors, is a bright, good-sized room, having an attractive centre fireplace.

A typical feature of the labor-saving kitchen plan is the sliding door in the back of the dining-room china-closet, a detail the convenience of which will be readily appreciated by the housewife.

It may be observed that each of the seven main rooms is located on a corner, and so provided with light and air on two sides. Notice, too, the abundance of coat, clothes, and linen closets.

With red rustic brick walls, and asbestos shingle roof this house cost approximately $7,000 exclusive of lot.

Readers desiring further information regarding the plans and specifications of this house should communicate with the architects direct. Address: Mr. C. W. Barnes, Moncton, N. B.

FRENCH RIVER USE PROPOSED

North Bay Delegates Want Government Urged To Develop Stream.

BOARDS OF TRADE MEET.

KITCHENER, Ont., Nov. 11 (Canadian Press).—Suggestions of the North Bay Board of Trade that the Provincial and Dominion Governments seriously consider the development of the French River as a waterway and the power on the same caused considerable discussion at the closing session of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce here to-day. The sequel was that a resolution introduced by the northern city was referred to the executive for investigation and action as may be deemed necessary, with assurance to the North Bay delegates that the proposition is not to be confused with the Georgian Bay scheme. The amendment to the original motion was made owing to lack of engineering data before the convention.

Among the resolutions adopted was an expression of appreciation of the work of the Dominion and Provincial governments to date in furthering of the tourist trade. Coupled with the motion was a recommendation to the Dominion government that it consider expending an additional five million dollars in the next three years in advertising of the Dominion's resources and opportunities with a view to securing larger investments of capital and attracting such industries as may be necessary to manufacture the raw material which this country possesses in such large measure. Another resolution was one of appreciation of the forward policy of the provincial government in the development of northern Ontario.

The new president of the association is G. C. Martin, Hamilton, who succeeds J. J. Duffus, Peterborough. The latter was elected as honorary president. The place for the next annual meeting is North Bay. With a view to enabling the delegates to see a considerable stretch of the north the executive was empowered to hold the annual meeting earlier next year.

MADE HER BABY PLUMP AND WELL

Nothing makes a mother more grateful than a benefit conferred upon her child. Mothers everywhere who have used Baby's Own Tablets for their children speak in enthusiastic terms of them. For instance, Mrs. Zepherin Lavoie, Three Rivers, Que., writes:—"Baby's Own Tablets are a wonderful medicine for little ones. They never fail to regulate the baby's stomach and bowels, and make him plump and well. I always keep a box of the Tablets in the house and would advise all mothers to do likewise." Most of the ordinary ailments of childhood arise in the stomach and bowels, and can be quickly banished by Baby's Own Tablets. These Tablets relieve constipation and indigestion, break up colds and simple fevers, expel worms, allay teething pains and promote healthful sleep. They are guaranteed to be free from injurious drugs and are safe even for the youngest and most delicate child. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

INSTITUTE HEARS SPLENDID PAPERS

Report of District Convention Is Also Interesting and Instructive.

ROSENEATH, Nov. 12.—The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. George Ingham, and was extra well attended and an excellent programme was given. The President, Mrs. Lottie Nichol, who opened the meeting with the singing of the "Maple Leaf," the minutes of the October meeting were read and adopted as read.

Communications were read by the secretary and left for consideration until December meeting.

An excellent paper was given by Mrs. James A. Brown on Thanksgiving Dinner. Following Mrs. Brown's paper was a splendid paper given by Mrs. Reg. Crego entitled "Living a life is more than making a living."

Mrs. C. W. Varcoe, who attended the Women's Institute Convention, held at Belleville read a most interesting and pleasing report and it wsa evident by her lengthy report that Mrs. Varcoe took notes of all the business and social transactions of each meeting.

The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the hostess and to Mrs. Varcoe for conveying many good schemes to help the Institute workers. A delicious lunch was served.

The December meeting will be held at Mrs. Robert Mouncey's home in the village. Lunch committee: Mrs. L. Sherwin, Mrs. T. Sandercock, Mrs. J. A. Nichol and Miss Jessie J. Johnston. Programme committee: Mrs. Lily Turner and Miss Johnston.

RAILROA DSUES FOR 92-CENT FARE

By NEA Service

MONTVALE, N.J., Nov. 12.—"I left my purse at home", said Miss Cora Campbell when an Erie railroad conductor tried to collect 92 cents of her fare. So she gave her name and address to the conductor and promised to send the money.

But Miss Campbell forgot all about her trifling debt, and now the railroad has brought suit for collection. It will spend many times the amount of the fare in pressing its case, but even then will save several hundred dollars. For, the road's attorneys explain, the Interstate Commerce Law compels payment for all rides and the Erie is subject to $1000 fine if the fare is not paid.

While hunting near Narromine, Australia, recently, a boy shot a rabbit, and the rifle ball pierced the animal's body, then struck a log, rebounded and landed in the face of a young companion, who had to be taken to a hospital for its removal.

Shop Early Pleasures

Of course, there is no question about it, there is a "sweet reasonableness" about shopping early. The trouble with most of us is that we do not want to be reasonable.

It is so much more fun to dash off on an impulse and charge madly into a store, and there, we some way expect to find that ours is the only impulse of its kind, and rows of clerks will be awaiting us, and be only too glad to turn over their entire stock of goods, to find us that exact trifle we just must have.

And yet, and yet—what a sad shock it is to find that it isn't even easy to charge into a store because so many others are dashing for the same spot.

Make Shopping Harder.

And when we have elbowed our way to a weary floor man, and ascertained the location of the said holiday box (it might be that, you know), and found the location several aisles down and turn to the right and found the very counter, and waited in line for a clerk's attention—"Busy, madame," say they all, and finally are offered the clerk's services—why then, of course, we find that very large boxes are numerous, or long thin ones, or very small ones, and all the medium size ones are gone.

"Well—you could have figured out what boxes you needed long ago, and then you could have journeyed into the said shop and have had undivided attention of the clerk, and many, many boxes from which to choose, and a fair chance to get them home without their being smashed on the way."

Consider Your Conscience.

Thus does conscience shake a reproving finger at us.

The moral is, as the Duchess, in Alice in Wonderland would say, "The more there is of mine, the less there is of yours."

And since some of us have to shop late—because our money just isn't available earlier, and it's the best we can do, why those of us who can—well, you can point your own moral.

It is a well-known fact that thirty or forty years ago, late shopping was so common that clerks and all store folks just hated Christmas. It was to them a terrible nightmare. They felt entitled to two weeks in a sanitarium after it was all over—and some way, there never was any allowance for that, you know.

Be Kind to the Clerks.

And then people got together and said—"Why, if there is any such thing as a Christmas spirit, we ought to pass it around. The clerks would like to enjoy Christmas as much as we would. And instead of sending them all to bed Christmas Day, in a state of nervous prostration, just let's plan a little better." The result is the annual "Shop Early" campaign. Goodness knows we all can stand being reminded.

In the story of Kim, there is an old llama or priest, who permitted people "to acquire merit" by feeding him. As if the Guardian Angel were chalking up good marks to your credit.

So when you start in November and finish all your shopping early in December and mail all your packages before the 15th of that month—why then you will, indeed, have "acquired merit." The Guardian Angel will chalk up whole rows of marks to your credit, the clerks will call down blessings on your name and the good folks in the post office will erect a bronze tablet in your memory.

Rewards for Early Shoppers.

In fact, special services should be held somewhere, some time over a memorial, "To the Unknown Citizen who always finished his shopping early." Were such a memorial erected, it would be covered with wreaths of holly from grateful people who had journeyed from far to lay thereon a token of their regard.

HE RAISES WORMS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—As a worm farmer, Richard Rowden makes a good income, and he does not sell his crop to President Coolidge either. His worms are bought by student zoologists who use them for dissection experiments. Rowden goes to an open field at night with a flashlight and catches a pailful of angle worms. By selling them at the rate of 15 for 20 cents, he makes a good day's wages.

INHALES GAS FOR FUN.

BERLIN, Nov. 12.—Otto Omikron is probably the only man on earth who can inhale deadly gas without injury to himself. He can inhale 1465 cubic inches—enough to kill an ordinary man—without even getting a headache. His strange power was discovered when he slept through the night in a gas-filled room and a dog in the same room was asphyxiated.

Harry Buss's Back bothered him for over 17 years

Then Gin Pills relieved his pain

Harry H. Buss of Egmont, B.C., suffered from a lame back for over 17 years. Every spring he was laid up from work. He tried many remedies, but could not obtain relief. He was advised to try Gin Pills and immediately obtained relief. Read his letter:

TO THE READERS OF THE EXAMINER

A number of girls and women have entered a contest promoted by The Examiner for the gathering of personal and social and general news items in all parts of the town and the field of this newspaper.

We ask for these young folks encouragement and assistance. They will gain in many ways. They will be using part of their time in learning to earn. They will be improving their mental equipment for school work. They will be helping to make The Examiner more "newsy" for ALL its READERS. And they will be paid for what they do, besides having the opportunity, through their industry, to win special weekly prizes.

The average woman, if asked, would say that the Personal and Social news in her home paper commands her first and principal attention. Many of the "men folks" also find it interesting.

But there can be no Personal and Social department without the good-will and co-operation of the readers. The Examiner has long enjoyed this co-operation. We now ask our readers to remember that if they like to read personals, about other folks, they must not object to seeing their own names in print, providing the news is clean and decent—and these contestants will seek no other kind, and they have been particularly instructed not to give offense, not to be too persistent, not to become bothersome.

Many of these contestants will be known to you — perhaps neighbors or the daughters of personal friends. Help them to be successful in this contest. They will gain in education, experience and purse. You will gain in reading a more "newsy" paper.

MISSION BOARD WORKER HEARD

Miss Mitchell Gives Address at Thank Offering Meeting at Lakefield.

TELLS OF NEEDS.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 12.—The regular thank-offering meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Knox United Church was held on Thursday afternoon, November 3rd, with the president, Mrs. F. J. Burgess in the chair. Mrs. T. H. Wesley presided at the piano. There was an attendance of about forty ladies, representing the various women's missionary societies of the village. Rev. and Mrs. H. B. Herrington and a number of Warsaw ladies were present, also. After the regular opening exercises, Mrs. J. R. Hull and Mrs. W. E Renwick sang, "The Perfect Rest" very sweetly.

The speaker of the afternoon was Miss Mitchell, who is the travelling representative of the Toronto Mission Board. Miss Mitchell is a forcible speaker and in a clear concise manner presented the needs of the missionaries and made an appeal for increased funds.

She urged the more extensive use of textbooks which link together the women and children of Canada with those in other lands.

Missions is a world-work, for the command is given, "Go ye into all the world" and we hear "God so loved the world." The speaker was glad to see an increase in missionary zeal for it is a work of first importance. Before the day when church union made three churches one, the mission work in Africa had been largely done by the Congregational church, so that to those who were formerly Methodist or Presbyterian, the field is practically a new one. There are 2500 Christians in Angolia and virtually all of them are tithers. Mission work in Africa is always associated with the name of David Livingstone who gave his life in this cause. China is now in a most unhappy position, but while the missionaries are driven out there are still many Christians who are not forsaking their new faith. A Christian Chinese general, won by the spirit of Christ, has been a strong factor in the trouble which is racking China today, and he and his Christian soldiers are setting an example to all the rest of good behaviour to their foes, and in making a sincere effort for better things.

India is progressing favorably and Dr. Endicott was tremendously impressed by the great jubilee celebration held there during his visit, when a vast assemblage took communion together in the open air.

In Japan there is progress but there, as elsewhere, there are so many requirements and the funds are inadequate and the Board has to cut down the requests of the missionaries. The same is true of the work in Korea. The missionaries told fascinating stories of the work and Dr. Florence Murray, a medical missionary, who spent six years there, made a stirring appeal as the work is so big and the missionaries are so under-staffed and are almost without equipment. Miss McKecheran, who has been a faithful worker is ill, and is in Canada on enforced furlough, and even in her weakness she sent an appeal to the Board for increased funds.

Dr. Endicott says that when he returns he wants a big cheque book and unlimited funds behind, so that when the missionaries ask for money and necessaries for their work he can give them an adequate cheque.

The problem of the foreign field is not the closed door or the language difficulty, but the average professing inconsistent Christian.

Then there are the home problems. Before the war three million people came into Canada and they have been coming ever since and many of them are of non-British stock. The new Canadians need a Christian education. Education without the religious instruction makes these people godless and undesirable. The speaker met a Russian in Northern Ontario, who was acting as interpreter in the lumber camps, and who greatly desired an appointment as court interpreter, as he was complete master of seven languages and appeared a most interesting man. She was told afterwards that he had broken every law in the land and couldn't be caught. There is education without Christianity. In Northern Ontario the work in the hospitals is interesting and of greatest importance. There is a mission hospital in Pine River, Manitoba, a lonely foreign settlement, where Miss Walker gave years of her life as a medical missionary and finally died of diptheria which she contracted in nursing a family through the disease.

Those who are giving their lives in the outposts are doing big things in making Canada Christian.

Then there is the logging Mission, important and one fraught with hazards, and one where the men are in constant danger. The same may be said of the mines where the blowing of whistles and ringing of bells means a mine disaster and means anxious women and children and work of a strenuous nature for the missionary.

Then, too, there is the educational work among the foreign children, and the strangers' work, which is vitally important, and too often is undertaken without a proper sense of the responsibility involved.

Miss Mitchell concluded with an earnest appeal for greater giving to the missionary cause. Some say that their allocation is paid, but as our love is so will we give. We need a greater sense of personal responsibility.

Mrs. Porter and Mrs. Wesley moved a hearty vote of thanks to Miss Mitchell for her address.

Mrs. Wesley made an appeal for the Poppy Day and Armistice Day, urging all the women to buy one of the poppies, which are made by disabled soldiers. We can honor the dead by helping the living.

Mrs. J. H. Moore urged that on Armistice day the women would leave donations of fruit and pickles for the soldiers' home. Mrs. W. J. Charlton seconded the motion.

Mrs. J. R. Hull sang very acceptably, "Hold Thou My Hand, Dear Lord."

Afternoon tea was served by the ladies of Knox Church.

WANT HALF DOLLARS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Nearly 600,000 50-cent pieces were coined last month in the mints at Philadelphia, Denver and San Francisco, and the demand is still running ahead of the supply. Officials have been unable to account for the sudden demand, except that no half-dollars were made from 1924 to 1926.

Sir Phillip Sassoon, Under Secretary of Air for Great Britain, with three American Assistant Secretaries for Air, were to have been passengers on the U. S. navy dirigible "Los Angeles" when it made a cruise to Ottawa, Canada, on October 29, but it was called off. Inset, Sir Phillip Sassoon.

VISITOR PREACHES SPLENDID SERMONS

Rev. J. E. Griffith is Speaker at Omemee United Church.

OMEMEE, Nov. 12.—The Sunday services at Trinity United church were marked by large congregations, both morning and evening. Rev. J. E. Griffith, of Blackstock, a former pastor on the Bethel and Reaboro charge was the speaker, and in the evening the seating capacity was taxed to the limit with friends from many miles distant, all of whom were delighted with his messages. In the morning, the Rev. Mr. Griffith directed his thoughts toward the older folk, taking his text from the words found in St. Mark 4: 27-28—"And should sleep, and rise night and day and the seed should spring and grow up, he knoweth not how. For the earth bringeth forth fruit of herself: first the blade, then the ear, after that the full corn in the ear."

He likened the seed to the changes in one's life from childhood to youth, and thence to manhood or womanhood, and endeavored to impress upon the parents their duty toward their children. This requires sacrifice oftentimes, but a life of sacrificial service is the life that lives forever. Jesus Christ came to reveal the law of sacrificial service that we might reproduce this life even though it means a life of sacrifice.

Two anthems were rendered by the choir appropriate to Thanksgiving—"I will Magnify Thee" and "O For a Thousand Tongues to Sing."

The evening text was found in St. Matthew 7:14, "Because straight is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it." Mr. Griffith spoke to those who are young, dealing with the narrow and the broad way.

A pretty duet entitled "Souls of Men" was rendered by Miss Lila Parsons and Mr. J. L. Brooks, and a vocal solo, "Open the Gates of the Temple" was rendered by Miss Mary Lowe in good style, and an anthem "Ye Morning Winds" by the choir with solo by Mrs. C. R. Corneil were the musical numbers at the evening service.

The decorations consisted of chrysanthemums, maple leaves, flags and other flowering plants, and were very attractively arranged.

On Monday evening the ladies of the church held their annual Fowl Supper, when between five and six hundred people were served with an abundance of fowl, hot potatoes and gravy, salads, pickles and all other things that go to make up an appetizing dinner. After all were served, a short program was presented in the body of the church. Rev. E. W. Rowland acted as chairman. The proceeds of the evening amounted to about $275.

The following is the program:

MARKET FOR HARDWOOD FLOORING IN BRISTOL

Canadian producers of hardwood flooring are not receiving their fair share of the hardwood flooring trade in the West of England for the simple reason that their product is not being pushed, writes Trade Commissioner Douglas S. Cole, Bristol, in the forthcoming issue of the Commercial Intelligence Journal. Recent investigations indicate that in the case of maple flooring architects usually specify Michigan maple in the belief that it is the best quality and hardest maple. If Canadian manufacturers desire to get a greater share of the West of England trade it will be necessary for them to send samples to architects or obtain the services of a suitable man to interest the architects and get them to specify Canadian maple for buildings which are being put up under their supervision. The recent building boom has provided an opportunity that has not been utilized. The market is at present limited to public office and industrial buildings, and the better class of private dwellings. Sentiment for Empire products is strong in the West of England, but quality and price must be right.

BASKET SOCIAL.

Excellent Programme Given at Gathering at Enterprise School.

PONTYPOOL, Nov. 12.—The basket social held at Enterprise school on Friday evening, November 4th, was a huge success. The school was nicely decorated with yellow and black streamers and flags. The programme:

Community singing—'Maple Leaf.'
Chairman's address— Mr. J. Moffatt.
School chorus—Enterprise school.
Recitation—Miss Gladys Ard (pupil)
Recitation— Miss Marguerite Millson, or Orono.
Solo — Miss Anna Hawthorne (teacher).
Play, "Scheme That Failed"— By six pupils: Mr. Paul Jennings, Albert Randal; Mrs. Paul Jennings, Jean Ramsberry; Victor Craven, Gordon Moffatt; Mrs. Craven, Maude Grice. Fanny Jennings, Doris Moffat; Bridget, Muriel Fiske.

The Plot—Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jennings living in New York, have Bridget as a servant in their apartments. Miss Fanny Jennings pays a visit to the home of her brother. Upon her arrival she hears that Paul Jennings expects company and Fanny will start for home unless he permits her brother to let her act as a waiting maid. After much persuasion Paul consents and each find themselves in a dilemna. Upon the arrival of the company Mrs. Craven and her son Victor from New York, Fanny discovers that her fiance, Victor Craven, is in the home of Paul Jennings and trys to avoid having any conversation with him. Through the tact and engenuity of each of the actors the plan of impersonating what you are not is found out and everything comes out fine in the end.

After the programme the sale of baskets was the next, Mr. Charley Taylor acting as auctioneer. A two pound box of chocolates was the prize given for the chap paying the highest price for a basket, price being $4.25, the basket belonging to Miss Anna Hawthorne. Total receipts amounted to $56. The Entertainment was concluded by a dance.

WORK IN WEST IS DESCRIBED

One of Sunday School Caravan Workers Tells of Methods.

IN ISOLATED DISTRICTS.

In St. John's Parish Hall on Wednesday evening Miss I. Sayle gave a very interesting illustrated talk on the caravan work which has been carried on for the last few years under the direction of Miss Hasell and the joint auspices of the G.B.R.E' and M.S.C.C. of the Church of England in Canada. Arrangements were made for this address by Rev. Dr. Blagrave and opportunity was offered to all Anglicans to share in its inspiration. Following is a very brief account of the method of Caravan work as outlined by Miss Sayle:

In the vast Prairie Provinces and amid the mountains and lakes of British Columbia this year there might have been seen eight grey Ford caravans with "Sunday School Mission, Anglican Church" printed on the side.

Those caravans were a living witness of the church, for they were travelling for the most part in some of the very lonely parts of the huge western dioceses.

In 1920 Miss Eva Hasell, who was training Sunday School teachers in the Diocese of Carlisle in the north of England, heard from two friends who were living in a shack on the prairie, and driving round trying to start Sunday schools, of the ignorance of many of the children of the West as regards Bible and Church teaching. The clergy had such huge districts—many had to go eighty miles on a Sunday and take four services—that they had no time to teach the children; there was no Bible teaching in the public schools, and the continual struggle in the homes to make ends meet seemed to leave no time for spiritual things.

Then it was that Miss Hasell conceived the idea of a motor caravan (for during the War she had both driven and nursed for the Red Cross) in which the workers could sleep, camping wherever they were when night came on. The Bishop of Qu'Appelle was the first to receive Miss Hasell, who came provided with a companion and a motor van at her own expense. The method of work is as follows:

The caravan is sent to the most lonely and isolated sections. If a school is available, it is used to instruct the young in the life of Christ with the assistance of large Bible pictures Then the visitors call at all the homes in the district and talk with the mothers. Where there are enough children a Sunday School is started, but if there are not enough the individual families are put on the list of the Sunday School by Post, which lessons are sent to the children, also answers to questions returned to a diocesan secretary. Services and Sunday Schools are also carried on by the caravaners (after one year's experience several western Bishops asked for caravan workers, so that Miss Hasell had to make an appeal in Canada and in England to supply the need. None of the workers receive any salary and only part of their travelling expenses. Last summer there were eight vans with sixteen girls carrying on the work in the Western Provinces. Each van has an expert driver and mechanic, a girl, and also a trained teacher. Some of these are Canadians, but most of them are from the Old Land. The need of the work was shown by the following illustrations:

Children of 15 years of age are found in isolated districts wno never had any Christian teaching and know nothing of how to teach their children. One woman this year at Kootenary Lake, where the C.P.R. steamer calls once a week at 1.30 a.m., said the only Bible teaching she ever had was once during three months when her father went to work in a lumber camp and she visited friends where there was a Sunday School. Children were found who only know the name of Jesus through profanity. In some districts in Kootenay Diocese, whole sections were being taught by Bolshevists that there was no God, but that He was invented by the bosses to keep the people in obedience. For this purpose they are being supplied with Bolshevist papers from Toronto, which is all the reading they have.

During the winter months Miss Hasell and Miss Sayle are lecturing in England to raise funds to carry on the work. Next summer they are to go to Caledonia Diocese, north of Prince Rupert. During the last two summers in Kootenay Diocese, they organized 40 Sunday Schools, got 2,417 children in Sunday School by post, and visited 1,600 homes. Miss Hasell has written a brook "Through Western Canada in a Caravan."

RATS IN TREASURY.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Sharpshooters are on duty every night protecting the United State Treasury building from an invasion of rats. The rodents are coming from buildings being torn down, and a swarm of cockroaches is trailing them. The insects have been successfully gassed, but the rats are proving a real problem.

Girls, Earn Money

During Your Spare Time!

Personal and social news is the greatest asset any newspaper can have. It has the greatest reader interest and pleases the greatest number of people. Besides being of interest as reading matter, it serves many good purposes. To the sick it brings messages, flowers, and good wishes. Among holiday-makers it lets their friends know they are away, and oftentimes saves time and inconvenience.

The Examiner is known even among the progressive daily newspapers of Ontario for the amount of local news it carries every day, but The Examiner wants more personal and social news.

A limited number of girls and women are invited to participate in a contest in reporting for The Examiner such items as personals, general news about persons, social events, and so forth. There is NO LIMIT to the amount of space The Examiner will devote to this feature.

The regular space rate for all published news will be paid. Considering the carte blanche the reporter has, this space rate is higher than the rate paid by most city newspapers for their correspondence.

And in Addition

there will be a prize of $2.00 every week for the next eight weeks, awarded the person sending in the most usable news, and a grand prize of $10.00 for the person sending in the most usable news before December 17. This will come in handy for Christmas. Other prizes will be announced later.

Contestants must be at least sixteen years of age. Readers of The Examiner will be allowed to send in their own contributions and have them credited to their favorite contestant.

Note that too many contestants cannot work efficiently, so get in your application early. The city editor reserves the right to limit the number of contestants, and choose the applicants who seem best fitted.

All who register and are accepted will be given instructions and helpful tips, and furnished with paper and other supplies. Everyone will be paid the regular space rates, and the prizes are additional awards.

Readers of The Examiner are asked to co-operate in making this newspaper more newsy and in encouraging the contestants to get this valuable training. All contestants will be cautioned not to publish personal matters when requested not to do so, and against giving offence in any way. Readers are reminded, however, that if they enjoy reading the personal news, they should be willing to contribute to it.

The Contest Starts on November 12th

OFFICERS OF THE C.E.F. RECALL

The Dinner, he said, was not put on by any particular unit, but was a Garrison affair arranged by a committee on which were representatives of all units.

A Wonderful Comradeship.

Major the Venerable Archdeacon J. C. Davidson, in rising to propose the toast to "Absent Comrades," addressed the company as "Comrades of Bygone Days," and expressed appreciation of the opportunity to come back to share the comradeship of the Army. "It has a flavor all its own," he declared. "It is a warm comradeship, a solid comradeship, lasting and enduring. It is a wonderful comradeship, and why shouldn't it be? Look how it was built up. We've enjoyed it in the iron discipline of the drill hall down here and in the cosiness of the mess room here; in the march on the streets and in camp; on the trains in the old days when we were carrying Peterborough's young manhood to capture some defenceless town in a comradely visit; down at Barriefield common and on the steamer at Shorncliffe; and amid the unforgettable scenes of France. Why shouldn't it be a wonderful comradeship—as it is?

"It is great to get back to meet the men who are carrying on in the face of obstacles far greater than any we ever had to meet." To the Mayor Major Davidson remarked that he hoped the people of Peterborough will get behind Colonel Hall and the officers commanding the other units and help in recruiting the units quite up to strength. "I believe it is well worth while for the young manhood of Peterborough, for the fostering among the people of the spirit of loyalty and patriotism— keeping it alive and vigorous, and for keeping up the unity of the whole community."

Remarking that he has seen throughout the country a great community movement, fostered by all kinds of agencies, the speaker declared this militia organization to be chief "It enlists men from all the churches, all political parties, and all ranks of the population. They come together and are welded in the splendid service of the community and of the King and of their country.

"There's a tradition in the Army that we should speak softly and little about the sacrifices of those who die in the country's service, however much we feel, and that is why I approach the subject of my toast in this roundabout way. But there's a wider comradeship than that we can see. You felt it; you know it. It's the comradeship of your friends in arms, an invisible comradeship with those we left behind. They are comrades yet, those who have gone over the eternal hills, and our comradeship is evidenced to-day throughout the Empire and the world in thought, silence and prayer. With these men, whose names will come to all our thoughts to-night, we hold companionship and fellowship; we respect and revere their memories."

They Will Live On.

In France, Major Davidson said, it had been borne in upon him what wonderful courage men had when obeying the last bugle call. He never heard a whimper from them, however grievously wounded they were. When he kneeled by a stretcher and asked what message he could send home for a dying man the answer would be: "Give them my love. Tell them not to worry. It 's all right. Everything is all right." "That was the almost invariable message from those men, sustained by an invisible power.

"When I last saw the crosses in France I thought of the envy I had for the men whose names were written there. Those men, when we are gone, will live. Their lives and their magnificent sacrifices will inspire others; these men, when our voices are hushed, will speak in trumpet calls, and theire message will be 'Carry on!'"

It was an unforgettable moment as the company stood to honor the toast, with the thought fresh upon them of Canada's thousands of dead. And anew they pledged the faith expressed in John McCrae's "The Anxious Dead":

"Tell them, O guns, that we have heard their call,
That we have sworn, and will not turn aside,
That we will onward till we win or fail,
That we will keep the faith for which they died."

The British Empire.

"It is a colossal task that is given me to-night," said Captain J. A. Dewart, M.C., in his toast to "The British Empire." "You can trace through the pages of history many noteworthy empires— the Egyptian, the Macedonian, the Greek and the Roman Empires— which reached a pinnacle of success and expansion and then, through decadence, fell, but the British Empire has made and maintained for itself a dominant place in the world, and is going to maintain that place for many centuries to come."

Captain Dewart remarked on the fact that a small island should have achieved so greatly. "There must be qualities inherent in the British people that make such achievements possible," he declared. There were outstanding periods in British history—such as the Elizabethan, when Drake defeated the proud Spanish Armada, the Napoleonic era when a tyrwant attempted to impose his will on all the civilized world and but for Britain would have done so. William Pitt, probably the greatest of all British statesmen, sent Wolfe to Canada and Clive to India and added continents to the British crown. "But it is not enough for a nation to get large territories under her flag," the speaker said. "It remains to keep those countries. The history of the British Empire shows what steps were taken to give good government in India. As for Canada, we know what a firm hold the British Empire has on us to-day, obtained by laying a firm foundation. The British Empire is built on an ideal greater than any force of arms—justice, liberty, equality and freedom. (Applause.) Britain gave to her colonies and to conquered nations that wonderful code, the British law, which assures liberty and freedom to all.

"There is no grander example in the world of great colonial policies than in South Africa. When statesmen formulated a plan for self-government in South Africa, Britain put responsibility for that government up to Botha and Smutts. In fourteen short years the call to arms came to all the dominions from the motherland, and South Africa took up arms in comradeship with Canada and Australia and New Zealand. General Smutts, an avowed enemy of England fourteen years before, led the British forces in Africa to splendid victories and gave the benefit of his advice to the British forces throughout the war.

"One of the reasons for the solidarity of the British Empire is that we have one common head—the King. To his throne come people from all parts of the British Empire to pay tribute, and let me tell you that to-day the King and the Royal Family are very close to the hearts of the people of the British Empire."

Captain J. H. Burnham.

Expressing appreciation of the quiet dignity and pathos of Major Davidson's address, and the stirring tone of Captain Dewart's toast, Captain Burnham responded to the toast to "The British Empire" by revealing secrets of war days which even at this late day could not, he said, be published. He told of his visit to the front in 1916, and of his work to recruit men to fill the gaps of the Canadian forces; he lauded the strength of the commander of the Canadian Corps, and bewailed the weakness of some politicians who failed to provide the support required for the successful carrying on of the war. Once again he gave the pledge to "The Immortal British Empire."

The Expeditionary Forces.

Major G. G. Winterbottom, M.C., D.C.M., proposed the toast to "The Canadian Expeditionary Forces." He was greeted with cheers and the singing of "See Him Smiling.' '

In responding, Captain the Rev. P. Costello declared this toast to be next in importance to that to "The British Empire." "The reason we went over there, and the reason so many of us were left over there was because of the British Empire," he said. "There were 623,000 men in the Canadian Expeditionary Forces, of whom 300,000 got to France. It doesn't matter whether they enlisted voluntarily or by conscription, they stood ready to defend Canada and the British Empire. They were Canada's sons, the very best Canada had to defend theis country; brave fellows who possessed real determination; men of pleasant and gentle character— as Shakespeare said, 'He was gentle and the elements so mixed in him that nature might rise up and say of him, "He was a man." 'I don't care what color religion he was—I can say of every Canadian soldier, 'He was a man.'

"I never feel so much at home as among a crowd of Canadian soldiers. I know your hearts and souls are centred in the interests of our fellow men.

"What did the Canadian Expeditionary Force do? I might say, if I erred, that the C.E.F. won every battle it went into; or I might point to the 22,000 crosses standing near Poperinghe; you know sufficient of Vimy Ridge. What I would say is this, they stood as a man to defend the British Empire, and I, if the opportunity came again, would want to be among you to defend the Empire. Taht is not a superficial statement. There is not an Empire in the world that stands for freedom as does the British Empire. This great confederation of nations stands for justice and fair play. That is my reason for so highly respecting her, and doing my bit during the war.

The C.E.F.did its bit for the Empire, not because we hated more our enemies, but because of our intense love of the British Empire. In the Army there was a spirit that pertained to no other place. Every man was a brother to his comrade. I wish that spirit would continue in our civil life, that spirit of brave patriotism, of brotherly love. We should do everything possible to cultivate that spirit. Let the men who made up the C.E.F. have placed before young Canada today these great ideals, that they may look up to the spirit of loyalty, of bravery, of endurance, that existed during the war."

Captain Costello paid tribute to the nurses who served overseas. He expressed the hope that the Armistice dinner would continue year after year "as a symbol that we have not forgotten, and are still ready." He lauded the Canadian Legion and its work, and urged all ex-service men to link themselves with this organization which is endeavoring to perpetuate the spirit of war comradeship.

"Armistice Day is a great day of thanksgiving," Captain Costello declared, "and we should agitate that Canada's Thanksgiving Day shall be held on Armistice Day. (Applause). If Canada has anything to be thankful for, it is that Canada was enabled to take so active a part in the defence of the Empire, and for her sons who served so well, and so Canada's Thanksgiving should be this anniversary, Armistice Day."

Musical Program.

In intervals between toasts there was a splendid musical program, provided by members of the units, with John Crane as accompanist.

Lieut. W. H. Peryer sang "Paradise for Two," from "Maid of the Mountains," which was remembered by many as the play they saw in London when on leave from France. Major M. H. Park sang "Draw the Sword, Scotland," with "O Sole Mio" as an encore, and Captain D. G. H. Melton sang "Jolly Country Lads Are We." Colonel Miller recited "Glencoe."

CONCERT GIVEN BY CALEDONIANS

Club Choir Gives Number of Fine Selections at Armistice Meeting.

WELL RECEIVED.

It was truly a "braw nicht" at the W.O.W. Hall last evening, when the Caledonian Club Choir put on a very excellent entertainment.

Robert French, choir president, acted as chairman, and in his opening remarks referred to the date, November 11th, as being one of the most memorable in history, calling for a short silence in memory of those who fell in the Great War.

An impressive and exceedingly appropriate number followed, "The Angelus," sung with a fine sympathy and splendid effect. The choir was undoubtedly at its best in this selection.

Bishop's "Sleep, Gentle Lady," in pianissimo, was a very fine effort, also "Hail to the Chief," the latter sung to a swinging rhythm.

The choir, under the capable direction of the energetic and popular leader, A. D. Clark, was well received and loudly applauded for each number.

Great credit is due to Mr. Clark and William Grieve for their courage and enterprise in organizing this choir, about forty in number, which is making good progress, but requires more male voices to balance the other parts.

The prize-winning play, "Box and Cox," was given by a trio of young people from St. Luke's A.Y.P.A., with Cecil Hope directing.

This clever combination captivated the audience with their remarkable presentation of a very funny play.

Then came a duet by Mrs. Jackson and Mr. Grieve, "Somewhere a Voice is Calling," and a solo by Mrs. French, "A Tumbledown Shack in Athlone," both numbers being encored.

Baskets were auctioned off by Robert Gilmour, who made a very genial and humorous auctioneer. A good sum of money was realized for new music for the choir. Miss Emily Hemphill won the prize for the best-dressed basket, and her partner who purchased it was also awarded a prize.

Miss Mary Hemphill made a very efficient accompanist, while Mr. Gilmour provided music for the dancing which followed the programme and sale of baskets.

The singing of "Auld Lang Syne" in true Scottish style brought a very pleasant evening to a close.

Wheat Prices Go Up At Winnipeg To-day

WINNIPEG, Nov. 12.— (Canadian Press.)—Sharp advances in the price of wheat were recorded at the opening of the Winnipeg grain exchange to-day. The bullish tenor of the Canadian Government estimate of wheat production brought about a spontaneous rise with the first transaction of the day, Aided by strong Liverpool cables, values jumped ⅝c. to 2½c., November delivery leading the advance.

Price Changes Small In Active Trading

TORONTO, November 12 (Canadian Press).—Price changes were mostly fractional in a session of active but scattered trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. General firmness was shown despite occasional small recessions and the leader was Canadian Canners Common, which gained two at 82. The Preferred was fractionally higher at 110. British American Oil, the oil leader, firmed an eighth at 36½. Canadian Brewing and McColl were slightly higher, but Gooderham and Worts lost slightly at 58. Walkers was the most active stock on the whole board, but it closed unchanged at 58. Fractional recessions occurred in International Petroleum, Imperial Oil, and Canada Cement. Brompton, F. N. Burt, Industrial Alcohol, and International Nickel in the regular list all strengthened fractionally.

TRAPPED

The one-act play entitled "Trapped," which won second prize in the recent one-act play contest conducted by the Kiwanis Club during their Fair week, was presented last night under the auspices of the Keo Club, of which Mr. A. V. Lillow is leader, in the auditorium of George Street Church Sunday School, before a large and appreciative audience, also a pleasing concert of musical numbers

The play is cleverly worked out by the small cast of talented actors, all of whom take their parts excellently. It portrays the trials of a swindling gentleman who embezzles his ward's fortune and then tries to prevent her from marrying, because of the accounting which will be demanded on the day of her wedding. He inveigles her lover into his house and then pretends to suicide, planning later to depart without making any return of his wealth. How a curious twist of circumstances foils his plans and assists the lovers is cleverly told in the miniature drama

Parts are taken by Homer Borland, as Colton, the lover; Harold Baker enacting the part of the villain, Waring; Albert Hutchinson, as a friend of Colton, and Cecil Wasson and Russell Lewis as the Police Force.

The concert which preceded the presentation of the play included a very pretty Armistice Day tableau, representing the four arms of the active service in war time Miss Daisy Murray took the part of Britannia, singing "Land of Hope and Glory," Mrs. Homer Borland was a Nurse; Keith White an aviator; Russel Lewis, a soldier, and Milton Clysdale, a sailor Homer Borland recited the poem "In Flanders' Fields" during the presentation of this tableau

Other numbers on the programme included renditions by the Hawaiian Glee Club; piano solos by Miss Marthe Baumer; a guitar duet by the Misses B. Dawson and Mildred Trethewey, and song by Mr. G. D. Carlisle

DIVING GOOD IN Y. W. POOL

Pupils Score High Points in Swimming Meet Last Night.

The swimming meet at the Y.W.C.A. last evening was well attended by both spectators and swimmers and most favorable comments were passed on the excellent water sports promoted by the Y.W.C.A.

The diving last evening was especially good, the following pupils receiving high points: Viola Harvey, Ina Terrace Margaret Dunlop, Jeannette Allin, Marion Harvey and Mary Kingsbury.

Races were keenly contested and proved exciting for all. Some of the special stunt work by the seniors was especially good. Several new and difficult stunts were practiced by the swimmers for the big closing swimming exhibition which will be held next Friday at 8 o'clock. This exhibition will be a revelation of strength to endure and of ability to play, to perform difficult stunts and to take care of oneself in the water, and of others in danger.

Last evening three small pupils under 8 years of age went through a practice of difficult work in preparation for the Babies championship contest to be held next week.

The girls are all keenly interested in the numerous trophies and prizes being awarded and are looking forward eagerly to next week's exhibition.

W. A. APPOINTS NEW SECRETARY

Mrs. J. Huxley Takes Post in St. George's Mission Work.

The Senior branch of the W. A. of St. George's Church met with a good attendance at the rectory on Thursday afternoon for their monthly meeting. After the hymn, the opening devotional execises were taken by the president, Mrs. Brown, and the Scripture portion was read by Mrs. Hughes. An interesting missionary story was much enjoyed, Mrs. Malsch being the reader.

The rector Rev. J. L. Hughes appealed for a new secretary for the Little Helpers in place of the late Mrs. Williams who had worked so cabably and whose death was a severe loss to the society and congregation. Mrs. J. Huxley was elected to the position.

After the serving of refreshments the meeting closed with hymn and prayer.

BOYS ENTERTAIN GIRLS OF SCHOOL

Banquet at St. George's Last Night is a Great Success.

The Senior Boys' Class of St. George's Sunday School, under the leadership of their teacher, Mr. Tucker, entertained the senior girls with their teacher, Mrs. Andrews, at a banquet held in the church basement last evening. The boys had a busy time before the event making the necessary preparations, and by 6.30 the well filled tables presented a pleasing sight, with good things many and varied.

Everyone did full justice to the sumptuous meal, the boys carrying out the duties as waiters, being assisted by Mrs. Tucker and Mrs. James Howard.

Clarence Hopkins, in a brief speech, welcomed the guests, and Chrissie Milby proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the boys and their teacher, which was seconded by Phyllis Simmons. Mrs. Andrews supported the feelings of the girls, and Rev. J. L. Hughes spoke in high terms of the work in the Sunday school, and urged the scholars to give the teachers their best interest and attention at all times.

Musical honors followed, then community singing, led by the Rector, after which games brought a happy evening to a close.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

JAPANESE 'Y' INDEPENDENT

Official Tells Boys of Local Branch About Work Across Pacific.

TRACES GROWTH.

In an address before the largest meeting in the history of the Y.M.-C.A. Friday Night Club, H. S. Sneyd, secretary of the Y.M.C.A. in Japan, sketched a vivid picture of the activities of the "Y" in Japan and by means of slides graphically explained certain of the more interesting scenes, customs and mannerisms of the people of that fast developing nation.

He was introduced by J. Wearing, a friend of twenty-five years' standing. Preceding the speech of the evening, a short musical program was conducted. E. Vernon Morphet was soloist and also gave a darkey recitation, both of which numbers were received with evident delight.

Plunging into his subject at once, Mr. Sneyd said: "This Y.M.C.A. is a great thing. It is wonderful that an institution like this can get together men of diverse nationalities and have them sit down at a round-table conference and discuss their problems in an endeavor to bring about a spirit of mutual understanding and friendship."

He carried his auditors back to the days when the "Y" was in its incipient days and following through with its expansion until today, with all its splendid ramifications, it constitutes one of the greatest brotherhoods the world has ever known In all there are thirty-seven nations represented and linked together by the high thoughts of the best and noblest minds of these countries

The money raised to promote the "Y" is representative of goodwill to the countries thus aided

The subject of Japan was almost too large to summarize First, however, he told of his first impressions and experiences upon settling in that country Throughout the Anglo-Saxon peoples there is an inbred inhibition against races of other colors The speaker thought that this natural feeling had long since disappeared and especially in his mind, but he found that it took him some time to treat those of the Orient as on the same plane with himself To one who has been brought up from infancy in close communion with these people, no such racial distinction remains or indeed appears.

If there are to be any more wars, Mr. Sneyd expressed the opinion that they would be the direct outcome of race prejudice. The only way of overcoming this menacing problem is to get closer together with those whom each terms as aliens. The youth of today will lead the world in the near future, and much of its welfare and amity depends on them.

A hurried outline was given of the awakening spirit of younger Japan. There is a distinct longing for enlightenment and a desire to get away from the old order of things. In this great transition of mind-broadening and a striving to break away from the age-long traditions of the past, the way was opened for the Y.M.C.A. to step in, he said. and guide them away from the corrupting influence of bolshevism, socialism and other insidious and fallacious doctrines into the light of right thought and to provide means of an uplifting of vision to the nobler things of this modern and material era.

Referring to the 'Y' in Japan several surprising and not commonly known statements were brought to the attention of those present. The 'Y' over there is now self-supporting. Most of the personnel is Japanese and the entire management of the 'Y' is under the head of Japanese officials. The crying need to-day is for true-hearted Christian men to go to Japan and work there as "Ambassadors of Friendship."

A simultaneous burst of applause greeted the concluding statements of this masterly address delivered with great sincerity by a man who "practices what he preaches," and has been endowed by a kindly nature with great gifts of eloquence and yet simplicity of language which is able to carry its intended message to one's inmost soul.

The remarks accompanying the slides which followed disclosed some almost unbelievable facts. Japan, as is known, has admirable sources of electricity. Demonstrative of the progress which is being made along the lines of modern electrical equipment is the fact that one of the finest hydro plants in the world is situated in Japan and practically every home is electrically lighted.

One of the wonders of Japan is the prolific and beautiful growth of cultivated flowers. Outstanding in this class is the chrysanthemum, a single plant of which was shown at one of the numerous flower shows with 500 blooms on it.

Possibly the most potent evidence of increasing modernism in the commercial life of the island is the gradually disappearing rickshaw as a means of personal transportation. At one time there were in the city of Tokio 50,000 rickshaw men. Now, however, the motor car has almost supplanted them.

SAYS DANGEROUS VARICOSE VEINS CAN BE REDUCED AT HOME

Rub Gently and Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way.

If you or any relative or friends are worried because or varicose veins, or bunches, the best advice that anyone in this world can give you is to ask your druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) and apply night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins. Soon you will notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are of normal size. So penetrating and powerful is Emerald Oil that even Piles are quickly absorbed. Bond's Drug Store, C. M. Moncur, Bert McLeod, McDermid Drug Co., Ltd., and McDermid & Jury sells lots of it.

Melville McNeely, winning the pillow-cases and sheets with ticket No. 62; Mrs. J. Lillicos who won the quilt donated by Mrs. Doxsee, with ticket No 31; and Mrs. Quirk, winning the carpet with ticket No. 24.

AROUND THE CITY.

At 9.25 p.m. yesterday an alarm was turned in from Box No. 8 at the corner of King and George streets. As this is in the business section all the apparatus turned out. On arrival at the scene it was discovered that the alarm was false. Later investigation brought to light the fact that the responsibility for this act lay with two or three young lads.

To-day at 12.21 p.m. a call came from 612 Armour road Overheated pipes seem to have been the cause. There was no damage.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

UNITED CHURCH, ROSENEATH.

ROSENEATH, Nov. 12.—The Harvest Thanksgiving and anniversary services were held in the United Church on Sunday morning and evening. The church was filled to capacity at both services.

Fall flowers and foliage plants were artistically arranged for the decorative scheme.

The special music was extra well rendered under the leadership of Mrs. Lily Turner, organist and choir leader. The anthems at the morning worship, "O Give Thanks Unto the Lord," and "My Help Comes From the Lord," were well sung by the choir; a duet, "Come, Holy Spirit," was beautifully sung by Mrs. Albert Nill, and Mrs. (Rev.) Brown; a male quartette, Messrs. George Ingham, Lewis Roberts, Bruce Ingham and Wilfred Davey, sang that old familiar piece, "In the Harvest Field There is Work to Do."

In the evening the selections by the full choir were, "Thou Wilt Keep Him," and "I Will Extoll Thee, My God and King"; a solo by Mr. Lewis Roberts, entitled "Jesus," was given in a clear strong voice; a ladies' quartette, Mrs. M. Davey, Mrs. Lily Turner, Mrs. A. Nill and Mrs. (Rev.) Brown, sang softly together. "Blessings of the Cross."

Rev. John Blodgett, of Wycliffe College, and a former Roseneath boy, was present and assisted in the service by leading in prayer and reading the first Scripture lesson at both services.

Rev. M. R. Brown, pastor, gave a very pleasing introduction to Rev. A. E. Black of the Metropolitan Church, Toronto, who was the special preacher for the day.

Rev. Black, with his clear easy voice, delivered two excellent and inspiring messages to his huge congregations. In the morning he took his words from Psalm 65, verse 11, "Thou crownest the year with thy goodness." It was a beautiful Thanksgiving sermon. How aptly the text describes our reason for being thankful, keeping a holy, merry-hearted Thanksgiving Day this year. May the whole of our people learn how to praise God for His temporal blessings, and remind ourselves also of our utter dependence upon the Almighty God, or everything we enjoy upon the earth. God Creator and Owner of all the countless sums—His wisdom is infinite, stretching far beyond earthly wisdom, reaching into the boundless infinitude of space and time.

Grant that we may show our thankfulness for and appreciation of peace before God by our lips, and by our lives, so that He, our Father, may be pleased to continue its blessedness to us. Should we not thank God for His continual presence with us, through cloud or sunshine, the giver of every good and every perfect gift, the home-gatherings of families, the bountiful harvest, and the many blessings each one of us receive?

In the evening, Rev. Black spoke from Romans, chapter 14, verse 7, "For none of us liveth to himself and no man dieth to himself."

The strict and silent attention of the large congregation gave evidence that the speaker's words, which dwelled upon democracy, the uplift of humanity, and the building of character, were thoroughly grasped by the listeners, each one taking home with them the duties of true religion and fellowship with God.

The thankoffering for the day amounted to $425.00.

Rev. Brown will take his usual charge next Sabbath: Roseneath in the morning at 11 a. m.; Centenery in the afternoon, and Fenella in the evening. Rev. Brown will also attend Sunday school next Sunday morning, and has an important message of interest on Sunday school activities. He urgently requests all children and adults to be present

ST. ANDREW'S, STIRLING

STIRLING, Nov. 12.—St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church held its Anniversary Service on Sunday, with the Rev. W. A. Cameron, of Toronto, as the preacher at both services. In the morning his discourse was based on the 8th verse of Psalm 72, being of an historical nature. He referred to this being the jubilee anniversary of the Confederation of the various provinces, which made the Dominion of Canada, which extends "from sea to sea and from the river to the ends of the earth." In his remarks he spoke of the founding of the Kildonan Mission in Manitoba by Lord Selkirk; also that of Prince Albert by Rev. James Nesbitt in 1866, the name being after the Prince Consort.

In the evening Mr. Cameron's text was taken from Matt. 10, verse 8—"Freely ye have received, freely give," and from these words the preacher gave an excellent discourse on Thanksgiving which was greatly enjoyed by the large congregation present.

The choir was assisted at both services by members of St. Andrew's Choir, Burnbrae and the service of song was of a high order. Familiar hymns having been selected, the congregation could enter heartily into this part of the service. The service at St. Paul's United Church was withheld in the evening and many from that church were present at St. Andrew's. On Monday night the usual dinner was held and the ladies of the church provided a great amount of good things. The time between six and nine o'clock was taken up in dealing with this part of the program which was decided by all as being the very best.

The social time during the serving of the dinner was in the auditorium of the church. With the Rev. Mr. Reid as chairman the following program was given, Miss Robertson, A.T.C.M., of Orillia having charge of the musical part of it, interspersing the other numbers with an excellent rendering of various organ selections.

Mrs. R. W. Meiklejohn, Misses Gibson and Matthews gave a trio selection; Rev. C. W. Barrett, of St. Paul's United Church spoke; Arthur Duncan sang; Mr. Story of Campbellford sang and had to respond to an encore; Rev. Mr. McKenzie of Burnbrae spoke; Mrs. Meiklejohn and Arthur Duncan sang; Mr. Reid at this stage spoke of those who had assisted in making the anniversary services so successful and thanked them for their help, not only in their presence, but the part they took in the services, also stating that the receipts at the Sunday collections and the dinner tickets sold amounted to nearly $1,000.00. Miss Robertson gave two organ selections.

UNITED CHURCH

WOOLER, Nov. 12.—The Annual Anniversary of the United Church was held on Sunday and Monday.

Sunday morning service at 11 a.m. was conducted by the Rev. D. R. Clare, of Norham. The church was beautifully decorated in the soft pretty shades of Autumn, with the tinted leaves and ferns arranged in baskets, around the altar, with an outer circle of asters in the lavender shades, and the beautiful rays of sun streaming through the windows making it all appear so bright and cheery. The choir sang for their opening anthem, "I love to tell the story" followed by responsive reading of Psalms, one hundred and forty-eight and one hundred and forty-nine. The Rev. Mr. Clare took his text, from 2nd Cor., 5th chapter and 18th verse, giving a very fine address on the message of reconciliation.

After the liberal offering was taken, the choir, sang the second anthem—"Praise Ye Jehovah." In the evening another large congregation assembled to the church, Rev. Dr. Laker of Trenton, was in charge. After reading of the 1st Psalm, the choir sang an anthem, "Sing Praises to God."

Dr. Laker gave an inspiring message from the Book of Daniel, 6th chapter and 10th verse. The closing musical number was an anthem—"Praise the Lord" by the choir.

On Monday evening, a larger crowd than usual gathered for the Thanksgiving dinner, and at five-thirty one hundred and sixty people were seated at the tables in the basement where there were fifty of the younger people were ready to serve. The tables groaned with hot fowl, and everything else that could be prepared to tempt the hungry people. These tables were laden, for four sittings, besides the home committees, making a total of nearly seven hundred being served, showing that it is Thanksgiving dinner that has become famous for a radius of miles.

From six-thirty to nine-thirty, a continuous program was given for the benefit of those that had been served at the first tables and others waiting for the later tables. The Bon-ton five-piece orchestra from Belleville furnished excellent music through out the evening. Mrs. Morden, elocutionalist, of Belleville, was very popular with her selections and encores.

Mrs. Bradley, of Brighton, gave vocal solos, very pleasing to the audience, as did Mr. Cobley, of Trenton.

The Brighton male quartette sang several numbers, with Mrs. Bullis accompanist. Rev. H. B. Neal, on behalf of the Board of Management thanked those who had so heartily assisted in the program, and the ladies who had served the dinner.

REGENT STREET UNITED CHURCH.

LAKEFIELD, November 11. — The anniversary services in the Regent street United church took place on Sunday, with Rev. F. W. Howard of Millbrook in charge. In the morning Mr. Howard took as his theme: "The Church as the Body of Christ," and special music was rendered by the choir, Mrs. H. E. Moore presiding at the organ.

Following the usual custom the evening services in the Baptist church and Knox United church, were waived for the occasion. Rev. W Spencer and Rev. T. M. Wesley assisting at Regent street, and Miss Edna Harrison sang very sweetly "Open the Gates of the Temple," and the choir sang "Praises to the King of Kings," and immediately after the sermon, Mrs. McMillen and Mr. A. B. Burrows rendered "Like as a Hart," very acceptably.

Before announcing his text Mr. Howard spoke of the pleasure he felt in having his brother ministers and their congregations present, for all are treading the same path and the name of the denomination does not signify so much.

The evening sermon was taken from the 19th verse of the 5th chapter of the gospel according to St. Mark, and related to the individual and his relation to Christ. The story is of the demoniac who rushes from the woods to greet our Lord, who casts out the devil which has possessed him and sends him home to testify to his friends. The man desired greatly to follow our Lord and be in His company but our Lord had other plans for him.

Few Christians do not feel, after their conversion, the urge to go out and speak to others, but the more difficult task is often telling one's own family and friends.

When God allows some trouble or misfortune to come, He is preparing us for His greater service.

The demoniac enjoyed liberty from the law of the land and the restrictions of friendship, and when he was delivered from the evil spirits he thought to enjoy the riches of the grace of God, but our Lord at once set him to work.

The joy of the Lord is consequent on service rendered and not on favoritism. He says: "Take My yoke, and learn of Me," a call to service which brings rest to the soul. He says again: "I am among you as one who serveth." Conviction, remorse, and spiritual death follow a lack of heed to His call. The diamond must be cut and the gold refined to bring out the real value. "Will our contribution to His service warrant our sacrifice?" That is the Master's call. "Will you give your to-day for the world's to-morrow? We are sure of the future of the invested life. Shall we gorge as the gluttinous pessimist, or give and live as children of God? Shall we spend or invest our resources."

The board of the church asked for a generous thankoffering and the gratifying sum of $242 was contributed.

On Monday evening a bountiful Thanksgiving dinner was served in the basement of the church under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid, of which Mrs. A. Darling is president. The members of the Ladies' Aid were assisted in serving the dinner by an efficient corps of young girls and young men who attended the wants of the large crowd which thronged the church from five o'clock until nearly 8, the Sunday school orchestra providing music between the tables.

After the dinner a high class concert was given in the auditorium of the church with the pastor, Rev. S. A. Kemp, in the chair.

The program began at 8.05 p.m. and was a remarkably fine one, Peterboro artists giving all the numbers. Miss Elva Nugent is not a stranger to a Lakefield audience, as she probably made her first public appearance in that very church as a young child, who even as a little girl showed a remarkable talent for music. Miss Blanchard, too, is a musician of rare attainments, and the two young ladies won golden opinions from the large audience.

Mr. Arnold Spencer, violinist, is master of his instrument as was evident to the veriest novice amongst the admiring crowd. His selections were among the outstanding features of a most excellent program. Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland was at her best and in her joyous manner captivated both children and adults. She was called on for repeated encores to which she generously responded apparently always having ready just the thing to please her audience.

Every number was good. None was out of keeping with the well balanced program, and the verdict was unanimous that it was one of the finest entertainments ever given at the Thanksgiving celebration, and when one recalls the excellent standard always maintained, this praise is no empty compliment.

The financial receipts for the tea and concert were $24 which was gratifying to all who so faithfully worked to make possible the effort.

The following is the program:

HOW TO FINISH CURTAIN POLES IN POLYCHROME

Curtain poles may be polychromed by giving them two coats of flat wall paint, the second of which has been thickened with a little plaster of Paris, according to Popular Science Monthly. Before it has a chance to dry, tap it with a stencil brush or any other stiff brush to give the surface a rough texture. When this dries, apply a coat of glazing color of some contrasting or harmonizing tint. This may be made from painters' tinting colors ground in oil or in japan and thinned with turpentine. Apply the glazing color irregularly and mottle it with a rag. The colors should harmonize with the draperies.

If a more antique looking polychrome effect is desired, apply powdered rottenstone mixed with turpentine and after a few minutes wipe off the greater part of the powder.

BOAT SEIZURE CAUSES TROUBLE

Photos above show the principals in the latest tangle over the "Verna," formerly the Rosella, which has become internationally famous as a result of last week's trial at Belleville, Ont., in which Dr. Hedley Wellbanks was acquitted on a charge of theft of the boat. On the left is Dr. Hedley Wellbanks, original owner, who seized the boat when it put into a Canadian port after it had been seized by United States customs authorities and sold to the Palmer Fish Co., of Rochester. One the right above is the Verna, more widely known as the Rosella, and below Jack Roblin, who stands on guard declaring that he will not release the boat to Dr. Wellbanks until he receives a court order.

ARMISTICE DAY CELEBRATED IN THIS DISTRICT

Service Held at Town Hall at Millbrook, With Address By Chaplain.

SERVICE AT MADOC.

Cost of War in Men Emphasized By Speakers—Spirit of Sacrifice Commended.

MILLBROOK, November 12. — The community Armistice Day service held in the town hall at 10.45 a.m., on Friday, November 11, was very largely attended, and was both impressive and inspirational in character.

The pupils from the Continuation and Public schools, under their respective teachers marched in a body to the Cenotaph, and then into the hall, the local cadet corps being under the command of Principal B. B. Dawson, C. I.

Rev. Joseph Wilks ably filled the position of chairman, announcing the opening hymn, "Lead Kindly Light," promptly at the hour appointed. Rev. P. C. Howard assistant pastor of Saint Thomas' church, led in prayer and Rev. Jno. Riddell, pastor of Grace Presbyterian church, read the Scripture lesson from Psalm 145, referring in closing to the need of keeping in remembrance John 15: 13: "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friend."

Immediately following the hymn "Nearer my God to Thee," the two minutes silence was observed, a single toll of the bell in the tower marking the opening and conclusion of the period of absolute quiet, after which "The Last Post" was sounded by G. E. Burnham.

Major, the Reverend F. W. Anderson, of Port Hope, who was overseas with the Canadian troops and is now the chaplain of the Durham Battalion, delivered the address, referring particularly to the necessity of perpetuating the spirit of service and self-sacrifice which characterizes the soldiers during the great war. "Truly they followed in the footsteps of the Man of Galilee at whom was flung the taunt, "He saved others Himself He cannot save."

"What they accomplished was the outcome of that spirit of fine comradeship and co-operation which eventually brought victory and peace and this is especially needed to-day in the warfare which we must wage for the well being of the national and community life in Canada."

In conclusion Mr. Anderson read the words of Sir Arthur Currie, in which the commander of the Canadian Overseas forces urges the fact that the "discipline and labor, the comradeship and unselfishness, and the tranquil courage and true patriotism which were so prominent during the war should not be allowed to lapse with the passing years."

The programme concluded with the hymn, "Blest be the tie that Binds," the National Anthem, and the benediction pronounced by the Rev. F. H. Howard.

Wreaths were laid at the base of the Soldiers' memorial by the Women's Institute and the G.W.V.A.

AT MADOC

MADOC, Nov. 12.—Armistice Day Services were held under the auspices of the I.O.D.E. Moira Branch in the Armouries at 10.30 on Friday. A good and representative crowd was present. The pupils of the two schools marched over in full strength under the charge of their teachers. The Cadet Corps of the Madoc High School were in full uniform under Captain Colin Dafoe and Lieuts. D. Whytock and C. Phillips.

The bugle band and drums played their part and the boys marched from the High School down Elgin Street, to Durham, then up to St. Lawrence Street and to the Armouries. The whole corps was very soldierly.

The opening prayer was led by the I.O.D.E. in unison. The hymn, "O God, Our Help in Ages Past," was heartily and reverently sung by all. Rev. G. W. Rivers of Trinity United Church was then called on by the chairman, Reeve Fred Curry, to give the address. He spoke on what the war cost in men and money and what Armistice Day meant to all. He urged that his hearers appreciate what peace brings and that they teach and advocate peace.

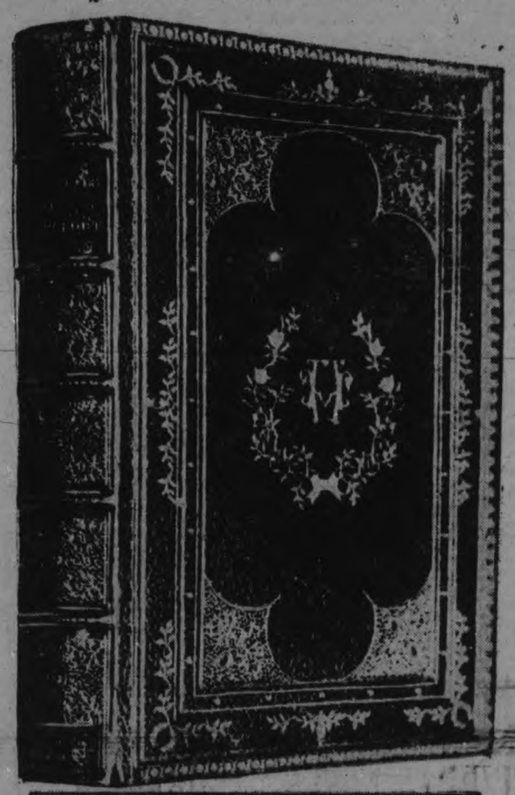
The two minutes' silence was signalled by the tolling of the nearby bell, and was silently observed by all standing with bowed heads.

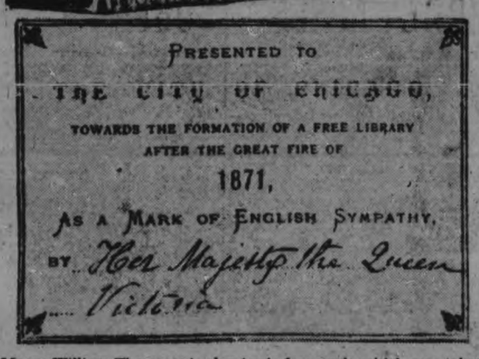
Mr. James Aylesworth, with his cornet, played "The Last Post," after which Rev. T. G. Marshall of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, offered a fervent prayer of thanksgiving and a petition for those who suffered through the war.

"O Canada" was led by the children's voices. A collection was taken in aid of disabled soldiers. The National Anthem and the Benediction formed a fitting close.

The proceeds of the collection and of the Poppy Day sale will be forwarded by the I.O.D.E. to the funds under their care.

QUEEN'S BOOK IN DANGER





On Mayor William Thompson's plan to rid Chicago public libraries of all "pro-British" books, several difficulties have presented themselves. The greatest is the filing of suits by citizens seeking an injunction to prevent him from destroying property of the citizens of the city. Photo shows a priceless work, which was taken from the vault to be photographed: "The Life of a Royal Consort," relating the life of Queen Victoria's husband. The volume was presented by Queen Victoria after the fire of 1871. The lower part of the photo shows the autograph on the card pasted inside the book.

IMPRESSIVE SCENE

of the consequences, all too eager to wait for considered action; keen to be in the thick of a fight which was not their own, members of that company of adventurous souls who are ever pressing up the hill of life fearful that night will fall before they have reached the top and seen what lies beyond. In life, these sons of your land stood with ours, joined to them in service and sacrifice. So in death they are numbered with our own, and of that fellowship which even death could not break, this cross is the symbol."

In closing, Colonel Ralston expressed the hope that "through the days to come, the two nations represented here may never forget the spirit of this moment nor lose sight of the mutual glory of this cross — our renewed pledge of brotherhood, and the symbol of a fellowship even unto death."

In eloquent terms Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis expressed the gratification of the United States Government that Canada had given permanent recognition to comrades of the United States and had added one more to the outward symbols of true brotherhood which existed between Canada and the United States

Impressive Scene.

Down the strip of lawn across which Canadian and United States soldiers faced, came the Toronto Highlanders' band, in slow march, playing a lament. From the spectators' point of view it was perhaps the most impressive part of the ceremony. Stately dirge and dragging step, kilted dress and uneven drum beat, was heard and seen for the first time in these latitudes, and the effect was moving.

When the last wail of the pipes died away the United States chaplain-general read a prayer of dedication and a prayer for peace.

A procession of officials and returned soldiers brought up their wreaths buglers played reveille, and the simple ceremony closed with the national anthems of both countries.

Nation's Tribute.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 12. — The nation yesterday paid its annual Armistice Day tribute to the dead of the world war.

From Maine to California, and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf the ceremonials in gratitude over the ending of the great struggle were carried out by Americans without regard to creed or station in life.

First on the list of those dead to whom reverence was paid was the Unknown Soldier lying in Arlington National Cemetery. The tomb of this hero became the Mecca toward which patriotic pilgrimages turned to pay homage.

President Coolidge led the people of the United States in rendering honor to the symbol of all the dead of the war. Without ostentation he journeyed to Arlington and placed a wreath on the impressive tomb.

Mrs. Coolidge laid a single white rose beside it.

A short distance away the people of Canada presented to the people of the United States a cross of sacrifice in memory of American boys who died in Canadian uniforms before the United States entered the war.

To emphasize the bond of friendship between the two countries two hundred Canadian soldiers were permitted to march through Washington streets bearing arms, marking the first time British troops have so paraded here since the war of 1812.

Wilson Honored.

On the high hill where Bethlehem Chapel of the National Cathedral stands, Woodrow Wilson, the dead war president, was accorded his share of the honors by those who annually go there on Armistice day to hold memorial services at his tomb.

Lacking the wild aspects of the original Armistice day, the ceremonies in many American cities were impressive. In New York, Chicago, Washington and many other places, the traditional two minutes halt to business activities was ordered at 11 o'clock. Chicago's celebration surpassed yesterday anything except the spontaneous outbreak when the armistice was signed. There were parades in every section of the city, and buglers throughout the downtown area sounded taps when the memorable hour was reached.

To augment the period of silence which was generally observed throughout the land there were solemn ceremonials in many cities.

WOMAN, DESTITUTE, KILLS HER FAMILY

Opens Gas Jets on the Cook Stove After Forcing Locket Meter.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(Canadian Press.) — Separated for five years from her husband, believed to be in Fort Worth, Texas, and depressed over the destitution of her family, Mrs. Hildegarde Wywias, 45, to-day opened the jets of a gas stove and brought death to herself and four small children.

The bodies of the children, attired in night clothes, were in bed. Their mother had died on her knees by the side of the cot in which her youngest child, Carl, aged four, lay. Her arms were about him protectingly. Even on the gas bill, Mrs. Wywias had gotten so far behind in payment that the company had locked the meter. A grim testimony of the family's destitution was furnished by the fact that she was obliged to break the meter to kill herself and her children.

Mrs. F. Wilson, Lethbridge, Alta., writes:—"My heart was very weak, and I had to stay in bed for five weeks with it.

"My aunt advised me to take

"I took them and some time after a doctor came to examine me for life insurance and he said there was nothing wrong with my heart."

The firm, as brokers, will open for business on Monday, the 14th. The individual connection of the members of the firm should be quite a factor in building up a fine clientele. The business done on the Standard and Mining Exchange has increased in an astounding manner, showing the interest that is now being taken in our mining resources.

The social season of 1927-28 began in fine style last night for the men in the Test Department of the Canadian General Electric Co., Ltd., and their guests, through the medium of a dance held in the Paragon Hall. The hall was very tastefully decorated in red, white and blue, and the lighting scheme was symbolic of moonlight and romance with many novel effects. Mr. Gordon Haggert amply demonstrated his ability to run a dance smoothly and efficiently and the committee are very much indebted to him for his services.

The orchestra, Logan's Merry-markers, certainly lived up to their name, with C. Sedgewick at the piano, G. Logan playing the saxaphone, C. Bryatt the violin, and P. O'Keefe the traps.

During the evening numerous novelties were given to the dancers. Some of these novelties had numbers printed on them and during the 11th dance a wheel of fortune was spun to determine the lucky couple. The lady, Miss G. Gimblett, received a perfume atomizer, and the gentleman, Mr. Granik, received a miniature rugby ball.

A very nice supper was served about 11.30 by the proprietor of the Paragon ably assisted by four Test men. To commemorate Armistice Day one dance was devoted entirely to songs of that memorable day and Rip Van Winkle, arriving on the scene, thought that he had not slept since 1918, for the spirit of November 11 of that year again found expression in the voices and attitude of those present.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Cruthers very kindly acted as guests of honor, and the latter as patroness during the evening's festivities.

The other guests of the Test Department were Misses J. Frazer, M. Rooke, H. Tremain, M. McFarland; B. Nelson, H. Thompson, E. Spurway, W. Byers, R. Spicer, L. Farthing, B. Vincent, M. McCannon, E. Beatty, H. McFarland, M. Grosse, M. Sayles, I. Nelson, G. Gimblett, M. Evans, L. Johnson, H. Jackson, A. Kemp, B. Cook, N. Francis; Messrs. Newson, Granik, Inman, Rishor, Wickwire, Stewart, McRae.

Claudet, of Ottawa, who is coming out this season, and on the right Miss Eileen Devlin, daughter of Mrs. E. B. Devlin and the late Mr. E. B. Devlin, former member of Parliament for Wright County, Quebec, who is making her bow to society this year.

SAINT and SINNER

The gray-haired, efficient-looking woman at the desk in the reception room of the employment agency made short work of the interview, her eyes apparently making notes of Faith's costume as her pencil jotted down less personal details.

"Four in the family? Any children? Oh, a baby? How old? Hm! A five-months-old baby does make it hard—the address? Thank you. Serenity Boulevard is a little far out but—the maid will live in, of course?"

Faith nodded eagerly.

The head of the employment agency ran briskly through a card file, then looked up at Faith with keen, measuring eyes. "I sent you Kate Lundy, didn't I? Was she unsatisfactory?"

A flush swept over Faith's ivory-colored cheeks. "Not at all. She was extremely capable. She—she left me only to take a position that paid more," she explained, painfully aware that the woman so casually discussed as a servant was now her step-mother.

"Hmm. I see. How much are you willing to pay, Mrs. Hathaway? I'm afraid—"

"Not over eight dollars a week, if she lives in," Faith answered.

"No one available for less than ten. Sorry," the woman answered briskly, her eyes flicking toward another woman who was waiting impatiently to tell her own needs.

"Please let me interview someone," Faith humbled herself, afraid of having to confess failure to Bob.

When Faith opened the door indicated she was siezed with embarrassment at the prospect of interviewing any of the half a dozen belligerent-looking women who sat about the room.

"Oh, excuse me, please!" a soft, frightened voice begged. "I didn't mean to bump you."

Faith smiled as she made way for the girl who in trying to slip as inconspicuously as possible into the room had joggled her elbow. Something about the girl arrested her attention instantly. Perhaps it was because she looked as frightened and out of place in the employment office as did Faith herself. Her big eyes were polished turquoise marbles pushing into the yielding plumpness of her pink and white face. Ropes of pure gold hair were wound about her round head, under a badly fitting cheap blue felt hat. She was very young and plump.

"Are you looking for work?" Faith stopped her as she was seeking with frightened, country-girl eyes for a chair in which to crouch as she awaited inspection.

"Oh, yes, ma'am," the girl breathed. "But the lady outside said there wasn't hardly ever any call for untrained girls. I come here from a farm in Minnesota to live with my aunt, but she—she died last week and I got to work."

"Do you like babies?" Faith asked. "There's a five-months baby in my family, my sister's baby—"

"Oh, ma'am,' the country girl breathed ecstatically. "There ain't nothing I love better'n babies! Would you give me a chance, ma'am? I'm strong and willing," she added, with pathetic eagerness. "My pop used to say I was as strong as a mule, and there ain't a lazy bone in me. I'd like to work for you," she added ingenuously. "My name is Rhoda Jonson, ma'am, Jonson without an H."

TONE UP THE BLOOD AND NERVES NOW

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Have No Equal For This Purpose.

Anaemia, or lack of good blood causes not only pale faces and white lips; it is the root of many pains and miseries. It is the cause of shattered nerves, headaches and backaches, and the always tired feeling from which so many women and girls suffer. To regain new health and strength the blood should be enriched through the tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. This medicine has brought new health to thousands of weak despondent people.

Among those who have found new health through the use of this medicine is Mrs. Gregory J. Murphy, East Ship Harbor, N.S., who says:—"I bless the day I heard of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Before I began their use I was in a run-down and very weak condition. The least exertion would leave me breathless and tired out. Housework was a trial, and at times I felt very despondent. A friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I got six boxes. I had not been taking the pills very long until I began to improve in health, and continuing their use they restored me to my former good health. I also gave the pills to my daughter, who was anaemic and run-down, with the same good results. Now I always have the pills in the house, and would not like to be without them."

Get a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from your druggist today, or send 50 cents to The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., and a box will be sent you post paid. A little book, "Building Up the Blood," which explains the treatment, will be sent free on request.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

There is something remarkably luxurious about the new winter negligees, as you may see from this mauve velvet gown trimmed with marabou in the same shade.

There is a rather disturbing similarity about some of the new negligees and some of the new evening wraps. You feel a strong inclination to wear your new velvet negligee trimmed with fur or marabou out where all the world and his wife might see it and admire. Too bad to let its beauties be known only by those you know well enough to receive "endeshabille." And except that it is cut a little more generously in the sleeves hardly any one would know the difference.

As it happens there are charming lame robes of Oriental suggestion that are sold either for negligees or evening wraps. And women wear their pajamas on the bathing beach and remain in them for luncheon or tea. Where, oh, where are all the fine old lines that we used to draw concerning propriety and suitability of women's clothes?

Still, every woman owes herself and her family a really attractive negligee of some sort. And this season she cannot do better than to choose one of velvet—velvet trimmed with lightweight fur or lavishly with marabou like the one shown in the sketch.

In choosing the color of your negligee you should be guided by different rules than those you follow in selecting either day clothes or evening clothes. You have an entirely different, more specialized background to consider. Vivid colors need never be eliminated just because they are striking. You might hesitate to choose an evening frock of American beauty rose color, lest you make yourself uncomfortably conspicuous.

Or you might avoid certain shades of lemon yellow or yellowish green for fear they would be discordant and off key with the clothes of other women. But providing these shades go well with the decorations of your rooms then there is nothing else to consider for negligees, save whether you like them and find them becoming.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

FOR SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 12th, 1927

Again threatening stars dominate, according to astrology, which finds the planetary government today decidedly menacing.

The morning should be an auspicious time to plan future movements, but action should be delayed.

Clear vision regarding coming events or possibility is supposed to be possible while Neptune is in benefic aspect as in this day's configuration.

This is read as rather an unlucky wedding date, since there may be lack of intellectual understanding between persons married while this configuration prevails.

Educational interests may be unsatisfactory in many places under this direction of the stars, which is supposed to foment problems in public school management.

There is an aspect supposed to be unfavorable to women in public affairs, and they may be much ignored politically, the seers forecast.

Women's clubs are subject to a sway making for many dissensions and are precursors of changes of policy.

Planetary influences making for sudden explosions of sentiment, serious quarrels and general lack of harmony are foretold for the cosi ng weeks of the year.

Love affairs will be much discussed by scientists as well as society folk, for they will be alarmingly prevalent in the next few months.

The evening of this day is not an auspicious time for banquets of important meetings, since both men and women will be inclined to pick flaws in their associates.

Warning is given that political plans will be difficult to carry out, because the rule of the stars appears to presage much selfish interest beneath public service.

Theatres may be disappointed in this day's receipts, for the planets appear to frown upon them.

Persons whose birthdate it is should prepare for changes, but they should be exceedingly reticent about their plans.

Children born on this day probably will be enthusiastic travelers. Subjects of this sign usually see many lands.

FOR SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 13th, 1927

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

Kindly stars dominate today, according to astrology, which finds the planetary government auspicious.

This is read as an auspicious sway under which to make short trips for pleasure or to visit friends.

It is a favorable day for writing letters and thus reaching those one loves and should bring happy returns for suitors.

Women today are subject to the best possible direction of the stars and should push all their intellectual pursuits.

The rule is promising for romance and courtship, but older persons should beware lest they indulge in foolish sentiment.

Marriages are to be exceedingly numerous as the year draws to an end, and Thanksgiving time will bring many fashionable weddings, if the stars are rightly read.

The rule is advantageous for all who seek approval or active support, and for this reason it is wise to make the most of the custom of Sunday calling.

Churches should benefit from the configuration which presages access of interest in spiritual matters.

This should be a day encouraging to those who preach since the mind is likely to be more than commonly responsive.

The seers again prophesy that one of the world problems to be met will concern the increase of food supplies.

Farming is to be carried on in the future in much the same way that big business is promoted, astrologers foretell.

Immense tracts of land will be worked by large organizations of financiers, it is prognosticated, and individual effort will be less important than it has been.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of many pleasures, including enjoyment of music and the theatres.

Children born on this day probably will succeed in commercial undertakings. Many subjects of this sign become ocean navigators.

FOR MONDAY, NOVEMBER 14th, 1927.

Again benefic aspects rule today, according to astrology, which reads much good luck while the configuration prevails.

School and colleges should benefit especially today, which seems to presage tremendous intellectual progress for the New Year.

Under this direction of the stars the mind is supposed to become exceedingly alert and to attain clarity as well as activity.

The rule favors the development of aviation and seems to presage much commercial use of airplanes and balloons.

Practical progress is to supersede adventurous experiment in aerial navigation, the seers prophesy, but danger of some sort will be responsible for rapid improvement.

From the south the United States may expect a gesture that is hostile, it is forecast, and the Orient will offer new diplomatic problems.

Engagements to marry are supposed to be especially lucky under this direction of the stars, which seems to promise long prosperity as well as loyalty.

This is a benefic sway for actors and actresses who are to find the public more than usually cordial.

New stage stars are foretold and they will attain fame as much through technique and through training as through talent.

Thanksgiving this year may bring uncertain and even stormy weather to many parts of the country astrologers announce.

Music and musicians are splendidly directed while this rule prevails and artists may expect a season of great prosperity.

Again a disaster at sea is foretold. Severe storms of most unusual characters are indicated.

Persons whose birthdate it is may look forward to much enjoyment through society and cultural recreations.

Children born on this day probably will be exceedingly self-willed and determined. Subjects of this sign often defeat their own best interests through stubbornness.

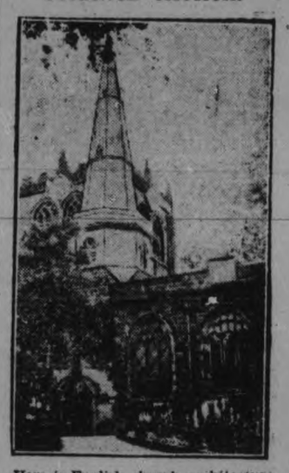
Miss Margaret Bannerman, former Canadian girl, now a star of the London stage, has been cited as co-respondent in the divorce suit in which Marie Lohr, leading tragedienne, won a decree from Anthony Prinsep, producer. Miss Bannerman was educated in Canada and made her first big theatrical hit when she appeared reposing on ocean rocks as a siren in a musical play, clad in her long pale gold hair. She was the first wife of Pat Somerset.

STRANGE CHURCH.



Here is English church architecture extraordinary. The picture is of Ormskirk Church in the lake district in England, which is "decorated" with both a tower and a steeple. History narrates that two wealthy old ladies, both strong supporters of the church, differed as to whether a spire or a tower would best decorate the edifice. Rather than lose the support of either officials of the church decided to build both, the cost being borne by the respective champions of tower and steeple.

Costes and Le Brix continued to Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires. Previously the two flew from Paris to St. Louis in a non-stop venture of 2,700 miles.

DERELICT SUBMARINE

A derelict submarine adrift on the vast expanse of the Pacific has seasoned navigators guessing. Its black hulk, almost entirely submerged, has been a serious shipping menace for many months; and checking and re-checking by skippers innumerable has failed to fix responsibility for its existence. The U. S. S. Liberator recently overhauled the derelict, with its strange superstructures of wood, and seamen succeeded in prying open one of the hatches but report that they were repelled by "poison gas" without being able to solve the mystery of the strange submarine.

Boxing Promoters Start on Their Annual Scrap

LESSER LIGHTS DEFY RICKARD

Annual Uprising Against Promoter Occurs—Plan Tunney Fight. FUGAZY CAREFUL.

(By Frank Getty, United Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, Nov. 12. — The annual "promoters' war" was raging down cauliflower alley yesterday.

Each year, about this time, Jim Mullens and Humbert J. Fugazy and Floyd Fitzsimmons, and some of the lesser lights of the fight promoting racket, rise up and announce the impending overthrow of the Rickard dynasty.

And each year, along about summer time, Tex is alone in the field, with the heavyweight champion and contender jumping through the hoop every time he snaps his fingers.

In the meantime, however, the boys must have their say. So Jim Mullens is travelling eastward to-day "prepared to sign Gene Tunney for a championship bout next year," and Humber J. Fugazy let it be known that he has a $500,000 guarantee ready for the champion any time Gene wants to exercise his fountain pen.

Floyd Fitzsimmons has not been heard from as yet, but he should check into the ballyhoo before nightfall.

Thus the promoters' war on Rickard, who has very little to say except that they are full of prunes.

One thing must be said for Tunney. He certainly aids and abets the ballyhoo of the lesser lights of cauliflowerdom. Gene seems to get cantankerous himself, around this time of year, and is ever ready to contribute to the anvil chorus which beats about Tex Rickard's entirely uncauliflowered ears.

Repeats Statement.

Tunney contributes a choice bit to the effect that Rickard is Jack Dempsey's real manager.

"Everyone knows Tex appointed Leo Flynn," says Gene, with a fine disregard for accuracy.

"As for me, I'm not under Rickard's management," adds the champ.

Immediately, the hue and cry of the small fry swells to a roar of triumph.

"Tunney says he's not tied to Rickard," they proclaim.

"I'll match him," says Mullens.

"And I. And I." Chorus of others.

Gene chimes in with a statement to the effect that he wants to fight three times in 1928, which would seem to provide enough material for several promoters.

Knows His Fights.

Tex Rickard shifts his cigar over to the other corner of his mouth and says that Tunney, too, is full of prunes. Tex knows how many world's championship heavyweight fights can be held in twelve months, without killing the goose that's laying the golden egg.

Exactly one.

Philadelphia sportsmen are said to have entered the promotorial war zone with an offer of $750,000 to Tunney for a bout there next summer. Mullens has selected Chicago, although he points out that Chairman Jim Farley, of the New York State Athletic Commission, has given him permission to stage a heavyweight championship fight here in New York. Which certainly was nice of Mr. Farley.

Fugazy Careful.

Humbert Fugazy, who got the Tunney matching bee in his bonnet a year ago, and was badly stung, is treading a bit warily this time. But Humber says he has "been approached by representatives of Gene Tunney regarding the promotion of the next championship fight." Humbert has a $500,000 promise ready for the next approacher.

Floyd Fitzsimmons always was my favorite winter promoter of summer bouts. It seemed as though his imagination stretched farther with less provocation than that of any of the others. Probably Floyd will be along with an offer for Michigan city, million dollar guarantee and all the trimmings.

After a while, the storm will subside, and in the good old summer time Tex Rickard will go ahead without any particular fuss and feathers and attend to the promotion of the next heavyweight championship fight.

Fed up on it.

Even a pastmaster of the well known art of the "Ballyhoo" can be "fed up" on it. For that reason Tex Rickard wishes there was some means of "debunking" the boxing game just at present.

Rickard has done his full share of denying in the course of a checkered and colorful career but the promoter has shattered some of his own records within the past few weeks in connection with such stories as his reported split with Madison Square directors, rumors of his resignation, intimations that the pending Dempsey-Kearns-Rickard suit would "blow the lid off the boxing racket," charges that Rickard is Dempsey's real manager, and finally, Gene Tunney's assertion that he will fight three times next year, possibly under auspices other than Rickard's.

Of them all the most difficult for Rickard as well as the boxing fraternity generally, to swallow is the idea that Tunney will battle more than once in defence of his title or that he will fight under the promotion of any other individual than the master of Madison Square Garden.

"Tunney has a contract with me that gives my corporation an exclusive option on the champion's services next year up to October 1," declared Rickard yesterday.

Actually it is a continuation of the contract under which he fought for me at Chicago last September. It covers every contingency. It calls for advance payments of $100,000 to Tunney by Feb 1, 1928, and another $100,000 by June 1, just as his arrangement with me this year.

"It is idle for Tunney or anyone else to talk about his fighting for anyone but me. I don't think Gene has such an idea."

QUEEN'S TO HAVE REGULAR LINE-UP

Game To-day To Decide Championship of Senior Inter-Collegiate Union.

KINGSTON, Ont., Nov. 12.—(Canadian Press.)—Queens will have the same team which won from Varsity in Toronto weeks ago, when they meet McGill at the Richardson Stadium this afternoon in the game which will decide the championship of the senior inter-collegiate union. Coach Orin Carson announced after the last scrimmage practice yesterday afternoon. Apart from naming the line-up Coach Carson would make no comment on to-day's game, but felt that a close battle would be staged.

The scrimmage practice yesterday, which terminated the week's work, was on a field that was very soggy and slippery. In fact the main part of the playing field was so bad that the practise was held on the grass behind the goal posts, and it seemed last night that nothing but a miracle could give the teams a dry field for to-day's game. Rain fell steadily for almost twenty-four hours up to yesterday afternoon, when it cleared off a bit, but prospects were for more rain last night and possibly bad weather to-day. The field was almost a sea of mud yesterday afternoon, and while a two ton roller was used in an endeavor to make it more fit for rugby, it was felt that this morning a liberal coating of sawdust would be applied to secure better footing.

All the players, excepting Mundell, were on the field yetserday, and it is possible that if Sutton can stand the going that he will play the entire sixty minutes at quarterback. There is a possibility that Mungovian, who has also been groomed for the position of snap, may be shot into the breach at quarter if Sutton is injured.

Coach Carson announced that the team to start, and the subs who will be in uniform will be as follows: Flying wing, Britton; halves, Batstone, Warren, McKelvey; quarter, Sutton; snap, Nagel; insides, Handford, Brown; middles, Kilgour, Howard; outsides, Walker, Agnew. Subs, Mungovian, Mundell, Baird, Stevenson, Durham, Abbott, Carter, Reynlods.

WALKER WANTS TO TRAIN YOUNG

Would Back Him Against Any Swimmer After Three Months' Work.

CONFIDENT OF ABILITY.

TORONTO, Nov. 12.— (Canadian Press.) — George Young's boyhood trainer, the veteran Johnny Walker, is not only willing but is eager to take the long distance swimmer under his wing again now that Young has broken with Henry O'Byrne, his manager since he won the Catalina Channel swim. Walker to-day, in expressing the utmost confidence in Young's ability despite his collapse here last August, said: "If I had him for three months for the kind of training I'd like to see him get, I wouldn't be afraid to put him against Vierkoeter or anybody else in the wide world."

AUTOCRAT WINS.

H. E. Steel's Horse Captures Liverpool Autumn Cup.

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 12.—(Canadian Press.)— Autocrat, owned by H. E. Steel, yesterday captured the Liverpool autumn cup, one of the last of the racing season's big features. Capt. J. Hutchison's Mohawk was second and Mrs. Benoir's Silver Lark third. Eleven horses ran.

BOXER HITS REFEREE.

Official Get Blow Intended For Opponent—Fans Count Five.

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Nov. 12. — (Canadian Press.)— Tom Hawkins, negro heavyweight boxer, won a ten round decision over Chuck Wiggins, Indianapolis, last night, but before getting the decision he had knocked Referee William Lovejoy down for a count of five. The referee stepped between the fighters to break them out of a clinch just as Hawkins uncorked a terrific left hook. The blow caught the referee on the nose and jaw and the fans solemnly counted five before the official recovered.

NO BEAUTY CONTESTS.

BRESLAU, Silesia, Nov. 12— Many American customs and methods have been adopted in Upper Silesia, but bathing beauty contests seem to be definitely taboo. Such a contest was arranged recently, but on the appointed day not a girl showed up. It was found that a morality committee had posted notices that entrants would be soundly thrashed.

The singles of the final round in the University of Toronto, Queen's and Western University triangle was a brilliant display of tennis. Miss Marjorie Devine of Queen's, former Ottawa junior champion, is returning a smashing drive to Miss Olga Miller's serve. In the centre, Miss Devine is warming up to her own serve. On the left is Miss Olga Miller, Western Ontario champion, who defeated Miss Devine in 6-1 and 6-2, carrying the honors to Western University, London, Ontario.

TY COBB MAY ACCEPT OFFER

Veteran Still Believes He Knows Way Around the Bases.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Ty Cobb would like to go down in baseball history as the only player who ever took part in 3,000 major league games. He is now about three score games shy of that count. Hence, if some major league club is willing to offer Ty a suitable inducement to crowd a few more of his baseball years into history, there is a chance that something may be accomplished.

Although he already possesses so many records that he can't keep them in one box, Ty is said to have a yearning to make one bigger than any in the total number of big league games in which he will have scintillated during a lifetime.

Ty believes that if he played in more than 3,000 games he would set a standard which might last longer than Babe Ruth's home run record. Some day there may be a shortening of fences to appeal to the raging mob of home run fans. But Cobb's record for total number of games played cannot be increased by shortening outfields or building stands. About the only way it can be appropriated is by starting some youngster to play in the big leagues when he is just out of rompers and making him keep at it through all the various stages to whiskers and a bald pate.

There is now no player within striking distance of Cobb's record and four or five generations may pass by before a rival for his laurels appears.

Cobb would be a little more pleased with himself if he could get past that 3,000 figure. Even if the world series games in which he has participated were added to his total of league games, Ty would still be short of 3,000. It is essential for that reason that he get a big league job for the season of 1928.

There has been some talk that Cobb might go to Cleveland as manager. If he went there as manager he might also play baseball and thus get in his 3,000 games. The new owners of the Cleveland club may see Cobb as a leader to Pennantville, but the former owners of the Cleveland outfit could not see him that way.

If Cobb were given his unconditional release, to which he is entitled if all clubs waive on him, he would be at liberty to go where he pleased. A National League club might claim him, but there is no immediate danger of that because most clubs haven't the cash to deal with him.

The differences between Cobb and the Athletics caused the great record breaker and the Philadelphia team to part company involved both the money question and reluctance on the part of Connie Mack to put a star of the Cobb type on his team again. Cobb began the past season full of fight and energy, but the moment that he became a player-writer he lost himself in channels which he was rather foolish to explore. When Ty was exploited as attacking Ban Johnson through a hokum sort of one-player-to-another letter, he lost out in the American League on all sides, even if he did not write the letter himself. That kind of joking failed to please anybody in the American League.

JACK FOURNIER GOES TO NEWARK

Former First Baseman For the Braves To Play With Newark.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Jack Fournier, first baseman of the Boston Braves, yesterday signed to play with the Newark International League Club, according to an announcement here Thursday night by Paul Block, owner of the Newark Club. Block said the deal was closed in St. Louis by Manager Walter Johnson and James Sinnott, representative of the Newark team.

Fournier joined the Braves after being released unconditionally by Brooklyn at his own request in 1926. Before the appointment of Slattery to the managership of the Boston team recently Fournier was mentioned frequently for the post.

Fournier was traded by the Cardinals to the Robins in 1923 by Hy. Myers, but his sojourn with Robinson's club terminated of his own accord because of abuse from Ebbets Field fans.

Newark's acquisition of the star infielder came as a surprise, for his release by the Boston Club was unexpected.

A mechanical driver has been devised to test new golf balls for their toughness, resilience and balance.

Should the University of Alabama win the Southern Conference football championship this season it will make four in a row for the Crimson Tide.

TITLE HOPES LIE IN BALANCE

Eastern Teams Mobilize for the Most Important Battles of Season.

U. S. FOOTBALL.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—Championship hopes hung in the balance last night as eastern football teams all along the line mobilized for the most important battles of the season on the morrow.

Renewing a rivalry dating back to 1873—the oldest of the day—Princeton's unbeaten and united eleven prepared to tackle Yale at the huge New Haven bowl in a struggle for survival among the top teams of the east. Stung to fighting pitch by loss of its ace, Bruce Caldwell, through eleventh hour ineligibility, Yale last night ruled an even choice to stop the Tiger in a battle before 76,000 spectators.

With promise of equally as large a crowd at the Yankee Stadium, the light cavalry of Notre Dame deployed for battle with the heavy howitzers of the army in one of the most colorful intersectional spectacles of the year. Army has been beaten only by Yale, and Notre Dame's single sign of human vulnerability was a tie with Minnesota last Saturday.

Eastern football will be pitted against Western in two other battles of giants—the Navy against Michigan at Ann Arbor and unbeaten Pittsburg against Nebraska on the home field of the Panthers.

With the fires of ancient rivalry burning more fiercely than ever, Dartmouth's powerful array that was halted only by Yale takes on its old adversary, Cornell, at Hanover; rejuvenated Pennsylvania entertains Columbia; Harvard seeks revenge on Brown for a 1926 defeat by the "iron men," and Colgate invades Syracuse for their annual classic.

Western Conference

CHICAGO, Nov. 12 (Canadian Press).—With the finish of the annual warfare for the Western Conference gridiron championship a week away, the Chicago battle with Illinois at Champaign today is the only contest of the day's schedule having any bearing on the title situation.

Michigan will meet the navy in an intersectional contest at Ann Arbor with prospects of a crowd of 85,000. Minnesota, the only other "Big Ten" team having any championship possibilities, meets Drake at Minneapolis; Ohio State entertains Denison at Columbus. Purdue will take the field against Franklin at Lafayette.

In addition to the Chicago-Illinois game, two other conference contests come up for decision, but all the four teams are definitely out of the championship race, having two or more defeats.

Northwestern will make strenuous efforts to get back into the winning column by defeating Indiana at Evanston, while Iowa will attempt to beat Wisconsin at Madison.

HAS LEANING TOWER.

BERLIN, Nov. 12.—The steeple of St. Mary's Church, in the old part of Berlin, has been found to be more than three feet out of plumb. The base upon which the steeple rests is badly rotted, but iron stays prevent danger of collapse. The parish is too poor to pay for restoration of the famous old thirteenth century structure.

Inside Sportin Dope

By A Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

What with the Peterboro srs. beginning training, Lew Lebarr's jrs. entered in the S.p.a. serious and the St. John's youngsters going in the jr. O.h.a. serious, it begins to look, Mac, as if old man winter is just around the corner. Peterboro is to have 2 jr. teams, a intermediate outfit and the srs., so altogether they oughta to be enough hockey to keep the folks away from the radio a few nights a week. Let 'em all come; the more teams, especially in the younger classes, the more chances for good hockey later on, for the burg that don't encourage young players is going to get a lean diet of hockey from now on with the pros. grabbing everybody that can skate the length of the rink without falling over his own feet.

By the way, Mac, a card from Mister Bert McLeod, 1 of our hockey travellers, sezs that him and Mister Ranger and Mister Dwyer got thrown in a game the night they arrived at Dallas, Tex. They was summer weather when they got there, the thermometer registered 85, and a sign in the rink asked gents to kindly refrain from going in their shirt sleeves. Take it from me, when the 3 Peterboro birds got into action under them conditions they naturally begun to figger they was going to earn the jack the pro. magnates is ladling out to them. It ain't all roses, no matter where you go, sez I.

The N.h.l. gets away soon, Mac, and Peterboro fans is going to be interested in at least 2 of the outfits. The Toronto Leafs especially, for they not only got Mister Irvin Bailey, the Petes' skipper of 2 seasons ago, on their forward line, but because 2 Peterboro old boys, Mister Pete Campbell and Mister Gamey Stratton, is big guns on the board of directors. And we naturally will keep a eye on Detroit where none less than our old right wing star of 1917, Mister Jack Adams, is the boss. Mister Adams was always a popular boy with the customers here, and everybody will wish him a good year as manager of the Coogers or whatever they call them Detroiters.

Well, Mister Sporting Editor, all in all, the hockey season here looks like it would provide a lotta entertainment for the winter nights, and what more could you ask? I ain't predicting no championships, but the boys promise to be knocking at the door, and they'll be a bunch of fun before they are knocked off, if any.

It won't be long now, anyway.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

VICTOR McLAGLEN SOARS TO HEIGHTS IN NOTED ROLE OF CAPT. FLAGG

Star Served as Captain in the World War; Also Fought in Boer War; Fought Jack Johnson For Heavyweight Title in 1909.

Victor McLaglen, the Captain Flagg of "What Price Glory," had no ambitions as a moving picture star until after he was mustered out of the British Army as a Captain, following the Armistice. A chance meeting with Commodore J. Stuart Blackton at the National Sporting Club in London led to his first work before the camera. His taking a screen test was Blackton's idea, not McLaglen's. His screen debut was opposite Lady Diana Manners in "The Glorious Adventure."

McLaglen is the son of an Anglican Bishop and was born in London.

Previous to his becoming an actor McLaglen led a career of soldiering and adventure which began with his enlistment in the Royal Life Guards at the age of fourteen. His extraordinary physique, even at that age, is what let him fool the recruiting sergeant. He fought with the Guards all through the Boer War and then went to Canada. He sustained life in the Dominion by acting as a strong man and wrestler with a circus, joining in the Cobalt silver rush, playing vaudeville and trying his luck in the prize ring, which reached a climax on March 10, 1909, when he fought Jack Johnson for the world's heavyweight championship at Vancouver. Johnson won the ten round bout, but with McLaglen on his feet at the finish.

After his defeat McLaglen again went into vaudeville, teaming up with a brother. Their bookings took them to Hawaii, Ceylon, the Straits Settlements, India and South Africa. They arrived at Capetown just as England declared war against Germany and went promptly to London to enlist. Victor immediately got a commission with the Royal Irish Fusiliers. Later, with the Cheshire Rifles in Mesopotamia, he was promoted to a Captaincy.

After his success in British studios Commodore Blackton again advised him, with the result that he came to America. He was given the title role in "The Beloved Brute" and the "heavy" role in Charles Ray's "Percy." Later he played in "The Hunted Woman" for Fox; was one of the strange trio in "The Un-Holy Three," and has recently been seen in "Men of Steel" and "Beau Geste."

"What Price Glory" marks his arrival as a star. It is not only the most important role in his career so far, but is one for which he is particularly adapted because of his earlier life as a soldier of fortune and adventurer.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

THAT AIN'T SEEIN'

He blushed a little as he spoke,
The awkward youth I walked beside,
One of the mountains' humble folk,
And yet the same desire denied,
He told me of a sweetheart, too,
Even as I had talked of you.
"I got a letter just today,"
He said, "and lots she had to say—
But that ain't seein'."

We two had met upon the trail,
And so together we had fared,
We shared the food, we shared the gale,
And then a greater thing we shared.
He stopped and looked across the hill:
"She said she'd wait, I know she will;
She said She'd wait, in spite of Dad;
I guess a fellow should be glad—
But that ain't seein'."

And then again the trail we went;
I thought, "How fortunate am I;"
And yet I felt a discontent
I long had felt, and now knew why.
You bear my name, you wear my ring
But absence is an awful thing.
Faith may be strong, and love be true,
You think of me, I think of you—
But that ain't seein'.

Dinner—Mushroom soup (recipe given Oct. 22nd); broiled steak, cooked spinach; salad of grated carrots and chopped celery; minced prunes molded in gelatin, with whipped cream.

Tuesday

Breakfast: French Omelet, Melba toast, stewed figs.

Lunch: Potato soup, cooked oyster plant, lettuce.

Dinner: Roast pork, cooked turnips, cooked okra, salad of raw spinach leaves; baked apple.

Wednesday.

Thursday.

Breakfast: Baked eggs, Melba toast, stewed raisins.

Lunch: Buttered noodles, cooked turnip tops, celery.

Dinner: Clear tomato soup (beef broth with tomato added); roast beef, cooked string beans, salad of tomato; spinach and asparagus (recipe given last week, Oct. 8th) pineapple sponge (see recipe for orange Souffle).

Friday.

Breakfast: Coddled eggs, broiled ham waffle, apple sauce.

Lunch: Shredded lettuce with chopped pecans or almonds; sandwiches of real wholewheat bread and peanut butter.

Dinner: Baked halibut, stewed tomatoes, cooked spinach; McCoy salad; no dessert.

Saturday.

Breakfast: Cottage cheese, stewed peaches.

Lunch: Carrot loaf, cooked lettuce and parsley; ripe olives.

Dinner: Vegetable soup; Salisbury steak, buttered vegetables, carrots, turnips and beets cooked separately and diced together; head lettuce with olive oil; apple whip or ice cream.

Potato soup: Peel and dice potatoes to equal three cups, and place over fire with three or four cups of water. Cook until tender, and add about three cupfuls of milk or thin cream and two tablespoonfuls of chopped parsley. Serve with thin strips of Melba toast. By using celery in place of potatoes, you have a delicious non-starchy soup.

Wholewheat Muffins: To a well-beaten egg, add one cupful of sweet milk. Stir in one cupful of real wholewheat flour and beat until smooth, then add a half cupful of the wholewheat flour into which has been sifted one level teaspoonful of baking powder. Mix thoroughly and bake in muffin tins in moderately hot oven until brown. The quantity makes 6 medium or 8 small muffins.

The pineapple sponge is made almost like the orange souffle. Shredded pineapple is combined with gelatin, and after the mixture congeals, is beaten thoroughly with an eggbeater, beating in the desired amount of whipped cream.

Those who are overweight, or who, for any reason, wish to eliminate the starches from their diet, may substitute any of the luncheons with any one kind of the following raw acid fruits or their juices: Apples, apricots, peaches, pears, grapes, oranges, grapefruit, plums, pineapple, tomato or melon.

Questions and Answers.

Question: Mrs. A. B. asks: "I have a place at the top of my stomach on the right side that gives me some trouble, something like the colic, every month. Can you tell me what it is and the remedy? I am a very stout woman, weighing about 240 pounds. Can you tell me something to reduce my weight?"

Answer: The distress you have on your right side may be due to gall bladder trouble, to stomach irritation, or to colitis, in the hepatic flexure of the colon. As you are overweight, the sensible thing to do is to diet to reduce your weight, and your symptoms will no doubt disappear while on the diet which is necessary for you to take to bring about a satisfactory weight reduction. Space in this column is limited, but I will be glad to send you complete instructions on how to reduce.

Question: A Seeker of Health asks: "May fruit or ice cream be eaten between meals without interfering with digestion?"

Answer: Fruit and ice cream must both be considered real foods and should therefore be used in place of a meal, or may be used in addition to a meal if combined with those foods with which they are harmonious.

Question: M. L. asks: "Is erysipelas a blood or a skin disease? What is the cause and cure of this disease?"

Answer: I consider the true cause of erysipelas to be an acidosis produced through the use of wrong food. It is true there is a particular bacterium associated with this disease, but this microorganism cannot live in a body free from acidosis. Please write for further personal advice.

SHORT STORY

POOR MAUD AND JOHN

(By H. Louis Raybold.)

Almost every evening when Margaret came home from her studio in the old Allerton Building she had something to tell about Maud and John. And if she forgot to mention them, her mother was sure to ask, before supper was over, "And how are poor Maud and John?"

Sometimes Margaret brought good news. "Oh, Maud thinks John may get a promotion in the spring. If he does, and his father doesn't break any more bones, they will be married."

Then again, reports were unfavorable. "Maud says she wonders if she oughtn't to break off the engagement. Perhaps it is a mistake to go about so long with one person."

Maud was the young school teacher who roomed next door to Margaret. She wasn't really as young as Margaret, but because Margaret was the motherly sort she had taken Maud under her wing and seemed the older of the two.

Shortly after she and Maud had become acquainted, Maud had breezed into her studio with a very long face.

"My dear, I've just got to spill over to somebody. Old Drummond, school superintendent, you know, has come out flat and said that all women teachers who get married have got to resign at once. Sweet old back number, isn't he?"

"But were you planning to get married right away?"

"Planning? My dear, John and I have been planning to get married since Noah built his ark! You see, he's got his family—mother and father—and I've got my mother, and I do think people ought to start with a little bit of a nest egg, don't you?"

"I certainly do!" said Margaret, who really did, "and it's a crying shame you can't be married and keep right on with your work."

But Maud and John were not married that summer and Maud was reappointed. John did get his promotion and their wedding day was set the day after the close of school in the following spring. But in spring came neuritis for Maud's mother, a fractured leg for his father, and consequent further postponement of their marriage.

"They just ought to make a bolt of it, anyhow," advised young Doctor Bowen, who had run in to inquire for the health of Margaret's mother. Not drumming up trade. No, indeed. But just because she had recently called him in to treat a cold and it gave him an excuse to see Margaret with whom he was desperately in love.

"Not at all!" retorted Margaret. "To marry without a nest egg for emergencies is—is matrimonial suicide!"

"Oh," said the young doctor vaguely. "Is it now?" But he felt decidedly squelched. Just suppose Margaret had suspected he was thinking of proposing to her! His practice did not yet run to the accumulation of nest eggs.

Margaret had worries herself, of a sort, these days. It was rumored about among the occupants that the Allerton Building was to be scrapped and a huge apartment house put in its place. Never again, Margaret knew would she be able to find so satisfactory a studio for her work—which was child portraiture—at so reasonable a rent in so suitable a location. Originally, one of the town's large family residences, it had been converted into small suites and studios. But it was badly in need of repairs, its owner was growing old, and its destiny was unpredictable. Any day Margaret might learn that it had been sold and notice to vacate given.

She was wondering just where she would look for a place when, one afternoon, Maud came in from school and, as was her usual custom, peeked in at the door.

"Congratulate me, darling!" she cried. "John and I have decided to take the bull by the horns and drop in at the City Hall Friday. Hang old Drummond!"

"Really? That's wonderful news!" Margaret laid down a roll of films and ran over to throw her arms about Maud. "I'm so glad!"

"Do you know what I think I'll do, mother?" said Margaret that night. "I think I'll suggest that Maud's mother share my studio—that is, use it for her room. Then Maud and John can have the little apartment to themselves sometimes. Poor things!"

But, after all, she never made the suggestion to Maud. After the wedding, at which she and Maud's mother were the only guests, Maud, beaming above a huge bouquet of Richmond roses, drew Margaret aside. "I want to tell you what John and I have done. We've bought the Allerton apartments and are going to tear them down and do them over into a modern, completely up-to-date building and you're to have the same old studio at the very same rates as long as you want it. The price was so reasonable—only thirty thousand—that John thought it a good investment for some of the legacy his grandfather left him years ago. Of course, it will make quite a hole in our little nest egg, but one must seize one's opportunities, mustn't one?"

As Margaret remarked to her mother afterwards, "Poor Maud and John, indeed!"

She called Doctor Bowen on the telephone an hour later. "No, mother isn't sick, Doctor. And please dont say I called you, because mother is so sensitive about her health. And the other night you said you'd like to call some time just to see me. Well—why don't you?"

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

BRINGING UP FATHER IN POLITICS.

Not being satisfied with the laurels already registered to their credit the beloved characters that complete the successful trinity that figures daily in the adventures of the comic strip known far and wide as "Bringing Up Father," the popular and evergreen cartoons of George McManus have entered a brand new field. In other words they have gone in for politics and from all accounts with merry, screaming and hilarious results. If you can fancy "Jiggs", "Maggie" and "Dinty Moore" in the past setting a pace that has stirred the entire universe to laughing and stabilizing themselves as a national institution with millions convulsed by their very doings daily what will you think of them now in their latest environment? Imagine "Jiggs" running for some great office and really elected "Maggie" taking the reins and piloting her henpecked spouse to heights never expected by those who would wish "Jiggs" well in spite of the exacting burdens contingent on his duties and allegiance to his party. The very thought should be the signal for a firmer grip on life, fresh merriment, hilarity, screams, surprises and situations that provide the kind of fun that insinuates itself into ones very marrows. Everything is told and enacted in two periods with the requisite scenes and atmosphere, sprinkled with jingling melodies, novelties and other unusual ingredients theatrical and otherwise. Aided and abetted by a competent cast of which a beauty chorus of twenty becomingly gowned young women. This gala entertainment with a cast of capable artists will hold forth at the Grand Opera House next Saturday with the usual matinee.

AT THE CAPITOL

"WHAT PRICE GLORY"

Every decade there appears on the theatrical horizon a stage or screen presentation so powerful in its appeal, whether it be comedy or tragedy, that it at once radiates its fame to the remotest corners of the nation. It immediately grasps attention and becomes a byword and the topic of everyday conversation. Everyone will admit that there is no more positive proof of this than "What Price Glory." As a stage play it was a sensation. Now comes along that most powerful and searching of all agencies that reflect and recreate, the motion picture, and the sensation takes on all the widespread and interest arousing energy of a furore. This is exactly what has happened to William Fox's screen presentation of this celebrated play, which comes to the Capitol Theatre for a three days' engagement on Monday.

The nation's foremost screen critics have been unanimous in their commendation of this motion picture masterpiece, declaring that it surpasses the celebrated play by Laurence Stallings and Maxwell Anderson in every particular despite the greatness of the stage attraction.

It is proclaimed by all those in authority as the greatest motion picture of the year. It is not a war picture. War is its background. It is no more a war play than a love comedy laid in a sylvan setting would be called a rural play. Its authors took war as a the canvas on which to sketc htheir story; war as the great influence on men and women that would bring out pathos, comedy and human appeal as no other crisis in the affairs of nations could bring.

Above all else there is comedy. Probably no picture ever made along the edge of a great world tragedy ever had so much comedy.

"What price Glory" on the screen is peopled with real and human characters that will at once win favor. They are not just types. They are the genuine thing in front of the camera, which makes no mistake. "What Price Glory" is not only a great and absorbing picture, with thrills and heart throbs and a world of comedy, but is crowded with incidents that will bring a chuckle and a thrill long after the moment you see it.

AT THE REGENT.

"LADDIE."

The name of Gene Stratton-Porter, for years the most widely read novelist of this or any other generation, is enough to insure the worth of a motion picture, basing that criterion on "The Girl of the Limberlost" and "The Keeper of the Bees." When, added to that name, a sterling cast enacts the roles and the clever direction of J. Leo Meehan, the late novelist's son-in-law makes the story stand out like a nigger in a white fog, the acme of entertainment is reached.

Such a picture is "Laddie," a book that has circulated more than a million copies ,which comes to the screen at the Theatre next Monday heralded as the most absorbing production F. B. O. has ever released. That it will prove as popular as did its illustrious predecessors there seems no room for doubt. And, like the others, it adheres with remarkable fidelity to the original book. This was the late Mrs. Porter's idea of picture making and it is now being carried out by Jeanette Meehan and her director husband; with what success the public knows well. Mrs. Meehan adapted "Laddie" to the screen.

Little Gene Stratton, who created such a sensation in "The Keeper of the Bees," again has an important role in the cast. The granddaughter of the celebrated author takes the part of "Little Sister," and repeats her triumph with accrued interest. John Bowers does splendidly in the titular role, while Bess Flowers, David Torrence, Eugenia Gilbert, Neil Neely, Fanny Midgely, Arthur Clayton and John Fox, Jr., are all fine in the characters assigned to them.

Fabien Ready to Become a Priest.

It was a glorious May morning filled with great promise of happiness and love!

The Chevalier Fabien Des Grieux, a romantically poetic youth, talked quietly with some fellow graduate students at the White Horse Inn, at Amiens, while waiting for the Paris diligence to carry them on to St. Sulpice to complete their training for the priesthood.

Fabien's parents be onged to one of the first families of Picardy and he gallantly reflected the fact that he was a gentleman of the highest type. He was a great favorite with his student associates and the inhabitants of the town. His life had been so well regulated and studious that his masters had pointed to him as a model of conduct for other scholars. Not that Fabien made any sacrifices or efforts to acquire this reputation, but a naturally tranquil disposition and a love for study had made him apply his time to work and duty. He had an inborn dislike for vice that was accepted as positive proof of virtue.

Fabien had earned his title, of Chevalier, by being decorated with the cross and when the Bishop of the Diocese proposed that upon graduation he enter the church, Fabien accepted the honor as one entirely to his liking.

Presently a lay brother rode up to the Inn and, leaving his mount outside the gate, began searching for Fabien among the people at the little iron tables in the yard. He was greatly relieved to learn from one of the students that the youth he sought was in the tavern. The kindly old man's mission was important and his face lighted up with great sympathy and love when he saw Fabien talking with Jean Tiberge, a loyal friend and fellow student—one need never worry about the company that Fabien found congenial!

"My son," said the lay brother, taking a little medal from his belt and quietly presenting it to Fabien, "Here is a medal for protection against worldly evil—the Bishop bade me give it to you before you leave us to complete your training."

Fabien bowed in reverential thanks over the lay brother's hand as he accepted the holy token. A divinely spiritual expression spread over his face. He could not refrain from thinking how little he needed such a charm. Worldly pleasures and appetites could never tempt him from his studies and calling! And those who knew him were just as sure of this as Fabien himself.

"Ah! Fabien, I am delighted," broke in Tiberge, putting his arm about his friend's shoulder. "You have earned that reward in all fairness. None of us can equal your brilliance and unselfish devotion."

"I deserve no credit—I have simply found my calling and everything else follows along naturally."

"Perhaps that is true," agreed Tiberge. "It is quite characteristic that you take no credit for anything you do."

A beautiful smile lighted up Fabien's face as he heard his friend's compliment.

"You know, Tiberge, my greatest regret at leaving here is that you are no ready to depart at the same time. It is difficult to leave a loyal friend with whom one has grown up. I shall never forget you, and your thousand good qualities. We shall meet again, later on when we become——"

The remainder of Fabien's sentence was left unfinished when the students in the courtyard loudly announced that the diligence was appearing down the road.

The soft green leaves danced gracefully on their swaying branches and gently brushed against the dusty diligence as it wound along the narrow road through the sunshine.

The fragrant pink blossoms from the flowering trees fluttered against the windows and mingled with the dust as the horses plodded on toward the Inn.

Spring seemed to feel that she had a rival inside the great coach. It was true. Nature never made a more beautiful creation than Manon Lescaut. Her face was fair—the kind that haunted and moved men's souls. Once a man saw her she lived always in his heart. She was truly feminine, yet so deliciously beautiful that she seemed unreal.

As the great bells in the Chapel tower made themselves heard above the rumble of the diligence, Manon suddenly stopped stroking the fluffy white kitten she held in her lap and a shadow fell across her face.

Her elder brother Andre Lescaut, resplendent in the gay uniform of the Guards, watched her narrowly from his sprawled out position on the other side of the diligence.

"What's the trouble, little sister? Are you already turning up your pretty nose at the thought of convent life?" Lescaut inquired quizzically.

"No, no, brother dear," Manon hastened to correct him, at the same time trying to control her trembling lips. "My only thought is to do as you wish and not worry you—because you are all I have."

Nevertheless, at the prospect of lonely convent life, Manon buried her face in the great pink bow on her kitten's neck so that her brother, and perhaps the other occupants of the diligence, would not see the tears that came in spite of her efforts to keep them back.

Lescaut shrugged his shoulders in utter indifference and settled down in his seat to enjoy the remainder of the journey. The death of their parents had left Manon in his care. She was seventeen and an incumbrance to his continued pursuit of pleasure if left on his hands in Paris.

Lescaut's experience with women was extensive—in one class. He knew only the women who lived by the violence of their desires. Jades exquisite only in their physical appeal. Women who were always ready to play the game of life for however much they could get out of it. A girl of Manon's fine sensibilities was a new creature to him and he treated her as a worthless inheritance to be put out of sight and mind at as small expense as possible.

But it was not destined that all men should consider Manon in this same light.

Until now she had had no contact with the world and its creatures. Her character was as beautiful and pure as her face. She thought the best of everyone and knew nothing of the existence of evil.

Manon's youth and loveliness had unconsciously lured and held the hungry eyes nd terest of the third passenger in the diligence. He was Comte De Ravoir, the elegantly dressed and retired Parisian Banker whose fifty years on earth had given him time to accumulate a vast fortune and to spend it on women who lavished the fever of their experienced caresses on him in return for money and jewels.

For a long while Comte De Ravoir had been surreptitiously watching Manon, over the top of his book, and his thoughts piled up something like this, "God, what a beauty! Young—untouched! Made and ready to be taught what a woman is for. She will deprive someone of great pleasure if her life is spent in a convent." Through narrowed lids his small eyes took in every detail of Manon's simple yet exquisitely girlish costume—from her charming floppy leghorn hat, her soft inexpensive gown exposing a perfect neck and arms that would have added to the lustre of precious jewels; down to her daintily pointed little slippers that extended below the billowy flounces of a fluffy gown.

DEMURE little vendors of lavender offered their wares amid the quaintness of 18th Century architecture, when Yardley's Old English Lavender Soap first began to soothe delicate complexions with its refining purity.

Yardley's of to-day is as delightful to use as it was then. It still preserves and enhances the natural beauty of the complexion, still imparts its lingering lovable fragrance.

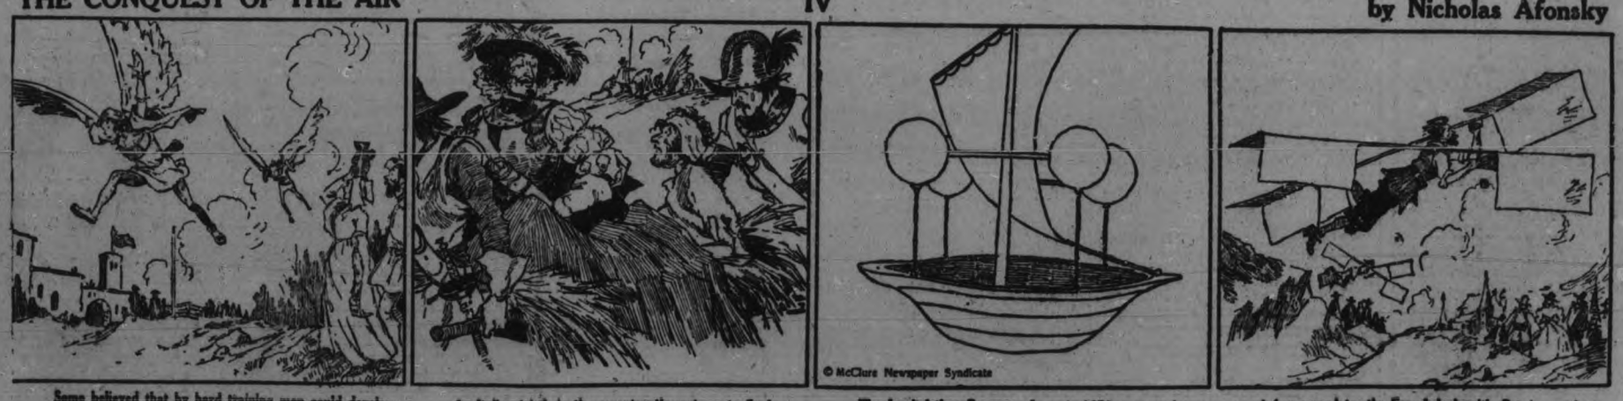
THE CONQUEST OF THE AIR — IV — by Nicholas Afonsky



Some believed that by hard training men could develop their relatively weak breast muscles, so that they could successfully use wings, and in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries many children were made to practice with wings, in the hope that one of them would develop such muscles that he would become a real bird man. Some, it is said, learned to skim along the ground in a sort of combination flying and running.

An Italian tried, in the seventeenth century, to fly from the battlements of Stirling Castle, in Scotland, to the shores of France. He made a sort of glider of feathers, and when he fell at the foot of the battlements and broke his thigh, he stoutly maintained that if he had used eagle feathers instead of those of the barnyard fowl his flight would have been successful.

The Jesuit father, Francesco Lana, in 1670, suggested an airship held up by hollow globes of copper, to be directed by oars and sails. The great error of this idea is the belief that a sail would be of any use in an airship.

A few years later the French locksmith, Besnier, made a flying machine of four collapsible planes held by rods over the shoulders. He did not try to rise with this machine, but many times he and his pupils floated with it safely down from some eminence.

VIEWS SHOWN OF SCULPTURE

Miss Frances Loring Gives Instructive Illustrated Address.

TO ART ASSOCIATION.

At the meeting of the Women's Art Association, held yesterday afternoon in the studio at the Conservatory of Music, Miss Frances Loring, of Toronto, gave an interesting illustrated lecture on "Sculpture." The speaker was introduced by the president, Mrs. Wm. Blackwell, who also tendered a hearty vote of appreciation at the close of the address. Afternon tea was served later.

Miss Loring's address copiously illustrated with slides operated by Mr. V. R. Henry, was based on a showing of the most famous pieces of work by the early Grecian sculptors, and by Michaelangelo Buonarotti and Rodin, with a few illustrations of the work of the moderns. Prefacing her address with an allusion to the fundamental difference displayed in the layman's and artist's point of view as to artistic worth in a painting or piece of sculture, Miss Loring said that the rule often advanced by people that they know what they like is not an infallible guide in true artistic perception or appreciation. She said that constant familiarity with the best work was one of the greatest helps in judging.

"Through all ages, the sculptor has sought for the fundamental truths of his time and sought to express these in his work. The great artist, like the great poet or musician, is always just a step ahead of his time."

Commencing with a few illustrations of the sculptured art of ancient Egypt, Miss Loring described it as a restricted art, which was held in the hands of the priests at the time, who laid down the rules by which artistic work should be executed, and made it mainly a mental effort, without the delineation of pleasure or emotion.

The Greeks, above all others expressed in their art the life and civilization of their time, and the main attributes of their sculptured work are joy and serenity, balance and light. They expressed in marble or bronze the athletic supremacy of their men and strove always for the upward-lifting element that appears in their art, with a free formation of figures that left space and air between the sections, in contrast to the block formation of groups that distinguished Michaelangelo.

Illustrations of Grecian art in sculpture included many of the famous and well known subjects, the Hermes of Praxiteles, the discus thrower, several of the caryatides and decorative figures from the Parthenon friezes, the Winged Victory of Samothrace, the Venus Adonis and Diana of the Chase.

A painting of Michaelangelo introduced his work, giving in his reproduction of the famous artist and sculptor an inkling of the sombre mood which fills his work. A sense of struggle of melancholy, a strong religious feeling and an aspiration toward the spiritual side of a life which was not happy for him here, with an emphasis on the shadows rather than the lights, a downward looking trend and groups "en bloc," were outstanding attributes of this famous sculptor's work, according to Miss Loring.

Some of the magnificent figures from the tomb of Lorenzo de Medici, the colossal figure of Moses and the symbolic figures representing "Night" and "Day" were shown, as examples of the great sculptor's work.

Rodin in profile, with a bust executed by himself, introduced the art of this modern, whose work was described by Miss Loring as a balance between the Grecian art and that of Michaelangelo, with an emotional stress in its delineations and a belief in the beauty of ugly things as exemplified in his "Man with the Broken Nose," in direct contradiction to the Grecian art.

The slides showed the strange conception by Rocin of "The Hand of God," of St. John the Baptist, with the great Forerunner's fanatical zeal depicted in the figure, straining forward to the invisible goal, in the melancholy group of the Burghers of Calais, surrendering the keys of their city to an invader, in the strange head of Balzac, and in the shrieking wrath of his Monument to War. His wonderful "Thinker," a figure taken from the conception of "The Gates of Hell," which was never completed by its creator, was an outstanding example of Rodin's work, which was followed by bits of the sculpture of his pupil, Bourdel of Jacob Epstein, of Augustus St. Gaudens, and of the Russian, Ivan Mestrovic, whose weird conceptions have an impressionistic trend.

The lovely children and bas relief work of Meunier, the Belgian, were shown with some of the queer female characterizations of the German, Vilhelm Lembrouck, and more of Mestrovic's ideas in a strangely animal-like Madonna with serpentine curves which Miss Loring declared were beautiful to the cultured eye. Between this artist's conception of the Madonna and the Magdalen no line could be drawn, unless one were inclined to see a little more virginity in the sculptured headdress of the latter.

The address and the pictures concluded with a representation of several of the notable monuments of the world executed in stone and bronze, and a picture of the gigantic Canadian War Memorial at Vimy Ridge, which is in process of completion by the creator Walter Allward, a Canadian, who is ranked by Miss Loring as being one of the best, if not the best of the moderns.

Placed in a glorified setting of bright blue and yellow paper, attractively arranged, the trophy is flanked by a tall basket of yellow marigolds with a tulle bow, and is surrounded by examples of cakes of various types.

ECHOES FROM YE OLD TYME CONCERT.

Someone has said that "clothes make the man," and we begin to wonder whether this is merely a platitude.

The dainty, be-frilled and billowing frocks of the lady artists achieved a charming effect which would not have been possible in the gowns of to-day, when modesty of dress and demeanor is almost old-fashioned.

The costumes of the gentlemen seemed to lend an air of old-time courtliness to the wearers, a sort of gallant and gay effect so very appropriate to the class of entertainment provided.

The graceful courtesying of the ladies was really delightful, and bespoke considerable practice as well as agility.

Who said that Peterborough audiences are cold and unresponsive?

Why, on Thursday night the applause was, to say the least, spontaneous, and at times almost vociferous.

To say that the audience enjoyed every item on the programme from "Jingle Bells' 'to the Sextette from Lucia, is putting it mildly.

They just couldn't get enough. They were positively avid—they "ate it up," they wanted more and more and still more.

But is it any wonder?

The concert was truly a delectable treat.

VERMONT FLOOD

hanging in the air with the earth all washed away. They do not know whether the road can be built there again, as it is a huge ravine now for hundreds of yards. Not until yesterday did we feel safe for the rain came on heavily again, and the Pittsford Dam, and Chittenden , from where all Rutland and Proctor gets its water supply, were threatened with breaking. Had they broken they say nothing would have saved us. We expected any time to get warning to go up to the mountain, and not to wait to take anything with us. Our marble bridge was expected to give way any minute ,and everyone was warned that they went across at their own risk. It has given way a little at one end ,but they have filled it in again.

"Every available man was called out on Thursday night to help move things from the basement of the stores. Some basement stores were filled with water to the ceiling and everything was ruined.

"There was only one house between us and the water, and garages were floating with small houses, and many trees uprooted. helped yesterday with the children and helped serve supper to seventy-five. They sleep in the school and eat at the parish house. There is no mail in or out and we have had no light until to-day. The people were taken out of their houses in boats, for it came so quickly and in the middle of the night. Proctor's loss is over a million. While none of the shops have collapsed they are all out of shape and will need quite a little done to them. The railroad to Canada is the worst; I do not see how it ever can be fixed. There was a flying machine over us on Sunday taking an inventory.

"There were two men marooned on the top of the milk train crying all night for help. No boat would attempt going to them for the water was raging so and there is a falls just beyond the bridge where they would have been swept over. They were got at from the other side some way, but were so exhausted that they had to be taken to the hospital. The milk train to Boston and New York was caught here and covered to the top with water. My milk woman lost thirty-nine hens by drowning, and the butcher seventy-five and another neighbor forty two, so you see we are right in the thick of it.

"We are in the valley at Proctor. Those on the hills on either side were all right. The cellars were filled with mud and slime but we have escaped that. Just four doors from us the water was up to the first floor. One man and a team of horses were drowned between here and Rutland. I baked all Saturday morning as there was so much needed. We are on rations for several articles, and all the water must be boiled. A woman died and for days they could not get an undertaker.

"The Inn grounds run to the creek, and it is all filled ground there, and the house has settled, and none of the doors will shut. In the house next to it the people had to move out in a hurry as it was all cracked. It is a good thing none of you people planned on this week-end for a trip here. It has seemed like a nightmare. There is a steady rush of cars past to see the wreck. Fourteen families are homeless."

STORIES OF KINDNESS.

Junior Humane Society Members Hear About Abraham Lincoln.

The Junior Humane Society held its bi-weekly meeting in St. John's Parish Hall on Thursday. The president was in the chair. The song, "Ring the Bells of Mercy," was sung by all ,and then the society pledge was repeated. There being no reports, the chairman called on Mrs. James Chandler, secretary of the Senior Society, who told two very interesting stories about Abraham Lincoln. One story was of the kindness of Mr. Lincoln when travelling across country as a lawyer, and how he helped a young bird in distress. The other story was about a visit to the headquarters of General Grant. The President noticed three very young kittens. He picked them up and stroked them ,and had the colonel called and ordered him to take good care of the young beasts.

Several new members took the pledge.

The song, "Cruel Acts and Dire Oppression," was next on the programme.

The chairman requested that the new members make a point to be on hand, together with the old members, at the next meeting on November 24th.

JURY'S REPORT RECOMMENDS REPAIRS FOR COURT HOUSE

Grand Jury Makes Formal Presentment at Cobourg Assizes.

JUSTICE GIVES APPROVAL.

Find Institutions of Durham and Northumberland Counties Efficiently Managed.

COBOURG, November 14. — When the grand Jury made its formal presentment to the court last week, there were strong recommendations for decorations and repair to the court house. Some of these were, decorations for the lobby, ventilation in the court room, and linoleum placed on the floor of the grand jury room. The sheriffs office was also named for redecoration. To these improvements, Justice Wright added his complete approval, and thanked the jury for calling attention to the defects.

The formal presentment returned by the foreman, F. J. Rosevear is as follows

To His Lordship, the Hon. Mr. Justice Wright: We, the grand jurors of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, beg leave to make the following presentment:

We thank your Lordship for the very helpful address and instructions given us at the opening of the court which aided us greatly in the discharge of our duties.

We regret the seriousness of the two cases which have come before us and are very sure that you will deal well and truly with the cases in hand.

We have visited the various institutions in Cobourg receiving grants from the United Counties and found each and every case under very efficient management, and the inmates receiving very kind and generous treatment.

We found at the county gaol ten inmates which is somewhat larger than previous years.

Redecorate Court House.

The court house is greatly in need of some interior decorations and we would suggest that some decorating be done in the lobby, the sheriff's room ,and also linoleum placed on the floor of the Grand Jury room; also the windows fixed to give proper ventilation.

The Cobourg Hospital, we found to be under very efficient management and equipped with the very best conveniences and well worthy of the generous support of the public.

At the House of Refuge we found the officials very proficient and every thing clean and in good order. In it there are 83 inmates at the present time, all apparently well satisfied. There are a number of rooms needing re-decorating, and we would suggest in some cases metallic ceilings. A number of the chairs are in bad repair. We would suggest the purchase of some new ones. The matron also stated that the facilities for drying are inadequate in the laundry. We would like to compliment the superintendent and his wife on the excellent work they are doing.

We find on visiting the asylum for the Insane that everything is in perfect condition, reflecting great credit on the officials nurses and the staff generally.

Ex-Pugilist Held On Robbery Charge

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press).— Stanley Meyers, former pugilist, who gave his address as the Men's Hotel, Buffalo, was arrested here yesterday for St. Catharines, Ont., police. Meyers is wanted in that city on a charge of robbery, first degree. He and another man, for whom a John Doe warrant was issued, are alleged to have held up a social club in St. Catharines on Sept. 10 and to have stolen $1,000 from patrons. The two men were armed, St. Catharines police say, and one discharged a revolver, the bullet going through the coat of one of the patrons of the club. Meyers will be held for extradition to St. Catharines.

HEAVY LOSSES IN HANKOW FIRE

Following Violent Disorders as General Tang Flees Before Nationalists.

CONCESSIONS BARRICADED.

HANKOW, November 14 (Canadian Press). — The violent disorder that broke out in the native quarter of Hankow on Saturday, when the militator, General Seng-Chi,, fled before the approach of the Nanking Nationalists, continued yesterday, but with diminished intensity.

The many tremendous fires that were started by the fleeing soldiers were partially under control, and some semblance of order replaced the panic that followed the outrages perpetrated by hordes of leaderless soldiers and civilian looters.

General Tang Seng-Chi and his followers are retreating westward.

The yare entrenching in Hanyang.

Army headquarters situated in the former British concession, set on fire on Saturday, blazed for three hours. Serious damage was done to the customs house next door.

The British, German, and Russian concessions were strongly barricaded. Chinese occupying the Russian concession attempted to repulse the soldier and civilian looters, but without great success.

The Japanese and French landed additional forces, but up to yesterday morning the British had not acted.

Tang Seng-Chi's deputy commander, seeking to assert his authority, issued a proclamation declaring that "as the commander is absent, I, with the 30th Army, will maintain order and safety at Wuchang."

No attention was paid to the proclamation, and the outlook is most uncertain.

Among other buildings set on fire and looted by the followers of Tang Seng-Chi and the civilian mob was the general labor union building. A guard which had been placed on this building fired in the air, hoping thus to disperse the rioters, but their action was futile. All persons within the guilding and the guards themselves were stripped of their valuables and clothing.

AROUND THE CITY.

The Lakefield flier suffered a slight derailment where the C.N.R. tracks intersect Birmingham street. For some peculiar reason a short length of rail was badly twisted. Fortunately the train was stopped before any serious accident occurred. With the aid of a few placers and the yard engine the train was soon able to proceed to the station.

Soviet Russia Is Not Interested In League of Nations Membership

MOSCOW, Russia, Nov. 14 (A.P.). — In a statement to some eighty foreign delegates to the World Congress of Friends of Soviet Russia, Joseph Stalin, whose title is "Secretary-General of the Communist Party," but who is actually the head of the Russian Government, yesterday gave Russia's viewpoint on a number of questions which were sumbitted to him.

He declared that Soviet Russia was not interested in League of Nations membership, because of her unwillingness to take responsibility for the League's imperialistic policy.

Replying to a question as to why Russia did not have liberty of the press, Stalin said: "If you mean liberty for the bourgeoisie, my answer is that we have not any. If you mean liberty of the proletarian press, there isn't a country in the world where the workers have such wide liberty of the press as in Soviet Russia."

After stating that amalgamation of the second and third internationals was impossible Stalin diagnosed the political situation in Western Europe as critical, saying that although partial capitalistic capitalization was possible, capitalism would never return to its prewar firmness.

The reaction to the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti offers the most glaring evidence of the growing discontent among the workers," he added.

When one of the delegates inquired as to its attitude towards the opposition, Stalin cited Alphonse Daudet's novel, "Tartarin de Tarascon," saying "You remember how Tartarin's bragging ended scandalously? The bragging of the opposition leaders will wind up in similar confusion and scandal."

TWO NEW BOOKS ARE DEDICATED

Hymn Book and Bible Placed in St. Paul's as Memorials.

FOR MRS. MOORE.

In the course of the service on Sunday morning in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, a simple event took place, reminding the congregation of the thoughtfulness and love which imbued the donors. Mr. Allan, referring to the new pulpit equipment, remarked that the daughters of the late Mrs. Isabell Moore, Mrs. John Comstock and Mrs. Wilbert Regan, had presented a Book of Praise for use in the pulpit, the inscription on the beautiful leather-bound volume reading:

In Loving and Devoted Memory of the late
Isabell Moore
who passed away
February 11th, 1925.
Presented by her Daughters
In the Year of our Lord, 1927.

As a further mark of affection for the late Mrs. Moore, the Ladies Aid presented a handsome pulpit Bible, of stately dimensions and handsome design, the inscription being as follows:

In loving and devoted memory of the late
Isabell Moore
who passed away
February 11th, 1925.
Presented by
The Ladies' Aid of St. Paul's
Presbyterian Church, Peterborough,
Canada.
In the Year of our Lord, 1927.

Rev. Mr. Allan, in a dedicatory prayer, invoked God's blessing on the gifts and donors, and setting apart the Bible and Book of Praise for use in the service of His House.

DRIFTS ALL NIGHT ON SMALL ICE CAKE

Lake Winnipeg Fisherman Rescued By Steamer After Trying Ordeal.

WINNIPEG, November 14. — Canadian Press. — After being marooned on a large cake of ice in Lake Winnipeg, for many hours, Dan Maas, a fisherman, was rescued late on Saturday by the S. S. Wolverine.

Maas was in an exhausted condition when rescued. He spent all night Friday on the ice cake after a vain attempt to reach shore, and was twice emersed in the cold lake waters.

While fishing he became separated from his small boat. The boat was caught in the drifting ice and carried away. Stormy conditions with an exceptionally high wind, prevailed at the time, and his attempts to reach shore or the boat proved ineffectual. During the night he drifted five miles on the ice cake.

EXPLOSION OF BIG GAS TANK KILLS OR INJURES HUNDREDS; PROPERTY DAMAGE IS HEAVY

Pieces of Big Pittsburgh Structure Are Scattered For Many Blocks.

BUILDINGS WRECKED.

Explosion Occurs in Midst of Thickly Populated North Side of City.

PITTSURG, Nov. 14 (Canadian Press) Fourteen persons were known to have met death and more than five hundred were injured, some seriously, here today when a giant natural gas storage tank at the Manchester Works of the Equitable Gas Company exploded, spreading death and destruction over an area one mile square. Firemen, police, and volunteer workers were digging into the ruins of scores of buildings in the belief that others had been killed and their bodies buried in the debris.

Workmen Used Torch

While the exact cause of the explosion was undetermined, it was said that Gas Company workmen were repairing a section of the tank with a blow torch when the blast occurred.

Stunned at first by the extent of the castastrophe. Pittsburg soon collected itself and before noon relief agencies were hard at work rendering aid. Every available Red Cross nurse was at the scene and rescue workers of the organization were summoned from all parts of the country.

Firemen who reached the scene of the explosion within a few minutes found several bodies, and newspapermen at the scene said they had counted at least twenty dead in the streets and wrecked houses. Firemen, police and volunteer workers expressed the belief that scores of persons, in their homes and in the factories of the region, had been trapped when the buildings collapsed. Every hospital in the city was crowded with injured. The Presbyterian Hospital reported that more than one hundred persons had been treated for cuts and other wounds there.

The first warning the city had of the disaster was a terrific shock. At first it was thought an earthquake had visited the district. Firemen, not knowing just what had occurred, started the motors of the fire apparatus and stood ready to respond at the first alarm. When a fire box near the scene sounded the first company dashed for the district and when the district captain saw what had happened he sounded a general alarm.

Firemen said that when they reached the scene, they found scores of terrified men, women and children running about the streets.

It is estimated by hospital officials that between five and six hundred were injured, some seriously. The Gas Works were said to employ more than three hundred men, but just how many of these were at work at the time was not known. It was feared the death list would grow to a great extent because many of those in the hospitals were reported in a critical condition. The doctors said that many of the victims had suffered internal hurts. Several hours after the blast occurred rescuers were finding it hard to get into the centre of the wrecked district. In the midst of the section was the city asphalt plant and here, it was reported, fifteen employees had been killed or injured.

The huge tank ,with its steel frame work, was ripped asunder, sections of the steel supports being hurled many blocks. Property damage was widespread, even in down town Pittsburgh, where business buildings and department store windows were blown out, and a general alarm of fire summoned firemen, police and ambulances. They found it difficult to fight their way into the immediate region of the explosion, but one glimpse of the thickly settled district showed that many buildings were wrecked. The first injured were picked up from streets adjacent to the scene. They had been struck by flying debris.

Eye witnesses said that after the first explosion a ball of fire sailed into the air several hundred feet and burst with a deafening roar. Houses caved in, streets were ripped up, and telephone and electric wires torn down. Water pipes, buried deep in the streets, were ripped out.

Several blocks away two hundred school children were standing in a school yard, ready to enter the building. Practically every window in the school was shattered and many of the pupils were cut by flying glass. Flooded streets, strewn with wreckage, hampered the work of police and firemen. Their task was made more hazardous by dangling electric wires, but finally the current was cut off and they entered the district.

The gas tank which exploded was said by gas experts to be the largest storage tank in the world, holding 5,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas. Owned by the Equitable Gas Company, the tank was used for emergency storage purposes The gas was piped from south-west fields and stored in the tank, being released when the regular pressure fell below normal. A twin tank of the one that exploded, located nearby, did not let go.

Finds Father Dead

Summoned to the scene of the disaster, Ray Michaels, emergency electric linesman, stumbled over the body of a man in the street. He halted, turned the body over, and looked into the fact of his father, C. F. Michaels, Superintendent of the wrecker gas works. The son accompanied the remains to the morgue.

Grain Boat Sinks In Welland Canal

BUFFALO, N.Y., Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press).— Word has been received here that the steamer Rosemount of the Canada Steamship Company lines sank yesterday in the Welland Canal below lock Number 25 at Thorold, Ont. The boat was en route from Buffalo to Montreal with 80,000 bushels of grain. It is not in the channel and canal navigation will not be blocked.

Nearly all steamers at this end of Lake Erie have been tied up during the past 12 hours on account of heavy westerly gales.

LABOR CENSURE TO BE MOVED ON WEDNESDAY

Ramsay MacDonald To Introduce Motion Rebuking Cabinet.

NOT EXPECTED TO PASS.

Mine Troubles Basis of Labor Resolution—Beaverbrook Angers Operators.

LONDON, Nov. 14 (United Press). —Labor's attack upon the Baldwin Government, which is to be launched on Wednesday, is being awaited with great interest. Ramsay Macdonald will move a formal vote of censure, charging the Government with failure to apply the report of the Herbert Samuel Committee, outlining plans for the re-organization of the coal mining industry. Labor wishes to saddle the government with the responsibility for the large unemployment figures and the great distress now prevalent in many mining areas and will demand that immediate action be taken to develop adequate agencies for selling coal and to take steps toward the amalgamation of colleries which cannot be operated economically under present conditions.

There is little expectation that Labor's motion will be carried but the debate may serve to reveal divisions in the Conservative party with regard to the coal problem. It will also give Lloyd George an opportunity to outline the mining policy of the Liberal party which promises to be the most important plank in their platform at the next election.

Lord Beaverbrook's campaign for a hundred per cent amalgamation of all the colleries into one great merger has aroused the mine owners and a large section of the Conservative party to strong antagonism.

The mine owners bitterly denounce Beaverbrook as an ignorant meddler who knows nothing about the mining industry and the newspaper peer does not mince words in his replies, and apparently has in his attitude the sympathy of the advance section of the Tories.

The Government's obvious answer to Ramsay Macdonald's attack on its mine policy is that Labor's troubles are due to the bad leadership of A. J. Cook and to the failure of the Labor organization as a whole to check his radical and disastrous policy. While this is a good debating point, Mr. Baldwin and his Cabinet realize that argument will not solve this problem and if existing conditions continue, it is certain to cost the Government thousands of voters during the next election and may swing the majority of the industrial constituencies directly against them.

HOSTILE PAPER HELPS MINERS

ON ROAD AGAIN.

SWINDON, England, November 14 (Canadian Press). — New "Coxey's Army," after warming their hands at a bonfire formed by a pile of copies of the London Daily Mail, which is vigorously anti-Red, took to the road for Hungerford, fifteen miles from here, early to-day . A. J. Cook, secretary of the Miners' Federation and organizer of the march to protest against unemployment, started for London to-day by train.

Plane Flying West Seen Over Atlantic

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (Canadian Press).—The Radio Corporation of America announced receipt of a radiogram at 10.50 a.m. today from the master of the French liner, Ile de France, at sea, reporting the sighting of a white airplane "travelling very high overhead.

The Radio Company said the French captain reported the plane was travelling west northwest. The ship's position was given as latitude 42.22 north, longitude 61.05 west, or about one hundred miles south southwest of Sable Island.

MUCH BUILDING IN LATE SEASON

Continuance of Fine Weather Results in New Work Being Started.

TWO MORE HOUSES.

The fine weather this fall has prolonged building operations much longer than usual. There has been a steady demand in the City Engineer's office for building permits. During the first two weeks of November building operations have commenced on two new dwelling-houses five private garages, a service station, and a public garage, also four miscellaneous buildings.

J. A. Fry is building an eight-room two-storey house on Weller Street for the Toronto Savings and Loan Company. The estimated cost is $6,500. R. Henry is building a two-storey six-room house at 262 Stewart Street at an estimated cost of $3,000.

DERAILMENT DELAYS TRAINS

C. N. R. Has To Route Toronto-Montreal Traffic Via Ottawa.

FREIGHT CARS OFF.

BROCKVILLE, Nov. 14 (Canadian Press).—The derailment yesterday, near Cardinal Station, of thirteen cars attached to an east-bound Canadian National freight train, blocking both tracks of the main line, caused a tie up of traffic in this vicinity, it being found necessary to route through passenger trains via Napanee and Ottawa and to run auxiliary trains for the convenience of passengers in the Belleville-Brockville district. Both tracks were cleared at midnight last night.

TEAM HITS TREE; ONE HORSE KILLED

Stirling Man Loses Valuable Animal In Runaway on Saturday.

STIRLING, November 14. — On Saturday afternoon Charles Vance's team became frightened while standing in front of Walter Wright's grocery, and started eastward on Mill Street at a lively pace, but only reached the corner at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, where they came in collision with a maple tree with such force that one of the horses was instantly killed. The loss is considerable, as Mr. Vance valued this animal highly.

Goods sent from this country in India in the past year are valued at four times those sent in the 12 months just before the World War.

HEINKEL PLANE FALLS INTO SEA AT HOP-OFF ON ATLANTIC FLIGHT

CREW RESCUED.

Junkers Seaplane D-1230 Has Postponed Further Attempts For Take-off.

HORTA, Island of Fayal, Azores, November 14. — The Heinkel hydro-aeroplane D-1220 lay a mass of twisted wreckage in the harbor of this seaport yesterday as a result of the latest of a series of accidents that beset her since taking off from Warnemuendo, Germany Oct. 12, for the United States via the Azores. The crew was rescued uninjured.

Taking advantage of almost perfect flying weather, the D-1220 in command of Horet Merz, took the air at 3 o'clock yesterday morning with Harbor Grace, Nfld, as its objective. After circling around a few times in the engine warming process the plane headed for the open sea, and almost immediately the engines suddenly stopped and there was a terrific splash.

A motor boat with an Associated Press correspondent was in attendance at the take off and rushed full speed to the scene where the crew was found swimming uninjured in the gasoline covered water.

Plane Wrecked.

A launch succeeded in getting the partly submerged plane in tow and reached shore where it was found to be a total wreck. The pontoons were completely wrecked and one wing was missing.

The commander of the ill-fated plane and his companions, William Bock, radio operator, and Fritz Rhode, the mechanic, have not yet decided what their next step will be. It was announced however that the Junkers' seaplane D-1230, which also has been at Horta, awaiting favorable weather to hop off for the United States, has postponed further attempts to hop off. Both the D-1220 and the D-1230 are backed by the Hamburg-American Steamship line, in an effort to demonstrate the practicability of trans-atlantic flying.

The D-1220 has as a passenger Lilli Dillenz, a Viennese actress, who was reported yesterday as being very anxious to continue on to America, despite the crash of the D-1220.

NOT TRY NON-STOP FLIGHT.

BERLIN, November 14 (Canadian Press). — Mrs. Frances Wilson Grayson, who was compelled to abandon an air flight from Orchard Beach, Me., to Copenhagen, because of bad weather and motor trouble, has no desire now to make any non-stop flights across the Atlantic.

"No non-stop flights across the ocean for me," she told the Associated Press, on Saturday upon her arrival in Berlin to confer with Mrs. Mabel Ancker, of Copenhagen, her financial backer. "It was my idea from the beginning that we should make stops en route from the United States to Denmark, but my pilot overruled me. Studies of the air and ocean currents while I was crossing on the Majestic convinced me more than ever that the development of aviation can only be served by flying over the Atlantic in several hops.

"I am just as determined as ever to fly my aeroplane, the 'Dawn,' to Copenhagen. Our three attempts provided excellent lessons from which I profited a great deal."

Referring to her reasons for leaving the United States a week ago, Mrs. Grayson said: "I wanted to get away from the Dawn and all connected with it for a while so I could get a new perspective on it. Then, too, I felt I ought to confer with Mrs. Ancker who ,unlike most women, has not dropped our project, but continues to back me.

"Berlin seemed especially important for me to see, as it is one of the world's principal aviation centres. The wisdom of coming to Berlin has already been demonstrated by the fact that Director Otto Merkel, of Lufthanea, the German aeroplane operating company, told me his company has an aerodrome in Iceland, where we can land and refuel. I knew nothing about this before.

"I probably shall go to Copenhagen also to study landing conditions there. I hope to start for the United States in eight or ten days, and on arrival there immediately begin operations for crossing back to Europe by air.

"It is nonsense to say you can't fly in winter. An expedition like ours, if it is worth anything at all, must be so organized that we can go independently of seasons."

HE'S NO ISAAC NEWTON.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14. — Howard Rhoades, of Columbus, Ohio, was walking along State street when a pear, descending from the window of an office building, struck him on the head. Fortunately the pear was soft, but Rhoades was "out" for 14 seconds by actual count.

A shark eight feet long was recently caught in a net in the River Hooghly, Bombay, and presented to the Asiatic Museum in Calcutta.

Much Public Opinion Stirred By Court Martial of M. Manoilescu

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Nov. 14 (A.P.).—Rumanian public opinion is profoundly stirred by the court martial of Mihail Manoilescu, former Under-Secretary, charged with conspiring to bring former Crown Prince Carol back to Rumania and put him on the throne.

The proceedings of the court martial thus far have proved a revelation. Manoilescu's brilliant oratory has served in the minds of the people to bring as much credit to Carol as discredit to certain political methods of Rumania. Although the case has been in progress for only two days, it is already replete with dramatic developments, giving new light to the country's troubled dynastic situation.

The evidence of Manoilescu and others has been given with the object of showing that Carol had the interests of the country deeply at heart and that his abdication was not due to any personal idiosyncrasies, but to his treatment by M. Bratianu, now Premier. Scores of spectators and two of the military judges wept when the defendant declared how the Premier prevented realization of the dying request which King Ferdinand repeatedly uttered to see his eldest son.

The public is clamoring to see the document which Manoilescu and other witnesses alleged Carol wrote to the King, giving the inside reasons for his renunciation. This has been omitted from the Government's pamphlet, containing the text of documents affirming Carol's renunciation.

LOCAL BRANCH HOLDS BANQUET

Prudential Life Assurance Staff Holds Annual "Get-Together" Banquet.

SEVERAL ADDRESSES.

The Peterborough branch of the Prudential Life Assurance Company held their annual "get-together" banquet at the Paragon on Saturday evening. With but one or two exceptions all the local staff and the wives of the married members sat down to a sumptuously prepared repast. During the dinner hour strains of melody dispensed by Fallis's orchestra enlivened proceedings. Several excellent vocal numbers were rendered between courses.

Fine music, harmonizing decorations, splendid service and a flow of genial and general conversation at the tables; humorous addresses, witty repartee, and the appropriate sentiment throughout the program; the climax of enjoyment capped by mutual sociability through the medium of cards and dancing made everyone acquainted with one another until the whole scene represented that of a large family gathering. That such might be the result was the purpose of the evening and so successful was it that everyone left feeling that newer and stronger links of loyalty and friendship had been forged which should be still another and a better augury for the continued prosperity of the company.

The district superintendent, J. I. Allen occupied the chair and opened the program with a breezy and informal address which radiated an infectious spirit of good fellowship that was quite resistless and set the assembled company completely at their ease. His diplomatic phraseology and humorous touches bespoke a fertile imagination of the first order, and provoked round after round of laughing comment.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Cook were the guests of honor and when Mr. Cook was called upon for a few remarks he launched out in his inimitable manner with a series of anecdotes, finally concluding with a brief dissertation on business ethics, wherein he highly praised the business men of to-day in general and those engaged in the vital problem of life insurance in particular. There is no one, he said, who takes a keener and more intelligent interest in a person's affairs than the insurance man. Moreover a dollar invested in life insurance will go farther in these modern days than if expended in any other manner. Comparing the advance in business men during the last few decades he terminated his speech with in verse form a narrative of the business men of to-day.

Several others were called on for short speeches. The entire program scintillated with sparkling stories and glittering gems of "wit, wisdom and humour."

Assassination Attempt Made Against Obregon

NOGALES, Ariz., Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press)—An attempt was made in Mexico City yesterday to assassinate Alvaro Obregon, sole remaining presidential candidate, said a telegram received in Nogales, Sonora, Mex., last night by Obregon's wife.

The telegram received by Senora Obregon said that a bomb exploded close to the machine in which Obregon and a party of friends were riding. No one was injured. The attempt was made, the message said, while the party was driving in the Chapultepec Palace grounds in Mexico City.

ARMISTICE DAY ANNIVERSARY IS OBSERVED AT LAKEFIELD

Schools Take Part in Public Ceremony Before Cenotaph.

HONOR ROLL READ.

Several Addresses Given in Town Hall—Large Attendance.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 14.—Armistice Day was fittingly celebrated in Lakefield on Friday morning, November 11, when a public military celebration was held, beginning at 10.30 a.m. with a monster parade, which formed on the grounds of the Lakefield Public School, and proceeded down Chippewa Street to Strickland Street and west to Queen Street, and from there to the grounds of the Lakefield Memorial Hall.

The parade was headed by the Citizens' Band in uniform, followed by the guard of honor in service khaki and tin hats, then the members of the local branch of the Canadian Legion, then the children of the public school in the order of their rooms, with each room in charge of its teacher, then the High School girls and boys, and lastly, the boys of "The Grove" School. It was an imposing parade of the youth of Lakefield, who were being taught by the object-lesson of the ceremony what Armistice Day meant and why poppies were bought and worn. It was a long march, but not even the "tiny ones" flagged. Every head was up and every little one felt the importance of his individual part in the great parade. The streets were lined with spectators, who followed the flags and the children to the hall. On the grounds of the Market Square was erected a temporary cenotaph, being in gold on its white surface a cross of sacrifice. The guard of honor, Comrades Arthur Barker, Fred Cutting, Alfred Hudson and Edward Tighe, were in command of Comrade Laurence Charlton, and as they took their places Dr. M. P. Kennedy opened the morning's ceremony with a few timely remarks, stating that the procession and ceremonial were in no way intended for military display but in commemoration of the fallen comrades whose memory they wished to honor.

The secretary of the Lakefield branch of the Legion, Comrade Kenneth A. Mackenzie, read the honor roll of Lakefield's dead sons, the large crowd standing in reverent silence: Arthur Aldred, Frank Armstrong, John Armstrong, Dalling Barlee, Edward Blomfield, Herbert Calberry, Roland Carter, Keith Cumberland, Bruce Edwards, Arthur Frankish, John Halifax, Isaac Hampton, Geoffrey Hilliard, Wilfrid Hull, Joseph Jamieson, Maxwell Johnson, Theodore Johnson, Stanley Kidd, Percy Lemay, Sherman Mahood, Noble Milburn, John Morris, Herbert Nicholls, Philip Pattrick, George Rowe, Howard Rowe, William Rowe, Joseph Sabatino, Ira Snelgrove, George Strickland, R. D. Strickland, Herbert Stuart, Charles R. White, Royden Wilson, Leonard Wingett.

The Last Post was sounded by Comrade Scott, Peterboro. The band played "O Canada" and "The Maple Leaf." The siren announced the beginning of the two-minute silence, which was probably the most impressive part of an impressive event. Memory went back to those who, in the heydey of their young manhood, had answered the call of King and country and gave all even to life itself. The veterans placed their poppies on the cenotaph, and W. H. Casement and Master Harding Stuart (only son of the late Herbert Stuart) placed wreaths also. The playing of the National Anthem brought the outdoor part of the ceremony to a close. The large concourse of people repaired to the Town Hall, where addresses were given. The hall was filled to capacity. The inclement weather apparently did not affect the attendance.

On the platform were seated the speakers, the officers of the Legion, the guard of honor and Comrades S. Whatley and J. Scott of Peterboro, and J. H. Higgins of Toronto. Dr. M. P. Kennedy was in the chair and announced the speakers.

W. H. Casement thanked the Legion for the honor of asking him to speak on the day of memory. It is only fitting that all citizens, including the children, should unite in observing the two-minute silence. One's thoughts go back to the day nine years ago, when Lakefield, in common with all Canada, rejoiced. The speaker closed by saying he hoped that we would never forget the fallen or those who did return.

Colonel T. J. Johnston of Peterboro, the beloved O.C. of the 93rd (Peterboro County) Battalion, was the next speaker. He too expressed consciousness of the honor in being asked to have a part in the celebration. No one in Peterboro County knows men better than the speaker, who recruited fully one-third of the enlisted men of the county. Those men offered their lives in the service of their country, some come back and some did not. Have we ever measured the sacrifices made in the homes of those men? Too many are not getting sufficient compensation, but the governments can only go as far as public opinion is behind them. Some people, whose sons lie in Flanders Fields need assistance. The men never ask more than is coming to them. The speaker said he would rather command a thousand soldiers than a hundred civilians, for soldiers are men of courage, and courage and kindness go hand in hand. A professor in Peter-

WINNIPEG WHEAT

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 13.—(Canadian Press.)—In the most active session of the past month, wheat prices recovered from their gradual descent yesterday, scoring gains of 2 3-8 to 2¼c. over Friday's closing quotations.

The early strength was inspired by sharply higher Liverpool cables, but the bullish movement was principally due to the Canadian government crop estimate which placed the 1927 yield for Canada at 140,000,000 bushels below the September estimate.

An excellent volume of export business was worked. Commission houses and spreaders also were quite active.

Rye continued as a feature of the coarse grain markets, scoring a gain of 2¼c. at the peak. Germany was the principal buyer. A fair demand also developed for oats and barley.

London May Reject Revised Prayer Book

LONDON, Nov. 14 (A.P.)—The possibility of Parliament rejecting the revised Book of Common Prayer is foreshadowed in a declaration made by the Home Secretary, Sir William Joynson-Hicks, who is expected to be the principal spokesman for the Evangelical party when the issues come before Parliament in a few weeks.

The Home Secretary urges reference back to the Church Assembly, which, he says, might in the meantime embody in a separate measure those parts of the new Prayer Book about which there is almost general agreement. He argues that there is no finality about the revision, and no undertaking that the Bishops will enforce compliance with the new book. It will inevitably be used, adds the secretary, as a jumping-off ground for further demands from those who advocate and adopt "Romanizing practice."

MINERS SPEND IDLE SABBATH

Unemployed Marching on London Rest Up After Long Tramp.

PRACTICE REBEL SONG.

SWINDON, England, November 14 (Associated Press). — The march of the unemployed was halted yesterday and the marchers spent most of Sunday taking it easy and practising marching songs, which they will sing through the London streets. One, the "Rebel Song," was supplied in printed form to each hiker. It opens thus:

"Come, workers, sing a rebel song,
A song of love and hate;
Of love unto the lowly
And of hatred to the great—
The great who tread our fathers down,
Who steal our children's bread,
Whose hand of greed is stretched to rob
The living and the dead."

After their long tramp over the country roads, the marchers were more interested yesterday in giving their feet a rest than doing any sightseeing, despite the fact that this region abounds in numerous historic relics which tourists travel miles to see.

The "army" continued to-day toward the great Metropolis.

A. J. Cook himself, secretary of the Miners' Federation, and organizer of the valiant band of unemployed, led the marchers on Saturday night into this little old town which King Charles I. helped to get on its feet by granting it the right to hold a great fair. Mrs. Cook also was in the ranks, and she tramped as bravely as any of them.

The army left Chippenham on Saturday morning for Swindon, and the Cooks joined the procession at Wootton Bassett, where the men left the train after a ten-mile ride which made it possible for the hikers to reach Swindon by nightfall.

The men slept on Saturday night in buildings adjoining the municipal swimming pool. Mr. and Mrs. Cook remained over Sunday, but the miners' secretary must hurry back to London by to-day. He will therefore march no more

PETER SIMON ACQUITTED OF MANSLAUGHTER

Oshawa Man Also Freed on Counts of Reckless Driving and Negligence.

ONLY DEFENCE WITNESS.

Absence of Other Occupants of Ward's Car Commented On By Defence.

The prisoner was acquitted after the evidence was heard in the case of Peter Simon, charged with manslaughter before the Hon. Mr. Justice Wright in the Supreme Court at the Cobourg Assizes on Friday.

Dr. S. P. Wilson, Oshawa, was the first witness to be called. His evidence was short. He merely told of having been at the scene of the accident, and finding the body of Mrs. Brown in the ditch. On so doing he had called Dr. Rundle, Oshawa, the coroner, and the body was ordered taken to the morgue. Dr. Wilson did not think that death was due to injuries but to shock. The woman had received, besides several minor injuries, a broken leg and a serious scalp wound.

At exactly fifteen minutes to ten Peter Simon was called to the stand to answer the questions of his counsel, Mr. Swanson, of Oshawa. As he spoke very little English, counsel's request that David Prusky be allowed to act as interpreter, was granted by the bench. Through his interpreter, Simon told how he had borrowed the car from Prusky picked up his friend Philip Pritchard, and gone to Green's. Later he parted company with Pritchard, and went to call on friends at Newtonville. He was returning from there when his car struck the parked machine. He explained that he had turned out to pass the car, but that the door was open and he had struck it. Asked what part of his car had struck the other, he said it was the front fender, and that he had not stopped, although he had put his foot on the brake to do so. As his reason for this he stated that he had heard someone swearing and was afraid they would want to fight.

Questioned further witness stated that he had driven as far as Courtice and turned around to return to the scene of the accident. After he had gone about a mile and a half his car stopped, and he found there was no water in the radiator. An east bound car passed him at the time and one of the occupants asked him if he had seen a car passing, and told him that a woman had been killed on the highway. He admitted that this news had frightened him into abandoning the car, and walking to Newtonville, where the police found him the following day.

"When the police found you they say your clothes were torn and dirty. How do you explain that?" Accused stated that every time a car approached him he had hidden in the ditch till it had passed. Regarding the matter of drink, witness stated that he had had nothing to drink on the night of the accident. When he arrived in Newtonville he stayed at a friend's home till the afternoon when he went down town to await a bus. While waiting he entered a garage and fell asleep in one of the cars there.

"At the time your car hit the door of the parked auto, did you see anybody on the road?" was the last question which his counsel asked. "No," was the reply, and Mr. Sinclair, for the prosecution, rose to examine the prisoner.

You were going toward the car parked in front of the house that Jack Built and saw the lights of the car?—Yes.

You were going east?—Yes.

Why did you not turn out as you passed the car?—I did turn out.

Further questions revealed that the witness (accused) was travelling at about twenty-five miles an hour, and that he did not feel or hear anything else other than the car hitting the door. His one front headlight was out, he said.

Now it has been said that Mrs. Brown's body was found in the ditch 80 feet from where she was struck. Are you sure you did not put it there?—Yes.

You did not see anybody? You did

Says British Trade In Very Sad Plight

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA, England, Nov. 14.—(A.P.)—In a campaign speech, countering the recent claim of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Winston Churchill, that British trade was improving, former Premier Lloyd George Saturday put the position of British trade as being in a very sad plight.

If the country were progressing, as Mr. Churchill claimed, it was the advance of a treadmill, said Mr. Lloyd George, "you walk without advancing, and if you slacken, you are flung back and hit on the head."

("Trade records of the last ten months," continued the former premier, "prove that Great Britain's trade balance has completely disappeared, and I challenge anybody to deny it. Immense tracts of the world's populated territory are closed to British trade, including Russia and the greater part of China, and the cotton trade never was no bad probably since the American civil war."

Blaming the government policy for closing Russia, and contending that nations should not ask for a Sunday school certificate before trading with a country, Mr. Lloyd George exclaimed: "Why, Great Britain has been trading with cannibals. It was the Empire that opened up cannibal traffic."

Runaway Coal Barge Brought Back to Port

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Nov. 14 (Canadian Press)—A barge which broke loose from its tug Saturday in the storm which swept down on Lake Ontario from the west and a coastguard lifeboat, which put out to aid the barge, were safe in port last night

The barge, the Quebec, with a cargo of coal, was lost by the tug, Joseph Russell. The tug steamed to shore and notified the Summerville station of the coastguard.

Mate Lindsay with a crew of six men, launched a small power lifeboat and picked the barge up seven miles from Braddock's light. The car ferry Ontario II., bound from Cobourg, Ont., to the Port of Rochester, put a line aboard the barge and brought her to port The coastgusrd boat followed in the wake of the barge. At first the lifeboat was not sighted by the station lookout who expressed fears that his fellows might have been lost.

Secure I rest upon the wave,
For Thou, O Lord! hast power to save.
I know Thou wilt not slight my all,
For Thou dost mark the sparrow's fall;
And calm and peaceful shall I sleep
Rocked in the cradle of the deep.

WESTWOOD CHURCH HOLDS FOWL SUPPER

Annual Social of United Church Is Great Success.

WESTWOOD, Nov. 14.—The annual fowl supper of St. Andrew's United Church, held on Wednesday evening in connection with the Thanksgiving services, was very successful. A large number of people were served, the ladies of the congregation receiving many compliments on the abundance and quality of the good things provided.

Following the supper a splendid program was given in the Town Hall. Those who were fortunate enough to be among the first served were very pleasantly entertained by the Munro orchestra of Warsaw until the program commenced. Rev. S. H. Moyer was chairman and spoke a few words of welcome to all present. Outside talent contributed largely to the program and included the Munro orchestra, Rev. Mr. Herrington of Warsaw, Prof. Edwards of Norwood, Miss Phyllis Moore of Peterboro and the male quartette of Norwood, all of which were well received and earned hearty applause.

"One Lady Godiva Or Six" Is Question Agitating Chicago Arts Ball Committee

CHICAGO, November 14 (Canadian Press). — The Arts Ball Committee on Lady Godiva was called to-day to see what's to be done about her.

Lady Godiva, surely the legend comes quickly to mind, was the noble woman who for a promise of relief to the poor rode sans attire through Coventry.

The crux of the thing is this. The Chicago Arts Ball Committee, seeking lots of customers for the annual event, hit upon the not so new but generally successful idea that the injection of something a bit risque would create the desired public discussion pro and con, with a resultant sale of all tickets.

But the argument among the committeemen got off to such a good start that the Lady Godiva enthusiasts became genuine crusaders ,and now there are those who insist upon not one but seven Godivas.

Benjamin H. Marshall and A. N. Rebori, architects and committee members, said the ball would fall flat with the classic reproduction.

"Certainly," said Mr. Marshall, "we should have Godiva. The legend is very beautiful. Her appearance on a white horse at the ball will be an artistic achievement.

"Rebori's idea is one Godiva. I am advocating six more. One will be Lady Godiva, horse and all. The others will be Godivas on foot, posing in frame. All will wear blonde wigs."

Wheat Continues Downward Trend

CHICAGO, Nov. 14. — (Canadian Press.)— With the Argentine harvest reported progressing under favorable conditions, the wheat market here showed an early downward trend today. An increase in the amount of wheat on ocean passage was also a bearish fatoor. Starting 1-8c. to ½c. lower, Chicago wheat later declined a little more. Corn also was easier, opening unchanged to 5-8c. off and subsequently declining all around. Oats were steady. Provisions headed downgrade.

Opening prices were: Wheat, December 127 5-8, March 131 1-8. Corn, December 83¾, March 86 7-8. Oats, Deember 48 7-8, March 50 3-8.

Toronto Trading Heavy With Few Features

TORONTO, Nov. 14 (Canadian Press).—The strength shown by McColl and Western Canada Flour was the only feature of this morning's routine session of the Toronto Stock Exchange, though trading was moderately heavy in volume. Flour advanced five at 40, and McColl 1½ at 54½. Most of the other changes were fractional. No definite price trend was shown. Brazilian, International Nickel, Canners Common, and Massey Harris showed slight gains in the regular list, while in the unlisted, Canadian Brewing had a point gain at 32½, and Walkers was slighty higher at 58¼. British American Oil eased fractionally at 36.

Heavy Trading Continues In Mine Market To-day

TORONTO, Nov. 14.— (Canadian Press.)—Most classes of stocks to-day recorded good gains in the resumption of the heavy trading that marked the close of last week on the standard mining exchange. Amulet, Beaver, Barry Hollinger, Bidgood, Howey Gold, and Kirkland Lake advanced from five to eleven points. The active leader was Potter Doal which advanced four at 27. Kirkland Hunton also had a very heavy turnover, advancing a point at 29. Crown Reserve and Algonquin had moderate advances. Teck Hughes softened six at 10.65.

Trend In New York Is Uncertain To-day

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (Canadian Press).—Price movements in today's stock market lacked uniformity, renewal of selling pressure against some of the leading industrials being offset by the resumption of bullish operations in a wide assortment of specialties. Call money was in plentiful supply at the renewal figure of 3½ per cent. There was little in the day's news to influence the market. Reports of merger negotiations in the drug trade stimulated the buying of those shares, several of which advanced three to five points. Mail order and mercantile shares continued to respond to the expectations of a record-breaking holiday trade as the result of the large increase in farm wealth this year.

Visitors Impressed With Zinc Prospects

A very interesting trip to Marshay Zinc Mines Limited, Marshay Township, Sudbury District, was taken by a large party, who left Toronto on Monday, October 31st, by a special train arranged for this purpose.

The party arrived at Mileage 46, Marshay ,at eight a.m. Tuesday morning, proceeding from there by road to the property, a distance of about 4½ miles. Horses and wagons were provided for those who felt the walk might be too long, but the great majority walked. The road in is in good shape.

On arrival at the camp the party were conducted along the break for a distance of one mile, by L. Jefferson, and the great width of the break was specially commented on, it being over 60 feet wide in many places, and as much as 125 feet wide in others.

All were surprised at the immense amount of ore in sight. With the shaft being in ore to a depth of 54 feet actual continuity of the vein is proven at that depth. In the opinion of those best qualified to know, the result of the diamond drilling which has already started, will be most favorable, and if this be the case the Marshay Zinc Mines Limited will have the makings of one of the bigest mines in the North Country.

Professor Louis D. Huntoon's second report on the property is most favourable, and Percy Hopkins, Consulting Geologist, has also inspected the property and reports most favorably. Oscar Smith of Sudbury, the well known diamond driller, freely expresses his opinion (which is based on over 30 years' practical experience as a driller) that this property is one of the best prospects he has ever been on, and with his valuable services and experience available nothing more can be desired.

All the party procured abundant samples from the diffeernt trenches on the property which enables each one to have an independent assay made if he so desires

The party left fully satisfied with their outing in every way and were convinced that the future of Marshay Zinc Mines Limited is very bright.

The dominance of base metal issues in the mining share boom that has marked the past few months, seems nearing an end for the time being at least. The public is again turning to the golds. Throughout the summer, Kirkland Lake issues have enjoyed a certain amount of prominence but of late they have come into full popularity. New discoveries which give promise of materially extending the known producing section of the camp, have been responsible.

These lie in Lebel Township, east of Teck, the producing township. This area has been quite neglected and for a couple of years only one small operation was carried on. Now, however, there is quite a rush of operators into the section and the outlook, from results to date, is that others will follow. For a considerable time past, speculators in mining shares who favored gold stocks had to be content with the producers. Outside of a couple of gold operations that had been going for some time and had a somewhat doubtful future, there have been no new operation mines coming along. Suddenly several have jumped into the limelight and with the record of the gold leaders to guide them, the public has eagerly rushed into the market.

The stocks that have caused the excitement are Howey Gold, the original discoveries in Red Lake, Bidgood Mines, Kirkland Lake and Barry Hollinger in Boston Creek camp, a short distance south of Kirkland Lake Area. All three of these are looking extremely well and this has focused attention on other nearby operators in Boston Creek and Kirkland Lake, with the resultant boom in shares for the cheaper golds.

Boston Creek camp has been a disappointment for the past few years. Hollinger, a Toronto company with a substantial share holding in England, has been the main operator. It was developed down to the 1,000-ft. level and while a mill was built and operated for over a year, it was only recently that real commercial ore was encountered on the 1,000-ft. level.

The ore on the upper levels was quite rich and in some cases the widths were good, but most of the ore faces were shot with calcite which caused heavy dilution. Our understanding is that the present shoot, opened to the south, on what is called No. 7 vein, does not show this heavy calcite. Instead the ore is good width, 5 to 6 ft., and running around $50 per ton. If this body can be picked up on a couple of more levels, the property would take on real mine possibilities. As a result of this development, Gold Hill and Hill Top mines to the east, are coming in for considerable attention. Gold Hill recently erected a 50-ton mill which has been operating for a couple of months. This property has narrow but rich veins which from 400 to 800 ft. the deepest workings at present, show a strong widening tendency. Recent diamond drilling below the deepest working gives evidence that the widening continues. This has not been announced officially as yet. Meanwhile the company is making plans to increase the mill capacity. Hilltop is more of a prospect but has opened up some unusually good showings that are to be fully tested out. It has been decided to cut the veins on this property by running a drift from the 800-ft. level of Gold Hill which adjoins on the east. This will give considerable cheap information. The company has sunk a shaft to 400 ft. with encouraging results.

Bidgood, which operation is mainly responsible for the boom in east Kirkland Lake, was carried on as an aggressive operation a couple of years ago until finances became exhausted and since then it has been dormant until a couple of months ago. A shaft was sunk to 600 ft. and considerable ore indicated. The latest operation was launched on the 300-ft. level and it shows good widths of typical upper level Kirkland Lake ore—around $10 per ton. Work is now to be pushed to try for the downward extension of this body on the 400-ft. level.

There has been a flurry in Tough Oakes Burnside shares due to a reported new discovery on the 1500-ft. level. The management has been anxious to get operations down to this horizon in the hope of finding ore. It remains to be seen whether or not it is present in commercial quantities. Tough Oakes had much rich ore in upper levels but the shoots had no length to them. Tough Oakes has a splendid mill and could soon show results in the way of earnings from good ore shoot. However, there has been a rather surprising rush to sell shares on the rising market and this has led many to suggest that it is perhaps best to wait awhile.

The real news on Howey Gold is a couple of weeks away. The shaft has been completed to below the 500-ft. level and it is the intention to crosscut to the ore body to the south at four levels at the same time. This is the ore body which Dome Mines proved by diamond drilling and which showed length, width and values of mine making dimensions and figures.

It is announced that Pioneer Mines will issue one million new shares of stock to shareholders at 50 cents per share. Shareholders can take up one new for each two held. The proceeds will be used to sink a new shaft on the Minto property in Michipocoten and to build a mill. Pioneer shares are about evenly divided between Canada, United States and England. Huronian Belt Co., London, is the largest individual shareholder.

Towagmac Mines which sold 65 per cent interest in Alderson and Mackay mine to N. A. Timmins Inc. and who in turn sold his interest in the proposition to Noranda, is now making an offering of Aldermac shares to its shareholders. Aldermac is the company Noranda organized to operate the property and the Towagmac Co. has certain underwriting rights to shares.

The funds secured from the sale of 200,000 shares at $2 will be used to explore other properties. Holders of 5 shares of Towagmac can take up one of Aldermac.

Number Of Brokers Has Doubled Recently

The number of brokers in Canada carrying on an exclusive mining business has more than doubled in the last six months. It is true that within the past few weeks, due to the activities of the Attorney-generals' department of Ontario and Quebec, a number have been closed up, but there remains an over supply, with new houses making their appearance almost daily.

While the present hectic boom in mining shares is on, there may be enough business to go round, but there is bound to come a lean day for many of them. It is suggested that it would be good business for the public to pick and choose the brokers with whom they do business. To-day it is just as important to buy from the right broker as it is to buy the right stock. If a speculator is right on both, he has a chance to make money. If he slips up on either, he may lose heavily.

The market in mining shares has continued to be somewhat off-color. There have been a number of flurries, but the market generally has lacked leadership. Perhaps the two outstanding stocks have been Bidgood of Kirkland Lake camp and the Howey, the original discovery in Red Lake. Both these operations have a lot of merit and are in excellent hands. Bidgood, after lying idle for several years was picked up by a group of experienced mining men, and in a short time the geological problem which it presented, was solved. Very excellent ore was opened on the 300-ft. level and this has continued to be good where raised upon. The company has installed some new equipment, and it is the intention to open up the 400 and 600 ft. levels at the same time. The shaft on the property is down 600 ft. It will not take long to cross-cut to the vein. Engineers who have examined the property state that they feel certain that the ore will be cut at these new horizons. It is this fact, coupled with a knowledge of the experience of the large Kirkland Lake producers to the west and what they have accomplished for those who purchased the shares at low figures, that made this issue so popular.

President Jack Hammell of Howey Gold has gone north to Red Lake to be present when the crosscuts that are being run south from the shaft on four levels cut into the ore zone. Dome Mines diamond drilled this property, and then let it go when it could not make better terms with the miners. Having a knowledge of what Dome got in the diamond drills plus a considerable amount of new information from surface work, the present company feels certain that it will cut a large body of ore. The operation is very popular with the public hence the big interest in the stock, which has moved upward steadily.

There is a great deal of guessing going on in regard to Amulet. The company has announced that it will recapitalize at $3,000,000. Old shareholders will get share for share and this will place 1,000,000 shares in the treasury. It is not announced what portion of this will be issued, but the supposition is that 500,000 shares will be sold to shareholders, and it is generally believed that the price will be $3 per share. This will give shareholders valuable rights. In the face of this pronouncement, which is the most favorable of any of the suggested proposals for the future operation of the enterprise, and in the face of additional good news from the property, the shares have sold down steadily. The general opinion is that the shares will remain soft until after the new stock has been alloted, and that the move upward may come. This was on two occasions the experience with Noranda, when there was new financing.

Towagmac shareholders are being allotted 200,000 shares of Aldermac Mines at $2 per share. Holders of Towagmac can take up one Aldermac for each five Towagmac held. This will place $400,000 cash in Towagmac treasury and put its cash reserve at around $840,000. This money will be invested and the interest, about $45,000 yearly, used for carrying out exploration for new properties. Towagmac still holds about 27 per cent of the capital stock of Aldermac in its treasury which it received, partly as purchase price for its interest in Alderson Mackay mine and partly for money expended on its development. Nipissing has made its third payment on its Montbray property in Quebec and will make its remaining two payments next month. In face of this bullish news the shares sold off, but are expected to recover later.

The best brokers express the opinion that the mining market is just marking time for the moment. Despite the flood of good news that is coming out from the mines and the good news that is expected, they look to see the market perk up shortly.

In the last thirty-five years over two hundred million pounds of "SALADA" Tea have been consumed, but it took only the last seven weeks to sell the next two million pounds.

Moderate Expansion In Metal Markets

TORONTO, Nov. 14—In a summary of the iron, steel and machinery markets, Canadian Machinery and Manufacturing News makes the following comment this week:

The passing of a third of the final quarter of 1927 has proven that the revised estimates arrived at late in the summer were approximately correct, and that a moderate expansion has taken place, with a number of new enterprises started which point toward greater production.

The iron and steel markets have not yet seen the end of the small-lot buying plan, and many consumers prefer to buy their supplies by the carload in the open market, not binding themselves by contract for any length of time Many large users have followed this plan for the fourth quarter, so that the volume of business is not only large, but very evenly distributed, with few peak points.

Prices are steady on practically all lines, but the immediate future is not at all certain. The price tendency in the United States is still downward, and there are certain price cuts in the United States which have yet to be taken into account in Canada. For that reason, it would not be surprising to see lower prices.

Reliable reports from Alberta indicate that conditions in agriculture in Western Canada are better this year than any year since the price inflated period of the war; in fact, the farmer's position will be better than in those years, for it is certain that there is no sudden deflation ahead of them.

The prices of all grains are satisfactory. The farmer will have a dollar this year to pay his debts and another to spend. There is an unprecedented demand for farm machinery.

Experiments which have been carried on for a number of years at Fraser, Ont., looking to the industrial use of Canadian magnetite or refractory iron ores, have culminated in the formation of the Carbon and Alloys Steel Co., Welland, Ont., which has taken over the plant formerly occupied by the Electric Steel and Engineering Co. and the Electric Steel and Metal Co. and is re-opening the foundry for the production of steel castings.

Orders for 100 freight cars were placed in Montreal during the week and preparations are being made for additional orders in the near future. Construction totals are good, and the winter lumber camps will be in the market for considerable material soon.

Canada's total imports in September, for which statistics have just been completed, amounted to $91,802,777, of which $20,652,653 was iron and its products. For the 12 months ending September, therefore, the total imports were $1,073,166,446 in 1927, and $983,786,652 in 1926. Exports in September, including $5,346,699 worth of iron and its products, were $99,334,630. For the year, the total is $1,270,556,699, against $1,320,910,429 in 1926.

The British industrial situation is brightening. Railroads have released orders, shipbuilding activity is the largest in five years and the pig iron demand is improving.

THE ROYAL WINTER FAIR.

Five hundred young farmers of Ontario are to be the guests of the Ontario Government at the Royal Winter Fair, and their visit to that splendid institution should be profitable, not only to themselves, but to the districts from which they come.

Wide-awake young men—and these boys must be or they would not have qualified—should be able to pick up much information at the Winter Fair that will be of value in promoting keener interest and better methods in agriculture.

The importance of such events lies chiefly in their educational value, and in the inspiration they provide to those engaged in farming to adopt more progressive ideas.

Five hundred bright young farmers should, therefore, prove a very fertile field for the development of ambition, and on their return to their homes these boys should carry with them many ideas that will be of general value in their respective neighborhoods.

REMEMBRANCE DAY.

The Prince of Wales in his Armistice Day address on Friday emphasized the fact that the anniversary is no longer a day of rejoicing, but a day of remembrance.

It is that aspect of the anniversary of the end of the war that The Examiner believes will be more and more stressed as the years pass.

Then why not put an end to this Monday Thanksgiving Day-Armistice Day combination and let us in Canada set apart November 11th as a day of remembrance and thanksgiving?

The date of the signing of the Armistice could be made a public holiday and called Remembrance and Thanksgiving Day, an occasion on which the thoughts of all could go back in grateful memory to the sacrifice made by those who died that we might continue to enjoy the blessings of life in a free land, an occasion, too, upon which we could give thanks that these heroes did not die in vain as well as for the peace and prosperity that the year has brought us.

An end should be put to the haphazard system under which this great anniversary is now celebrated in Canada.

A WORTHY CAUSE.

In spending a dollar for Christmas stamps you will be calling attention to the campaign against tuberculous, and at the same time doing your bit to help the Peterborough Health Association carry on its splendid activities.

The Association has chosen this means of raising the money needed for its next year's budget, and The Examiner is sure that the method will appeal to most citizens as a business-like method of financing a work that deserves every possible support.

The summer camp at Jackson Park for children of sub-normal health, the fine work of the Association's district Nurse, the assistance that is given to victims of tuberculosis, the supplying of eggs and milk to its invalids without the means of providing this nourishment for themselves, are all activities of the Peterborough Health Association that commend themselves to the public as decidedly worth while.

In short, Peterborough would not like the prospect of attempting to carry on without the Association, and because of that fact there is every confidence that the sale of Christmas stamps is an assured success that will provide the necessary funds for next year's effort and enable the Association to continue its full programme of health work during 1928 as usual.

PROVINCIAL SUBSIDIES.

The Ottawa Journal declares that the Federal Government is quite justified in trying to put on the brakes in the matter of Provincial subsidies, pointing out that the bigger the subsidies the more the people at large will have to pay.

That is one of those facts that are obvious and yet are often overlooked.

The more money the Provinces get out of the Dominion Treasury the more money will the Provinces spend.

That would be all right if the Federal Finance Minister could reach up into the thin air and haul down the millions so blithely flung away.

But, alas, we never yet have had a Federal Finance Minister who was a magician, even if some of them have shown a vizard-like ability to juggle figures to the general bewilderment.

The money passed out to the Provinces comes from the same place as all the rest of the money that Governments spend, out of the pockets of the people.

If Dominion subsidies to the Provinces, therefore, are increased there can only be one of two results—and they both mean the same thing in the long run.

Either the Federal Government would have to put on additional taxation to get the money or it would refrain from reducing taxation when that operation would otherwise be possible.

In either case the people in general suffer.

THE KING OF FRUITS.

If the observance of National Apple Week, from Nov. 14 to Nov. 19, adds anything to the prestige of the king of fruits, the celebration will have been worth while. The Canadian apple, suffering from modesty, has been an indifferent competitor of imported fruits for a great many years. It has hung its head before the inroads not only of the orange and the banana, but also distant members of its own family tree, the Jonathans, Ben Davises and Winesaps of Washington, Oregon and Virginia. The domestic apples unquestionably have the quality and the flavor to compete with the foreigners, but the imported fruit still enjoys a wide distribution. Public taste needs a little education in the advantages of the home-grown varieties.

A Department of Agriculture bulletin announces the purpose of National Apple Week as fourfold: To give publicity to and increase the interest in the apple; to widen its distribution; to increase its consumption and thereby contribute to the maintenance of Canada's wonderful orchards; and to bring health, happiness and good cheer to every man, woman and child. This last ambition seems a fairly large order, but there are enough excellent apples grown in the Dominion to go a long way toward fulfilling it. The Canadian commercial apple crop this year is estimated at 2,720,800 barrels, which is something like 20 per cent. below the five-year average. Nova Scotia is the only Province to claim an increased yield this year. Ontario, it is estimated, will have 542,800 barrels, or 90 per cent. of the 1926 crop. Generally speaking, the crop throughout the Dominion is better than in the United States, where the yield averages 60 per cent. of last year. As for Western Ontario, Norfolk County will probably market 45,000 barrels. Elgin and Oxford combined may have 14,000 barrels to sell, which is less than last year. Middlesex has only half a crop, about 12,000 barrels. Northward the yield has been better, and Huron will have 9,000 barrels as compared with 10,000 last year, while the Georgian Bay district has nearly double the yield of 1926.

Apple for apple, the Ontario fruit will compare favorably with the imported product, and our own orchards can match the outsiders in variety as well. The popular varieties both in this country and on the London and Glasgow markets are the Spy, McIntosh, Baldwin, Snow and Golden Russet. Then there are Kings, Greenings, Alexander, Wolf River, St. Lawrence, Ribstons, Pewaukees, Wealthy, and a dozen others, all excellent at their proper season and some unsurpassed for roasting or for pies. It has been suggested that consumers should be acquainted with the apple calendar, so that the different varieties can be demanded when they are at their prime. In this way the taste of the consumer would build up repeat sales for the domestic fruit. The plan might be widened to include identification of the varieties, so as to avoid errors such as those made by London housewives, who sometimes take storekeepers' signs at their face value and purchase rosy Wealthies believing them to be Snows. It is a mistake to suppose that a little knowledge along these lines would not be reflected in the apple dishes which find their way to the tables of Ontario folks. For instance, every apple will not make a succulent dumpling, nor will every variety of apple lend itself with equal appropriateness to the manufacture of pies. Of course, it is harder to go astray when it comes to pies. There are no bad apples. Some are better than others, that's all.—London Advertiser.

THE SENATE.

The truth is that the real weakness of the Senate lies in the methods by which Governments make its appointments. The intention of the Fathers of Confederation was that men should not be appointed to the Senate because of their party allegiances or services, but solely for their demonstrated capacity to give true service to the state. Why Sir John Macdonald departed from that intention, we do not know. But he did depart from it. He departed from it to such an extent that whereas in 1867 the parties were equal in the Senate, by 1873 the Conservatives had a majority of 15. Mackenzie did something to restore the balance; but when Sir John came back to power in 1878 he found a Conservative majority still in the Senate; and between 1878 and his death he appointed 85 more Conservatives. Laurier followed his example. As Tories died he replaced them with Liberals; so much so that in 15 years he turned the standing of the Upper House into a majority of 45 for his party. And so with Borden and Meighen and King. When Meighen fell in 1921 the Conservative majority in the Senate was 45; in six years Mr. King is already at the point where another year or so will secure a Liberal preponderance.

* * * *

Not that all of these men remain extreme partisans. Some of them rise above partisanship, and render fine service, and it is but the truth to say that the intellectual average of the front bench of the Senate is at least the equal of the front bench of the Common. Nor need it be assumed that all useful legislation that originates in the Commons is maltreated by the Senate. Since Confederation, indeed, not more than 30 per cent. of all the bills that have gone to the Upper House have been amended; and less than three per cent. have been rejected. Nevertheless, a great proportion of the men in the Senate render little service, and some of them are little better than undeserving pensioners of the state.

* * * *

The Senate, we think, could be made into a most useful body. But we doubt very much whether that can be done under the proposals of Mr. King. What we should like to see would be less of partisanship in appointments, but appointments which represented the university life, the industrial and commercial life, the labor and agricultural interests of the nation. With such a membership appointed—not for life, but for a term of years, and with all men who showed conspicuous capacity eligible for reappointment—the Upper House could be made what the Fathers of Confederation originally intended it to be. It could not only serve as a brake against hasty and half-baked legislation and as a real voice and protector for Provincial hights; it could be used to initiate as well as to review legislation; and it would thereby militate against those last desperate weeks of the session when everything is rushed through the Commons pell-mell and with a minimum of consideration. That would be a reform really worth striving for.—Ottawa Journal.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Nov. 14 (Canadian Press).—The foreign demand for Canadian grain here Saturday was fair and a moderate amount of business was worked. The domestic demand for coarse grains was of a limited character, but the undertone was firm.

The trade in Spring and Winter wheat grades of flour was fairly active and prices were well maintained.

A stronger feeling developed in the market for standard grades of rolled oats and prices were advanced ten cents per bag. This was attributed to the higher cost of the raw material and the marked increase in the demand.

The local and United States demand for all lines of millfeed continued good and values were unchanged.

A feature of the local egg trade on Saturday was the decidedly strong feeling that developed for fresh eggs and prices for extras were advanced four to eight cents per dozen, and firsts ten cents per dozen. This was attributed to the marked decrease in the production in the provinces of Ontario and Quebec, the increasing scarcity of supplies on spot and the high cost of importations from British Columbia combined with a good demand. Special, St. Jerome, Que., extras are now selling at 75c; British Columbia extras at 66c to 70c; firsts at 60c; pullet extras at 56c; Fall fresh extras at 60c; firsts at 50c and seconds at 40c per dozen.

There was no change in prices for storage eggs announced, but the undertone was firm. The demand was moderate. The receipts were 414 cases.

The butter trade was quiet, but the undertone was firm. The receipts were 284 packages.

The demand from English buyers for cheese continued good and active business was done. The spot trade was fair and values were unchanged. The receipts were 7,940 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov 14 (Canadian Press)—Wheat prices went up with a rush Saturday, and the corn market came down equally fast Canada's government crop report, extreme cold weather over the Canadian Prairies, and fresh word of damage by rust in Argentina, lifted wheat. Washington official crop figures were the ruling force in the corn trade.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm, 2c to 2½c net higher, with corn 2¼c to 2⅝c off; oats ¼ and ⅜c to ½c down, and provisions unchanged to 50c up.

Primarily, the wheat market was faced Saturday by the Canadian Government estimate pointing to a reduction of 13,000,000 bushels. Since September in the expected yield of the three Prairie provinces. Whereas a decided increase had of late been looked for by numerous traders. Moreover, the prevailing cold wave was generally taken to indicate likelihood of smaller country marketings in Canada. Demand here for wheat was further stimulated by scarcity of offerings and by estimates that the new Argentine crop will be 10,000,000 bushels under last year's harvest.

Saturday's advices about rust in Argentina, said reports were current at Buenos Aires that the crop had been badly damaged. The news was contained in a dispatch from a Chicago crop expert, but did not appear to imply first-hand observation by him. Meanwhile, European demand Saturday for wheat from North America was described as rather slow, but Hamburg, Germany, cabled that good business had been done in Canadian wheat to be shipped by way of the Pacific Coast.

Corn closed weak as a result of persistent selling on the part of holders influenced by the bearish aspect of the Government corn crop report. Besides, cold weather was regarded as favorable for cribbing operations. Speculative buying, though, was of a free character at times, and some trade leaders said final figures on corn may yet prove as much of an upset as the latest Canadian figures on wheat.

Oats reflected the action of corn despite a reduction of 50,000,000 bushels in the Canadian oats crop as compared with two months ago.

Provisions were firmer owing to scattered buying.

CHURCH SOCIAL PROGRAMS GOOD

Dunsford United Congregation Holds Gatherings in Houses.

FIRST LEAGUE MEETING.

DUNSFORD, Nov. 14.—The People's League held its first meeting on Monday evening. There was a good attendance. Miss Richardson, the newly elected president, ably performed her duties. The scripture lesson was read responsively. Miss Laura Kennedy was appointed organist and Miss Edith Thurston was elected missionary president. Mrs. Robert Brien explained the scripture lesson.

The program was in charge of Mrs. J. F. Everson and consisted of a paper by Mrs. Everson, "A Man's object in his work; a reading, "It can be done" by Norman Miller; a talk, "The aims and purposes of a people's league," Rev. J. F. Everson; solo, Mrs. Vernon Thurston; a talk, "Impressions from the West," by Mrs. Thomas James Thurston, who has recently returned from a visit in Saskatchewan; hymn, "There is Work to do for Jesus"; the Mizpah Benediction.

The house social held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph N. Taylor on Thursday evening was well attended and seemed to be much enjoyed by everyone present. The program was opened by the pastor, Rev. J. F. Everson, at exactly eight o'clock with community singing after which the following numbers were given:

Chorus by five young women; recitation, Ruby Thurston; solo, Miss Essie Johns; recitation, Lorenza Johns; violin duet, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Taylor; solo, Mrs. J. F. Everson; reading, Miss Evelyn Taylor; solo, Lorenzo Johns; piano duet, Miss Mabel McCallum and Wallace Thurston; reading, Miss Lizzie Tully; instrumental, Miss Daisy Kennedy; reading, Miss Aileen Tully; chorus by five young women; reading, Miss Stella McCallum.

An hour of games and stunts was then enjoyed after which a delicious lunch was served by the ladies.

The next evening is to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Taylor on Dec. 8th. Miss Mabel McCallum and Miss Essie Johns are the program committee and Mrs. Miller Johns, Mrs. Harry Taylor and Mrs. Arthur Kennedy the lunch committee.

Dr. Randall Thomas Davidson, Archbishop of Canterbury. The Archbishop made a public reply to the letter of Bishop Barnes of Birmingham on the subject of the presence of Christ in Holy Communion, which has shocked Anglicanism. There have been rumors for some time that the Archbishop would retire as soon as the new prayer book of the Church of England was finally disposed of in Parliament, but it is thought this new situation may cause the octogenarian primate to struggle on. He has filled the highest office in the Church of England for 24 years.

Faith had probably never derived so much unalloyed pleasure from being the mistress of a beautiful home as the showing of it to Rhoda Jonson, her new maid-of-all-work, gave her that Saturday afternoon. Rhoda's round-eyed appreciation of Oriental rugs, brocaded damask draperies, parchment shaded floor lamps, rosewood furniture, blue-and-daffodil kitchen, two bathrooms, Italian cut-work linens, rose and jade taffeta bedspreads, sun parlor with gayly-painted wicker furniture, warmed Faith's heart.

She was still flushed with the triumph which a woman feels if her dearest possessions win unqualified approval from another woman, no matter how humble, when Cherry came home, her arms laden with bundles after an orgy of Saturday afternoon shopping.

"Hello, darling!" she sang out to Faith, who was getting Joy's former room ready for Rhoda. "Merry Christmas! Don't I look like Santa Claus! I've bought Dad and Kate—what in the world are we going to call her?—the grandest wedding present! Look!"

And she shucked the wrappings from a beautiful silver tea service. "Not solid silver, of course, but that plated nickel stuff that will always look real. I'm simply flat after buying it, but don't you think it's gorgeous? And I'm going to put on the card: 'From the children, with love and good wishes.' Do you think they'll be pleased?"

Faith looked at the beautiful pieces through a film of tears. Unaccountable Cherry! That morning she had wept bitterly and had sworn never to speak to her father again. Now she was the first to think of a wedding present for the newly married couple!

"Just put 'from Cherry' on it, dear," Faith protested huskily. "We'll all send something. It's sweet of you to think of it. Dad will be so grateful and so will Mrs. Lundy, or Kate, or whatever we decide to call her."

"What are you doing?" Cherry asked curiously, as Faith laid fresh white paper in the dresser drawers.

"I've found a maid," Faith answered. "Rhoda Jonson. She's awfully young, only seventeen, but as she says, she's strong and willing. And she's rather a dear—a beautifully clean, nice little country girl.

"This is rather a swank room to give a maid," Cherry objected. "She'll be getting ideas. She's going to share your bath, I suppose," she added, her eyes roving to the bathroom door. Beyond the bath lay Faith's and Bob's room.

"I've locked the door on the bathroom side," Faith said quietly, but she flushed apprehensively. "I thought it best for her to share your bath, honey, since Bob and I both have to use this one."

"I see!" Cherry's golden eyes flashed dangerously. "I'm the goat! It's all right for me to have to bathe in the same tub with a dirty little servant girl—"

"Oh!" a startled exclamation from the door interrupted her. "I—I wanted to speak to you, Mrs. Hathaway—" Rhoda stammered, her face scarlet, her blue eyes wide with pain and shame.

"Come in, Rhoda," Faith urged gently. "This is my sister, Miss Cherry Lane. She's Hope's mother. This is Rhoda, Cherry. I'm sure you will like each other."

"I'm pleased to meet you," Cherry bowed sarcastically. "You'd better explain, Faith, that I was Mrs. Wiley before my divorce, or Rhoda will think I'm no better than I should be. How often do you bathe, Rhoda?" she switched abruptly, her voice metallic with anger against Faith.

HOLDS INQUEST INTO ACCIDENT

Coroner Investigating Death of Man When Car Left Road.

GLARING LIGHTS BLAMED.

TORONTO, Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press).—Coroner J. Stead has ordered an inquest into the death of Rudolph Bornzad of Niagara Falls, Ontario, who was killed when a motor car in which he was riding crashed into a ditch east of Oakville early Saturday. The driver of the car was Charles Kobax, Welland, and a third occupant was Stephen Goldberger, Hamilton. It is believed that Kobabx was temporarily blinded by the headlights of an approaching automobile and swerved off the roadway.

NOSE POWDERING BARRED.

Powdering of noses has been barred by many factories in Europe where large numbers of girls are employed. The move is to reduce waste of time. In one factory it was noticed that one stenographer, otherwise very efficient, stopped working 15 times in one hour to powder and beautify her nose. The average girl, it has been calculated, powders her nose four times an hour, taking two minutes for each operation. When several hundred girls are employed on a special task, the loss of time is very costly, say experts. Some employes balk at the efficiency idea, saying the experts forget feminine psychology, and that when it comes to getting out work, a woman with a well-powdered nose is worth two that are overheated and have shiny noses.

Paris has invented a new way for making women look slim. Instead of dieting or physical exercises it is done by what is known as a shadow dress. About two-thirds of the dress is of one material—that is, one sleeve and two-thirds of the way across the front and the back—the remainder of the frock being in another tone of the same color. At a distance it really looks as if the wearer was a marvelously slim creature, followed by a shadow.

Nearly 100,000 women students attend night schools in London.

DRESS

Winter brides choose transparent white velvet, which is charmingly handled in the gown shown here. It is fairly short in the front, but cut in long points at the side, and trimmed with bands of pearl embroidery. The tulle veil falls from a ruffle of tulle arranged at the back of a wide pearl band, drawn snugly over the front and top of the head.

A season or so ago a white velvet wedding gown was rather unusual. Now every winter bride at least considers this fabric, which plays such an important role in new frocks of all descriptions. To be sure velvet is expensive, especially the fine supple sort of velvet that is most suitable to wedding gowns, but most girls are willing to be a little extravagant when it comes to choosing a wedding gown. Besides the wedding gown needs very little in the way of trimming or further embellishment. If it is made at home there is really very little expenditure to consider besides the velvet.

The velvet wedding gown shown in the sketch, which has been designed for a prominent mid-winter bride is trimmed only with bands of pearl embroidery. I have seen one or two velvet wedding frocks trimmed with fine creamy lace, very lovely to be sure, but not—I think—quite so effective as the pearl embroidery.

Almost always now we follow the French rule of long sleeves for the wedding gown—long sleeves that extend well over the wrists and that make gloves unnecessary. There is usually a fairly high, simple neckline, but considerable latitude concerning the skirt in length.

Quite a number of notable brides, among them several French girls of prominent family and important social position, have worn very long skirts. Among religious French families the fact that the Pope has expressed himself on the subject of skirt lengths may have had something to do with it.

If the skirt is not actually long it is usually made with an uneven hemline so that it is long in some aspects anyway. All the time there is an occasional wedding where the bride and her attendants choose bouffant skirts and close-fitting bodices. Late last summer a prominent society bride wore a Victorian crinoline gown, with the skirt covered entirely with frills of pure white tulle, placed over a foundation of pale pink satin.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

FOR TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 15th, 1927

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

Menacing stars govern this day, according to astrology, which finds the possibility of accidents increased.

Under this direction of the stars fires may be more than commonly numerous and losses to property very large.

Again the seers prophesy a disaster to a city, which will sustain great damage in the coming winter.

This is read as an especially favorable direction of the stars for women, who will be wise to maintain a neutral attitude of mind.

It is read as an inauspicious sway for women who desire to push personal or business ambitions.

Politics at this time may be peculiarly disappointing and perplexing to women voters or women aspirants to prominence.

Theatres may find this a day of difficulties, for under this government of the stars news play may be revealed as weak or worthless.

This is read as an unlucky time for love affairs, making for broken engagements and disillusioned suitors.

As a wedding date the seers read this as presaging many ups and downs, with domestic misunderstandings frequent.

Society is subject to planetary influences that appear to promise a return to formal and strictly conventional standards of behavior.

It is well to be cautious while this configuration prevails as accidents are easily precipitated.

Persons whose birthdate it is should not speculate in the coming year. Eye troubles should be watched.

Children born on this day probably will lead happy, successful lives. They are likely to be determined in character and exceedingly independent.

HINTS ON ETIQUETTE.

1. At what age should a child be made to feel somewhat responsible for other children who are his guests?
2. How are children taught to be socially at ease?
3. How young should children be introduced to guests?

The Answers.

1. Almost from babyhood a child should share toys and be considerate of guests.
2. By allowing them to mingle somewhat with guests.
3. At four or five.

The $7,500,000 clubhouse now under construction in New York City for the American Woman's Association will have 1,250 rooms.

HER LITTLE GIRL CAUGHT COLD PLAYING IN THE SNOW

Mrs. A. Coakley, 29 Yale St., Halifax, N.S., writes:—"My little girl caught a terrible cold through getting wet while playing in the snow. Everything I did for her did not seem to give her any relief.

"I then went to the drug store and asked the clerk if he knew of something good he could give me. He told me about so I decided to try it.

"After the bottle was nearly used I noticed that the cough was gone, and by the time the second bottle was used the cold had gone. Now I will never be without it in the house."

GILES AWAITS GOOD WEATHER

Aviator Will Leave San Francisco When Weather Permits.

ON WAY TO NEW ZEALAND.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press).—Capt. Frederick Giles, British aviator, Saturday awaited favorable weather reports before setting a date for his proposed twelve thousand mile Golden Gate-New Zealand flight.

Plans for taking off early Saturday were cancelled when weather bureau officials informed Giles that the attempt would be "suicidal" in view of storms over the Pacific. The decision to await favorable weather came after a day of indecision during which Giles was quoted as saying that he intended to trust to luck and start regardless of what the weather prediction might be.

For your PERSONAL service —a Special Operator*

Perhaps no question is so often asked of us as: "Why is it, after I've placed my call that an operator sometimes comes in on the line and asks me what number I'm calling?"

This may seem like inefficiency, or even carelessness or indifference.

Yet the Special Operator, who does this, is there only to be of personal service to you.

She is there to help you get the person you want when there has been a change of number or when through misunderstanding or technical fault the call has gone wrong.

She has at hand the sort of records which make this possible—records which to be effective must be concentrated before her.

Again, she's there to be of personal service, to help in situations where you can't help yourself—to restore service order promptly and efficiently.

A BETTER PAPER FOR OUR READERS

IF YOU WERE ASKED, Mr. or Mrs. Reader, why thousands of community newspapers thrive all over this land, what would be your answer?

We'll tell you: Because these community newspapers publish news and information which their readers can get in no other way.

This news and information consists largely of "personal," social and local news items recording the joys, pleasures, sorrows, recreation, success and daily life of YOUR neighbors and friends—and OURS.

Oftentimes these news items are simple; sometimes almost "homely." They contribute nothing to the settlement of international problems, but, after all, while we are concerned about the affairs of our Province, Empire and the world, are we not MOST interested in the things nearer home?—the things that contribute to the smaller world of those whom the famous newspaper poet, Edgar A. Guest, calls "Just Folks."

Believing this to be true, we always have published as many news items as we could get about our home folks. We always have wanted to print MORE and we believe we have found the way to do it.

Beginning on Saturday, a score of girls and women started to write news for The Examiner. They will be paid for their efforts.

Remembering that YOU like to read NEWS ABOUT OTHERS, help these contestants all you can. Give them news about yourself and about your friends—that is, if it is clean, kind and wholesome news.

Remember that many of these contestants are daughters of some of your own friends. They will also profit by the training it will give them in their school work as it relates to English composition, spelling, etc.

Our chief purpose in this announcement is to ask YOU to HELP these contestants and to join with us in making one big family of friends and readers.

MAD DOG BITE PROVES FATAL

INQUEST ORDERED.

HULL, Que., Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press). Francis Oullette, Perkins Mills Que., died in cell at Hull jail Saturday, where he had been taken when he became violent in Sacred Heart Hospital. He was a victim of hydrophobia and medical attention given to him through the night failed to offset the ravages of the disease. An inquest has been ordered.

He is believed to have contracted the malady from being bitten by a mad dog. He was bitten about six weeks ago, it is said, and Hull authorities were warned yesterday by persons at Perkins Mills that he should be cared for. They brought him to the hospital here but had to transfer him to the jail.

ARMISTICE DAY ANNIVERSARY

boro made the statement the other night that armaments were one of the chief causes of war, but in the minds of most thinking people, preparation is the best assurance of peace. The soldier is the ballast of our country and the pacifists are found mainly in the ranks of those who made no personal contribution or sacrifice for the war. The speaker closed by expressing hearty approval of the cadet movement; a manly boy makes a manly man.

Judge Huycke, of Peterborough, cordially agreed with the remarks of the previous speakers, and more especially with the latter part of Col. Johnston's address. No sane man believes in war, but war was necessary in 1914 and we fear it will be necessary again. Pacifism is mainly found among those who did the least in the time of stress and the women are worse than the men. Many hearts were breaking, but the heads were only held the higher because of the losses sustained. The Judge expressed particularly his approval of the children's part in the day's ceremony. Many of the children present do not remember the war. Many were born since peace came to the world.

Two little boys holding aloft the flag drew the attention of the speaker who taught the children this little verse so appropriate to Armistice Day:

"With its red for blood
And its white for love,
And the blue for the hope,
Our fathers saw for larger liberty."

If our men had not seen a vision of liberty being dethroned they would not have gone. This great company, including the children, met outside and observed in sorrow and prayer the two minute silence in memory of those who went out to fight the good fight and did not comeback ,and those 60,000 mounds of earth, wherever they may be, will remain forever Canada. Let us revere the flag and remember what it stands for and remember, too, the price at which it was bought. Canada has not forgotten her dead, and the name of every soldier is commemorated.

The last public speech Judge Huycke made in Lakefield was on the occasion of the First of July celebration and on that day Canada did something to celebrate fittingly the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation and in commemorating the lives of all her sons, Lakefield boys and all the others who gave their lives in her service. At Ottawa in the Memorial Tower was played the carillon of bells to forever commemorate Canada's war dead and in a room just under the tower is the holy of holies of all Canada. There is a great book bound in Morocco, embossed in gold and called the Book of Life, and there are 60,000 names of men who gave their lives in the defence of their country and in this book is this inscription, 'My marks and scars I carry with me, to be a witness for me, that I have fought His battles, who will be my rewarder." Also inscribed in it are these words, taken from Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress," referring to the passing of the Greatheart, "So he passed over and all the trumpets sounded for him on the other side." "Their names shall live for ever more and the trumpets shall be forever sounding in their honor and for their glory."

Comrade J. H. Higgins, representing the Canadian Legion headquarters staff, was the closing speaker. He referred to the remarks of the previous speakers on memorials, and he wondered if the public are interested enough to know that a good many memorials are walking about the Dominion. The Canadian Legion is a union of several soldiers' clubs and societies and was formed by the efforts of Field Marshal Lord Haig, who wisthed to see all ex-service men united in one organization. He urged all the veterans to put aside all feelings of petty jealousy of other organizations and join with the boys to carry on the legion, which is part and parcel of the British Empire Service League. The speaker would like to see more of the Anglo-Saxon race in the country. The business and professional classes are apparently anxious to forget the war and do not acknowledge their responsibilities in regard to the treatment of the returned men. We should remember our fallen comrades, but in God's name remember, too, those who are not able to help themselves.

Dr. Kennedy thanked, on behalf of the Legion, all who spoke at this occasion, it is a beginning of a proper celebration of Armistice Day and we hope for a better one next year. The cenotaph is a temporary one which it is hoped will be replaced by a real one in the not too distant future.

Comrade Sidney Whatley, of Peterborough, moved a hearty vote of thanks to the officers and men of the Lakefield branch of the Legion for their fitting celebration of this memorable occasion commemorating Canada's 60,000 dead and the Empire's million dead.

The singing of the National Anthem brought to a close an event which will long remain a sacred memory.

A few high lights of the occasion may be touched, the parade of nearly four hundred of the youth of the community to pay honor to those who gave their lives for the liberty of many of those children who at that time were still unborn, there were, too, those who had given sons, husbands, or brothers, modestly bearing their part, righteously proud, a grey haired old father whose only child lies in Flanders fields, and last but not least the medals won by the soldiers, earned by service and sacrifice Among them was one member of the original Princess Pats' Regiment, Comrade C. C. Stenner. Lakefield is honored by having two original members of that famous regiment living here, the other, Dr. C. W. Finnemore, is an invalid and not able to bear a part in public activities. One feels that the celebration on Friday will hasten the day when a permanent and fitting cenotaph will show to all those who pass this way that Lakefield remembers and is faithful to the memory of her sons who lie "in Flanler's fields."

SAVED BY A SAUSAGE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—James Huff, proprietor of a delicatessen in Brooklyn, was ordered to throw up his hands by two holdup men. Instead of obeying, Huff picked up what looked like a piece of iron pipe and chased them. The would-be robbers were captured by police, and it was learned that Huff's weapon was a piece of bologna.

PETER SIMON ACQUITTED OF

not hear anybody? All you know is that you hit the door of a car?—Yes.

You say you were not drinking at all that day?—No.

"That will do," said Mr. Sinclair, and dismissed the witness.

This completed the case for both the defence and prosecution, and D. A. J. Swanson, counsel for the accused, rose to make one of the most eloquent appeals heard in court during the entire sitting. He contended that Ward was entirely responsible for the accident, and that Mrs. Brown's death was due to negligence on his part. He also remarked that Ward was the only important witness which the Crown had called. Briefly, then, he sketched Ward's police record, twenty-nine years on the Toronto force. This would make him conversant with traffic laws and yet he had deliberately parked his car on the wrong side of the road.

He further reminded the court that the people who had been in Ward's car had not been called to give evidence. This was explained by the Crown that they could not be located No definite proof, however, had been presented to the court. Miss Appleton, who got out of the car with Mrs. Brown is the only person who actually knew how she met her death, yet she was not brought before the court to give evidence. It did not seem fair to the prisoner that she was not summoned.

In his address to the jury, Mr. Sinclair, for the prosecution, reminded them that the blood on the car driven by the prisoner made it appear likely that it was that car which had struck and carried Mrs. Brown to where her body was found. He wondered if the accused could have carried the body the said distance of eighty feet without knowing it.

Justice Wright reminded the jury that the prisoner had been indicted on three separate counts: manslaughter, reckless driving and that of negligent driving, which caused injuries resulting in the death of Mrs. Helen Brown He reminded them that Ward who had been so cruelly flayed by the defence counsel, was not on trial but was the principal witness, and his evidence should be carefully examined. There were before them two main issues, was the prisoner reckless and regardless of the safety of others on the morning of August 25th, and whether they had any doubt as to whether or not it was the prisoner's car which struck Mrs. Brown and carried her to where her bod was found.

"All this is for you to decide, gentlemen," said His Lordship. "You are required to base your verdict on the facts of the case as submitted in the evidence." Before permitting them to retire, His Lordship further cautioned them as to the importance of their duty in this day of automobiles and reckless drivers.

At 2.48, during the hearing of a civil case, the jury returned a verdict of not guilty on all three counts.

Others Sentenced

Morgan Hall was the next prisoner to receive sentence. When his name was called from the Bench, his mother and sisters and wife wept bitterly.

Asked if he had anything to say why the sentence of this court should not be passed upon him, the prisoner was unable to say much other than that he was not guilty of the offence and hoped that His Honor would be lenient. F. M. Field, K.C., counsel for the prisoner, therefore addressed the Bench. He reminded the judge that the prisoner had suffered almost eighteen months, and had for part of that time been lodged in jail. He was born in the County of Northumberland about forty years ago, the only son of a considerable family, the father of which was now dead. His mother had come from Rochester to be with her son at this time. He aids in her support. That the prisoner must have a great many redeeming features was clearly manifested by the loyalty of his mother and sisters during all the time that he had been in the hands of the law. That Mr. Field remarked that there seemed no need for him to speak further. His Lordship having had great experience both at the Bar and on the Bench. He did, however, wish to endorse the truth of the prisoner's plea of not guilty and to make a strong plea for leniency.

"Morgan Hall," said His Lordship, "The jury found you guilty of a serious offence, and very properly so. It is the most despicable crime and in your case there is not one single redeeming feature. The girl is weak-minded and wholly unable to resist a husky man such as you are. You went to call for her with a lie on your lips. You enticed her to a lonely spot in the woods and there committed the crime for which you have been found guilty. For this offence you may be hanged. However, I am not going to inflict that punishment. You may also receive lashes, and I have seriously considered that form of punishment, returning force with force.

"In passing sentence, I am taking into consideration your prison service already done in regard to this matter, eighteen months. But the sentence which I am about to impose is not at all what I would have given you had this been your first trial. Your counsel has conducted your defence very capably and cleverly, but the evidence is too overwhelming and convincing. The sentence of this court is imprisonment for a period of two years and nine months."

"Edward Payne, stand up," ordered His Lordship. Asked if he had anything to say, the lad was too overcome to speak. His counsel, F. M. Field, therefore addressed the Bench. "I desire to remind Your Lordship," he began, "of some of the evidence given before the court. The mother of the girl stated that this boy had been kicked out of home when he was very small. His father had been at the front and not at home to assist in his bringing up just at the time when his influence was vitally necessary. The boy's employers have given him the very highest recommenations as to character and service with them. His people are poor and without sufficient means to retain his defence. This expense, therefore, falls upon the Provincial Government and thus makes it impossible for the lad to obtain bail. He has been in the Cobourg Jail since August and has been a model prisoner. He has been not the least trouble to the authorities and has assisted them in many ways while there. I would ask your honor to consider the prisoner's youth and other circumstances which are of an extenuating nature. In conclusion, I submit as strong a plea for leniency as I am capable of making."

"Edward Payne," said the Bench. "Your case has caused me much concern. Your good conduct and the jury's recommendation for mercy compel me to be as lenient as possible. I do not think you are evilly disposed, but rather than the crime for which you have been tried, was committed in a moment of forgetful lust and passion. All this is very strongly in your favor and I do not propose to send you to prison, where you will associate with criminals. I want to give you a chance to become an honest citizen of the country and hope that the sentence which I am about to impose will be a lesson of benefit to you. The sentence of this court is one month's imprisonment. Remove the prisoners."

That Mrs. Morgan Hall was not capable of sympathizing with others when they are in distress, was proved when she was heard to sob "Poor kid," as the youngster was led from the dock and out of the court room.

REV. JOHN GALT SELLS NEW BOOK

"The Saints in the Slums" to be Serial in Christian Herald.

The Rev. John Galt, who is well known in the Peterborough district, having been for a number of years pastor of Gilmour Memorial church and who will be remembered as the writer of the prize essay, "The Twentieth Century Minister," which was circulated throughout Canada by the Presbyterian church, spent two months in England and Scotland recently and, while there, disposed of the English serial rights of a new and important work entitled "The Saints in the Slums".

The work depicts the life of the people of the East End of London as the writer knew them during his many years of Christian and social work among them and exhibits the reactions of these people to Evangelical religion. Each of the fifteen chapters presents a different phase of how religion is regarded or disregarded, and the reactions of the poor and the wealthy are brought into sharp and surprising contrast. It is worthy of note that every incident and detail actually came within he personal knowledge of the writer.

The Christians Herald Company, London, the purchasers of the serial rights for Great Britain, were the first to whom the work was submitted. The Christian Herald is reputed to have the largest circulation of all religious papers in the world. Publication which will commence shortly will probably extend over a period of six months.

Arrangements have not yet been made for publication in this country as such plans will, it is expected, follow largely upon the success of the English publication.

AN APPLE THIS DAY SAVED HIS LIFE

By NEA Service

MIDDLETOWN, N.Y., Nov. 12—Munching an apple as he walked along, Richard Doolittle, 3 years old, fell into a pond. The pond was deep, and Richard couldn't swim or float, yet he didn't drown.

The apple saved his life. A piece of it stuck in his throat and blocked the air passages into the lungs. The result was that he swallowed lots of water, but didn't inhale any. After several minutes in the water, the boy was rescued by his father, who removed the bit of apple that soon would have strangled him.

6,000,000 MILES FOR BRITISH PLANES

Number of Passengers and Tonnage of Goods is Increasing.

Civil aviation in England has been in existence eight years, and in that time British air services have flown approximately 6,000,000 miles and have carried 90,000 passengers on regular services.

According to advices received by Bankers Trust Company of New York from its British Information Service the steady growth of Imperial Airways is shown by the fact that in 1926 16,775 passengers were carried and 679 tons of goods—an increase in passenger mileage as compared with 1925 of 41.6 per cent., and in goods ton mileage of 7.7 per cent. The total ton mileage increased by 28.6 per cent. and the horse-power mileage—that is, miles flown multiplied by horse-power—by 21.4 per cent. The percentage of cross-channel traffic by the Imperial Airways increased from 51 per cent. to 61 per cent. The modern London-to-Paris service by multi-engined air lines which carry a small buffet and a steward are in striking contrast to the ex-war two-seater passenger aeroplane which started the first service in 1919.

As an example of the increased efficiency of the services is the fact that of 4,000 flights commenced the proportion completed was 90 per cent.

BARGE BREAKS LOOSE.

Is Adrift in Lake Ontario With Four Men Aboard.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press).—Barge Quebec, with a crew of four men aboard, broke loose from its tug today and was adrift on Lake Ontario with a strong north western wind raising heavy waves. The barge, towed by the tug Joseph Russell, left the Port of Rochester early today for Toronto with a cargo of coal aboard.

The tug bucked the gale from the start and when about seven miles off Braddocks Bay the tow line snapped. Rather than take a chance on colliding with the barge in the darkness, the captain of the tug steamed for shore and notified the coast guard. Search is being made for the barge.

S. CATHARINES—Quebec is barge upon which many bodies were found in elevator disaster at Port Colborne eight years ago. Tug Russell was formerly passenger boat Lakeside which plied between St. Catharines and Toronto for many years.

SHORT STORY

WHAT JEAN FOUND

By Clarissa Mackie.

Mrs. Parker looked out of her window that beautiful summer morning and saw her four daughters standing in a row on the front lawn looking up at her lovely glowing faces, that is, all of them excepting Poor Jean, who was not only the youngest but also the plainest.

"Perhaps Jean will not mind, if she can sing!" thought the fond mother. "I am so glad that Gordon is coming down—he has not met any of the girls and I do hope that he will fall in love with one of them—at least Marjorie, because Marion is engaged to Arthur and Rosamond is about to be engaged to Dick—of course Jeanie does not count, she is so young and so plain, poor child!"

So that very night before dinner, Gordon Jaffrey arrived and while the other girls were delighted to meet this old playmate of their youth and become acquainted all over again, poor Jean, who had never dreamed of having a beau, so happy and carefree had her childhood been, looked at straight, handsome young Gordon Jaffrey and fell deeply in love with him at once, and beyond a pleasant, casual greeting of the plain-looking little girl in a white frock and thin legs, he simply overlooked her.

That night before she got into her bed, Jean Parker knew the reason why Gordon had not noticed her. It was because she was not pretty with fluffy golden hair like her sister Marjorie, or had red-gold hair and blue eyes like Rosamond, or had goldy-brown hair and lovely greeny-gray eyes like Marion.

"I have nothing except big brown eyes and short stubby hair like a boy—and the freckles—how I hate them! But I can get rid of them—my hair shall grow and my freckles will vanish and I shall grow plump! Cream for breakfast!"

And the next morning Jean Parker ate oatmeal and thick yellow cream for her breakfast, and always after that when she ate it she thought of Gordon Jaffrey, and as the summer days went by she ate bits of fat meat which she hated, and she drank plenty of rich milk, and presently Mrs. Parker began to notice the improvement in the youngest of her flock—Jeannie was growing not only plump, but pretty.

And Marjorie of the golden hair became engaged to Jack Maclay!

Who can blame little Jean for being thoroughly thrilled at the news of Marjorie's engagement, for with her pretty sisters all engaged to be married, she did feel that she might have a chance to win Gordon Jaffray's love unless—!

Jean looked into her mirror once more that afternoon when Gordon was expected and she was thoroughly satisfied. She was a beautiful girl, like her sisters, and they stared at her as if amazed when she came down the stairs, looking so demurely from long-lashed brown eyes.

"Who is she?" demanded Gordon Jaffrey sharply.

Rosamond stared at him and then murmured, "Why my sister, Jean—perhaps you have not met her, she has been away at school——"

"No, I have not met her," said Gordon as he thought, truthfully, and so he was introduced to little Jean. But Jack Maclay, who thought Jean was a "little peach," immediately monopolized her and carried her off to the piano where her lovely voice soon drew them all close around her.

But after dinner Gordon drew Jean outside to walk.

"Tell me," he said, after awhile, "where is your little sister?"

"Which little sister?" asked Jean in her lovely throaty voice.

"You had a small sister, Jane, I believe she was called. I saw her the last time I was here, and her eyes have haunted me ever since."

"Poor little Jane has gone away—she will never come back," said Jean sadly, but there was laughter behind it all.

"Poor little thing, and yet I was sure that if she had lived she would have been the loveliest of you all!"

"It would have made her very happy if she had known that!'declared honest Jean.

"Why?" he asked bluntly.

"Because I think the darling was ever so little in love with you," confessed Jean, blushing herself at the deceit of the moment.

One by one Jean's sisters were married and went away and Gordon came to every wedding and danced with Jean and paid her much attention, and always between them was the ghost of little "Jane!" Sometimes she grew impatient with Gordon because he seemed to act so stupid about it. Perhaps he was waiting for her to mention it! At last Jean and her mother went to the city for the winter as they had ever since Mr. Porter's death, and one day Jean telephoned to Gordon and invited him to come to tea with her.

Gordon came, and his blue eyes gleamed strangely when he saw the charming girl in her short black velvet frock, her lovely troubled brown eyes lifted to his.

"Gordon," said Jean in a shaking voice, "I must confess a very wicked deception—I am the 'little Jane' you speak about."

"Darling Jean," he said tenderly, "I knew it the first minute I saw you, because your little self so long ago had a tiny mole near her left eye—and it is still here! I have known all along—and I wanted you to tell me yourself! When we are married——"

"But you haven't asked me, yet!" faltered Jean; and then Gordon Jaffrey proceeded to do the proper thing.

P.C.I. Lose Annual Gridiron Battle to Oshawa

PETES SUFFER HEAVY DEFEAT TO MOTOR CITY

Students Are Battered by Traditional Rivals for 43-1 Score.

GOOD EXHIBITION

Westbrook Scores Lone Counter for Locals in Third Period.

OSHAWA, Ont., Nov. 14.—In the biggest scoring game ever taking place on an Oshawa gridiron, also the heaviest defeat handed out in the annual clash between the traditional rivals, Coach Kirkland's kids bruised, battered and banked the visiting Peterborough Collegiate Institute boys at Alexander Park, Oshawa, on Saturday afternoon until the knowledge youths from Mr. O'Neill's institution had amassed the grand total of forty-three points, while the Petes were busy collecting their lone counter of one point on a kick to the dead line in the third period by Westbrook. In the annual gridiron fixutre between the Lift Lock City students and Oshawa, the record stands for the eight years in which sixteen games have been played to date, Peterborough has won ten and Oshawa six.

Despite the crushing score of Saturday the game was replete with thrills and breath-taking plays and a really good exhibition of the pigskin game was displayed. Peterborough, although outplayed in almost every department, tried hard, but the best they could do was to save themselves from a shut out, being kept in their own portion of the field most of the afternoon.

Gummow Stars

Gummow was the high scoring ace of the Oshawa squad, tallying four touchdowns and figuring in most of the plays for the other points. Subbell's trained toe accounted for three points and to finish up the end of a perfect day, carried the ball across for a brace of touches. Westbrook on the backfield for Peterborough was the "Red Grange" on his team but he did not stand out as in his former appearances in Oshawa owing to the Motor City lads paying particular attention to his work, bottling him up before he could get under way with the ball. Besides Gummow and Hubbell on the Oshawa line up, Young, Carver and Deyman figured in some beautiful plunging; Baird showed well in some pretty plays while on relief duty and accounted for some long Oshawa gains.

The Game

Oshawa rushed across their first point on a rouge from the kick-off, Hubbell booting the ball to Westbrook, who was downed behind his goal line; Westbrook on the first down, runs ball to 50-yard line, Oshawa holds, and Petes are forced to kick; Oshawa repeatedly gain yards, but lose ball at midfield; Hubbell captures kick and makes 80-yard run for touchdown. Petes work ball to Oshawa's five-yard line but lost possession on onside kick. Whistle blows with Oshawa in possession on visitors' 35-yard line. Score, Peterborough 0, Oshawa 6.

Oshawa opened the second period with a smashing attack, ripping the Peterborough line wide open, but are stopped at the 45-yard line; they regain possession when Kohen secures loose ball and on pass to Gummow to Young to Hubbell, who carries the oval across the goal line for his second touchdown of the game.

Going into the second half of the game Oshawa took the aggressive via the bucking rout, but lost possession; Peterborough replied with an aerial attack by Westbrook, which netted the Petes their first and only point of the game; Peterborough regained ball on onside kick, but Oshawa held and the visitors were forced to kick; from then on the Peterborough lads faded badly and it was only a matter of time to decide the winner; Gummow ripped off fifty yards followed by lengthy gains on the part of his team mates, Deyman, Cutler and Carver; Gummow again struts his stuff and combines with Cutler, Deyman and Hubbell, the latter going over for this third touch; Carver carried the kick-off to the Petes' 30-yard line from where Oshawa boots on the first down, Fletcher pounces on Peterborough's fumble and goes over for five points just as the whistle blows.

Oshawa opened the last period with a rouge off the boot of Hubbell; Henry and Gummow force the ball to the 50-yard line from where Carver worked the oval across the Petes' goal line; Oshawa runs kick off to 50-yard line, from where Gummow rambles across for a touch and repeats again on a pass from Carver; in the remaining few moments Fletcher received the kick-off on Oshawa's one-yard line runs past the first group of tacklers and passes to Gummow, who passes to Young, who evades the Peterborough thrusts and passes to Carver and on the Petes' 30-yard line Carver passes to Gummow, who beats the remaining three tacklers and ends up with his fourth touchdown of the afternoon. The game ended with the total score being Peterborough 1, Oshawa 43.

The teams were:

Peterborough—Hewitt, flying wing; Merritt, Cuthbertson, Hyatt, halves; Gemmell, quarter; Preston, snap; Cowan, Hyderman, insides; Dunkerley, Gimblett, middles; Westbrook, Morrison, outside. Subs: Hall, McGee, Young, Lord, Wager, Hyatt, Westbrook.

Oshawa.—Young, flying wing; Crothers, Gummow, Hubbell, halves; Fletcher, quarter; Cook, snap; Bondwant, Deyman, insides; Hele, Cutler, middles; Daniels, Meek, outside. Subs., Baird, Stott, Kohen, Cornwall, Mundy, Davidson, Henry, Mackintosh, McKay, Armour, Carver.

EVERTON RETAINS LEAGUE POSITION

Individual Performance of Dean Features Games in English League.

LONDON, November 14 (Canadian Press Cable).— A fine individual performance by Dean, who helped Everton maintain their position at the head of the standing of the English League, First Division, was again the feature of soccer achievements on Saturday. Dean bagged a brace of goals in his finest style. Derby County, although at home, were blanked. Other fine efforts were those of Raid of Liverpool and Halliday of Sunderland, both of whom performed the "hat trick." The highest score of the day was that of Moore, of Bradford City, who made five playing against Nelson. Buchan got a couple and materially assisted his team, Arsenal ,to trim Middlesbrough.

In the senior soccer league the most impressive victory was that of Huddersfield Town over the once great Sheffield United. Huddersfield scored seven to Sheffield's one. V. H. Smith, Jackson, and Brown all scored two. The score was one-nil at the end of the first half for Huddersfield, Meads turning the trick. Just after resumption Tunstall equalized. After that the game developed into a series of processions to the United's goal.

The Liverpool-Wednesday affair was also even enough up to the interval, Kenn and Wilkinson registering for the Wednesday and Raid twice for Liverpool. Raid had to retire just after hat-tricking, but the seaport team played up and went on scoring through Hodgson, who netted twice .

The game at Upton Park between West Ham United and Cardiff City drew a crowd of 24,000 people. The Hammers were out to win, and rushed the cupholders off their feet in the first half, scoring through Yews and Watson. After the interval West Ham dropped back on the defensive. Nerrington, the former Sarning amateur, played a fine game on his first appearance among the West Ham professionals.

Sunderland Wins.

Manchester United were no match for Sunderland . They lost Silcock in the early stages of the match, and had to play a one-back game.

Everton, while obviously the better team ,also had all the luck against Derby County. The latter lost Cooper for most of the first half and though he returned after the interval, he was a mere passenger.

Thirty thousand journeyed to Highbury to see the Arsenal rub it in to Middlesbrough. Hulme goaled for the Londoners after twenty minutes of play and then Buchan put in two sweet goals. Camsell got Middlesbrough's lone tally.

Heavy Attendance.

The attendance record for the day among the major clubs was the crowd of 40,000 who turned out to see Tottenham Hotspurs defeat Aston Villa at Birmingham. The first half of the game was a determined struggle in which both set of backs proved too strong for the forwards. Eight minutes after the interval Elkes rang up the first score for the Spurs. Cook equalized with a sizzler. Osbourne got the winning goal for Tottenham.

There was an exciting time at Portsmouth when this town's team made a raid into Blackburn Rovers territory. A trio of players, Haines and Forward of Portsmouth and Roxburgh of Blackburn, being all laid out in the goalmouth. When they had been repaired, Haines netted from the penalty allotted Portsmouth. He scored another later, tying up the match. The mix-up occurred late in the second half, Blackburn leading by two-nil at half-time.

Broke Wrist.

Playing for Bolton Wanderers against Leicester City, Pym broke his right wrist.

Fifty thousand attended the Manchester City and Chelsea match at Manchester. Chelsea's winning goal was secured after twenty minutes of by Thompson.

One of the most exciting tussles was the bout between Port Vale and Oldham Athletic. Briscoe put Port Vale ahead only three minutes from the end.

Millwall administered the first defeat suffered by Newport County on their home ground ,and also annexed the leadership of the Southern Section of the Third Division. The Millwall goals were scored by Chance, Landells ,and Collins.

SCULLERS AGREE ON SECOND RACE

Goodsell and Barry Will Row at Vancouver Dec. 26.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press)—Major Goodsell, world's champion professional sculler, will defend his title here for the second time within four months against Bert Barry of England on December 26 over the Port Moody course. The match was agreed to late Saturday night. Barry, whom Goodsell defeated here on Labor Day, had challenged Goodsell for a return race. Both oarsmen will start active training at once, it was stated.

YALE STAGE RALLY TO WIN FROM RIVALS

Score Two Touchdowns Against Princeton in Thrilling Finish.

LEAD LEAGUE

Break Down Insurmountable Barriers in Last Moments of Game.

(By Alan J. Gould (Associated Press Sports Editor.)

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 14. — (A.P.)— Yale snatched victory from Princeton Saturday, 14 to 6, with a sensational last period rally that turned the tide with dramatic swiftness just when it seemed that the big blue football machine was stalled and powerless to score without the aid of its ineligible cog, Bruce Caldwell.

With as thrilling a finish as these ancient rivals have ever put on, the Elis came from behind with a sudden display of aerial fireworks, scoring both their touchdowns with not more than five minutes to go and with Princeton seemingly putting up a stone wall barrier to keep the six point margin gained in the second quarter when Eddie Wittmer dashed over for a touchdown.

With an electrical suddenness that sent most of the vast crowd of 76,000 in the Yale bowl into a delirious frenzy, Johnny Hoben, standing on Princeton's 47 yard line, hurled a long pass to Dwight Fishwick, giant end, who raced 25 yards for the first Blue touchdown. Duncan Cox, big full-back, booted the goal that put Yale into the lead and clinched the game, but the Elis, now rampant, rushed over another touchdown as Charlesworth recovered a fumble on the Tiger 20 yard mark and Bill Hammersley in Caldwell's post, reeled off the remaining distance to the goal line in a series of short thrusts.

Within the playing space of not more than two or three minutes Yale had broken down barriers that had seemed insurmountable, turned impending defeat into startling victory over a previously unbeaten Tiger team and lifted the Blue to a place at the top of the eastern heap, all in spite of the tragic banishment of the Eli ace, Caldwell, and the loss of his all around skill.

It was the climax of a game and these were the thrills of a battle that otherwise was nearly all in favor of the Tigers. With Wittmer enhancing his all-American prospects and leading a versatile, well-executed attack behind a fast-charging line, Princeton was on the aggressive most of the first three periods. A sustained march of 75 yards, started in the first period, wound up early in the second with Wittmer dashing over for the touchdown that loomed decisive for so long. For three periods Princeton's line outplayed the great Blue forward wall, opening big holes for Wittmer, Giles and Norman and making sensational stands to keep the Elis from scoring in the second period.

Princeton outrushed the Elis, nearly two to one, scoring 19 first downs to 11 for their rivals, but Yale triumphed through the combination of a "never say die" spirit, a spectacular forward passing attack engineered by Johnny Hoben and the remarkable all around play of Charlesworth at centre.

Charlesworth was in the back of nearly every play, breaking up two Tiger advances in the third period by intercepting passes and climaxing his brilliant work by recovering Wittmer's fumble in the final quarter.

In the closing moments of the game Princeton threatened to score as Searlette, subbing for Wittmer, led a 57 yard advance to Yale's 23 yard line, but here four long passes were blocked and the last Tiger hope was extinguished.

BRAVES' PILOT.

JOHN T. SLATTERY.

Question as to who would manage the Boston Braves next year was settled with the announcement that John T. "Jack" Slattery, coach at Boston College, had been appointed. Slattery has played with several American League Clubs and has coached at Harvard. He is 45 years old.

Upsets Feature In Coast Football

SAN FRANCISCO, November 14. — A season already generously sprinkled with football upsets counted another undreamed of reversal in Saturday's list on far western gridirons.

Stanford, 1926 champion, and undefeated in the coast conference this year, was the victim, with little Santa Clara University a non-conference team, the conqueror. Rank outsiders, the Green Jerseyed squad from Santa Clara, passed and bucked their way to a 13-6 victory.

No greater upset has been recorded on the coast in years. Santa Clara already had lost to University of Southern California 52-12; to California 14-6, and was held to a 7-7 tie by the weak University of Nevada team.

In a thrilling battle on a muddy field Washington nosed out California 6-0, bringing the northerners again into the front ranks of contenders with a chance of winning the conference championship. If Washington defeats Southern California and Stanford and Idaho fall before California and Oregon State respectively, the Husky claim to the title will be slightly stronger than any other eleven.

In 1838 the great English Derby was won by a little horse named Amato, which never ran in any other race before or after the Derby.

LOYOLA COLLEGE LOSE ROUND 13-3

University of Western Ontario Win Senior Intermediate Football Title.

MONTREAL, Que., November 14 (Canadian Press). — University of Western Ontario supplied further indication of their claim to recognition to senior ranks when they defeated Loyola College, 6 to 2 on Saturday afternoon at Molson Stadium to win their first Dominion intercollegiate intermediate football title. The score on the round was 13 to 3.

Western deserved their victory. Play for the greater part of the game was in Loyola territory, but the purple and blue lacked the punch to put across a touchdown when in position to do so. Loyola's desperate stands on their own goal line defied all attempts of the blue and white plungers to go across, and all the points made by both teams came through the air. Western, a heavier team on the line, had a decided edge in this department and ripped through Loyola for repeated gains, but failed to carry the ball across the Maroons' line, which closed up when a score seemed imminent.

Western's backfield took the brunt of the work on its shoulders when plunging failed, and Turville, the kicking half of the purple and blue, punted his team to victory. He was well supported in the backfield work by Paul Haugh ,whose gains in running back kicks was an important factor in Western's victory.

The game was free from roughness for three periods, but in the hectic moments of the last quarter, when Loyola were pressing frantically in a final bid for victory, Western's tactics in stopping them resulted in Referee Bannon banishing two of them for the remainder of the game. Bannon, himself, got into difficulties in the third quarter when he collided with Haugh when the latter was running abck a kick, and for a moment it was a matter of doubt as to whether the official would be able to continue in charge of the game.

Paul Hautch and Turville were outstanding for Western and the work of this pair in the backfield, the former with his runs and after kicks and the latter by his punting, provided the margin of victory for Western. On the Loyola team, Savard and McLear stood out above their fellows.

Missouri Tigers Are Lined-Up For Crown

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press.)—With victory over Iowa State last Friday, the Missouri Tigers have pulled up in position for the most thrilling climax in the Missouri Valley conference—the Kansas game—and the conference championship for the Tigers if they win.

If Missouri beats the Jay Hawkers in the thirty-sixth annual renewal of the Valley classic next Saturday— and all indications point to a Tiger victory — the third conference championship in four years will return to Columbia.

Missouri passed its way to victory over Iowa State at Ames on Armistice Day 13 to 6. At the same time a Texas whirlwind in the shape of Texas University was sweeping the Kansas Aggies along to the score of 41 to 7.

Friday saw Kansas miring deeper than ever in the conference standing when Oklahoma decisively defeated the Jayhawkers 26 to 7.

GEORGIA VARSITY STANDS ON LIST

As Only Major Eleven Neither Defeated Nor Tied.

(By Alan J. Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor.)

NEW YORK, November 14 (Associated Press). — Of all the embattled college gridiron legions from coast to coast and Gulf to border, the University of Georgia stands out to-day as the only major eleven neither defeated nor tied.

Overwhelming all opposition thus far in the south, Georgia's claims to national championship recognition are further illuminated by the fact that these bulldogs of the south have been the only outfit to upset the famous bulldogs of the east—Yale, the principal claimant now to eastern title honors through sensational victories over the Army, Dartmouth, and Princeton.

Princeton and Tennessee stood alongside Georgia with spotless slates before Saturday's frays, but when they were over the Togers had yielded to the spectacular finishing spurt of Yale, 14 to 6, while Tennessee had its march checked by a 7-7 deadlock, with Vanderbilt as the Georgians easily disposed of Clemson.

There are a half-dozen or more outstanding undefeated teams over the broad expanse of gridiron warfare, but at least one tie game has cropped up to spoil their otherwise brilliant records.

Altogether Saturday was a day of thrills and spills, of sparkling individual feats, another epidemic of tie games and record crowds. More than 500,000 spectators saw a dozen of the leading conflicts of the east, south and west.

Army's smashing 18 to 0 victory over Notre Dame, putting Rockne's Ramblers out of the title running, was probably the biggest "dope" upset of the day. But not far behind it was Stanford's jolt at the hands of little Santa Clara on the Pacific Coast by a score of 13 to 6.

Yale's dramatic last period triumph over Princeton with Bruce Caldwell on the sidelines shoved the Elis into a pre-eminent position in the eastern fold. Expecting comparatively little difficulty with Harvard in the final game this week, Yale has established a claim to eastern title honors that few, if any, may challenge.

In the south, Georgia's rule at the top of the southern conference, with five conference victories, is disputed principally by North Carolina State, which has won all four of its conference games, but which does not boast a record otherwise as impressive as the bulldogs.

Illinois, brushing aside Chicago, is undisputed leader of the western conference and needs only a triumph over Ohio State this Saturday to clinch the title. Minnesota also is unbeaten in the conference, but suffered an early tie with Indiana.

Missouri, disposing of a rival Iowa State team last Friday, holds the Missouri Valley conference peak, with Nebraska as runner-up. In the south western conference, the Texas aggies, adding Rice to their victims, have an edge over Southern Methodist and Arkansas in the standing.

The Pacific Coast conference still finds Southern California and Stanford as rivals for the title, although the former added to its prestige with a smashing victory over Colorado University on Saturday, as Stanford was bowing to Santa Clara in non-conference games. The major conference tilt resulted in Washington's overthrow of California, 6 to 0, but since both have been beaten before, it did not have much effect on the championship rating.

The Rocky Mountain conference leaders, Colorado Aggies and Colorado College, kept pace for pace by defeating tail-end opposition.

Don't Advertise A "Dead" Idea

AN idea that was a BIG selling and advertising idea ten, five, even three years ago, may today be a DEAD one.

It is a pure waste of money to center the advertising on a DEAD or WORN OUT idea.

For example:

A number of years ago the manufacturer of a certain food product that was then sold in bulk conceived the idea of packaging it.

The package provided the product with a big main selling idea. An idea so fresh and new and arresting that it made the product stand out from competitors.

The package put the product in a class by itself. It guaranteed uniform quality and accurate weight. It preserved the freshness and strength of the product. It protected it against dirt, dust, moisture, odors.

The package also enabled the product to be asked for by name and to be recognized by the public. It had a definite character and identity that it lacked when sold in bulk.

Naturally the public responded to the advertising of the package-idea of this product. For years it was the livest kind of a live idea. It was worth all the many thousands spent in advertising it.

To-day, however, this product has a number of package competitors. The former package-idea is, therefore, a WORN OUT idea—a DEAD one from an advertising standpoint. To continue centering the advertising on such an idea would be a waste of money.

In advertising it is important to keep your advertising vital and interesting, as well as to focus it on a Main selling idea.

Therefore, be sure you select a real Main idea in the first place. Then don't let any moss grow on it. Keep it fresh, alive, vital. If, by force of circumstances, it becomes in time worn out, stale or dead, drop it and find a new one. But be sure your old Main idea is a dead one before you do drop it.

Write for "Main Idea" booklet

This booklet tells in a few pages what a Main Idea is, and explains the Main Idea principle of advertising.

Several examples of Main Ideas used by successful advertisers are shown.

It tells ways of finding Main Ideas—how to keep them fresh and vigorous—how a Main Idea increases a product's saleability—its value in Chain Store selling.

Any responsible official of any industrial or financial corporation is welcome to a copy of this booklet.

CONSTIPATION—THE DISORDER OF CIVILIZATION

Constipation is a disorder of civilization and is not found at all with primitive people. There is no doubt but what this condition poisons the system to such an extent that it is often the first real cause of many serious ailments. This poisoning does not come from the retained food material only, but also from the reabsorbing of body toxins which should have been eliminated with normal bowel movements.

A large percentage of the feces is composed of waste products thrown out by the system, and if one diets carefully and does not over eat, only a small amount of the feces is composed of left-over food material and cellulose from vegetables and fruits.

Because constipation is such a general cause of all diseases, many people have been cured of serious troubles simply by taking frequent enemas or using laxatives. The manufacturers of the petroleum oil intestinal lubricants say that they receive many thousands of testimonials from people who claim to have been cured of every disease mentioned in the medical dictionary. Even though I know this to be true, I do not believe it is wise to depend upon laxatives or enemas in order to keep the bowels cleansed of accumulated poisons.

Bad results are sure to follow if laxatives are long continued. I have never known, personally, of a case where enemas produced any bad effects, but I am sure that everyone desires to be normal, and that you who are reading this article wish to have regular bowel movements in the normal manner.

In order to bring about a permanent cure of this trouble it is a good plan to study the various causes which produce it. The following is a list of cases I consider the most important:

(1) Irregularity in going to the toilet. You have always waited too long if you have waited for your bowels to tell you they were full.

(2) Wrong position on the toilet. The savage is never troubled with constipation.

(3) Insufficient use of the bulky greens. The bowel of the civilized man must have plenty of bulk in order to perform its work properly.

(4) Insufficient exercise, especially of the abdominal muscles.

Of course, there are many other causes which I might mention such as long continued use of laxatives, low blood pressure, enervation, prolapsus of the abdominal organs, etc., but if you will follow the instructions which I am giving you in tomorrow's article these causes can be removed.

Questions and Answers.

Question: J. P. T. asks: "How can a bowlegged person straighten his legs? I am eighteen years old, but I have been bowlegged for only about eight months. Can this condition be caused by lifting or carrying too heavy objects in your work?"

Answer: You can help your condition somewhat by taking various kinds of leg exercises, such as the deep knee bend, long walks, etc. Carrying heavy objects could only affect you if you are not using enough bone-building elements in your diet.

Question: K. L. J. asks: "Have you a book printed on recipes only?"

Answer: At present I do not have a book published on the subject of recipes only. Watch this column each week and clip out the menu articles which appear, and in this way you can accumulate a good many interesting recipes.

Question: G. M. M. asks: "Will you please tell me a remedy for granulated eyelids?"

Answer: Granulated eyelids sometimes start from a local infection rubbed in by soiled fingers, but infection of any of the mucous membranes is generally only possible from an over-acidity of the stomach and intestines. The irritation of this hyperacidity seems to be able to affect any of the mucous membranes, such as those of the nose, throat and eyes. Local treatments should be used on the granulated lids, but the constitutional derangements must also be eliminated before a permanent cure can be expected.

QUEEN'S WIN FINAL GAME FROM M'GILL

Capture Inter-Collegiate Championship By 11 to 5 Victory.

BRITTON STARS.

McGill Leads During First Part of Play—Queen's on Defensive.

KINGSTON, Ont., November 14.—Under the shadow of their own goal posts, a sorely harassed football machine bearing the triple barred livery of Queen's battled desperately against an aerial barrage that was steadily piling up points for McGill. Seven minutes remained to play until half-time and the Tricolor were in possession of their own ten-yard line when "Bubbling Bub" Britton whipped around a drawn-in Red end and raced into the open field. He sped forty yards towards the McGill goal, then slipped the ball over to Harry Batstone, who squirmed through the tacklers until the ball rested eight yards out from the McGill citadel.

This play will go down in McGill football history as the attack which swept away their hopes of an Inter-collegiate Union title and inspired the Queen's machine to come from behind to win the deciding game of the college race here on Saturday afternoon by 11 to 5.

For 23 minutes of play the Red smothered the Tricolor wing thrusts and end expeditions, while St. Germain and Tremaine waged a highly successful aerial duel with Batstone. The fiery-haired master of the moleskins was thrown heavily after getting a punt away in the first few minutes of play and his chest and kicking leg were injured. Queen's appeared to wilt after Batstone's usefulness was temporarily dulled, and he hobbled along in the wake of his plays, his face drawn and colorless with pain. He refused to leave the field because he saw the Tricolor cracking under the pressure of the McGill kickers' long lifts. Queen's were bottled up in their own end of the field and McGill moved into the lead when two singles and Tremaine's placement kick piled up five points.

Foiled wing thrusts an unsuccessful onside kick, fumbles, a blocked field goal, and finally a touchdown to even the score whipepd the silent stands into an ecstasy of excitement in the last seven minutes of the second period. With the ball resting on McGill's eight-yard mark Queen's attempted to plunge through the wings. Twice the Red defence hurled them back. Sutton lifted an onside kick, but St. Germain snatched it and ran it out to his 15-yard line. A snap out was fumbled and Queen's had possession in front of the posts. Batstone attempted a field goal and Lovering blocked it. The McGill man dribbled the ball, but was herded over to the touch line, and the ball went out of bounds at midfield off his foot, giving Queen's possession.

Britton Again Leads Attack.

On the first down Britton again shot around that weak McGill right flank for thirty yards. Batstone hit it again for 10 yards. Sutton was stopped in an attempt to slip through the centre, but Captain Cliff Howard battered his way through the Red defence on the next down to register the touchdown which evened the score. Another thrust at the McGill flank—a Sutton-to-Britton-to-Warren run—swept the play back into McGill territory from the kick-off, and when Tremaine's kick was blocked Britton again rose to the occasion by retrieving it and the half-time whistle sounded with Queen's again in the Red danger zone.

McGill's punting-into-touch attack forced Queen's on the defensive in the early part of the third period. But the Tricolor cast discretion to the winds and passed and tackled recklessly. St. Germain, Little, and Tremaine, the Three Musketeers of McGill were slowing up under the battering of the Queen's wings led by Britton, who was first down under the punts and accounted for the majority of the tackles. The Queen's were forced back to their fifteen-yard line by Tremaine's long lifts, but Batstone drew in the defending right end and sent Britton away on another excursion into the open field. Britton passed to Howard and the latter carried the play to the half-way mark.

Batstone, sensing the change in the fortune of the play, made a daring running catch of St. Germain's return punt and squirmed into McGill territory. But McGill rallied and Shag's well-schooled kickers drove the Tricolor back again until Warren was lucky to get out from behind his own goal line without having to concede a point. Batstone kicked to Little, who passed to St. Germain. The latter fumbled and the stands received the first inkling that the Reds were crumpling under the fierceness of the revived Queen's attack. Sutton scooped up the loose ball, ran 20 yards, passed to Durham, who raced to McGill's 10-yard line, where Little's desperate tackle just managed to throw him off his balance and give the trailers a chance to swoop down. Two plunges by Kilgour and a smash through McGill's left wing by Howard sent the ball over for Queen's second touchdown.

TUNNEL UNDER RIVER OPENED

President Coolidge Presses Key To Remove Barriers at Hudson Tube.

SEVEN YEARS IN BUILDING.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press).—The opening of a forty-eight million dollar vehicular tunnel, 9,250 feet long and running 72 feet below the bed of the Hudson river, today brings New York within six minutes travel of New Jersey and marks another giant stride in acceleration of the tremendous traffic of metropolis. After seven years spent in construction, the formal opening of the tunnel late Saturday required only the touch of President Coolidge on a telegraph key at Washington to draw aside the two flags at the entrances of the twin tubes of the tunnel and open the greatest underway boulevard in the world. To the "official christening" were invited a party of states governors, 13 mayors, and meteen thousand other guests.

The two tubes, each with a road width of twenty feet, has a capacity for 3,800 cars hourly and 46,000 vehicles daily. Fifteen million vehicles was the estimated capacity for a year. The tunnels are paved with granite block, brilliantly illuminated, and supplied with a complete change of air forty-two times per hour by eighty-four vetating fans.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

THE FELLOW WHO MOVES TO ADJOURN

He's usu'lly old and he's gener'ly gray,
And plent of speeches he's heard in his da
He sits in the middle, and well down in front,
And holds is remarks to a nod or a grunt.
But when some longtimer has used the last not
He hitches is chair and he clears out his throt,
And then, with a voice neither kindly nor ster,
He looks at the chairman and moves to adjourn.

I know what he's there for, I know why he comes,
Why three solid hours he will twiddle his thumbs;
It isn't to tell what he knows, and some more,
To offer amendments or ask for the floor.

The people who know him will smile now and then,
He's kind of a joke to the rest of the men.
But the very best speech, you will frequently learn,
Is made by the fellow who moves to adjourn.

Yes, some say he's funny and some say he's queer,
But I thank the good Lord that he always is here.
Go look at the minutes, and what do they say?
The same fellow moved that we call it a day.
The man with a message is all very well,
The yap with a story he's yearning to tell,
But here's to the wormtwith the courage to turn—
Yes, God bless the fellow who moves to adjourn!

"LADDIE."

Overflowing with all the broad understanding and deep sympathy that marks Gene Stratton-Porter's greatest novel, F. B. O.'s great production of "Laddie," which begins its local showing at the Regent Theatre to-day for a 3-day run, is truly a marvelous picture. Marvelous in its remarkable fidelity to the book, in its vivid reproduction of the atmosphere of the Middle West, in its happy characterizations, and guided by the directorial genius of J. Leo Meehan, the famous novelist's son-in-law, who produced "The Keeper of the Bees," the film is unquestionably a superb piece of work. With two of the best-known celebrities of filmdom in the leading roles, Bess Bowers as Pamela Pryor and John Bowers as Laddie, and supported by an unexcelled cast, the picture is bound to be one of the outstanding photoplays of the year.

Director Meehan has kept his story closely to the book, and the main theme, that because a man is a farmer he is none the less a gentleman, is deftly handled. With two poignant love stories paralleling to a triumphant conclusion, and a wealth of local color and clever touches of comedy, the picture builds up to a thrilling climax. Eugenie Gilbert as Shelley and Nell Neely as Arthur Paget give excellent interpretations of their parts and David Torrence as Paul Stanton, Arthur Clayton as Mahlon Pryor and little Gene Stratton, the novelist's granddaughter, take their roles admirably.

The smallest football player in the Missouri Valley Conference this season is Walter A. Weiss, captain and quarterback of the Iowa State College eleven. Weiss tips the beam at 135 pounds.

Why the temperature is high and the Fuel cost Low with the GILSON

70 degrees

The Gilson "Magic" Furnace is entirely different to any other in principle of construction and material. Here are a few of the features that make the "Magic" the only furnace of its kind:

The Hot Blast fire pot. Note pre-heated air rushes through the air jets all around the fire pot, igniting the gases and creating extra heat. All this precious heat is wasted in old fashioned furnaces.

Electric Arc Welding the body seam, top, door and ash pit frames are welded with electricity into one solid, gas and dust leak-proof unit. There are no joints in a Gilson furnace—therefore no leaks.

Exclusive Booster Flues force the warmed air into every room many times faster than ordinary warm air furnaces.

The Conical Grate keeps the hottest fire to the outside against the walls of the fire pot, thus getting the greatest efficiency in heat and economy in fuel, reverses the action to that of any other furnace.

Do You Burn Fuel to Make Heat or Ashes?

HOW many of your dollars go up the chimney in valuable heat producing gases? How many go into the ash-can, as unburned or partly burned fuel?

The fuel consumed in your furnace represents your money. To get full dollar value, your furnace should convert into heat 100% of all the heating elements in the fuel.

The Gilson Magic gives full dollar value from all fuel consumed. The combustion chamber is made from one-piece Copper Alloy Steel plate, with electrically welded seams that cannot leak gas or dust; transmits heat three times faster than old-style furnaces. Hot blast fire-pot with patented breather holes consumes all gases. Conical grate burns all fuel. Fire burns hottest at outside next to firepot—gets the heat to the rooms. Another passenger, the Comte de Ravoir, a connoisseur of women, furtively watches her.

In his avarice and imagination the Comte was picturing how doubly magnificent she would be if his money was sent out to bring in the luxuries her beauty deserved. As his eyes traveled back to Manon's lap he saw that she was having difficulty in keeping her small pet kitten in its basket.

"Ah, an interesting situation," thought the Comte. "Neither the charming mistress nor her pet relish confinement—and the Convent will be just as narrow for the young lady as the basket is for the kitten—I wonder——!"

And it was just at this moment that Manon's kitten gave a leap for freedom and landed on Comte De Ravoir's lap!

The Comte straightened up and grasped the little animal in his long nervous fingers, as if determined to keep in his power, at least for a moment, something that belonged to Manon. With more intimacy than the occasion demanded the Comte smiled straight into her eyes and said, "I am afraid your pet does not want to be hidden away, and she is right when it means that she would be out of your hands and sight."

"Oh, Fifi does not mind," replied Manon with a timid little smile, not in the least understanding the Comte's hidden meaning.

However, her brother heard and slowly opened his lazy eyes to take in the little scene. As he noted the wealthy man's interest in his sister, Lescaut's bored manner faded away. A half-finished yawn was forgotten. The seat no longer felt uncomfortable. Wriggling to an upright position he watched without appearing to do so.

"Permit me to help you with your troublesome charge," offered the Comte, as he returned the kitten to Manon's lap. But the little feline was not pleased at being handled by a stranger and arching her back she curled up her little pink lip at the Comte—as if to say, "Hands Off!"

"Fifi, dear, that is not one bit polite," admonished Manon, looking up apologetically at the Comte; but her smile faded away when she saw something in his face that she did not like, something that made her drop her gaze and devote all her attention to restoring the kitten to its basket.

No one had ever looked at Manon like that before. It seemed as though the man had turned his eyes almost inside out—they bulged, stared, blinked and watered. It was a hideous sight and Manon suddenly decided that there was something about this man that filled her with terror—and she could not look at him again. But there he was holding the basket on her lap, his hands pressing unnecessarily against her, waiting for the pet to be locked away. She looked appealingly at her brother, but if he saw her distress he gave no sign; he only smiled and nodded his head in approval. Manon was seized with a desire to strike the man's hands away from her; yet her brother was not annoyed, so she decided it would be foolish and rude as the Comte seemed to be only offering help.

Hastily, and at the same time gently, she forced her kitten into the basket, then lifted it quickly from her knees so there would no longer be any necessity for the Comte to keep his hands there. However, before she could place the basket on the floor the Comte had greedily touched her hands, under pretense of helping fasten the lid on the basket.

Quickly Manon turned away without again looking at the wealthy banker. Nervously resting her chin in her hand she gazed out of the diligence window toward the Convent to which she was going. A great flock of light colored pigeons were circling around and through the highest belfry towers, and as their wings flashed like silver in the sunshine, Manon decided that it would not be so bad, after all, to leave—men—and live within the peaceful confines of the Convent walls.

The Comte De Ravoir, pleased with the pleasant little encounter, settled back with his book again—but not to read; instead of seeing the printed page he thought, "No printed story could furnish half the zest that this young girl might give me, if she could be made to'—she is not the kind who would voluntarily go—romancing."

All of this time Andre Lescaut was awakening to the new and unlooked for possibilities in his sister's unconscious power to attract men. Unless there was some immediate advantage in being polite, he was extremely rude. Lescaut was without the slightest principle of honor. By inclination and skill he was a professional, gentleman gambler—a gay blade when luck ran high, but desperate and sullen when the odds were against him, as they had been lately. Money was as essential to his existence as air, and sometimes just as easy to get. At that time he had immediate use for more gold than the gaming tables would let him make while the need was so pressing.

Lescaut's eyes went to his little sister's face and he watched her with growing interest, narrowed lids and a lascivious expression. Her flower like face, a little saddened, made him ask out of curiosity rather than love:

"Why so melancholy, little one?"

"It is almost time for us to part and I dislike being left alone—I mean that it makes me sad."

"So—you dislike being left alone, eh? Well, what would you?" But instead of coking at Manon, Lescaut quickly stole a glance at Comte De Ravoir and really asked the question of him.

It was just a flash of understanding between two men of the world in the presence of a young girl who did not grasp the situation at all. But the one look that darted between the greedy and unscrupulous brother and the licentious banker planted a thought that was destined to cause great adventure and untold heartaches.

CHAPTER II.

Comte De Ravoir acknowledged Lescaut's question by slowly nodding his head and sensuously stroking his lips. Lescaut suddenly straightened up. He was no longer bored. His lips formed into a whistle and he almost let it out in his excitement.

Here he was just on the ace of throwing away his most valuable stake! His little sister—Manon—now had a new value for him. He looked at her critically and with an awakened interest. He smiled to himself as he watched the Comte devouring her with his eyes; a charming and perhaps profitable little drama of which Manon was wholly innocent.

Manon suddenly realized that her brother was staring at her. Glancing up she caught his eye and he quickly changed his expression. She reached over and tristingly nestled her hand in her brother's with a sigh of contentment.

"Well, little one, if you hate to leave me as much as that—how would you like to spend the night in the Inn?" asked Lescaut. "We can have dinner and breakfast together before time to retire to the convent."

MRS. COOK JOINS MARCHERS TO-NIGHT

Will Take Place in Ranks With Her Husband For a While.

CHIPPENHAM, Eng., Nov. 12.—(Canadian Press.)— Spurred by the news that they would have a woman in their ranks, A. J. Cook's little "Coxey's Army" swung out of Chippenham to-day for Swindon.

Mrs. Cook will join the marchers at Swindon to-night with her husband, who as secretary of the Miners' Federation, organized the march as a protest against unemployment. They will spend Sunday with the men and take to the open road with the marchers on Monday for a while as Cook has to return to London later in the day. Owing to the distance of to-day's march, about twenty miles, the journey will be shortened by five miles' train ride just prior to arriving at Swindon.

TANKER REACHES PORT DAMAGED

Limps Into New York Drydock After Explosion at Sea.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 (Canadian Press).—With three of her seamen dead and a fourth severely burned, the tanker Beta, down by the head and leaking severely, made her way to the dry-dock here to-day after a boiler explosion had torn a gaping hole in her plates and set her afire when she was thirty-three miles off the Jersey coast yesterday. Under convoy of the coastguard cutter McCall, one of three ships summoned by wireless to the scene of the explosion, the Beta managed to reach port under her own power, though through the night she faced constant danger of sinking in the heavy seas.

THE CONQUEST OF THE AIR — V — by Nicholas Afonsky

At the beginning of the eighteenth century a Russian peasant went one day to the Czar, Peter the Great. "I can fly," he said. "Fly if you can," answered Peter, "but remember that if you fall to the earth you will be beheaded."

The peasant, using wooden wings, threw himself from a high tower and was killed. Peter knelt beside his body, prayed, and said: "You fell, but you were a brave man, anyway."

Even in its early days the art of flying brought rewards to those who practiced it. In 1709, Bartholomew de Gusmao, a friar, went to the King of Portugal, saying he had a flying machine and asking protection for it. The King ordered death to anyone who copied it, and gave de Gusmao a pension for life and a valued professorship. But the church thought his claims heretical, and he was seized by the Inquisition and put in jail, where it is supposed he died. His secrets of flying

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Emanuel Swedenborg, the great Swedish theologian, found time to turn his attention to the interesting problems of flying. In 1716, he wrote to his brother-in-law, mentioning fourteen mechanical inventions which he had completed. One of them was a "Flying Vehicle, or the possibility of being sustained in the air, and being conveyed through it." Swedenborg's Flying Vehicle never got off paper, wherein he made very minute drawings and specifications for it.

A QUALITY HOME OF MODERATE COST

By J. W. Hawker, Architect.

To those with a limited building budget, and desirous of erecting a well designed home of the better class, this house should prove specially interesting.

Its chief claim to economy lies in its general form which, it may be observed, is almost cubical, and free from projections. This denotes a minimum of brick exterior wall. In addition to the initial saving of construction cost, it must also be remembered that with the reduction of exterior surface comes a proportional decrease in heat loss, and therefore of fuel consumption.

Detail work, usually a large item on the home builder's bill, has here been confined to the delicately designed little Colonial entrance porch which forms the focal centre of the exterior.

The plan is very simple and direct, each room except the sunroom having direct access to the hall. Notice particularly the large coat room containing a separate toilet located near the vestibule.

Imagine the interior effect of the interestingly grouped living room windows shown on the perspective. With this feature, a well designed fireplace, oak floors, and sand faced walls, the living room is very attractive.

Equipping of the kitchen has been left to the housewife, and a very efficient and pleasing result may be expected, for the architect has provided a bright, cross ventilated room of convenient size, for the setting. Wiring is provided for electrical refrigeration.

There are four rooms suitable for use as bedrooms on the second floor designated owner's, guest, spare and maid's room respectively, but of course their eventual use depends upon the owner's requirements.

A wash hand basin is furnished in the maid's room, while the bathroom is tiled and equipped with high quality fixtures, including a built in bath and pedestal basin.

With concrete foundations, brick walls, asbestos shingle roof, and hot water heating, this home would cost approximately $9,000 exclusive of lot.

Readers desiring further information regarding the plans and specifications of this house should communicate with the architect direct. Address Mr. J. W. Hawker, 312 Kennedy Building, Winnipeg, Manitoba.

ST. ANDREW'S UNITED

At the morning service the subject of the sermon was the parable of "The Laborer in the Vineyard." Rev. J. W. Gordon used the story as Jesus used it—to illustrate a great principle of the Kingdom, the principle of mercy; man receives from God not justice, no a fair reward, not what he deserves, but mercy.

He proceeded to show how Jesus by word and deed illustrated to men the character of God, and drew a striking parallel between Christ's words and deeds and the work of modern missions. He called attention to the fact that during this month the whole United Church of Canada is girding its loins for a great effort in support of the Missions of the Church.

"The Church of England"

At the evening service Mr. Gordon continued the series as announced: "What the great denominations have done for God. His topic was "The Anglican Church." The speaker traced the history of this great church from its earliest beginning in the Third Century. In later years this church served as a uniting force among the tribes that inhabited the island. These tribes saw about them a carefully organized government in the church, and this government served as a guide in working out their civilization. In England the State is the child of the church.

Later came Augustine sent by Pope Gregory, and in 668 organization into bi hoprics by Rome was completed. Schools were established at Canterbury and York and such church statesmen and scholars as Bede Anselm, Laufranc, and Becket ornamented their age.

Mr. Gordon outlined the development of the church's life down through the years until the reign of Henry VIII, calling attention to the great work of Wycliffe during this period. The importance for the English Reformation of the days between ascension of Henry VIII. and the death of Charles II. was carefully covered. The publication of the various editions and revisions of the Book of Common Prayer in the reign of Edward VI. and subsequently, was outlined by the speaker and the emergence of a distinctly Protestant Church, with a Protestant faith and doctrine was elaborated. All this was complete by the end of the reign of Charles II.

Mr. Gordon closed with a summary of the distinctive contribution of the Anglican Church to the work of God.

This Church presents the spectacle of a church which traces its sources back to the Apostolic age, which without violent changes in doctrine or order continues until the present day—apostolic life going along with their faith in apostolic succession.

It also did great things for religion in its emphasis upon beauty, regularity, decency and dignity in church architecture and worship, and aimed at securing that every part of the service shall be a real contribution to the worship of God. Both doctrine and order are based upon the Scriptures and the practice of the primitive church.

Perhaps the greatest contribution of all was this, that the Church of England gave the world the England that we know.

England, with all its greatness is largely the work of this church. Through the nation which she made the Church of England made her largest contribution to the Kingdom of God.

It was announced that the topic for next Sunday evening will be "The Presbyterian Church. The music provided by the choir at both services was appropriaate and beautiful.

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

Speaking on the text, Woe be to the world because of scandal. It must needs be that scandals come, but woe be to the man by whom scandal comes," taken from the 8th verse of the 17th chapter of the Gospel according to St. Matthew, Rev. William Meagher preached one of his very eloquent sermons at the morning Masses at St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday. He based his discourse mainly on the harm done by the scandal giver, the individual who, by evil conduct of words, does damage to the mind and spirit of his neighbor or his family.

Speaking of the direct harm done by the scandal-giver, in the one who counsels or commands what is wrong, and the indirect harm done by the person, who by means of wrong actions or words is the cause of sin to his or her neighbor, Rev. Father Meagher quoted the words of St. Augustine: "I would rather see a thousand people murdered in cold blood than see one soul sent to hell through scandal."

"The death of the body is a light matter compared to the death of the soul," said the reverend speaker, who alluded to the immodest dress of women of the present age as something "at which even a pagan world seems to be scandalized. "Bad language, suggestive and immoral stories and jokes were also classified as matters of scandal-giving, and an instance of the far-reaching consequences of this sin was given in the case of Martin Luther, whose defection from the true Church caused the formation of three thousand different sects in religion.

"Woe be to the man who scandalizes one of them, My little ones who believe in Me. It were better for him that a millstone be hanged about his neck and that he be cast into the depths of the sea," were words uttered against the scandal-giver by Christ Himself.

Father Meagher spoke of the horrible stories printed daily in the press of the land, where countless examples were recorded of men and women who had pledged themselves before the altar of God, later proving untrue to their solemn vows and forming a source of scandal-giving to their neighbors. Those in the household of the faith who refuse to attend Mass on Sundays and who did servile work on this day, who harm the souls of others by bad stories and thus worked untold evil, were apparent on every side.

Scandal-giving worked, in the first place, injury to Almighty God, because it robbed Him of the honor due Him, it injured Christ because it took from Him many of the souls He had died to save, and it injured one's neighbor becaus it took from him the sanctifying grace necessary to preserve the life of the soul.

"Good example does more than anything else in the world to draw souls to God and bad example has done more than anything else in the world to drive souls to hell. St. Paul declared: "If by eating meat I scandalize my brother, I will not eat it." There are many Catholics who will go into a hotel or restaurant and scandalize their weaker brethren by eating meat on Friday. "He that denies Me before men, I will also deny him before my Father who is in Heaven," declared the Saviour of men. A scandal-giver is a stumbling block and an occasion of sin to others and for him have the words been spoken: "Woe be to the man by whom scandal comes."

VISITORS PUT ON SECOND DEGREE

Orangemen From Guelph Pay Fraternal Visit To Local Lodges.

ATTEND SERVICE.

On Saturday evening a fraternal visit was paid to the Orangemen of Peterborough by a degree team from the royal city of Guelph, under the leadership of Worshipful Master Bro. Dyson, with Bro. Simpson as captain. Victoria Hall was well filled with members from Peterborough and surrounding counties, Victoria County was also represented. After the 2nd Degree had been exemplified in a manner which reflects great credit on the Guelph members, an interesting time was spent in addresses given by members of the visiting team and also by the W.C.M. of Peterborough.

Bro. Col. J. W. Miller then addressed the meeting and congratulated the team on their excellent work, and moved a vote of thanks to Bro. Dyson and his assistants for the excellent manner in which the work was done. Several matters of interest were discussed and a most enjoyable and profitable evening brought to a close by singing the National Anthem.

Another interesting item in connection with the visitors took place on Sunday morning when the entire team was met by the W.C.M. of Peterborough and attended divine service at George Street, where Rev. J. E. Todd, a former pastor of Guelph, occupied the pulpit.

RISKED LIFE TO SAVE DOG.

"I am a human and that dog will be taken out if I die in the attempt," said Fireman J. O. Martin, of Blairsville, Pa., and the dog was rescued, at the risk of Martin's life and the pain of sore eyes. Fire started in a store, and the people in the apartments above were in danger. A little dog, Trixie—at the time engaged in maternal duties with three puppies—sensed the danger and set up such a howl that everybody was awakened and the lives of eight people saved. In the excitement everybody left the house without rescuing the dog and her puppies.

One fireman called attention to the fact that the dog was in peril but another said it was their business to get the fire out. Then it was that Martin made his declaration, and at the definite risk of his life he brought out Trixie and her puppies. The puppies were so badly smoked that they died, and Trixie's life was only saved with difficulty. Fireman Martin has no regrets.

CHILD KILLED IN ACCIDENT

Eight Persons Hurt in Car Crashes at Windsor During Week End.

ONE OTHER MAY DIE.

WINDSOR, November 14. — A three year old child is dead and two persons seriously injured as a result of traffic accidents. The dead child is Irene Vernes whose parents live at 1335 Parent Boulevard, Windsor.

The girl ran from behind a parked car almost in front fo her home and was struck by an automobile driven by Edward Morency, an Amherstburg blacksmith. The police, although ordering Morency held, pending outcome of an inquest ordered by Dr. George Hassard, Coroner, said they were of the opinion that the driver was not to blame.

Morency told the investigating officers that he was driving at not more than 12 miles an hour. The truth of this statement is believed to be borne out by the fact that Morency was able to stop his car within 10 feet after the child was knocked down and instantly killed.

Henry Horner 57 years old, 144 Ford Boulevard, Riverside, is in a critical condition at Hotel Dieu from a fractured skull and left leg, as well as possible internal injuries. The police say they have learned that Horner was struck by a hit-and-run truck driver on the Talbot road, south of the Kenilworth race track, but the injured man has not been able to give any very definite account of how he was injured.

Thrown from an automobile which ran into a ditch near Maidstone, Warren Sexton aged 23, of Maidstone this evening suffered a fractured right hip and deep cuts on the head. Sexton says the driver of the car in which he was riding, was blinded by the lights of another car bearing a Michigan license.

EXPERT PRAISES ROUTLEY KENNELS

F. F. Dole Pays Tribute To Herbert Routley and His Dogs.

Writing in the New York "Herald-Tribune" of recent date, Frank F. Dole devotes a whole column to the success of Herbert Routley's dogs in recent field trials. The name of Frank Dole is a familiar one to dog fanciers and also to radio fans, for a fifteen-minute talk by him on dogs and dog breeding is broadcasted every Tuesday evening at seven o'clock from New York. Station WJZ.

Prefacing his article with the remark, "Some twenty-five years ago the writer learned to respect any Canadian fancier," Mr. Dole goes on to speak of his early acquaintanceship with Mr. Routley, when the latter was present at the field trial for springer spaniels at Fisher's Island. Mr. Dole goes on to say:

"Mr. Routley is a young man as fanciers go, probably nearer thirty than thirty-five. He has been interested in springer spaniels for only four or five years, although he has fancied other breeds a longer time. His interest in the springers is the greater, perhaps, because it is shared by his wife, who appreciates her husband's pleasure in training and competing with springer animals and shares it with him. Like most of the Canadian fanciers, it has been our fortune to meet, he is a rather diffident and unassuming fellow, with the great asset of being as great a loser as he is a winner.

"Herbert Routley was given some raw decisions once in a while, but he didn't kick. He accepted them as he did the favorable breaks. After the Fisher Island show a year ago, he said good-by with the prediction that, 'I'll have something next year that will make them all step.'

"It was the day before the recent trials at Brewster that we saw Herbert Routley again. When asked if he had found the dog he wanted, he seemed to want to answer in the affirmative, but merely said, 'Wait and see.'

"The trials started and now spaniel followers all over the country know that in Fire Squall, Routley has one of the best springer spaniels on this side of the Atlantic. It takes a lot of money to buy a good field trial spaniel. It is common to pay anywhere from $800 to $2,500 for the sort of dogs that compete in the big trials. This is a lot of money to a young man like this Canadian fancier, who must make his own way in the world."

Going on to refer to the purchase of Fire Squall in Scotland, and the dog's subsequent success at the field trials at Brewster, Mr. Dole says that Mr. Routley has refused five offers of $1,000 each for his dog, announcing his intention of taking the dog home and letting intending purchasers send sealed bids for him, the highest bidder to take him as a fair sporting proposition in which no favorites could be played.

The article concludes: "That Herbert Routley got what he wanted in a dog that could clean up at the field trials is a credit to his persistence. Few have gone so far in the dog game on so little capital as this young man, and a quieter and more unassuming Canadian never came across the border to participate in sport with American dog fanciers."

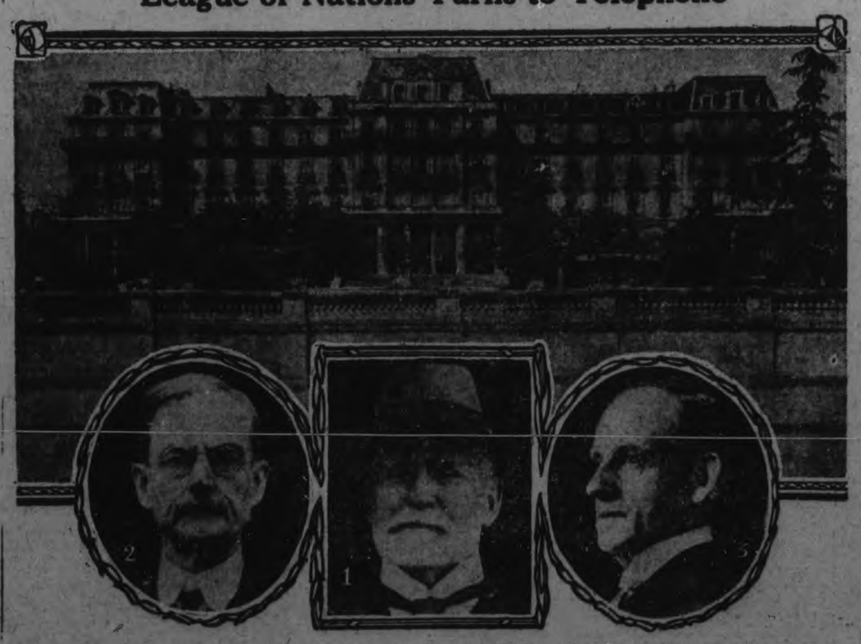
League of Nations Turns to Telephone



Emergency sessions of the League of Nations will soon be held by telephone, predicts Secretary-General, Sir Eric Drummond. Special telephone equipment is being constructed for installation in the League headquarters (shown above) permitting Geneva to link up with Paris, London, Brussels, Berlin and Rome, and via transatlantic service with Washington and Ottawa. In the event of extraordinary developments, when a speedy decision is vital, much precious time can be saved by telephone discussion.

The information is of especial interest to Canada, whose representatives Senator Raoul Dandurand (No. 1 above) and Senator N. A. Belcourt (No. 3) have taken such prominent part in recent League discussions. (No. 2) Sir Herbert Ames, formerly M. HEALTH BOARD IS CRITICAL OF CITY COUNCIL Members Charge Lack of Interest in Health of People of City.

ESTIMATES DELAYED.

Police Station Unsanitary, Declares Dr. Young, Urging Several Improvements.

Members of the Board of Health criticized the City Council this morning at its regular monthly meeting for a seeming lack of interest in the health of the people of this city. Early in the summer the Board asked the Council to get estimates on the cost of building a sewer on Harvey Street between Antrim and Smith Streets and on Smith Street from Harvey to the bridge. These estimates were not given to the Board until its meeting to-day, and then the members were told that the Board of Works could not see its way clear to build the sewers this year.

"We got the same information three years ago except the price, and then nothing was done. This has been hanging fire for some years, and it is getting monotonous. We recommended this work to the City Council as being necessary for the health of the residents, and it is up to the city to carry out the work," said Dr. Young. The City Engineer estimated the cost of the sewer and pumping station at $8,340.55.

The condition of the Police Station also came in for severe criticism from Dr. Young. He reported it as being dirty and in a very unsanitary condition. "I have ordered that it be cleaned up. The wooden bench in the big cell cannot be kept clean, and it is just a refuge for lice and bugs. The walls should be painted and things are in a bad condition. The condition of things in the small cell was not reported to be any better, and the Board advised that a steel bed and new mattress be bought.

Mr. Hancock: "You would not suggest that the smallpox case in the jail originated from there?"

Dr. Young: "No."

The Board passed a resolution that will be forwarded to the Police Commission asking that the Police Station be redecorated and improvements made to the cells.

Dr. Young reported a case of smallpox in the jail, and said that every possible precaution was being taken by himself and the jail physician to keep the prisoner isolated and that the other prisoners were being vaccinated.

The report of the Queen Mary Hospital showed that on the first of October there were two diphtheria cases in the hospital. During the month a patient was admitted and three discharged, leaving the hospital empty at the end of the month.

Since then Dr Young reported that five diphtheria patients had been admitted to the hospital.

It has cost the Board, up until the first of October, $6,776.41 to run the Queen Mary Hospital this year. Receipts have totalled $1.279. The Board's appropriation was $9,000.

Those present were Alderman W. J. Holloway, Dr. T. W. H. Young, M.O. H., and Dr J. M. O'Brien.

PLANE STARTS LONG FLIGHT

FLYING TO INDIA.

UPAVON, England, November 15. Canadian Press. — Captain R. H. McIntosh, who made an unsuccessful attempt to fly from Ireland to New York this summer, tok off for India shortly after one oclock to-day on a non-stop flight in an effort to break the world's long distance record, now held by Clarence Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine.

Capt. McIntosh was accompanied by Bert Hinkler, test pilot, who created a world's long distance record for light planes in a recent non-stop flight from London to Riga, Latvia.

The weather conditions were excellent when the Fokker monoplane, Princess Zenia, the same plane which Captain McIntosh used on his attempted trans-Atlantic light, took the air after a run of about half a mile and gradually disappeared with its escort of six Royal air force machines.

The Princess Zenia carried eight hundred gallons of gasoline. The airmen plan to make their first landing somewhere in India, at least four thousand miles from their starting point. Their provisions consist of sandwiches, biscuits, concentrated meat extracts, candies, coffee, tea and cold water.

SAN FRANCICO, Nov. 15. Canadian Press. — Captain Frederick A. Giles has postponed the start of his proposed twelve thousand mile flight to New Zealand, scheduled today. The rain soaked runway at the field where the Giles plane was prepared for flight, caused the postponement. He plans to attempt a take-off to-morrow.

Mystery Shrouds Plane Seen Over Atlantic

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(Canadian Press.)— Mystery yesterday shrouded the identity of a "white plane headed north and flying high," reported by the Liner Ile de France, sighted 250 miles south of Halifax. Officials of the French Line last night had received no word from the ship in answer to a request for further details.

At flying fields near here no plausible explanation of the plane's presence over the Atlantic could be offered. It was not believed the plane could have been on a trans-Atlantic flight as no trans-Atlantic take-off had been reported.

The Ile de France, due here today, radioed the Radio Corporation of America yesterday morning that she had sighted the plane.

CABINET DENIES SELLING TITLES PRACTICE NOW

Answers Daily Mail's Charge That Morning Post is Hypocritical.

ATTITUDE EMBARRASSING.

Politicians Wonder How Far Party is Backing Paper's Campaign.

LONDON, November 15 (United Press) — The picturesque and even amusing controversy over Lloyd-George's huge campaign fund and the propriety of selling titles and other public honors has reached the House of Commons, with the result that the Government has issued a formal denial that any sale of honors now exists.

The Morning Post has been publishing a series of articles openly charging that Lloyd-George accumulated his political funds by traffic in honors and The Daily Mail, charging into the arena in the defence of Lloyd-George, asserts that the Morning Post, which is backed by the Tory Party, is guilty of sheer hypocrisy in levelling such accusations against the wartime Premier because it declares the same system still exists. Where, asks the Daily Mail, will the Tories get their expenses for the next election if the money does not come from the pockets of wealthy supporters, who will expect titles as rewards for their munificence?

Naturally, this attitude of the Daily Mail is embarrassing to the Government as much so as the Mail's recent support of Lloyd-George along other lines. The Morning Post is preparing to publish its articles on Lloyd-George's financial activities as a pamphlet, which will be widely distributed, and the political world is asking how far Conservative headquarters is backing this action in the effort to discredit Lloyd-George.

MALE VOICE CHOIR ASSISTS AT KNOX

About 25 Men Join in Sunday Evening Service There.

A number of the members of the Peterborough Male Voice Choir assisted with the musical services on Sunday evening at Knox Church. About twenty-five of the members augmented the choral numbers to nearly fifty voices, the ensemble singing being noticeably fine, with an especially good rendition of the "Angelus," in which about fifteen of the Knox singers combined with the Male Voice Choir voices.

The popular choral number, "Abide With Me," was given by the Male Voice Choir members, a quartette singing the third verse being composed of Messrs. Arthur Lee, Cyril Crowe, Edward Rowe and A. V. Woods. Mr. Lee also gave, in splendid voice, a solo number, "King David's Lament."

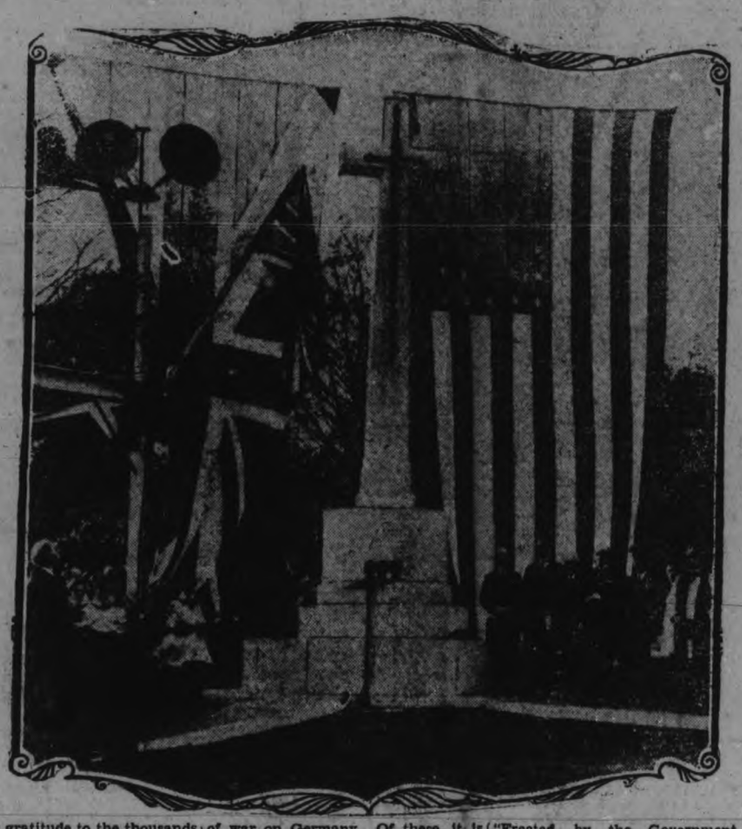
The combined singers gave a notable rendition of the anthem, "Sun of My Soul." Mr. R. J. Devey played organ accompaniments. A great deal of appreciation of the singing was manifested by the congregation at the conclusion of the choral numbers.

Dry Agents Finish Course of Study

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—(United Press.)—Having completed a course in the modern art of detecting violators of the eighteenth amendment, 24 prohibition agents were graduated yesterday from the Dry Bureau's College for Enforcement Officers.

The graduates are to be sent to their home offices, where they will establish schools for other agents, it was announced by Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Lowman. The graduates were addressed by Lowman and Mrs. Mabel Walker Wellebrandt, Assistant Attorney General.

CANADA'S MEMORIAL AT ARLINGTON



Canada's gratitude to the thousands of men from south of the border who anticipated America's participation in the war by fighting in the Canadian corps, was expressed in enduring form when a granite cross, the gift of the Dominion, was unveiled in Arlington National cemetery at Washington in connection with Armistice Day memorial services. Between 30,000 and 40,000 Americans joined the Canadian Army soon after the declaration of war on Germany. Of these, it is estimated that between 5,000 and 6,000 lost their lives in battle. The exact number is not definitely known, since all enlisted as Canadians. "The Cross of Sacrifice" is the official name of the memorial which Canada presented, but it is more generally called the Canadian Monument. The granite cross, nineteen feet high, bears upon it a conventional bronze sword, an the following inscription: "Erected by the Government of Canada, in Honor of the Citizens of the United States, Who Served in the Canadian Army and Gave their Lives in the Great War, 1914-1918." The simple but impressive shaft is seen in the illustration. Standing beside the Cross of Sacrifice are seen Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian minister to the United States, who made the presentation and Hon. William Phillips, United States' Minister to Canada.

PAGASKAG CLUB HAS FULL QUOTA

Party Returns To City From Pakesley With Many Fine Deer.

PLANNING DINNER.

While many of the hunt clubs of this city report that the deer are very scarce the Pagaskag Hunt Club returned to this city on Saturday with its full quota of 18 fine deer. This club hunts on the Pakesley River between Owen Sound and Sudbury and this season has proved to be the best hunt it has ever had. Deer were plentiful and were found in herds and from reports of the members they could have shot twice their quota. The largest buck to be brought into this city for a number of years was shot by Fred Jopling and it is now on display in Jopling's lower store window. The deer were all fat and the venison, when it arrived in Peterborough, was in splendid condition.

The members of the club are T. Brightman, judge; Fred Jopling, captain; T. Hooper, Fred Dobson, Fred Hooper, Dr. E. H. Wood, J. Jopling, Bert Jopling, Sandy McManus, W. J. Telford, M. Comstock of this city, and H. Hamilton, C. Smith, F. Owens, J. Alcorn of Youngston, Ohio, and Fred McGibben of Syracuse, N.Y.

The members came out on a special train with many more hunt clubs from various parts of Ontario and the United States on Saturday, and the buck shot by Mr. Jopling was classed as the best deer on the train.

Mr. McGibben had a moving picture camera with him and he took many pictures of the Muskoka district and the wonderful game that is found in that district. Every evening a concert was given by the members of the club, and men gave programs there that were enjoyed by everyone. A mock trial was one of the features along with the reading from Drummond given by one of the members.

On Thursday night the members will entertain their wives at a real hunt club dinner at the home of Fred Jopling, in which venison will be the main item on the menu. For this event four quarters of venison has been set aside.

This is the third year that this club has gone into the Pakesley district. Dr. Wood got two fine bucks, and F. McGibben and M. Comstock also shot two deer each. The rest of the members either got one or tried a shot at some.

THE WEATHER

The lowest temperature last night was 50 degrees—a warm night for the 15th of November. The rainfall gave a total of .53 of an inch. It had all the characteristics of an April shower. In some sections of New Ontario there is now good sleighing and the same conditions prevail in northern Quebec.—W. P.

Earth Shocks Felt At Falls

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Nov. 15.—Niagara Falls was distinctly shaken twice Saturday evening about 7.50 o'clock, and the supposition is that the cause was an earthquake. The shocks were so violent in some sections that the occupants of houses rushed out into the streets as windows rattled and pictures fell. The shocks were close together, and the general belief at first was that explosions were the cause. Careful check failed to show an explosion sufficiently large to cause the earth tremors. No damage has been reported.

BUS SERVICE TO BE BETTER

Border Transit Company To Arrange To Serve West End of City.

BUSSES REPAINTED.

Assurance that the service to the western part of the city will be improved shortly was given His Worship Mayor Holloway by Frank J. Mitchell, manager of the Border Transit Company, on his visit to the city. The busses are now being repainted and renovated, and as soon as this work is done they will be re-routed to care for the district near Charlotte Street. Mr. Mitchell and his company are anxious to provide the best service possible in this city, the Mayor was assured.

C.N.R. Lakefield Track Scene of Slight Accident To-day.

CAR HEAVILY LOADED.

A freight car loaded with building sand was derailed at the Water street C.N.R. crossing at 3.00 o'clock this afternoon. The car went off the track in front of the Sanitary Ice coal sheds and was hauled along the ties to Water street before it was noticed.

A special freight was being run to Lakefield with building material for the Canada Cement Company plant. At the George street crossing there is a railway stop sign that was ordered put there by the Railway Board. The became derailed when the engine was starting at this point.

The sand was in an open car and after last night's rain was more than twice its usual weight. Considerable damage was done to the road bed and ties.

SCHOOL TEACHER FRACTURES ANKLE

Miss Thelma Paxman, of 198 Barnardo avenue, slipped on the steps in front of Central Public school last night and fractured her ankle. Miss Paxman is a teacher on the school staff. The accident occurred a few moments after four. An ambulance was summoned and Miss Paxman was taken to the clinic, where her ankle received medical attention.

Succumbs To Effects of Bullet Wounds Received In Alvaro Obregon Outrage

MEXICO CITY, November 15 (Associated Press). — Antonio Tirado, one of the three men held at police headquarters for the attempted assassination of Alvaro Obregon, presidential candidate, died yesterday from bullet wounds received while fleeing from the scene, according to information in possession of capital newspapers.

Police headquarters, however, refused to confirm or deny the report. They declined to make any official statement other than that investigations are continuing in an effort to determine who was responsible for the plot to assassinate the former president, who is a candidate for election a second time.

The three men arrested are considered by the police to be the tools of others, perhaps political enemies. One of the attackers is said by the police to be a shoemaker and another a barber.

The only arrest besides that of the two wounded and one unwounded man accused of making the attack is Miguel Alessio Robles, formerly a member of Obregon's Cabinet. Robles is prominent in the anti-re-electionist political party which opposed Obregon and supported the presidential candidacy of the recently executed Arnulfo Gomez. Miguel is a brother of Vito Alessio Robles who delivered the funeral oration at Gomez's burial and at whose residence in Mexico City Gomez's body rested before its burial.

Oshawa School-room To Be Fitted With Glass To Admit Violet Rays

OSHAWA, Ont., November 15 (Canadian Press). — The first Public School room in Canada to be equipped with windows through which the healing ultra-violet rays of the sun are admitted by a special form of glass, will be a room in the extension to the Simcoe South Public School now under construction here. The Board of Education has accepted the offer of the manufacturers to equip the room. The effect on the pupils using the room will be carefully noted, and the results will probably be of great interest to scientists and educationists.

Martron, it is alleged, was taken into custody in a small Louisiana town on a charge of vagrancy, and is being held pending the outcome of an investigation into his record now going forward through the Criminal Identification Bureaus at Washington and Ottawa.

The details of the arrest are not yet known.

The lack of any information concerning Harlton leads to the belief that the two men, recognized as the leaders in the sensational jail break, separated after gaining their freedom, and that each went his own way. No authentic clue was found of the course either pursued after they had beaten the two turnkeys and scaled the rear wall of the jail yard to liberty. The other men who escaped at the same time, Ross McLeod, Roy Agnew and Ernest Brown, were captured a day later and are now serving sentences.

Martron is wanted in London on three charges, one of jail-breaking, and two of assault. One of the two latter accusations involves an attack made on Frank White C.N.R. boarding car cook, several days previous to the jail break. White was attacked on his return to the car from a shopping tour and was rendered unconscious from blows rained by his assailant. He later identified Martron as the man who made the attack. The other charge arose from an attack on one of eight small boys a day or two later.

MISSIONARY SPEAKS HERE NEXT SUNDAY

Rev. Murdock Mackenzie Has Spent Many Years in Honan.

"There is enough power in the Gospel of Christ to snap the shackles from every darkened soul in China and to draw from the deepest depths of vice every degraded soul in that country."

Such was the clarion statement of the veteran Missionary, the Rev. Murdock Mackenzie, D.D., made last Sunday morning in Sherbourne United Church, Toronto, who has recently returned from war-torn China. He has spent many years of strenuous service in Honan and in spite of the present conditions he is full of enthusiasm and hope for the future of Christian missions in that land.

Peterborough people will have the opportunity of hearing him next Sunday morning in Knox church, or evening in George street church. Dr. Mackenzie was honored for his service by being elected Moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada in 1913, and has always been regarded as one of the foremost workers and eloquent advocates of the missionary cause to which he has given his life.

Nanking Victorious In Hankow Campaign

SHANGHAI, Nov. 15.—(A.P.)—The conflict between Nanking and Hankow seems to be ended with complete victory for Nanking, which will greatly strengthen the Nanking government. The Hankowites are sending peace envoys to Nanking, advices say, and it is expected that a settlement will be effected, thus terminating all attempts of Hankow to set up an independent government.

In the meantime the disorders in the Wuhan cities— Hankow, Fuchang and Hanyang—are dying down, and with Japanese Marines landed at Hankow and British Marines standing by in readiness to land if needed, hope is expressed that there will be no further trouble.

The rioting and looting in the native city of Hankow are said to have originated in the discovery of the body of General Chang Kno-Wei, Hunan commander of the eighth army, who had been strangled to death. In revenge the general's troops looted and burned the headquarters.

21 KNOWN DEAD FOUND IN RUINS

Police and Firemen Searching For Upwards of 50 Missing.

PROPERTY LOSS HIGH.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 15.— (Canadian Press.) — Twenty-one known dead, fourteen or them identified, had been located in the debris of buildings following the gas tank explosion here yesterday. Fifty more were missing and more than five hundred injured had been treated in eight Pittsburgh hospitals. While fresh rescue workers relieved the tired men who had labored throughout the night by the aid of searchlights and flashlights, property owners sought to estimate the cost in dollars. No responsible official or business man, however, could make a more accurate guess than that the loss would run into millions of dollars. The damage to the gas tank which exploded, and the two beside it, is in excess of one million dollars. All about the tanks, factories and houses were a twisted mass of wreckage. Plate glass worth $50,000 was shattered, some of it several miles from the scene of destruction.

Daylight to-day found firemen and police still hard at the task of searching the ruins for the bodies of men believed to have been trapped in cellars and beneath the debris of fallen buildings. Dangerously swaying walls were pulled down and the Ohio river dredged for possible victims.

118 DROWNED NEAR BOMBAY

Coastal Vessel Sinks in Sudden Storm on Saturday.

16 MEN RESCUED.

BOMBAY, India, Nov. 15.—(Canadian Press.)—One hundred and eighteen lives are estimated to have been lost in the sinking of the steamer Tukaram, of 290 tons, plying between Bombay and coastal ports. The steamer, carrying eighty-two passengers and a crew of fifty-four, sank within three minutes during a sudden storm on Saturday. The owners sent another boat in search of the Tukaram and this vessel returned with sixteen survivors.

Workhouse Beds Please Marchers

HUNGERFORD, Eng., Nov. 15. —(Canadian Press.)—The unemployed started for Newbury today. As it is only a ten mile hike the marchers expect to arrive there in time for tea. The men slept at Hungerford workhouse last night, which was lent by the town for the occasion. They agreed that the beds there were the best they had had since they started the journey to London to protest against unemployment.

NEW FIELD OF SERVICE OPEN TO ROTARIANS

Governor Wright Points Out Chance of Helping Newcomers to Canada.

OFFICIAL VISIT.

Head of 27th District Tells Rotarians of Growth of Movement.

That Rotary can find a very useful field of service in helping to assimilate new-comers to Canada and in making it possible for children of new citizens to develop mentally physically and spiritually, was the message brought to the Peterborough Rotary Club last evening by David M. Wright, ex-M.P., of Stratford the Governor of the 27th Rotary District, in paying an official visit to the local club.

Governor Wright conferred early in the evening with the directors and chairmen of committees, and discussed details of Rotary work in Peterborough.

President A. L. Killaly was in the chair at the dinner, and there was a good attendance of members. Wm. Comstock was present as a guest of the District Governor.

The preliminary songfest was in charge of Rotarian Dave Melton.

In introducing Governor Wright, President Killaly stressed the splendid service for Rotary that was being performed by the District Governor. The latter, he said, had not only attended the Ostend convention, and the conference of Governors at Chicago but had already paid official visits to thirty-eight out of the fifty-four clubs under his jurisdiction in the 27th District.

Governor Wright complimented the Peterborough Rotary Club upon the fine work it was doing here. There were, he said, many splendid clubs in the 27th district and he had been particularly impressed with the community service rendered by clubs in centres of 2000 or 3000 population, instancing the St Mary's club as an outstanding example of what could be done by a club in a small community.

Speaking of the International convention at Ostend, Governor Wright said that he had been struck by the great interest shown by European Rotarians in the sixth object of Rotary. They were concerned in what that aspect of Rotary could do in the way of making war impossible, and the biggest men of European countries saw in the sixth object the first token of a practical basis by which the men of all Europe might get together. The speaker stated that delegates to the convention had returned to their own lands, determined to put the Rotary movement over on a large scale, and already the results were being seen in the springing up of new clubs in Germany, France, Italy and other countries. These Rotarians had been encouraged by the growth of Rotary in Great Britain, where there are now 251 clubs, as compared with 35 a few years ago.

Impressions of Britain.

A striking tribute to the courage of the British people was paid by Governor Wright who spent some time last summer in studying conditions there. We on this side of the Atlantic, knew little or nothing of the fight against odds that had been carried on by Britishers since the end of the war. Manufacturers who for years had been carrying great losses, were patient and uncomplaining. They hoped to at least break even this year, and perhaps next make a profit, but in the meantime they accepted their losses as part of what they had to pay for the war. The spirit of the whole people was wonderful. There were Red parades of course but not five per cent. of the working people of England were represented by Red sentiment. The speaker emphasized the great love of all classes for Royalty in Britain.

In regard to the future of Rotary, Governor Wright earnestly recommended the new aims and objects plan as tending to greatly improve the efficiency of the movement. This idea had originated among English Rotarians, who had given it much study, and had been adopted by the Rotary International as certain to bring about greater efficiency. The system would fit all Rotary clubs everywhere, and Governor Wright urged its full use.

The speaker discussing fields of service referred to the prospects before Canada of great prosperity, and a rush of new citizens, and emphasized the desirability of doing more to make new-comers feel at home in this country, and especially of making sure that their children were given every chance. This was work that might well be helped by the Rotary and other service clubs, and opened a great opportunity to be of real assistance to Canada.

A hearty vote of thanks was passed to District Governor Wright.

Rotarian Jerry McClelland announced a Rotary community dance in the new Westclox building, and Rotarians Jack Primeau, J. Matthews, Lou Potvin and Doug. Fletcher, were named as a committee to assist him.

BOYS' PREMIER IS SPEAKER AT UNITED CHURCH

Earl Lautenslager Occupies Pulpit of St. John's, Campbellford.

SPEAKS OF BOYS.

Stresses Value of Boy Parliament Movement and Good Evidenced in Youth.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 15.—The morning service at St. John's church on Sunday was given over to the interests of the work of the boys' conference held here. The pupil was occupied by Earl Lautenslager, premier of the Older Boys' Parliament. The special music for the occasion was a solo by Mrs. F. de F. Free, "The Lord Is My Shepherd" as written by S. Liddle, and an offertory by the choir, "Come Thou Fount of Every Blessing", as composed by R. G. Thompson. In making the announcements for the following week, the Rev. Mr. Harston expressed his appreciation of the solo by saying that the message of song had reached every heart. He also reminded the congregation that the fowl supper was to be held on Tuesday. It was further intimated that the new hymn books would be used exclusively beginning next Sunday at the morning service.

In Mr. Lautenslager's address to the children, he told of a boy who had wished to possess a strong and beautiful body. His wish was granted. This he claimed has been the ambition of men since the time of earliest Greeks. It was, however, only of comparatively recent years that the women have taken to desiring similar blessings. He quoted the case of George Lister, the Ontario boy who ran in the Olympic marathon in the year 1908, London. That the marathon race is the most exacting and exhausting of all sports, need hardly be mentioned. He explained the origin of the race in connection with the wars between the Greeks and Persians when on one occasion, a Greek had run twenty-five miles with the message of the Greek victory at the battle of Marathon.

After years of steady training, Lister, he said, was chosen to represent Canada at the Olympic Games in London, Eng. Before the start of the great event the trainer, Crocker, told his team that he did not care so much for the victory but he did want to cable back to Canada that every Canadian had finished the gruelling course. So in the game of life, boys must stick it out, fight hard, not so much to win as to be able to say that they tried and at least finished the course set them.

Returning to his story, Mr. Lautenslager, recalled how Crocker had said that he was not so much concerned regarding a Canadian being first as he was with the fact that he wanted every Canadian to finish. Shortly after the race started, Lister sprained his ankle on the cobblestone road. He was obliged to fall out for a short time but later continued the course, every step causing him to suffer the

SUPERIOR GALE WORST OF YEAR

Navigation Halted By Storm Which Swept Western Great Lakes.

ACCOMPANIED BY SNOW.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Nov. 15.—The heavy westerly gale that swept Lake Superior Saturday and Sunday was one of the worst of the season, and at times was accompanied by driving snow, which made navigation extremely hazardous.

Yesterday a dozen or more grain carriers were swinging at anchor in the Thunder Bay waiting for the storm to blow itself out. The waves outside Thunder Cape are rolling high, and with a sky threatening snow, mariners are exercising every caution and are prepared to wait out the storm rather than proceed to the open lake.

The Canadian Pacific passenger steamer Assiniboia arrived in port Sunday night, twenty-four hours overdue at the lakehead. The vessel cleared at 10 o'clock yesterday morning for the east, but came to anchor with the rest of the fleet in the bay. It may be Tuesday morning before the fleet will attempt a passage across.

RELIEF RUSHED TO AID VICTIMS OF EXPLOSION

Firemen and Volunteers Continue Work of Exploring Wreckage.

PITTSBURGH DISASTER.

City Police on Constant Lookout To Prevent Looting.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 15 (A.P.)—An entire section of North Side Pittsburgh lay in ruins last night and the bodies of twenty-seven persons rested in the Allegheny County morgue, mute evidence of one of the most disastrous explosions in the city's history. Death and devastation swept the old Manchester district when a mammoth storage gas tank exploded.

Last night, as hundreds of victims of the disaster nursed their injuries in hospitals and in other havens of refuge supplied by relief agencies, firemen, policemen and volunteers continued the work of exploring the wrecked district in the belief that other bodies would be found in the mass of twisted debris.

Erect Emergency Lights

As nightfall descended upon the stricken region, rescue workers erected emergency lights at vantage points. Many of the debris-choked streets and tumbled down buildings resisted the efforts of the firemen, and they resorted to dynamite in an effort to move masses of wreckage. Police redoubled their vigilance and kept constant watch to prevent looting.

Near the ill-fated gas tank the first victims were found—nine men their bodies burned and mangled. These were rushed to the morgue. Later the body of a woman was picked up from a sidewalk. The rescuers found almost insurmountable conditions in their path. They carried the injured through water waist deep. Tottering walls menaced them. Dangling electric wires sputtered on all sides. Yet the firemen, the policemen and private citizens engaged in the work of rescue forgot their own danger in their feverish effort to rescue others.

Establish First Aid Stations.

When it became evident that the capacity of every hospital in the city was taxed, the Red Cross and the Salvation Army established first aid stations on the outside rim of the devastated area. Here scores of persons were given medical attention. Many doctors braved the perils of the region, and carrying emergency kits, they entered the danger zone to seek out and help victims of the disaster.

A check up of hospitals last night showed that 485 injured persons were given treatment. Some were so badly hurt that the doctors feared they would not survive. Among the injured were many school children who were just to enter the class rooms as the tank 233 feet in diameter and 208 feet high, let go. The pupils were showered with flying glass. The panic stricken children added to the general confusion. They ran through the streets and were endangered by falling walls until rescuers finally rounded them up, sent the injured to hospitals and the others to residences outside the stricken region.

The disaster gripped an area of about one square mile, fronting on the Ohio River, and centreing on Reedsdale street. The section is known as Manchester, and is one of the citys oldest districts. It was thickly settled old fashioned brick and frame dwellings crowding one upon the other, with factories, warehouses and industrial plants intermingling. In the houses for the most part were the families of working men.

Within a very brief time after the city learned of the extent of disaster relief agencies and others at work seeking to help the injured and the homeless. The Equitable Gas Company, owner of the tank, housed many of the homeless in its Manchester administrative buildings in hotels and apartment

CAMPBELLFORD WAR VETERANS HONOR MEMORY OF COMRADES

Hold Memorial Service at Monument on Sunday Afternoon.

FITTING ADDRESS

Rev. Ernest Harston, Himself a Veteran, Urges Upholding of Principles.

CAMPBELLFORD, November 15.—On Sunday afternoon, the remainder of those who were heroes ten years ago gathered to pay tribute to those of their number who, when the call to arms sounded throughout the Dominion, laid all else aside for the cause of all that they held dear and went into the line of battle never to return. Minus the rattle of musketry, the clank of military equipage and the rumble of the cannon, the members of the local branch of the Canadian Legion, headed by the regimental band, marched from their rooms at the Armouries to the memorial to place wreaths and to otherwise honor their fallen comrades. No uniform, khaki with its glittering brass and steel lent glamor to the marching troops. There was nothing to mark them as soldiers of the line save their erect, precise military step and carriage and the medals which the majority wore as testimony that they were indeed the soldiers of the line during the cruelest, most gruesome war which humanity has ever known.

Forming two lines, one to the north and the other on the south side of the memorial, the parade stood to attention during the prelude, "Evening Shadows," by the band and the Mayor's call to worship. The invocation by Rev. E. R. Orser was most appropriate. This was followed by the hymn, "All people that on earth do dwell," and the general Confession. Rev. C. D. Daniel chose as his Old Testament Scripture reading Deuteronomy, chapter 8, from the eleventh verse to the end.

The hymn, "O God our help in ages past," was followed by a New Testament Scripture reading by Captain A. B. McMillan of the Salvation Army. He selected the Gospel of St. John, 15th chapter, and read from the fifth verse to the end of the chapter. The prayer of thanksgiving and intercession had been alloted to Rev. N. Clarke Wallace, but as he had not yet returned to Campbellford, Rev. James Grier very kindly officiated in that capacity.

After the hymn, "The Lord is my Shepherd," Rev. Ernest Harston addressed the several hundred citizens assembled to do honor to the dead heroes. Before Mr. Harston spoke, however, Mayor Kingston read the

HUNTING BAD NEAR APSLEY

Several Well-Known Haunts of Deer Deserted This Year.

WOLVES BLAMED

APSLEY, Nov. 15.—Two weeks of the deer hunting season have ended with very disappointing results, very few deer having been secured by the various hunting parties in the district. Old-timers say they have never known deer so scarce, several of their well-known haunts being practically deserted. The only reason of their scarcity is believed to be the ravages of the wolves, which seem to be quite numerous.

The glory of Jack's Lake as one of the best hunting grounds in this part of the country is departed. Never again will the sombre hues of its woods be brightened by the vivid scarlet of the hunters' caps, never again will its glades resound to the musical baying of the hounds, never again will its rock-bound shores reverberate to the boom of the hunters' rifles—so at least is the natural conclusion arrived at at the news that the greater part of its shores and its islands are closed to hunters on a prison penalty. Notices are posted on the road leading to Jack's Lake and on the shores and other points bearing the legend: "Hunting reserve. Trespassers will be prosecuted. Prison penalty," while reports are rife that armed patrols have instructions to shoot any dogs that may be seen running over the prohibited area.

REVEALS CLUE TO BEN'S GOLD

$3,000,000 IS HIDDEN.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Nov. 15.—A possible clue to the whereabouts of Benjamin Purnell's missing hoard of gold, estimated at anywhere from $1,000,000 to $5,000,000, and the only thing that will save 500 members of the House of David from virtual destitution in the receivership program, was furnished to George H. Bookwalter, Berrien County prosecutor, by Thomas Adkins, former Israelite.

Adkins, now a Benton Harbor mason contractor, who has shorn his long hair and beard after 23 years in the cult, declares that under Purnell's orders he built a secret vault in the Diamond House in 1922 for the storage of money and valuables. He was a devout Israelite at the time.

Vault In Ceiling.

"The vault was six feet long by three feet wide and two feet deep and was laid in the ceiling between the first and second floors," Adkins informed Bookwalter.

"It was equipped to hold an immense sum of money. I did the work during noon hours so the other Israelites would not know what was going on."

The mason created a sensation during the trial of the dissolution suit against the House of David when, still wearing his long hair and beard, he appeared as a state witness and told reluctantly of Benjamin's constant companionship with young girls during his period of hiding.

Adkins left the cult in the winter of 1926, shortly after the arrest of his spiritual overlord.

"Benjamin and one or two others are the only persons, excepting myself, who know of the existence of the secret cache," Adkins continued. "He himself gave me the plans and superintended the work.

"He seemed very anxious that the matter be kept from the others."

Believes $3,000,000 Hidden.

"I believe the missing money will reach a figure of at least $3,000,000," he estimated. "The amusement park cleared $125,000 annually, of which $60,000 was earned by the miniature railroad. The band obtained $1,000 a week from its vaudeville contract. With the income from the farms, the colony's net profits must have averaged $350,000 a year."

The apples from one farm alone brought Benjamin a total of $10,000 several years ago, Adkins said.

The prospect of the 500 present Israelites, who are entitled to a share of the cult's assets after all obligations have been met, seems gloomy. An optimistic appraisal of the visible assets is $500,000, which under the decree of Judge Louis H. Fead, of Newberry, is subject to the claims of former members, as well as those remaining in the faith.

Adkins prophesies that the receiver will be swamped by claims from disillusioned men and women from all parts of the United States who turned their life savings over to Purnell to reap his promise of immortality.

WINNIPEG WHEAT

WINNIPEG, November 15. — An erratic tone marked trading on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Early liquidations imparted pronounced weakness. Moderate buying later developed, which sent prices above Saturday's close, but reaction again set in with the close reflecting net losses of ½c to 7-8c.

English millers were credited with good purchases in the November option, while spreading operations were fairly general.

Exporters took liberal supplies of both barley and rye, giving a firmness to values. Oats and flax were quiet.

POPULARIZING MADE-IN-CANADA.

That the produced-in-Canada appeal is meeting with a sympathetic response on the part of the public is evidenced by the success of two undertakings mentioned in this issue. We refer to the Made-in-Manitoba Week, organized by the Industrial Development Board of Manitoba, and to the Produced-in-Canada Fair, arranged by the Kiwanis Club of Peterborough. Both events took place last month and attracted favorable attention in their respective areas. The former aimed more particularly to educate the people of the Province of Manitoba as to the extent and character of the goods now being manufactured in that Province, and in this respect it proved to be a revelation of remarkable industrial progress. The latter did not limit itself to the products of the locality, but welcomed Canadian-made goods wherever manufactured, and, by means of various attractions, drew large numbers of people to the show. We commend most heartily the effort made by the managements of both these undertakings and compliment them on the success which attended their work.—Industrial Canada.

WORTH GOING AFTER.

The Ontario Tourist Association has passed a resolution endorsing the proposal to connect Provincial highway No. 2 with the Ferguson highway by means of a new trunk road running through the Trent and Muskoka districts.

This proposal would entail the continuance of the Port Hope-Peterborough highway on through the lake country until the Ferguson road to the north is reached.

The proposed road would provide tourists with a splendid opportunity to see some of the finest scenery in the Province, and would undoubtedly serve to greatly stimulate tourist traffic into Ontario.

Its value to Peterborough is so apparent that the whole weight of local bodies should be thrown into the campaign to secure the building of this most important link in the Provincial highway system.

The amount of money spent in Ontario by tourists during the past summer is ample justification for launching a road-building programme that would add materially to the stream of traffic from the United States.

Visitors from over the border this year reached a total of 8,500,000, a figure that will undoubtedly be doubled when Ontario's road system is extended.

FOOTBALL RECEIPTS.

While there is something foreign to the traditions of college sport in the controversy over gate receipts in the Intercollegiate Union, it must be admitted that those who argue that the receipts should be pooled and divided equally among the three universities have no difficulty in making out a strong case.

Queen's University, with a team that by reason of its brillant playing and fighting qualities has proved a sterling drawing card, has helped to create attendance records for both the McGill and Varsity grounds.

The Kingston university has not shared in these large gates, and by reason of the limited accommodation at the Richardson Stadium where its home games are played, has not been able to pile up a large sum in its treasury, with the result that other sports at Queen's will suffer.

Football is the bread-winner so far as Intercollegiate sport is concerned, and the revenue from that source is used to finance other sports that are far from self-sustaining.

Were the Intercollegiate football receipts pooled Queen's would be able to carry on in Intercollegiate hockey instead of being forced to retire from that competition for financial reasons, a condition that offers a strong argument for a more equitable division of the revenue obtained from the popular autumn game.

THE WEST COMES THROUGH.

While pessimistic Easterners perhaps can read nothing about the West except the fact that the Prairie Provinces have been experiencing below-zero weather, the optimistic are throwing their hats in the air at the announcement that Canada's wheat crop this year is the second highest in the history of the Dominion.

The final estimate of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, even more encouraging than earlier surveys, places the total wheat crop for this country at 444,282,000 bushels, a figure that has only once been beaten.

The Western Provinces, of course, have been chiefly responsible for this huge total, which is large enough to justify general rejoicing throughout the whole of Canada.

No surer sign of good times for the people of the Dominion could be produced than this wonderful harvest, which makes certain a stream of gold that will materially help business and industry in all parts of the country.

The Western grain growers will have plenty of money to spend during the coming months, and their buying will be indicated by larger orders for Eastern factories, more employment for Eastern workers, and consequently more money to be spent in Eastern stores.

The West has certainly helped to make Canada's Jubilee year one of the best in the Dominion's history.

A BOARD OF GOVERNORS.

An important resolution is being brought before the Ontario Minister of Agriculture this week dealing with a proposed change in the governing and direction of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph.

Briefly the proposal is that the institution should be put under the control of a board of governors, similar to that in charge of the University of Toronto.

It comes from the Alumni of the O.A.C., special committees of which body have been thoroughly investigating the various angles of the matter for two years.

The board of governors, it is claimed on behalf of the proposal, would leave petty details in connection with the operations of the Experimental Farm to the President and his staff, but would form a connecting link between professional agriculturists, practical farmers and the college itself.

It would outline, according to its sponsors, broad policies governing the working of the college, keep it non-partizan in politics, and seek to make the institution of more practical value in solving agricultural problems facing the Province, and bring it into closer touch with the man on the land and the agricultural officials stationed at various points who are directing agricultural extension work.

The suggestion bears considerable merit, and undoubtedly the Alumni Association, which deserves credit for the study given to this question will be able to persuade the Minister of Agriculture to give serious consideration to this constructive proposal.

COMMUNITY CELEBRATIONS.

The community idea is spreading into many activities which were as one time considered out of its bounds. One of these had another successful demonstration in a number of places throughout Canada on Hallowe'en night. In general it took the form of public celebrations in which young and old joined with enthusiastic delight. Thus, instead of roaming bands of youngsters and youths bent on the aggravating and destructive idea of destroying old fences and outbuildings, annoying merchants and storekeepers of all kinds, and parading in aimless and noisy fashion over wide areas ,the jollifications were organized. They lost none of their delights because of that. There were disciplined and orderly street parades at several points in Ontario and Quebec in which the town band, or, in larger cities, some one of several bands took part. The processions followed routes agreed upon, their participants were costumed in keeping with the night, and after the marches all assembled in a hall or theatre where good programs were carried out. In the main local talent only was employed at these affairs and in all of them the arrangements were made so as to eliminate expense, and give everyone a chance to take part who wanted to do so.

That is a change from the senseless, haphazard and noisy schemes that make night hideous in more municipalities than one and usually end with wanton destruction or damage to property. It has been said that true liberty is found in the simple art of obedience to the law. The best kind of Hallowe'en pranks are those which, carried out under some such plan as that mentioned, impress without proclaiming it, the sacredness of other peoples' property and rights. The community idea in social service has done an immense amount of good. Its spread into the field of entertainment and play has been rapid of late years, and it is to be hoped will continue. If it eventually makes Hallowe'en a happy and a welcome night for many who in a succession of years have looked forward to it with anxiety lest it should result in serious losses to their merchandise and premises it will have added another to the many benefits which stand to its credit on the ledger of time.—Brantford Expositor.

THERE SHOULD BE AN INQUEST IN EVERY CASE.

Should there not be an inquest into the death of James Walter Miller? It was announced in The Whig-Standard last night that he had been shot while out hunting, but that the coroner had decided that no inquest was necessary. We do not agree with the coroner. There are altogether too many hunting fatalities of the kind referred to, and taking them as a matter of course will not tend to lessen the number. We realize that coroners have a good deal of latitude, and that they are only compelled to hold an inquest if the circumstances are at all suspicious, but we are of the opinion that this regulation should be changed and an inquest be made compulsory in connection with every violent death.

James Walter Miller was 44 years old. He was in the prime of life. He was visiting his old home, in company with his wife and eight children. He went out hunting with a brother and with a friend with whom he was staying. The party divided, the brother and the friend going one way and the deceased another. The two men heard a rustling in the bushes; James Allen fired, and James Walter Miller uttered a shriek and fell over dead. As a result of gross and utterly unforgivable carelessness a young wife is left a widow and eight young children are bereft of a father's protecting care. And in the face of this terrible tragedy the coroner decides there shall be no inquest.

How long are we going to put up with this criminal negligence on the part of hunters without a protest? How long is the Province of Ontario going to allow men to be carelessly slaughtered during the hunting season? If a motorist kills another person, there is an inquest, and often a charge of manslaughter. Often the license to drive is suspended or taken away altogether. What is going to be done in the present case? We can quite understand that the man who fired the fatal shot is prostrated with grief, and we have no desire to add to his sorrow. Time is a great healer of grief. There is one thing, however, that neither time nor eternity can do, and that is restore to the widowed mother her husband, or to the eight fatherless children the loving father. We believe a coroner's inquest should be held and the whole matter aired in a proper court. If negligence is proved the matter should be prosecuted and for the sake of other wives and other children, these hunters who, knowing there are other men about, fire without first definitely ascertaining whether they are firing at a deer or a man, should be taught a lesson that they will remember for years. Human life is too precious to be slaughtered so carelessly.—Kingston Whig-Standard.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 15.—(Canadian Press.)— The export trade in wheat here yesterday was quiet owing to the fact that foreign buyers were not disposed to follow the advance in prices recorded on Saturday. The demand for cash grain in the domestic market was also of a limited character, but the tone was strong.

A feature of the flour trade was the stronger feeling that developed for spring wheat grades and prices were marked up ten cents per barrel. There was some demand from English importers and sales of odd lots were made, but the local trade was quiet.

Prices for winter wheat grades of flour were firmly maintained under a continued good demand.

Owing to the shortage of millfeed in the United States there continues to be a good demand from that source here and a large volume of business was done to-day, including sales of Manitoba bran to Boston for prompt shipment at $37.00 per ton, and for December shipment at $34.50 per ton delivered which prices are equivalent to $34.00 per ton here. The local trade was also active and prices were firm.

The undertone to the market for standard grades of rolled oats was strong, and indications are that values will go higher in the near future. The demand was moderate.

The reports of baled hay from the port of Montreal for the week ending November 12, 1927, were 48,037 bales. Yesterday's trade was fair and prices were unchanged.

The potato trade was active and firm. Sales of car lots of Prince Edward Island Whites were made at $1.35 per bag of ninety pounds; New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.35 per bag in bulk, and Quebec varieties at $1.00 to $1.10 per bag in bulk.

The trade in imported beans continued steady and prices ruled steady. Sales of car lots of choice white handpicked were made at $2.50 per bushel, and to arrive at $2.60 per bushel, ex-track, while smaller quantities sold at $2.75 per bushel, ex-store.

A moderate amount of business was done in eggs and the feeling was firm. The receipts were 391 cases.

The butter market was without any new feature to note, the demand being limited and values were steady. The receipts were 651 packages.

There was somewhat of a lull in the demand from English importers for cheese but prices were firm. The receipts were 5,936 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 15 (Canadian Press).—With 2,099,000 bushels increase of the United States wheat visible supply announced yesterday offerings of wheat were more than could be readily absorbed. Besides, there was a prospect of rain in the southwest, where the domestic winter wheat crop is in need of moisture.

Closing quotations on wheat were heavy, ⅝ to 1c net lower; corn ⅛ to ¾c down; oats ¼ to ⅝c off, and provisions varying from 5c decline to a rise of 15c.

Yesterday's enlargement of the United States visible stock of wheat brought the total up to 90,783,000 bushels, agains 73,626,000 bushels a year ago. An increase of 440,000 bushels in the amount of wheat on ocean passage was a contributing bearish factor, and so likewise was slackness of demand yesterday for wheat from North America. Meanwhile, advices were at hand that the Argentine harvest was making favorable progress and that Southern hemisphere crop conditions as a whole indicate probable yields such that North America could easily take care of any shortage.

Rallies in wheat prices here, ascribed to strength shown by the Winnipeg market and to wintry conditions northwest, failed to prove of a lasting character, and it was pointed out that although the Canadian government crop estimate shows a reduction instead of an increase from last month, the yield indicated is the second largest on record. Under such circumstances despite considerable buying here against sales to Winnipeg at close spreads, the Chicago market finished at virtually the day's lowest level.

Notwithstanding that with wet weather over Iowa and Illinois reduced country offerings of corn to almost nothing, corn prices averaged lower, continuing to reflect the sensationally bearish showing of the latest official crop figures. Oats demand was less brisk, and the oats stock in Chicago showed 450,000 bushels increase.

Provisions were irregular, lard developing late firmness on account of talk about likelihood of a liberal decrease being shown in the amount of lard on hand here.

ABOUT BILL BOARDS.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir: "Lover of Beauty," and others, writing in The Examiner, protest against firms using our beauty spots created by so much hard work, for signs and signboards. What rights have these people to plaster the town and the country with their ads? I can say that if the big posts opposite the Nicholls' Oval gates mean anything in that way they will have to come down.

The Oval gates, which I saw the other day, are fine, and are built at big expense to the city, and residents of this city are getting 'fed up' in having their beauty spots made to look as if all this town and our highways, rivers, etc., were to make money for people who ought to be ashamed of doing it.

Another Lover of Beauty.

LADY DESCRIBES TRIP TO EUROPE

Mrs. Canon Allen Visited Son's Grave Near Lens During Tour.

INTERESTING ADDRESS.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 15.—The "Travel Talk" given by Mrs. (Canon) Allen in the Parish Hall of Saint Thomas' Church on Thursday evening was most entertaining and instructive, though unfortunately the heavy rain lessened the attendance at this interesting event.

Mrs. Allen possesses the happy gift of carrying her hearers with her in vivid reality as she told of the scenes of bustle and confusion when their boat, "The Letitia," left Montreal early one morning last June, of the passing under that wonderful structure, the Quebec Bridge, of the fog and icebergs encountered near the Straits of Belle Isle, with the consequent annoying delay, of the pleasant life on board ship, and the final landing at Liverpool.

The University of Toronto Travel Club sponsored the tour, the party, Canadians and Americans, numbering 167 in all, and being but one of six touring parties travelling by the same liner.

Maidenhead, Ireland, was the first land sighted, and the beauties of the sail up the Clyde were pictured, with the trip through the Trossachs following. Roses and Scotch scenes form a pleasant memory of the stay at the Trossachs Hotel, and the courtesy and kindness of the Scotch people were particularly noted, both on board ship, which was a Scottish one, and during the time spent in historic Edinburgh, and other parts of the land of the heather.

When Cumberland was reached and Keswick made a stopping-place, Mr. and Mrs. Allen were guests of Dr. and Mrs. Wakefield, their home being in the very shadow of Skiddaw, a mountain marvellous for its scenic effects. The Town Hall in Keswick boasts a clock which has only one hand. Following a very ancient custom, the farming folk gather every Saturday evening here and sing the John Peel hunting song. "Wordsworth, Coleridge and Southey lived in this district and often fellowshipped together."

London was the next objective, the hotel in Kensington where Canon and Mrs. Allen stayed being only about three minutes' walk from the school which the latter had attended during her girlhood days in England. Sketching as fully as time would permit the many points of interest visited in London and its vicinity, the speaker next took her hearers to the Continent, the dykes, Holstein cattle, peculiar dress of the people, the homes with their gayly-painted shutters, and several of the churches and public buildings of Holland being clearly described.

While in Belgium the tourists visited the hospital where Edith Cavell was a nursing sister, and saw the stone which marks the spot where she was shot by the vindictive Germans.

Apart from the many historic points visited, France had a sad and peculiar interest for Mr. and Mrs. Allen as they spent one day travelling to the cemetery near Lens where their only son, Lieutenant T. A. Allen, who paid the supreme sacrifice during the World War, lies buried. It lightened the sadness very appreciably to find the cemetery so beautifully cared for, with a wealth of flowers at each grave. James Huffman, another soldier from Millbrook who was killed in France, is buried in the same cemetery, and the rector and his wife visited this grave also.

Officers and privates are cared for exactly alike in the war cemeteries, and an official of the Graves Commission gave assurance that the soldiers' last resting-places would have this careful attention "so long as the world lasts."

There was a second visit to London, and Shenley, Mrs. Allen's girlhood home, with especial mention of the beautiful cathedral of Saint Albans', as these last weeks were described, before the return sailing was made from Southampton, and Montreal again reached after nine weeks' absence.

The formal vote of thanks to Mrs. Allen was moved by Mr. John Dawson, and seconded by Mrs. J. E. Allen, Jr., and Mr. H. R. Armstrong was also warmly thanked for the music furnished through his courtesy in having an Orthophonic Victrola at the hall, thus adding to the pleasure of the evening.

Mrs. Allen will repeat her "Travelogue" at Bailieboro on Friday, November 18, at 8 p.m.

Lewis R. Parks Adds New Equipment for Day and Night Sittings.

EXPERIENCED IN WORK

A new and up-to-date photograph studio has come into being here. Lewis R. Parks, who has for some ten years devoted his time to printing and developing amateur films at 122 Park street south, has equipped a studio at this address, with up-to-date electrical and photographic requirements, and is now prepared to take sittings both day and night.

This is not a new endeavour, as he has had considerable experience in this business.

"Photographs Live Forever," the slogan adopted by the Photo Finishers' Association, is being taken more and more seriously and Mr. Parks looks froward to a good Christmas trade. He is offering special introductory prices for sittings at the present time.

Believe it or not: A French girl of 20 years, Adoree Alombert, is puzzling the doctors and scientists of Europe. Apparently normal in every other way, she has one peculiarity—she has never slept. When she is tired she rests standing, but she never loses consciousness—she cannot sleep.

Paul Poiret, the famous Paris fashion artist, comes to Canada with the belief that feminine skirts are now too short—at least five inches so. M. Poiret describes himself as being not a dressmaker with a hobby for painting, but a "painter who has done fairly well as a dressmaker." Twenty of his paintings are now on view in Canada. The above picture of M. Poiret shows what a dressmaker can do with nothing but pins and pair of scissors. While crossing the Atlantic on the S. S. Ile de France, Mme. Grace Halst Olsen, star of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, found the deck breezes rather chilly. Mr. Poiret at once made for her a coat from his own deck robe.

BOYS CONFER AT CAMPBELLFORD

Delegates From Northumberland County Hold Instructive Meetings.

FULL PROGRAM

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 15.—Beginning with a supper at six o'clock at Long's restaurant Friday night the boys of Northumberland county, who were delegates to the conference here, enjoyed an excellent and instructive program, including an evening meeting at St. John's church, Saturday morning meeting at the Baptist church, and afternoon session at the High school assembly hall, and another banquet at St. John's church on Saturday evening at six o'clock. For some of the boys, this was the first banquet, as the affair at Long's was for leaders only.

Although the program for the Saturday dinner called for but one toast, several were proposed after a most delicious chicken dinner had been tendered the entire delegation, amounting in all to approximately one hundred and fifty boys and their older escorts. During the supper and before the toasts were proposed Mr. Plewman led in a riot of catchy tunes. Edgerton Dolman was at the piano. Some of the most popular ones were: I Ain't Going to Study War No More, a version of Old King Cole, the old stand by Alouette, The Iceman's song, and many others. The boys joined whole heartedly in the fun. Mr. Plewman, Toronto, is certainly to be admired for the excellent manner in which he leads the young men of tomorrow.

The toasts proposed were, the King and Country, responded to in the usual way, the National Anthem and one verse of O Canada as well. The church and the C.S.E.T. were the next to receive the honors. In response Mr. Plewman mentioned the fine work of the Tuxis Boys and Trail Rangers, quoting many outstanding achievements by boys of the frontier, particularly under the cold of the Northern winter.

The speakers for the evening were the candidate for the county membership at the approaching election Lloyd Edwin Dorran, Wooler, was the first to speak. He made a genuine political speech. Gerald Frederick Wright, Brighton, the opposing candidate, spoke in much the same manner. There seems little to choose between the boys when it comes right down to brass tacks and hard facts.

WHY NOT THE BEST?

When a very superior article can be had at the same prices as an inferior article one has no hesitation in taking the better one. That is human nature. In the Canadian newspaper field there is one "best", and that fact is admitted by all. The Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal is in a class entirely by itself, and Canada is proud of it. It is a wonderful combination of three publications, a great newspaper, a clean, wholesome family magazine and an agricultural paper without an equal. All three in one big 72 page paper, and all three for the price of one—only a dollar a year. You should have your own local paper without doubt, but you home would be enriched by the weekly visit of The Family Herald and Weekly Star. You will never regret it.

A SMART ensemble indeed is this exquisite May Belle Pyjama and Dressing Gown. Beautifully tailored—in all the popular pastel shades of lovely, lustrous lockstitch rayon—with contrasting bands, and trimmed with delicately hand-painted flowers (guaranteed washable)—truly a gift for any goddess!

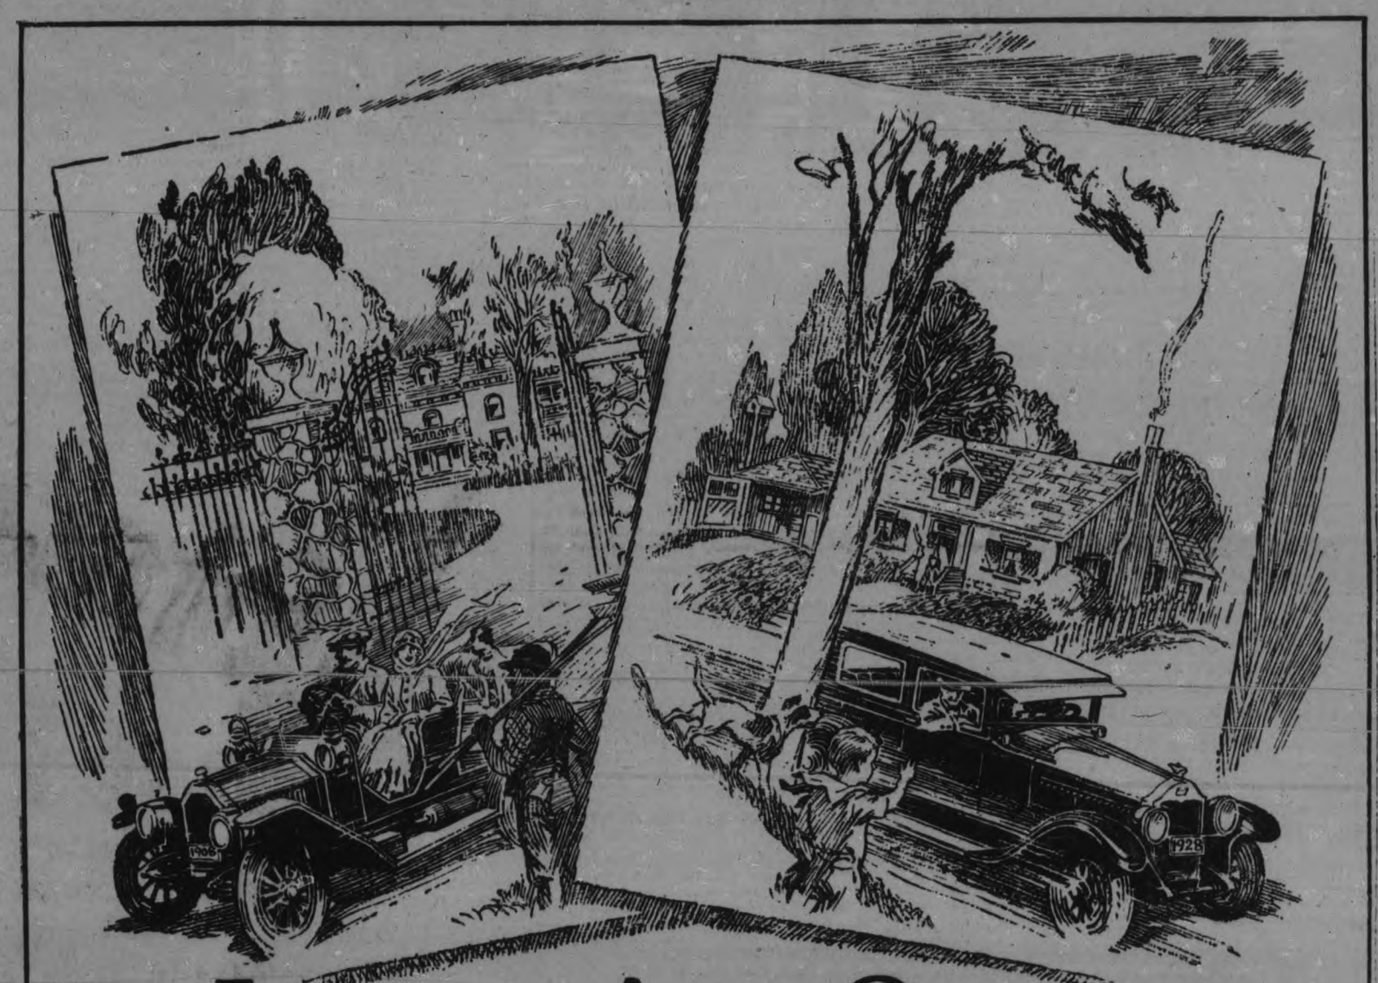
ALWAYS IN LINE WITH THE MODE



Luxuries Once But Necessities Now

PRACTICALLY any Canadian citizen may own today an automobile possessing elements of beauty, style, comfort and efficiency which no amount of wealth could have commanded a dozen years ago.

For the automobile industry has outgrown its original function as a supplier of transportation, and has in an amazingly short time, brought about the refinements which are exemplified in the present-day General Motors car.

Since its foundations first were laid sixty years ago, this institution has believed that every Canadian has a right to the best his country produces, has a right to satisfy his sense of beauty, his desire for comfort, his need for dependability.

General Motors has at its command the master minds of the industry. It has the finest automotive research laboratories and the greatest automobile proving grounds in the world, wherein have been pioneered and developed some of the industry's most revolutionary advances.

And General Motors has used its prosperity and success unstintingly in improving the quality and increasing the value of its products. . . .

It is thus that General Motors of Canada has played its part in translating once-inconceivable luxury into terms of every-day necessity. . . .

FIELD SECRETARY VISITS LILY LAKE

H. Carson Mateer Addresses Members of Christian Endeavor Society.

A special meeting of the Christion Endeavor Young People's Society of the Lily Lake Sunday School, was held last night in the school room with a good attendance.

The special speaker for the evening was H. Carson Mateer, Field Secretary of the Christian Endeavor Union for the Province of Ontario. In opening his address Mr. Mateer quoted probably the oldest known text: "I am glad to be here." He brought greetings to the Lily Lake Society, in the name of Christian Endeavorers from Halifax to Victoria. Such Christian Endeavor meetings as the one at which he was speaking are carried on in all sorts of places, such as school houses in rural vicinities, training the young people for service for Christ in His church.

Mr. Mateer went on to tell of the founder of Christian Endeavor Union. This man when a lad of seven, was left an orphan. At that time he resided at Aylmer. His uncle came over from the United States to get the boy, that he might be given an education. He grew to manhood and did some very remarkable things. When he became a minister he tried all sorts of things to hold young people to the church. At last he found a way—he planned a Young People's Society—one carried on by young people—a society of a Christian character.

The foremost thing, the foundation of the society, is the pledge "Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ, for strength I promise Him that I will strive to do whatever He would have me do."

The founder of the Christian Endeavor was Francis E. Clarke. Christian Endeavor Societies are found in every country in the world, having a total membership of over 4,500,000 people. It extends further than even the great Salvation Army. David Lloyd George had said that the Christian Endeavor Union is the only agency that could bring about the promotion of the world peace idea.

Mr. Mateer went on to discuss ways and means of having a successful Christian Endeavor Society; something for Christ and His church.

J. A. Middleton, Hon. President of the Society, and Rev. W. S. Edgar of Gilmour Memorial church, also addressed the Young People.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

ANY KITTENS TO-DAY?

Saturday morning's demand for kittens at the local market was anything but brisk. One farmer having several cuddly young ones for sale, was returning home with these unwanted wares, which began to "tell the world" in no uncertain manner that they were cold and hungry, when he espied a number of little girls playing around in the vicinity of Dublin and George Streets.

Deciding to make the youngsters happy, he offered each of them a kitten, and needless to say, his offer was accepted with alacrity. Eagerly, and with shining eyes, the little girls carried home their gifts, but they had forgotten that there were mothers to be reckoned with.

That was different.

"What do you mean by bringing home a kitten?"

"Of all the nerve — of course you can't keep it."

"Take that kitten right back where you found it!"

These remarks greeted the little girls in almost every case, and, much to their sorrow and chagrin, they were obliged to cast their newly-acquired treasures upon the tender mercies of the cold and cruel world.

Although the new labor court in Norway favored in its first case a reduction of 15 per cent in wages, the board has been welcomed by employer and employe as a means of settling many long-standing labor troubles.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

When Back Hurts Flush Your Kidneys as You Clean Your Bowels.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

SHORT STORY

THE GOLDEN LOVER

By Rose Meredith.

If Nancy Pearce had been brought up as most girls are in these modern times, with a healthy knowledge of the outdoors and modern sports, perhaps this would not have happened. That is not saying that Nancy would have been any happier in the end! You shall see for yourself.

Nancy had lived with her great aunt for years, long enough for her to learn many things that she otherwise might not have learned, about how to take care of old people, how to enjoy old books, and how to love an old flower garden. In addition to all these things, Nancy Pearce became a dreamer among the books and flowers. As she grew older she came to have a day-dream of a handsome golden lover who came down the garden paths to meet her with a wonderful smile in his mysterious dark eyes.

It was always just about this time in the day-dream that Nancy Pearce woke up and found Aunt Sarah asking for a hot water bag or her peppermint drops, or telling her that it was Moolly's afternoon off and the front doorbell was ringing.

The last time Nancy had answered the front doorbell, she had been dragged out of her day-dream there in the hammock on the side porch where Aunt Sarah was fond of sitting with her cats and her parrot and her Pomeranian dog.

"The bell is ringing, Nancy," said Aunt Sarah.

"Yes, Aunt Sarah, I expect it is the golden knight," said Nancy. Then she laughed outright. "Forgive me, Aunt Sarah, I did not mean to be so silly." And she fluttered away, short-skirted, to the front door, while Aunt Sarah nodded to herself and smiled, for she, too, in her girlhood had dreamed of a golden lover!

Around the corner of the veranda came Nancy, looking rather pink and dazed and behind her came a tall young man in sand-colored clothes, carrying a suit case. He was very blond, and sunburned, with bright blue eyes and reddish hair but the nicest face. And he said, "Hullo, Aunt Sarah!" and took the old lady into his strong arms and kissed her.

When he sat her down again in the big chair, Aunt Sarah smiled and sighed, and said, "You are just like your Uncle Tom!"

"How do you know?" demanded the young man, and he laughed a lot at poor Aunt Sarah, who explained to Nancy that Tom Wolsey's Uncle Tom had been one of her dearest friends once upon a time. She did not explain that this Uncle Tom had once been her golden knight! That was long ago, before the time came for her to save the family fortunes by marrying a rich man—and Nancy knew nothing about that!

"You have not introduced your visitor to me, Aunt Sarah," reminded Nancy.

"Mercy! I thought you two knew each other—perhaps Nancy was at school last time you came, Tom. Nancy, this is Tom Wolsey, the son of an old friend of mine, and I suspect he is going to pay us a nice visit."

So they all had a delightful tea together, and after that Aunt Sarah retired to take the tiny nap that she enjoyed before the evening meal, and Nancy and Tom were free to walk in the old garden, and sit on the marble seat near the fountain that refused to flow any more.

"The fountain must be stopped up in some way," said Tom after awhile, and then, being something in the way of an engineer, he poked away at it with his penknife until he removed a plug that had been put there by some mischievous boy, and the water burst out in a strong, small stream that drenched him from head to waist. As he stood laughing in the sunshine, Nancy suddenly remembered the golden knight and she was positive that he could never have been handsomer than Tom Wolsey!

Tom, hurrying up the straight path to the house so as to change before dinner, met the eye of Aunt Sarah, who had returned to her chair on the side porch.

"Tom," said the old lady alertly, "you look just like Nancy's golden knight with your hair shining—and everything."

"I wish I was her golden knight," said Tom in a determined voice. "Your neice, Nancy, is the loveliest girl I ever met and the very sweetest. If you'll be good to me, Aunt Sarah, and let me come down every week-end and will let me marry your Nancy if she will have me—why, we will stay here as long as you want us to!"

"Go ahead, then—win her if you can," said Mrs. Melvin, and she smiled to herself.

Nancy, dreaming along behind Tom Wolsey, had heard the first part of the conversation because she could not help it, and she fled to her room and chose her prettiest and pinkest dress to wear that night.

After that, Nancy Pearce stopped reading her old romances—the volume of the golden knight was neglected in it because—because every week-end Nancy's own golden knight came down from the city, sometimes in a very shining sports racing car. Always she saw him coming down the straight walk, the man she loved, her golden knight.

And Aunt Sarah? Why, she saw a romance blossoming in the same spot where her own had bloomed a little while and died. And she was glad that this time no need for money could blight the lovely romance of Nancy and her golden knight.

COMMISSIONERS TO ATTEND ANNUAL HARBOR CONVENTION

Decided at Regular Monthly Meeting of Peterborough Utilities Commission.

ROUTINE BUSINESS.

Many Important Questions Affecting Ontario Will Be Discussed.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Peterborough Utilities Commission, held yesterday afternoon, the members decided that if possible they would attend the annual convention of the Great Lakes Harbor Association that is being held in Toronto this week. Many important questions affecting Ontario, such as the low lake levels and the St. Lawrence Waterway development, will be discussed. The Commission takes the stand that it is up to the people of Ontario to show those from the United States who attend this convention that they are greatly interested in these questions.

Collect Accounts.

The accountant reporte that there was about $170 in accounts for electrical stoves, irons and other apparatus that has not been collected by the Commission. It was decided to refer these accounts to the solicitor and give him power to collect.

There will be on sale in the Commission's office on Simcoe Street stamps for the Beck Memorial Fund.

The manager was instructed to go ahead with the street lighting plan as requested by the City Council. Some of this will be done this fall, but in some sections the Commission has to reconstruct the wiring system.

It was decided to heat the substation with electrical heaters and these will be purchased immediately.

The accountant stated that the Exhibition Board was objecting to the amount of its water bill. It appeared that the Board has been paying for the water used by the tourists every summer. The Board also has been charged out of the city water rates. The Commission decided to charge the Exhibition Board city water rates on the bill rendered for 1927 and leave to that body to find some means of not paying for the water used by the tourists.

First a Joke... Now a Necessity

NO period in history has seen such development as the last fifty years... and in the forefront of that development no improvement is more marked than in the transmission of speech by electricity.

In 1876 the idea of transmitting sound by electricity was treated as a joke. Skeptics despaired of its future; the less charitable laughed.

Today it has become a necessity. The social and business life of the civilized world depends to a great extent on its use. The increasing number of daily calls is the barometer of the growth which this service has earned.

Canada's million telephones in homes, offices and factories throughout the Dominion have added much to the industrial growth of the country and to the happiness and well-being of its people.

The Northern Electric Company is proud of the privilege of manufacturing and distributing most of the telephone equipment which serves an ever-increasing number of Canadians every hour of the day.

Brazilian's Big Gain Features Heavy Trading

TORONTO, Ont., November 15 (Canadian Press). — Strong upturn in Brazilian, that advanced it four points at 201½, was the feature of this morning's session of the Toronto Stock Exchange when trading was heavy, but the price changes were mostly small. Brompton followed Brazilian's lead with a gain of more than a point at 58¾. The unlisted oils were steady, while liquor stocks firmed slightly, Canada Brewing having a one point gain at 33¼. Walker's and Gooderham & Worts were both fractionally higher at 60¾ and 60 respectively. British-American Oils, the leader of the oils, was steady at 35¾, while Imperial gained ⅛ at 61.

Argentine Crop Late: Chicago Prices Go Up

CHICAGO, November 15 (Canadian Press). — Fresh crop damage advices from Argentina, together with word of buying for Continental Europe, led to an early brisk upturn to-day in wheat values here. Hot winds were reported in parts of Argentina, and the crop ten days late. Opening at ⅝c to 1⅜c higher, Chicago wheat held near to the initial range. Corn and oats were also firmer, corn starting ⅜c to ⅝c up, and subsequently showing additional gains. Provisions were easy.

Opening prices were: Wheat, December, 127¾, March 131¾. Corn, December 83. March 86⅜. Oats, December 98⅝, March 50⅝.

Advance Continues On Favorable News

Advance continues 6

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (Canadian Press).—Favorable trade news from some of the basic industries provided the ground work for another advance in prices in today's stock market. The continued ease of money rates in face of an unusually heavy mid-month turnover of funds, due to the retirement of second Liberty Bonds, was another favorable factor. Profit-taking in some of the leading industrials gave the morning market an irregular appearance, but offerings were well absorbed.

U. S. Steel Common converted an early loss of 1% points into a gain of one point before the end of the third hour, and General Motors climbed a point above yesterday's final quotation. Wall Street showed only passing interest in the publication of alleged photographs of the new Ford car, but reports that William C. Durant was undertaking a merger of several independent motor companies including Hupp, Chandler, Jordan, Moon and Peerless, while lacking official confirmation, nevertheless stimulated speculative activity in in those issues.

Mine Trading Again Sets New High Mark

TORONTO, November 15. Canadain Press. — The upward trend was checked to some extent on the Standard mining exchange this morning when a number of the leaders broke under profit taking in the greatest trading ever seen on the exchange. The new record for a single session was set at 2,439,827 ,substantially higher than yesterday's mark. Barry Hollinger at 122 and Jackson Manion at 85 achieved new record highs, while Bidgood, Amulet, Potter Doal and Teck Hughes all had moderately good gains. Kirkland Lake broke eleven cents from yesterday's high mark of 300, and Beaver lost six at 242, Columbus Kirkland three, and Howey Gold one point.

LEVINE'S NEW PLANE

A mahogany model of the new "flying wing" monoplane which has been commissioned by Charles A. Levine, first transatlantic air passenger, is seen being held by the two designers. They are, from left to right, Alexander Kartveloff, a technical engineer from Russian Georgia, and Edmund Chagnard, French airplane designer and constructor. They have just come to America to work on Mr. Levine's 50-passenger airplane. Describing the model, M. Chagnard said: "The great advantage of this new type of plane is that the motors will be accessible and will be inside. The planes which have fallen into the ocean met with disaster through some accident to the motor which could easily have been repaired. The one we are going to construct will have seven motors. Five will be in use to drive the five propellers and two will be in reserve. The passengers will sit in the centre of the plane next to the cabin, where the motors will be enclosed."

ST. ANDREW'S MEN HEAR DR. BLAGRAVE

Interesting Address Given at Regular Supper Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Men's Association of St. Andrew's United Church was held last evening. Supper was served at 6.30 o'clock by the members of the Ladies' Aid of the North Group, Mrs. F. H. Dearborn being the leader, several ladies helping to serve. Harry Dickin had charge of the meeting and was also chairman. The speaker, Rev. Dr. Blagrave, gave an address that was very much appreciated by those present. The attendance was large, considering the inclement weather. Mrs. Fred McNeely, in her usual clever style gave a number of readings. Mrs. H. F. Doig sang two solos, which were also greatly appreciated. A vote of thanks was extended to the speaker, and others on the program by M. T. Breckenridge and V. S. Foster. E. F. Reid, president of the Men's Association, spoke a few words about the activities for the month of December, and announced that the January meeting would be in charge of F. H. Dearborn.

OBITUARY.

MRS. A. A. BADGLEY.

STIRLING, November 15. — In the passing of Mrs. Abby Ann Badgley, another link with the past is broken. The deceased had lived practically her whole life in this vicinity, having been born on November 9th, 1839, thus dying on the 88th anniversary of her birth. Her parents were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baragar, who lived in the Sine Settlement, 5th Concession of Rawdon. Mrs. Badgley was twice married, her first husband being Lewis Turner, of the 7th Concession of Sidney, who predeceased her many years ago, as she and her second husband, Stephen Badgley, celebrated their golden wedding on June 3rd, 1913, which was an outstanding occurrence in the village, it being held in the basement of the Methodist Church, and attended by a large number of their acquaintances and friends. Mr. Badgley died several years ago. One son, Ward Badgley, of Barrie, is left to mourn besides a great many friends who will miss one of such a cheerful and happy disposition as the deceased possessed.

The funeral service was held in St. Paul's United Church, Rev. C. W. Barrett preaching a very helpful sermon from the words found in I. John 3. 2. The interment was at Bethel Church Cemetery, in the family plot alongside her father and husband.

MRS. CHARLES FAUX.

The death occurred in Hastings on Tuesday, Nov. 15, of Mrs. Charles Faux, aged eighty-four years and four months.

The funeral will be on Thursday morning, Nov. 17, with mass at nine o'clock.

More than 250,000 boys and girls took part in the All-England Championship athletic contests held in London this year.

During the present torrid spell in India, railway passengers are protesting that the management has, because of strikes, failed to provide "watermen" at stations, and there is no way of quenching thirst while traveling over the dusty lines.

MARMORA NEWS.

MARMORA, Nov. 15.—Miss Myrtle Kennedy is home on a visit following her graduation as nurse at Bruce County Hospital, Walkerton.

Mr. Joseph Murray is very ill at his home here.

Mr. John Bonter and family are moving shortly into town.

Presentation To Campbellford Returned Men Made at Concert.

ON SUNDAY NIGHT.

As a fitting conclusion to their day of remembrance, the local branch of the Canadian Legion held a sacred concert in the Regent Theatre after the evening church services on Sunday. The session was also used to advantage for the presentation of the charter. In this connection, Mr. MacLeod of the provincial command was present.

The concert opened with a selection by the Northumberland regimental band. Major James Belford, Codrington, as charman, apologized for the smallness of the group of musicians explaining that some of the bandsmen were apparently taking their devotional exercises in overdoses on the occasion. The fact of the case is, however, that there was a special service in St. John's United church and the bandsmen who were there were a little late in arriving. The Major also noticed that the band consisted of several rather young men and was glad to note that they were preparing to fill the gaps left when the older men passed on. It was necessary, therefore, that they be trained to compare favorably with the older men and to surpass them, if possible. He was also pleased to note that all over Canada, the Armistice anniversary was being duly celebrated and hoped that the recognition would be perpetuated. Canada, he said, had set an example to the world of what a small nation could do when it came to sending soldiers to the front.

The real heroes, or rather heroines, of the war, he pointed out, were the women who kept the homes together while their men held the line. Theirs were the anxious moments of dread when every tinkle of the telephone or knock at the door might be the dreaded message saying that their loved ones had been killed, wounded, or taken prisoner. Though the men in the line were naturally brave, they were afforded the excitement of battle or the soothing companionship of their comrades when at rest. There was no doubt that this kept their minds from the terrible anxiety which gnawed at the hearts of the women at home.

"The British Empire Service League is exactly what its name says it is," he continued. "We are all Britishers, affiliated under one flag, the Union Jack. We in Canada are getting people from many lands. We want them. But we want our own kind. We must insist on certain standards being maintained. There must be no settlements known as little Italy and little Russia. There people who come to us must become good citizens and live according to our ideals."

In conclusion, Major Belford asked that the people of Campbellford give the local legion their whole-hearted support. It is not any local affair, he explained, but an organization known wherever the British flag is flown. He also pointed out that Campbellford had the most returned men of any town in the district and should have one of the leading branches of the organization.

The next number was a serenade by the band, after which Mrs. F. de F. Free sang, 'There is No Death,' by Geoffrey O'Hara. In response to persistent applause she sang as an encore, 'Only a Little Way,' by Frances Marten. Miss Maynard played the accompaniments. Cecil Searles played Frasqueta ,a Fritz Kreisler composition which was also encored vigorously. Miss Cherry Turner played the accompaniments.

Introduced by the chairman, Mr. MacLeod, of the provincial command, B.E.S.L., expressed his pleasure in being asked to appear for the purpose of presenting the charter to the local legion. He recalled the fact that it was just five months ago that he was asked to come here to address the returned men on just what the Canadian Legion was and its relation to the ex-soldiers. He thought that the rapidity with which the branch had been organized and the excellent progress which it was making was a splendid tribute to the town.

Quite as a stranger, said Mr. MacLeod, he had arrived in the city (he did not wish to make the mistake which the chairman had made in referring to the town as a village) just as the service was beginning. He had been handed a program and was pleased to see that it was under the auspices of the Canadian Legion of Campbellford that the service was being held.

Much, said he, has been said of the glorious dead. But all the great orators could never say enough. One especially fitting tribute is written on the memorial at Goderich, Ont., "All that this earth can give they thrust aside. They crowded all their youth into an hour, and for one fleeting dream of right they died." Those who returned had also put the same effort into the struggle, and had thrust all aside. These men are now deservant of a square deal. While a nation which does not honor its dead is on the downward path, according to Robert W. Service, there was also its duty to its living. Monuments and memorial services were but a mockery if the living are allowed to suffer hardships as the result of their duty to their country done.

Briefly then, Mr. MacLeod outlined the aims and ambitions of the Legion, and when he had finished, read an acrostic which was very suitable. Then, calling on the local president, Major J. M. Bygott(he made the formal presentation of the charter.

Mrs. A. M. Bell's reading, two short poems, was very appropriate and well received. They were "The Soldier" and "To the Dead," from the works of Rupert Brook. In response to the thunderous applause, she delighted her hearers with "Carry On," by Service. The next number was a silver collection. In announcing this, Major Belford spoke briefly on the merits of the Legion and concluded in saying that the only thing to do was to "go down in the dip" and help the cause financially. The Legion could not carry on its very effective and necessary work on mere good wishes, so many of which were always forthcoming.

Mr. Lucy's number, "A Soldier and a Man," was well received and he sang as an encore, "My Task." Miss Irene Stevens played the accompaniments. Before the National Anthem closed the concert, Major Bygott took occasion of thanking those who had assisted on the program and to extend an invitation to all returned men to join the Legion. Or if they did not wish to join, to "Come and see us any time." Major Belford managed to sandwich in a few remarks to the effect that the only way for the Legion to succeed was to pull together just as they had done as soldiers in France.

Mrs. A. Riehl, Burstall, Sask., writes: —"I was troubled with very severe headaches, and sometimes I could not do my work.

CAMPBELLFORD WAR VETERANS

name: on the memorial. There are sixty-nine, and the reading was very impressive. When he had finished, the Mayor said, very reverently, "They have built a monument more enduring than brass. They shall not wholly die." Wreaths were then placed on the monument, two from the local branch of the Canadian Legion and one from the Havelock branch. There were also several beautiful floral tributes from individuals who wished to remember their kin.

Mr. Harston.

"We all recognize this memorial to the fallen heroes of the community," said Rev. Mr. Harston, himself a veteran with an exceptionally brilliant military career, both as a combatant and as a chaplain, "not in a spirit of boastful pride, because there is nothing more ignoble than that, but in a humble spirit of reverence and as a recollection of the memory of those who have fallen. It makes us conscious of conflicting emotions but the Gethsemane and Calvary experienced during the war were soon dispelled when the Gospel of Christ and the heroism of those who died were recalled.

"These men were heroes, good soldiers every one of them," said Mr. Harston. "Little understanding what it all meant at first, they had laid aside their careers, luxury and comfort to assume the risk of losing limb and life. They were men animated by the spirit of high ideals of life and went forth with a spirit which defied death. The memorial and all it meant to them should challenge us to greater sacrifice toward civilization. We should live the principles for which these men died. These men had been living a great principle and the heroism which they displayed on the battlefield is needed to-day by those who now live after them.

"We, the living, must now fight for world peace. We cannot pay our debt by the building of memorials and holding of such services as these. We must get behind the principles for which these men went out to war. We must have permanent peace and must get behind every sound principle offered for world peace. We must get away from petty jealousy ni our relationships. It is the seed of strife. The time has come to put these principles into everyday life. We must begin a new, vigorous crusade for them and drive out all things which make war even the remotest possibility.

"What was the root of the war?" asked Mr. Harston. "It was not simply the murder of an archduke, but greed and selfishness. Even when the war was going on, these things played an important part, and unless the people rise up and drive them out, the generations yet unborn will see horrors more terrible than any of those we have seen. In the name of the dead I call upon the people to face with courage the issue, to back peace and to drive out all cause of war."

In conclusion, Mr. Harston told of an incident concerning the great Napoleon in the days when he had not yet achieved greatness. One day while walking along the street he met an urchin who looked hungry. Asked by Napoleon where his father was, the lad replied that he had none. The same answer was also true regarding his mother and his home. The lad also admitted that he was hungry, and the "Little Corsican" took him to a cafe and fed him.

Several years later, Napoleon was at the height of his glory. The lad was a bugler in his army. The French were suffering defeat and were being forced to retire. "Bugler! Sound the retreat," ordered Napoleon. There was no response and the order was twice repeated, each time more imperatively. Then the bugler spoke up, saying he had never learned to sound the retreat, but he could sound the charge. This he did with great power and determination, and the French troops rallied and went forward to an ultimate victory. So it is with the Christian people of to-day. The only true way to show their appreciation of the men who died was to sound the charge and go on to victory.

The service came to a fitting close with the singing of the National Anthem, the benediction by Rev. James Grier, and the Last Post, by Bandsman Lowe.

RELIEF RUSHED

houses. Police and fire stations were thrown open to others left destitute. Many found refuge in homes outside the wrecked regions.

Cause Unknown.

All initial efforts to determine the cause of the blast were fruitless. It was known that workmen, a crew of men with blow torches, were working on the death dealing tank when it blew up. The tank however was supposed to be empty, and the officials of the company were at a loss to explain how the gas entered the reservoir. Two other nearby tanks contained gas. Pieces of steel pierced them and set the gas on fire, but they did not explode.

While fire department officials said their check up of the district showed more than thirty persons missing, including residents and workers, they believed some of these escaped and failed to report they were safe. Undoubtedly, they said, additional bodies would be found in flooded basements, pinned under debris. One body was located in the basement of the ruined Pittsburgh Clay Pot plant. Eight other men at work in the basement were reported missing, and fire pumps were being used to rid the place of water.

The danger of falling walls was to a great extent eliminated last night when firemen pulled down the tottering remnants of ruined structures.

The damage was not confined to the Immediate region. Windows throughout Pittsburgh and many suburbs were shattered, and in the downtown sections many pedestrians were cut by flying glass.

It was impossible to estimate the total damage. The gas storage tank alone was worth $1,000,000 and plate glass broken was valued at some $50,000. Insurance company representatives said most of the houses and buildings in the zone of the disaster were covered by insurance for fire but not for explosion.

The city and Allegheny county quickly appropriated relief funds. City council ordered $100,000 made available, while county officials instructed the works department to make any necessary expenditures to relief suffering.

Toll Swells.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 15.—(A. P.)—Rescue workers, using dynamite in an effort to penetrate wreckage in the North Side disaster, devastated by a tank explosion last night located the bodies of six additional victims behind a boiler in the tottering plant of the Pittsburgh Clay Pot Company. This brought the known list of dead to 27.

Several sticks of dynamite were placed near the boiler and discharged. The rescuer who set off the charge went behind the dislodged debris and he reported the bodies of a half dozen men huddled together. Fire department officials said the structure might collapse at any minute and they ordered the rescuers back. It was believed no effort to bring the bodies out would be made until this morning.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Since Joy was not to go to her father and stepmother until Monday, there were four members of the family for dinner that first Saturday evening after Faith's successful skirmish with the domestic employment agency. Faith, at Rhoda's excited, earnest request, had left the planning and preparation of the dinner entirely to the new little maid-of-all-work. Bob certainly could not blame his wife for one bad or mediocre dinner, since it had been at his urging that she had consented to have help at all.

But Faith, of course, was eager to see the results of Rhoda's busy two hours in the kitchen. But Bob was brimming with news, which he insisted upon pouring out to her as the y both dressed for dinner.

"I'm going to have a shot at Hemingway's country home, darling," he told her nonchalantly, but the flush on his cheeks and the sparkle in his blue eyes told her that he was tremendously elated. "He wants to have the plans ready for spring building, and he's willing to put two hundred thousand dollars into the house and the landscaping. Bob, howdy! If I land that, we'll be on easy street."

Then a knock oupn the door interrupted them.

"Dinner's all ready, Mrs. Hatha way," Rhoda's soft, sweet voice called.

"Lord, what a voice!" Bob ejaculated. "She must be young and honey-colored. Where did a maid ever get a voice like that?"

"You told me to get a blonde and I'm nothing if not an obedient wife," Faith laughed, patting her hair smooth, for Bob's exultation had expressed itself in more ways than one.

When they entered the dining room, Bob's arm about her shoulders, Faith's housewifely eye noticed instantly that there were five plates set about the long, narrow refectory table. She was about to call out to Rhoda, who had returned to the kitchen, when she noticed that there were not only five plates set upon the creamy Italian linen cloth, but that the meal was there, too —three covered dishes, a platter of thinly sliced roast beef, and a tureen of soup beside her own plate, the big silver ladle lying suggestively before it.

"Why—" she began, divided between a desire to laugh and a feeling of annoyance. Of course the girl had admitted that she was untrained—

The swinging door was pushed open and Rhoda appeared, a plate of small, beautifully browned biscuits in one hand, a silver coffee pot in the other. Her pretty, fair plump face was beaming with pride and expectancy.

"I set my place here nearest the door, so I can scoot back and forth to the kitchen for things," Rhoda said breathlessly, as she placed the food she was carrying upon the table. And before Faith could summon words to meet the situation, the new maid had slipped into her chair, her turquoise-blue eyes glancing shyly toward Bob, as if expecting an introduction.

"But——" Faith managed to gasp, when Bob's fingers closed tightly upon her arm, warning her to silence.

"You're Rhoda, aren't you?" he smiled down upon the country girl. "I'm glad you're here. I'm Mr. Hathaway. Umm! The dinner smells good!"

Shoplifting, according to a veteran police official of New York, is one form of crime of which women have a virtual monopoly. More than 90 per cent of those arrested on this charge are women.

Because his shopgirls spent so much time "fussing" with their hair, the proprietor of a large retail store in Denver now gives them regular time off to go to the hairdresser's.

Kissing Bandit Active In Chicago

CHICAGO, Nov. 14 (United Press)—Activity of a bandit who robs 'em, kisses 'em, and leaves 'em" has been reported to the police by a dozen women living on the south side here. All the offences have occurred within a week.

The bandit threatens the girls with a revolver, relieves them of small change and jewelry, and then attempts to embrace them, according to the police.

The girls who reported the outrages said they screamed when the bandit became affectionate, and that he ran

The bandit's loot has been inconsiderable. An extra detail of detectives has been assigned to hunt him.

Life? and worth living?
Yes, with each part of us—
Hurt of us, help of us, hope of us, hear t of us,
Life is worth living.
Ah! with the whole of us,
Will of us, brain of us, senses and soul of us,
Is life worth living?
Aye, with the best of us,

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

FOR WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 17th, 1927.

Astrologers read this as a day of favorable rule in the earliest hours. Afternoon is subject to menacing aspects.

There is a sign of much promise for hospitals and all who work in them. Many large benefactions may be expected.

It is wise to push important matters in the morning when persons wielding power are likely to be more easy to deal with than under less favorable sway.

For those who go in search of employment before noon luck is presaged.

There is a sign read as indicating storms at sea within the week and ocean voyages begun today may be eventful.

The seers predict extremes of weather in the winter, which humrn nature will reflect and for that reason many strange crime cases will be reported.

Increase of heart disease due to nerve strain and overwork may be expected, and the wise will realize the need of relaxation.

Under this planetary government, everything pertaining to politics should show activity.

There is a sign read as favorable to the perpetuation of power and the continuance in office of capable men.

Agitation regarding oil and oil interests is forecast and there may be much discussion of price fixing.

Strife and contention are foreshadowed as the configuration of today's changes. Quarrels may be easily started under this sway.

Scandals and evil report of many sorts are indicated. Libel suits will be more numerous than usual next winter.

Centralization of public interest in newspapers is prophesied as a feature of the next few weeks.

Increase of advertising and large profits are prognosticated for editors and publishers.

Persons whose birthdate it is should be cautious in the coming year. It is well to keep one's plans secret.

Children born on this day probably will have unique careers. They will be most fortunate outside scientific professions.

National Hockey League Opens Season Tonight

TEN CLUBS WILL CLASH IN OPENERS

N.H.L. Board of Governors Hold Pre-Season Meeting at Boston.

EXPECT GOOD SEASON

Accept Trophy Offered for Competition Between Two Montreal Teams.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 15 (A.P.).—Representatives of eight of the ten clubs in the National Hockey League yesterday attended a pre-season meeting of the board of governors of the league at the University Club here. In a statement issued after the meeting, President Frank Calder said that only routine business had engaged the attention of the governors. Barney Stanley of Chicago was delayed in arriving and his club and Detroit were represented by proxies.

The National League accepted a trophy given in memory of the late George W. Kendall, whose stage name was George Kennedy and who at one time was owner of Les Canadiens of Montreal. The trophy was offered for competition between the two Montreal clubs, the Maroons and Les Canadiens.

"I expect that National League hockey will enjoy its finest season," President Calder said after the meeting. "All clubs have strengthened and all the members of the board of governors present in Boston yesterday spoke with confidence of their hopes during the coming season. I feel that the game will be more firmly entrenched than ever in the favor of the American and Canadian publics."

Opening games will be played tonight as follows:

In Boston—Chicago Blackhawks and Boston Bruins.

In New York—New York Americans and Les Canadiens.

In Ottawa—Ottawa Senators and Montreal Maroons.

In Toronto—Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Rangers.

In Pittsburgh—Pittsburgh Pirates and Detroit Cougars.

Social Event

NEW YORK, N.Y., Nov. 15 (Canadian Press). — The opening National Hockey League game between Les Canadiens of Montreal and the New York Americans tonight promises to be one of the gala social events of the year.

The presence of Mayor James J. Walker, who will face the puck between Howie Morenz and Billy Burch, respective centre players, and the music of the United States Military Academy band from West Point, N.Y., will contribute to the color at Madison Square Gardien, where the local professional hockey season of forty-four home games will be inaugurated.

The other local sextette, the New York Rangers, will make their season's local bow on Thursday night against the world's champion Ottawa Senators. Next Sunday night the Americans and Rangers will meet in the first intra-city duel of the season.

New Players Added

Three new players have been added to the American team, which is under the management of Wilfred "Shorty" Green, whose right wing career ended almost fatally last Spring when he suffered a serious internal injury. One of the players, Billy Boucher, needs no introduction to N.H.L. hockey crowds. The former Canadien and Boston star will replace Shorty Green along the right boards. Red Green will again play the left boards with Billy Burch at centre. Lionel Conacher and Leo Reise continue as the regular defence pair, but the familiar face of Vernon Forbes and his acrobatic goal-keeping will be missing. Joe Miller, prominent Ottawa athlete, who has guarded nets in an amateur and professional capacity in Ottawa, Pittsburgh and St. Paul, has been assigned the net position as successor to "Jumping Jakie," as Forbes was dubbed by New York scribes.

Martin Barry, a Montreal recruit forward, is the third new player. Joe Simpson and Clarence Boucher will do the relief work on the defence, and Eddie Bouchard, Alex McKinnon, Norman Himes and Barry will substitute on the front line.

Laurie Scott, substitute forward, who came to the star spangled team from Saskatoon last season, has been sold to the New York Rangers.

No Changes

The Flying Frenchmen, still under the management of Cecil Hart, have made no changes in their regular line-up. George Hainsworth will guard the net, with Herb Gardiner and Sylvia Mantha in front of him. The flashy trio of forwards—Aurel Joliat, Howie Morenz and Art Gagne, will complete the regular sextette, which is well fortified with substitute strength, including Albert Leduc, Pete Lepine, Joe Lafrance, Gene Larochelle, Gizzy Hart and Martin Burke.

Cooper Smeaton, referee-in-chief of the N.H.L., is expected to officiate tonight.

WILL ATTEND GAME.

BOSTON, Mass., November 15 (Canadian Press). — The Board of Governors of the National Hockey League, who held their pre-season meeting in Boston yesterday, will grace with their presence the opening of the major league hockey season in this city to-night. They will see the rugged Bruins, runners-up with Ottawa, for the Stanley Cup last spring, engage the fast Blackhawks of Chicago with the betting even before the event.

Art Ross' squad is the strongest to open a schedule for Boston since this town launched into big hockey company. To the first line stalwarts of 1926-27 the Bruins have added a dash of young and promising talent from the Canadian amateur ranks. Coutu and Red Stuart have departed, but Ross still has the material for the bruising game with which his team has been identified for several years. Reports have been circulated that the lesson of the Ottawa massacre of last April has been learned by the Bruins and will manifest itself in faster, smoother hockey. With Frederickson. Galbraith. Oliver. and Hitchman on the attack. and Hitchman and Shore on defence. the Bruins appear capable of achieving results without the body-play. Promising additions to the squad are Conner. Lauder. Gaynor and Clark.

Retained Old Stars.

The Blackhawks, who adhered to the Western style last season and played a fast, spectacular game with the attack always emphasized, has retained most of its old stars, and added a few solid defence men. In the early games of last season the Hawks swept the Bruins off their feet, but on the long haul the weight and might of the Boston squad was too much for the light Westerners.

The probable line-up:

Boston.	Pos.	Chicago.
	Goal
Winkler		Gardiner
	Defence
Shore		Wentworth
Hitchman		Trapp
	Centre
Frederickson		Fraser
	Wing
Oliver		McKay
Galbraith		Irwin

Boston subs.: Conner, Herberts. Gordon. Cleghorn, Clapper, Lauder. Gaynor. Clark.

Chicago subs.: Brown. Rodden. MacVeigh. Lehman. Townsend. Taylor, Wasnic, Burns, Graham.

PIRATES-COUGARS TUSSLE.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., November 15 (Canadian Press). — The Pittsburgh Pirates and the Detroit team to-night will follow the puck in the first game of the National Hockey League season in Pittsburgh. The Cougars arrived here yesterday. and the members of both teams were reported in splendid condition for the opening ice fray.

The Pirates are conceded to be better ice men than they were in their previous two years in major hockey play. The team is made up of the same players who have represented Pittsburgh since it entered the National League. and added experience is reckoned by the management to have made the local puck men strong contenders for league honors.

Detroit brought an experienced team to Pittsburgh and also some new material. Jack Adams expressed the belief that his rebuilt Cougar team would prove a dangerous contender.

HOCKEY PLAYERS FINED.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 15 (Canadian Press)—Serving notice that fisticuffs must be divorced from hockey in his league, President Charles G. Clapp of the Canadian-American League yesterday announced that fines of $25 each had been imposed on Ponzi Contant of the Boston Tigers and Jack Gagnon of the Providence Reds as a result of a fight in which the players engaged during a game here last Saturday night.

The president said that Referee Billy Bell had recommended that neither player be suspended as the game was the first of the season and was bitterly fought.

Batstone May Not Play on Saturday

KINGSTON, Ont., Nov. 15 (Canadian Press).—The prospect that Batstone, star of Queen's intercollegiate champions, would not be able to play against Hamilton Tigers here on Saturday in the Dominion semi-finals, loomed large yesterday afternoon, following an X-ray of his injured leg and knee, and which showed that the injury was more serious than at first expected. Batstone yesterday could scarcely bend his knee, but he insisted that he would be in shape for Saturday. The players were practically all in uniform on the field yesterday, but confined their work to running and tossing a ball around. On Tuesday heavy practice will be resumed.

MENIE HOCKEY PROSPECTS GOOD

East Seymour Team Will Be Much the Same as Last Year's.

BURNBRAE, Nov. 15.—Local hockey players and fans are quite pleased with the prospects of a fine, up-to-date rink in Campbellford, and no doubt the new enterprise will reap a fair share of patronage from this community. While there is nothing definite in the way of organizing for hockey yet it is likely that Menie will have a team either in a league or to play exhibition games at least. Manager Rannie is as keen for the ice sport as ever. All of the old team is available with the possible exception of Ralph Hay, who was recently operated on for appendicitis. Will Hume and Alex Linn have both joined the matrimonial ranks since last season, but this will not detract from their hockey love, and will add two interested fanettes to the Menie crowd. Leslie Shillinglaw and Ted Owens are both fit and ready for the opening of the season.

Whether Menie will have any or all of last year's town recruits, Walt Owens, Coulter and Kerr, is problematical, but with the home-brews as a nucleus and the genial sportsman-parson, Rev. Charles Daniel, to add prestige and weight to the team, both on the ice and in the committee-room, the locals should begin where they left off last year, making the leaders extend themselves to win. That final game of the Menie-Clerks 1927 series will long be remembered. The local lads were beaten by the odd goal in nine only after a gruelling 90 minute struggle.

The next month will see things shaping up more definitely. Meanwhile some of the athletes are keeping fit by playing indoor softball with the Hoards team in the Stirling hockey arena. The game is said to be very popular in that town and is an ideal way to get the hockey boys in shape for the winter.

ONLY ONE TEAM AT FULL STRENGTH

Boys Recruited for Softball Games at Lakefield on Friday.

LAKEFIELD, November 15. — The ball games scheduled for Friday evening were a disappointment in many ways although the fact that some of the youngsters got a chance of playing and getting ready for the time when they will be in the regular teams, makes those interested in ball feel that the time was not wasted altogether.

The first game was announced to be between the Cubs and the Business men. The former team were present to a man but the latter team were represented by two men who decided to recruit enough to fill their team and have a game. The available players were decidedly juvenile, but at least they were willing, and put up a very fair game. George Connors and Ernest Green consented to act as umpires and gave decisions acknowledged as fair by both teams. The score was 7-2 in favor of the Cubs.

The following is the line-up:

Cubs: F. Madill p; R. Payne c; H. Stabler 1b; S. Spence 2b; E. Moore 3b; F. Payne and F. Webster ss; K. Junkin and B. Dench fielders.

Business Men: E. Northey p; E. Briant c; P. Allen 1b; P. Payne 2b; R. Kingdon 3b; J. Allen and H. Hamblin ss; H. Morrison and R. Wannamaker fielders; subs., T. Graham and J. Blewett.

The score by innings was:

Business Men .....0000002—2
Cubs.....300310x—7

The second game scheduled for the Douro and Cement teams found Douro absent and three Cement men present, so again the juveniles got their chance, and it was as one of the spectators put it, children's day at the rink. Harold Hamblin and Bob Kingdon acted as umpires and the two teams played a close game with a score of 10-9. Home runs were scored by Ernie Green, Douglas Dench and Eric Moore. The teams lined up as follows:

Cement team: E. Green p; E. Briant c; E. Douglas 1b; P. Payne 2b; R. Wannamaker 3b; J. Blewett and J. Allen ss; N. Morrison and B. Allen field; K. Briant sub.

Bachelors: E. Moore p; F. Payne c; J. Gibson 1b; G. Wannamaker 2b; P. Allen 3b; S. Hill and D. Dench ss; T. Graham and E. Bickell field.

Score by innings.

Star Player Injured Inter-Faculty Game

KINGSTON, Nov. 15 (Canadian Press).—Don McKay, former star hockeyist and rugby player of Kitchener, and son of George B. McKay of Kitchener, president of the O.H.A., sustained concussion of the brain while playing for Arts in the inter-faculty semi-final game at the Richardson Stadium yesterday afternoon. McKay, who is a freshman at Queen's, was on the back field of the Arts team, and in the early part of the game he received a heavy tackle, and injured his head. He resumed playing, however, and at the end of the game collapsed. Dr. L. J. Austin had him removed to the General Hospital, where it was found that he was suffering from concussion. He remained unconscious for some time. In the same game J. G. Richmond, of Hamilton, a second year arts student, received a very serious laceration of the internal lateral ligament of the leg, which will, the doctors said, prevent him from ever playing rugby again.

Success of Wilcy Moore and Lloyd Waner Evoked Interest In Sally League Stars

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Because two of the outstanding stars of the 1927 baseball season in the major leagues were turned out by the South Atlantic Association, major league scouts infested the circuit quite thickly throughout the current season.

Many sales and many recommendations were made before the season closed in September.

The high light furnished the National League is little Lloyd Waner, the frail kid who played in practically every game of the season with great success afield and at bat for the Pittsburgh Pirates. Lloyd went up from the Columbia, S.C., team and has thrilled fans around the circuit with his flashy work.

The American League's ace, Wilcy Moore, went up from the Greenville, S.C., club.

Success of Moore and Lloyd Waner turned the scouts toward the Sally circuit. Even John J. McGraw, manager of the Giants, out to see for himself just what sort of ball they play down in the Dixie loop, paid the circuit a flying visit a few weeks ago. To the Macon, Ga., club McGraw laid down $10,000 cash in hand for "Chick" Fullis, a young outfielder, who reminds Sally fans of young Waner's work around the league a year ago.

Recalling the undenied success of Wilcy Moore with the Yankees, McGraw purchased from Charlotte, N.C., one Jake LeRoy Levi, paying $7,500 for the stocky, little Jewish hurler who feels as much at home working in the outfield, serving as a pinch hitter or filling in an infield berth as he does on the slab.

The Philadelphia Nations paid a fancy price for "Sugar" Sweetland, the Spartanburg, S.C., southpaw, who early tasted the sweetness of major league victories and the bitterness of defeats with the Phils this year.

There are several others who, through late season sale or the draft, will try to land a job on major league clubs next season. There are others who will be watched closely next season from the very start. Catcher Barrett and Pitcher Bayne are up for trial next year. Barrett led the league in home runs while catching for Knoxville this year.

Perhaps none of these new starts from the Sally League will make the grade as well as Lloyd Waner and Moore did, but that would be asking an awful lot of them. Remember that both of these ex-Sally Leaguers were important factors in the play of their team in the past World Series.

The successes of young Waner and Wilcy Moore highly advertised the Sally League and Sally League moguls reaped the golden harvest in return, for where you find one gold nugget, the mother lode must be some place around, perhaps farther up the stretm.

O.H.A. CHATTER

Peterboro is going to have four O.H.A. hockey clubs this winter. They will have a senior, intermediate, and two junior teams, which is a big list for the Lift Lock City. Their seniors will have a lot of new material, as Joe Dwyer and Bert McLeod, two old-timers, are amongst the missing.

Senior O.H.A. doesn't look so bad after all, according to the latest reports. A six-team group is in the air, with three teams from Toronto along with Peterboro, Kitchener and Preston.

Toronto's three teams will be Marlboros. Varsity and Parkdale. Besides these there is the Grads. so that the senior series in Toronto is promising. Just whether the Varsity seniors will play O.H.A. is not known although their entry is expected.

Port Elgin are going to put their senior hockey team in the Northern League providing they can secure suitable grouping. With a host of material to pick from the town is keen for their club this year.

Indians In Need Of Overhauling

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 15—The Cleveland club of the American League is one of several clubs that must be completely remodeled if any sort of a showing next year is hoped for.

The pitching staff excepted, only two players are certain of a regular berth. They are Luke Sewell, one of the best catchers in either league, and Joe Sewell, who has few superiors at short.

Luke had one of his best years last season. Joe slipped defensively, largely due to the fact that he seldom had the same combination working with him at second and third.

Three positions in the field and three in the outfield must be considered as open to the most competent performers.

Changes In Price Of Rookies Shown

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—The Chicago White Sox next season will have two of the highest priced players in the history of baseball at shortstop and third base.

Willie Kamm, who cost the Chicago management $100,000 some years ago, immediately won a regular berth but he has never quite proved that he was worth the fancy sum paid for his services.

Chalmers Cissel, who is to play shortstop for the Sox in 1928, according to reports, will cost Charles Comiskey in the neighborhood of $123,000 in players and cash.

Just think that the scribes 15 years ago believed they were paying Connie Mack's great infield composed of McInnis, Collins, Barry and Baker a real compliment by referring to it as the $100,000 infield!

Times do change in baseball as in anything else.

BOYS' PREMIER

most excruciating pain. All the other runners passed him, the race was won and the crowds had departed. Darkness fell and none but a little group of Canadians waited for the lost runner. He came eventually and Coach Crocker was able to cable back to Canada that every Canadian had finished the course. This, thought the speaker, should be an example to young Canada today. Every man should finish the race.

In beginning his address to the older congregation, Mr. Lautenslager expressed his appreciation of the privileges granted the boys by the churches of the Dominion. Since last Christmas, he said, he had spoken sixty-three times, and most of these addresses had been given from pulpits. He also took time to voice his appreciation of and to pay tribute to the men and women who had made possible their excellent program, their teachers and leaders.

His address was mainly on the interests of boys, as that is his object in being here. He mentioned briefly the life of William Turner, the great English artist. Turner, he said, was a barber's son and as a small boy had taken a keen interest in one, Dr. Moore, a patron of his father's barber shop. The feeling was mutual, and the result was that the doctor used to take the boy to his home and show him his library. After a time, the doctor's art gallery was also thrown open to the boy. Later Turner went to an art school and kept mounting the ladder of success and fame. The speaker wondered how many Doctors Moore and Messrs. Turner were in the church today.

He also quoted the case of a schoolboy who had been a member of a small group of Trail Rangers which had broken up. The boy felt the void which it had left in his life and regretted very much his actions in the Sunday school. His teacher there had been a most charming minister's daughter and the boys had cut up so badly that the girl was often reduced to tears. Evenutually she gave up the class thinking herself a failure. But, he claimed, she had been a glorious failure since she had instilled into one boy's life the desire for better things.

"Adults!" pleaded the speaker. "Have faith in our youth." One of the favorite indoor sports of the day, he claimed, is saying that modern youth is going to the dogs, but he didn't believe it. Certainly they attended football games in their thousands but so did they other functions of a very different nature. As examples he quoted the meeting at Massey Hall, Toronto, about a year ago, when the building was packed full with young people and when the principal speakers were youths. He recalled an incident of college life when the entire building was empty in the morning because every resident had gone to some one of the churches. He recalled how a friend of his would have gladly accompanied him to a church service in Lowes Uptown but that it was necessary to go so very early to get a seat or even standing room. Such is not the case, he claimed, when the usual theatrical program is on at any theatre.

He was pleased to see that Campbellford was much better informed as to the Boys' Parliament that he expected. But the reason, he knew, was that some real good men had come from this district. In support of his statement, he mention Gordon Lapp, Brighton, and Stewart Carr, Campbellford. Then he proceeded to detail the aims and workings of the Parliament, explaining that there were 13,700 boys enrolled in the province and that the movement was self-supporting financially. It no longer required to call upon the churches for assistance as it once had found it necessary to do.

In answer to a common question as to whether the movement was really benefitting the boys, he claimed that eleven percent of the members were going in for the ministry. It held the interest of the adults because of its political organization. With them, however, there was none of the usual election slander so often seen in the real parliamentary elections. This slander, he thought, was most deplorable, and claimed that through the influence of the Boys' Parliament, this would entirely disappear in the next generation. Regarding prohibition, if adults could show them as youths, the way they should go, the natural solution to the problem would be found in a few years.

Theirs, he claimed was a question of world brotherhood. In support of his statement, he detailed the account of two opposing candidates for a high office, one of whom was subjected to some adverse criticism through the press. They joined force and fought the issue together. The boys, he said, were thinking of serious things in a serious way, and again quoted Gordon Lapp of Brighton as proof of his statements. Therefore, for the youth to today, his plea was tolerance on the part of the older people. Though they might make unwise statements now, he thought it better that they do so in youth than later in life. Their duty, he said, was to keep faith with those who fought on the battlefields of France and with Jesus Christ.

TO THE READERS OF THE EXAMINER

A number of girls and women have entered a contest promoted by The Examiner for the gathering of personal and social and general news items in all parts of the town and the field of this newspaper.

We ask for these young folks encouragement and assistance. They will gain in many ways. They will be using part of their time in learning to earn. They will be improving their mental equipment for school work. They will be helping to make The Examiner more "newsy" for ALL its READERS. And they will be paid for what they do, besides having the opportunity, through their industry, to win special weekly prizes.

The average woman, if asked, would say that the Personal and Social news in her home paper commands her first and principal attention. Many of the "men folks" also find it interesting.

But there can be no Personal and Social department without the good-will and co-operation of the readers. The Examiner has long enjoyed this co-operation. We now ask our readers to remember that if they like to read personals, about other folks, they must not object to seeing their own names in print, providing the news is clean and decent—and these contestants will seek no other kind, and they have been particularly instructed not to give offense, not to be too persistent, not to become bothersome.

Many of these contestants will be known to you — perhaps neighbors or the daughters of personal friends. Help them to be successful in this contest. They will gain in education, experience and purse. You will gain in reading a more "newsy" paper.

Your Home Newspaper is as Good as Its Readers Help to Make It.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

THE GUY WHO COULDN'T GO

He was just a private soldier, and he never got across,
And the time he spent in training looks to him a total loss;
For, if anyone should praise him (not that anybody would),
He would say, "I can't see, brother, not where I done any good."
But the world is full of heroes who never had a chance,
And a man can love his country down in Texas or in France.
So, while all the flags are flying and while all the bugles blow,
Let us pay a little tribute to the guy who couldn't go.

For he did his share of duty, and he ate his share of dust,
And he had his own lieutenants, did his cussing, and was cussed,
And he knew the same maneuvers, though they didn't mean a thing,
As the men who followed Pershing or the men who fought with Byng.
And he missed his mother's cooking and he missed the girl at home
Just as much as any fellow that was sent across the foam.
He was just as good and ready as the others that we know,
So let's pay a little tribute to the guy who couldn't go.

For I know I've read it somewhere, though I can't tell book or verse,
That the Captain of the captains never thought so much the worse
Of the man who had it in him but never got the call,
And that all that really matters is the spirit, after all.
If a man is good and ready, though they never let him start,
Then a hero is a hero, though it's only in his heart.
And so, when you blow the bugles, give a little toot or so
And pay just a little tribute to the guy who couldn't go.

Uncle Wiggily

By HOWARD R. GARIS

To-day's Bedtime Story

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE YEAST CAKE

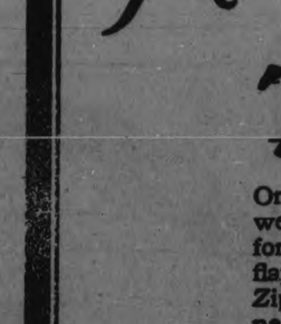
Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy was one of those old-fashioned muskrat lady housekeepers who bake their own bread. In these days, when so many of us get our bread at the bakery or grocery, it is rather strange to find some who still mix up flour, water and yeast, set the "sponge" to rise near the fire at night, mix the dough the next morning and bake loaves of bread with golden brown crust in the oven.

So when Uncle Wiggily heard Nurse Jane call to him one afternoon, as he was hopping away to find an adventure, that she wished he would bring her home a yeast cake, the rabbit gentleman knew what was going to happen.

Uncle Wiggily hop in a grocery store.

"I wonder why he has gone in there?" thought the hungry animal with the silly little tail. "I'll peek in the back window and see."

Looking in the back window, the Bob Cat saw Uncle Wiggily in the store, thrusting something into his coat pocket.



Out leaped the Bob Cat.

It was something very shiny and the Bob Cat said:

"Ha! Uncle Wiggily is buying a silver, shining dollar. Now I know what to do. I will run back, hide in the bushes and jump out at him when he hops past. I will howl and I will yowl and I will scowl! And I will say I am a Robber Bob Cat and that he must give me that silver dollar or I will scratch his ears off! That's what I'll do!" said the bad Bob Cat.

Laughing to himself at the trick he was going to play on the rabbit gentleman, the Bob Cat hid in the bushes.

"Here he comes with the silver dollar," whispered the Bob Cat.

When Uncle Wiggily passed the bush where he was hidden, out leaped the Bob Cat, howling, yowling and scowling, and he cried:

"Give me that silver dollar or I'll scratch your ears off!"

"You are mistaken," said Uncle Wiggily politely, "I have no silver dollar."

"Yes, you have! In your pocket! I saw you buy it in the grocery store!" snapped the Bob Cat.

"Oh, you mean this?" and Uncle Wiggily politely, "I have no silver dollar." "This isn't a silver dollar," he said, "It is a——" But before the rabbit could tell the truth, that it was only a yeast cake, the Bob Cat howled:

"Give it to me! Give it to me!"

"All right! Take it!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily. He threw the yeast cake full in the face of the Bob Cat. The yeast cake, being soft and squashy, spread out flat all over the Bob Cat's nose, eyes and mouth, especially over his eyes. And with his eyes filled with squashy yeast cake the bad chap couldn't see to catch Uncle Wiggily who hopped safely on home to his bungalow. "Well, that was a funny silver dollar," snarled the Bob Cat when he had wiped the yeast cake from his eyes. "I guess I made a mistake."

It was too late for Uncle Wiggily to go back through the dark woods for another yeast cake that night, so Nurse Jane had to make biscuits instead of bread for next day. But they did very well, or even better.

"Nurse Jane is going to bake bread," said the rabbit gentleman. And he was right. Though, of course, sometimes a yeast cake can be used to make root beer. "But it's too late in the season for root beer. Summer is gone," said the bunny uncle. "Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy must be going to make carrot bread with the yeast cake. And as I am very fond of carrot bread I shall not forget to buy the yeast cake."

As Uncle Wiggily hopped along over the brown fields and through the woods where the leaves had fallen off all the trees except the evergreens, he was seen by the Bob Cat, which, as you know, has a silly little tail.

Of course, Uncle Wiggily had a little tail also, as have all rabbits. But I call the Bob Cat's tail silly because that bad chap was ashamed of his tail. He wished it was big like the tail of the Fox or Wolf. That is why the Bob Cat sits down so much. He wants to hide his silly little tail so the other animals will not laugh at him.

But this story is about a yeast cake, not about the Bob Cat's tail, though the bad chap has a part in the adventure, as you shall see.

"Ha! There goes Uncle Wiggily!" snarled the Bob Cat to himself as he hid in the bushes on top of the hill and saw the rabbit gentleman hopping past far below him. "I would jump down and scratch his ears off for my supper only it's too far to jump." It was quite a distance down to the bottom of the hill.

"But I know what I can do," whispered the Bob Cat. "I can follow Uncle Wiggily and see where he goes. And I can follow him back through the woods and catch him in some lonely spot. That's what I'll do!"

So the bad chap slunk down the hill, keeping in the shadow of the evergreen trees, and he was just in time to see

CURING CONSTIPATION

One who has been troubled with constipation for a long time must realize that the colon must be in a very unhealthy condition from the long continued poisoning of feces too long retained. The irritation of the membrane is not only due to toxic food substances, but to bodily poisons which must be eliminated through the intestines.

Some of the very worst of the natural impurities which come from bodily wastes must be thrown out through the colon, but are retained in the lower bowel for often as long as a day. If excess toxins are added to these natural ones, more irritation is necessarily set up.

It is wise for the one who is seriously trying to overcome constipation to first of all cleanse the colon of any accumulated feces and keep the membrane of the colon as clean as possible for several weeks so that any colitis may be cured and any extreme irritation of the membrane healed.

For this cleansing purpose there is no better treatment than with the enema. Colonic irrigations with plain warm water will clean the colon as thoroughly as possible, and cannot injure the membrane in any way. There is no more unclean part of the body than the inside of the intestines, and surely pure water cannot be harmful, but, on the other hand, such treatment must be always beneficial in spite of the ridiculous claims of some that the bowels will become paralyzed and forget how to move of their own accord.

The enema not only cleanses the bowels, but actually gives them more exercise to do by furnishing the additional bulk of water which stimulates peristalsis and really encourages the muscles of the intestines to greater activity.

Practically all patients who come to me for advice suffer from constipation in addition to their other troubles which, in many cases, are directly caused by the unclean condition of their intestines. In all cases, whether constipation exists or not, I always advise patients to take daily enemas for at least several weeks at the start of their treatment. I have them do this, no matter what disease they are suffering from.

This then is the first step to take in the cure of constipation: Take at least one enema daily, and better two, of a quart of plain warm water, without soap, salt or any medicinal preparation. Take the enema in any position which will allow the water to flow freely. The knee-chest position or lying on the back will be found most effective in thoroughly distributing a quart of water throughout the five feet of colon.

Remember, these enemas are to be kept up for several weeks.

In tomorrow's article I will explain the remaining steps to be taken in the cure of constipation.

Questions and Answers.

Question: I. D. asks: "What is good for hysterics when one is having them? Is nervousness the cause?"

Answer: The one who is really suffering from hysteria can do very little for himself, and even his friends cannot do much to help him at the time. Sometimes, placing the patient in a tub of warm water will help quiet the nerves and bring the patient more quickly out of an hysterical attack. Please write to me for a special article on "Hysteria."

Question: Mrs. I. V. writes: "My husband has to take his lunch which now contains wholewheat bread, cheese, ham, salmon, also a couple of cakes. Would you please give me some fillings for sandwiches, also a dessert?"

Answer: The wholewheat bread sandwiches can be made of cheese or any one kind of meat, or filled with peanut butter, avocado, or just plain lettuce and butter. A handful of raisins or dried figs makes a fine dessert for a noon lunch.

Question: M. H. G. asks: "Will you please tell me what causes the face to draw on the right side?"

Answer: The drawing of your face may be caused by hysterical paralysis or from neuritis, or tri-facial neuralgia. Sometimes the nerve irritation on one side of the face is caused by an abscessed tooth or an impacted wisdom tooth.

"WHAT PRICE GLORY?"

Pictures of the Great War have come and gone. They have been tragic and romantic, and even funny like the picture entitled "Behind the Front," that featured two clown-like actors in Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton. And now comes "What Price Glory?" with all three elements woven into a real masterpiece of the screen. It is admittedly not a war picture. Its producers say that the war was simply used as a background, but it is after all, a real war picture. Conflict in those hurried, concluding days of the great struggle, after the American entrance into the war theatre of France must have been like this. Its night attack is a great deal like the picture of a similar affair in "The Big Parade," but just a little more vivid. "What Price Glory?" has the American touch, a bit melodramatic, perhaps, but very vital and compelling in its delineation of elemental passions.

It has been reported that the stage play of the same name was censored very rigidly after first appearances. The silent drama gets away with a good deal. No stage performance would allow some of the developments which are more than hinted at in this production of the silver sheet, and the very uncomplimentary and insulting term that one of the actors constantly hurls at the other would instantly be deleted also from stage conversation. It becomes quite plain on his lips after several repetitions. Then, too, how could a stage manager reproduce, in all its revealing sordidness, the scene in which one man mocks the other with ribald laughter when his companion is about to be married, willy nilly, by orders of a wrethful parent to the girl the first man has been familiar with? For sheer crudity, this picture could hardly be surpassed, but it gets away with it by reason of the war setting that accompanies the love-making. The soldiers who went to France were not lily-handed nor lily-minded. No one ever thought they were. It remained for an American to send two Americans to France in war days and then describe their amorous, as well as their martial adventures.

Two fighting cocks, in the form of rival men, make the interest of the tale. In China during the days of the Boxer rebellion, Sergeant Quirt, (Edmund Lowe) gets the "goat" of Sergeant Flagg (Victor McLaglan.) In the Philippines, he once more spoils the game of Flagg and his native lady friend, just as he has done with "Shanghai Mabel" in China. But it remains for Quirt to arrive at the French village in war time days of 1918 to oust once more the ungainly, tall Flagg in the affections of the frail and pretty Charmaine (Dolores del Rio) daughter of Cognac Pete, innkeeper of the village. The cast has been chosen with extreme care, and the resulting drama is a wonderful example of fine acting and realistic expression of emotion. The hate that seethes between the two men leads them time and again to the verge of murder, and gives them, finally, a chance to achieve a notable and logical ending to a picture that is like a raw section of life cut out whole and laid on the screen for people to thrill, and shiver and laugh over. Bits of comedy run through the whole performance, notably in the part of Flagg's batman, whose "razzing" of his superior officer is subtle and clever, but he arrives at an ignominous end.

The battle scenes are marvellous, and the title of the story has its inception in the cry of the crazed captain to his superior, "What Price Glory Now?" as he looks at the remnant of his blood-shattered corps, and slowly goes mad over the tragedy of young blood spilt in vain. "What Price Glory?" is not a bit of war propaganda. Quite the contrary. It shows the face of the dark form that stalks over the fertile fields of France, in a momentary shadowy opening of the war scenes, and does it against a clever background of romance and comedy. It is a superb, finished presentation of life in the raw, just as it is lived by soldiers in war time.

The orchestral accompaniment to the picture is finely descriptive of the various scenes. An accompanying vaudeville act is a clever tuneful duo between the Garner Sisters, whose dainty presentation, in excellent voice, of several popular song numbers, was enthusiastically applauded last night.

An interesting item in the smaller reels is the travel picture portraying Paris in all its splendor, with the redoubtable Will Rogers as guide.

"LADDIE."

Gene Stratton-Porter's novels have achieved a wide popularity with the reading public, and the pictures dramatized from her work are deservedly just as popular. They have the appeal of every-day life as lived by every-day folk, with a strong romantic element and a hint of mystery. "Laddie" is the feature picture at the Regent Theatre for the first three days of this week, and is being presented there under the auspices of the Otonabee Chapter, I.O.D.E., the proceeds to be donated towards the work of the Well Babies' Clinic.

With an artistic finish to the scenes, an appealing story of American family life and a very strong cast of excellent actors, "Laddie" has all the component parts of a successful screen production, and hold the attention of a pleased audience from first to last of a very fine feature, which has, by the way, a peculiar element of sudden projection and completion in several of the incidents.

Lawrence or "Laddie" Stanton, (John Bowers), is the strong young son of the Stanton family, "dirt" farmers of Indiana, whose homestead is one of the real old type. In the old-fashioned house grows up an old-fashioned family in an old-fashioned way, the sweet-faced mother watching over her brood, the father guiding its destinies, and the family including two very notable juvenile actors, in the little, serene girl who gives a helping hand to her seniors at awkard moments, and the mischievous growing boy who injects an element of comedy even into the Sunday morning service, by reason of well-chosen memorized Scriptural texts with a personal application to several of his hearers.

"Laddie" loves the haughty Pamela Pryor, (Bess Flowers), daughter of a neighboring English family who live in mysterious seclusion with their servants near the Stanton homestead. Even her snobbish tendencies fail to quench "Laddie's" love and finally, he wins out. But another element of mystery enters into the story in the halted romance of his sister, Shelley Stanton, who goes to Chicago to study music and there meets Robert Paget. A twist in this love story adds to its interest, but Fate finally adjusts everything satisfactorily.

It is a sweet, wholesome story of American life as it is lived in the saner sections, with the Stanton family as an example of normal humans. The scenes in the kitchen, with the "domestic help" making pies and frying doughnuts in hot, sizzling fat, and the little episodes where the proud Mr. Pryor joins the children in a "lion hunt," adds to the likeable human atmosphere. Normal, sane, wholesome, "Laddie" is a very likeable production. A finely chosen cast includes Eulalie Jensen as Mother Stanton and David Torrence as Paul Stanton, father of the family.

Accompanying the picture is "Suite Homes" a jazz version of an O. Henry story also a "dancing" comedy and an interesting Pathe Review.

SYNOPSIS

In old France, the Chevalier Fabien des Grieux, a youth as handsome as good, awaits the Paris coach which will carry him to St. Sulpice, where he will train for the priesthood. Meanwhile, on the lumbering diligence as it nears Amiens, rides a beauteous young orphan, Manon Lescaut, being taken to a Convent by her only relative, a brother, who doesn't want to be bothered with her; but who, seeing rich Comte de Ravoir, a connoisseur of women, feasting his eyes upon her, suddenly realizes her worldly value, and proposes a stay overnight at an Inn.

"I would love to, brother dear. I suppose the convent will be all right but I hate the thought of wearing coarse, drab convent clothing." Manon bent over and kissed her brother's hand as if ashamed of her objection to this fine thing he was doing for her.

The two men looked at each other over the girl's bent head. The Comte nodded gratefully. Lescaut was glad that the wealthy man understood why Manon was to remain at the Inn over night. He, also, secretly felt that it was just as well for Manon to have expressed a hatred for ugly attire—the Comte might have the privilege of gowning her as extravagantly as he desired—provided, of course, he paid for the right.

As the diligence neared the White Horse Inn, the man on the box raised the great coach horn to his lips and blew a long and loud blast. The footman jumped off and, waiving aside the waiting students, opened the door with a flourish.

Lescaut alighted first and swaggered on toward the courtyard, utterly ignoring his sister. Comte De Ravoir stepped out next and gallantly turned to assist Manon from the diligence as though she belonged to him.

"Permit me, my dear!"

She flushed with annoyance and scarcely touched his extended wrist as she stepped daintily to the ground.

The students watched her admiringly, but she appeared not to notice them, and they began piling into the diligence with their portmanteaux. From here they were to journey on to St. Sulpice and complete their final training as priests.

There was just a touch of pathos in the honest admiration these young men showed for Manon. Youths going away to be priests. But Manon was destined for the Convent. There was little or no difference—just youth giving up everything for something it thought was very much worth while, peaceful and satisfying.

Lescaut turned back and joined the Comte familiarly. They wound their way through the groups of students in the courtyard, leaving Manon to follow toward the Inn as best she could, alone.

Within the tavern the lay brother was still talking earnestly to Fabien Des Grieux, who listened attentively and fondled his medal—the charm against worldly evil sent to him by the Bishop.

"My son, the diligence has arrived. You must be on your way."

"Yes, Father, I am ready." Fabien replied and warmly grasping the holy one's hand he turned toward the door.

"Before you go, I want to say that you are about to enter upon a new life—a richer, deeper life than you have hitherto known—our blessings go with you!"

"I am grateful to you all."

Fabien hurried toward the door, forgetting his portmanteau.

The diligence horn was sounding the signal for departure and Fabien was eager to speak with his friend Tiberge before starting. As he neared the door he almost collided with Lescaut and the Comte who, engaged in close conversation, were entering the Inn arm in arm. They did not notice the young student and Fabien impatiently stood aside until they had entered. As he again turned toward the entrance Manon appeared.

Feeling strange and rather lost, Manon glanced up timidly wondering if some one had come to help her. Then when she saw Fabien's face she stood still and leaned against the door frame for support. One hand went quickly to her throat and she pressed hard to stifle the cry of happy fulfillment that came from her heart.

But Fabien did not notice her and walked on.

As young as Manon was, she realized that she had always been waiting for some one, and that someone was the young student priest who just passed without seeing her!

Suddenly Fabien stopped—remembering that he had forgotten his portmanteau. Or perhaps he felt the power of Manon's need as she stood there looking at him. At any rate he turned and their eyes met!

Fabien stared at Manon, fascinated as though she were some being from another world.

"Oh, my dear, my DEAR!" And he took a step toward her. His lips were parched. His throat was dry. Something greater than himself clutched his whole being.

Manon gazed at Fabien, breathlessly. Her eyes were big and luminous and her lips finally parted to say—without her knowing it—"I am so happy that you have come—I was lonely!"

Manon appeared so extremely beautiful that for the first time in his life Fabien appreciated the difference between men and women. Up until now his chaste conduct had been the theme of universal admiration among his associates. He underwent a change that deprived him of all reason and self control when he looked upon this girl for the first time. His excessive timidness left him and without the slightest hesitation he advanced toward Manon, who in a moment had become the mistress of his heart and destiny. His fingers, that so reverently held the little charm against worldly evil, opened—and the Bishop's medal fell unnoticed to the floor. Fabien stood before Manon in ardent admiration.

"What has brought you to Amiens?" he inquired breathlessly.

"My brother has travelled here with me so that I may commence my novitiate for taking the veil at the Convent." Manon did not take her eyes from the youth's face as she replied.

Fabien heard in this announcement a death blow to his hopes. Love had so quickened his understanding that he seemed to be another person.

"Have you any acquaintances in the town?"

"No, I shall be here entirely as a stranger when my brother returns to Paris."

The departing diligence signal and voices of the students suddenly penetrated through their consciousness. For a few blessed moments they had not known that any one else lived.

Almost dazed, Fabien feasted his eyes upon Manon's delicate beauty. It was his promised duty to go away!

Chancing to see something dropped on the floor, Manon picked up Fabien's forgotten medal and held it in her hand. He saw that it was his and mechanically extended his hand for the little charm. As their hands touched a thrill passed through them, a thrill that frightened and bewildered because they had never experienced the stimulating influence of association with anyone of the opposite sex.

With a small startled gasp, Manon pulled her hand from Fabien's warm grasp and started for the interior of the Inn.

AUCTION SALES WELL PATRONIZED

Harry Hutchinson and William Lee Dispose of Various Articles.

BETHANY, Nov. 15.—The sale of farm stock and implements on the farm of Mr. Harry Hutchinson, just south of the village, was well attended on Wednesday afternoon despite the cold, disagreeable weather.

The goods disposed of, under the management of the Jacksons of Port Perry, brought a good sum. Horses and cows brought good prices, as well as the other articles offered for sale.

Mr. Hutchinson has been forced to sell his farm owing to ill-health for over a year. Mr. Weston Hutchinson was the purchaser.

The sale of household furniture of the Misses Strike, of Belleville, which was billed for Thursday afternoon on the premises of W. A. Brown, was called off. The owners decided not to sell at the last moment until further consideration.

On Friday, Nov. 11, Mr. William Lee offered a number of surplus articles for sale. Mr. Lee is moving into the village and will have no further need of the things offered for sale.

Y. P. League.

The Young People's League of the United Church held their weekly meeting in the Sunday School room and was well attended. The opening devotional period was led by the President, Mr. Bert Monk. Miss Verna Belle Lee, Missionary Vice-President, took charge of the program, which was very interesting. Mr. Poulter gave a short address on the missionary work which is being carried on, using a map to illustrate his talk. A song, "Hasten Away," was sung by Vincent Jackson, Clayton Card and Karl Monk. A reading was given by Miss Doris Driver, and Miss Jean McKinnon sang a solo.

Sunday School Bazaar.

The bazaar in connection with the United Sunday School is being held on Saturday, Nov. 26, instead of the first Saturday in December as was planned. St. Paul's W. A. changed dates with the United Sunday School.

An annual Christmas concert is being planned for the United Sunday School to be held Monday, December 26. A committee has been appointed with Miss Elsie Richardson as convenor, and is working on the program now, which promises to be as good as other years.

The school children are all busy selling health stamps for the Muskoka Hospital. There is quite a competition as to who will sell the most stamps.

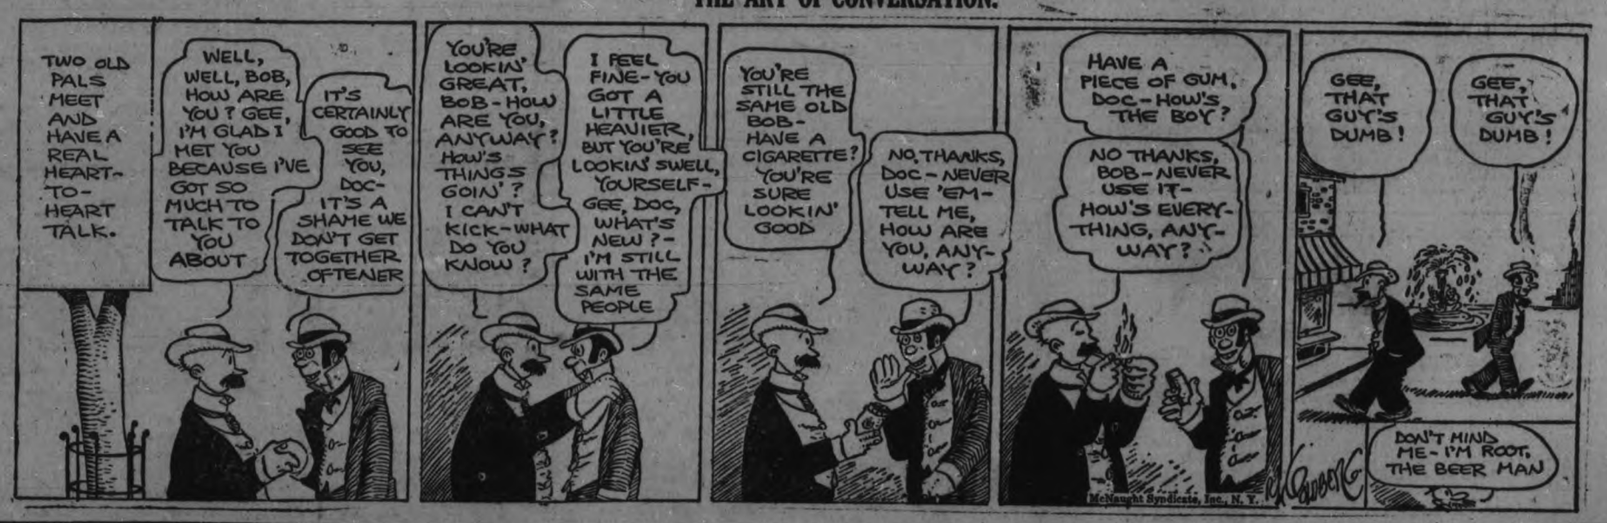
THE ART OF CONVERSATION.



THE CONQUEST OF THE AIR — VI — by Nicholas Afonsky

Perhaps the first fairly successful flight was that of the Marquis de Bacqueville, who, in 1742, with a contrivance similar to that designed by his countryman, Besnier, seventy years earlier, before a great multitude flew part way across the Seine. The crowds were wildly enthusiastic as this birdman soared along, but over the river he fell and was badly injured.

All the time men had an idea of flying machines held up by some kind of hollow globe. In 1755, Father Gallen, a monk of Avignon, France, suggested that if men took big envelopes of canvas or cotton up to the tops of high mountains and there filled them with rarified air, they could drag them down to use to lift great weights up again.

The first man to make experiments as to the amount of wing surface necessary to keep a man in the air, calculated from the proportions between weight and wing surface of birds, was Karl Meerwein, of Baden, who, in 1781 made a strange curved wing surface, to the middle of which he was fastened. He held a rod with which to work the wings. He made one unsuccessful attempt to fly.

In their experiments with the globe type of flying machine, men had wished for some sort of gas lighter than air. In the year 1782 an Englishman, Cavallo, tried filling small bags with "inflammable air," or hydrogen. The gas escaped through the porous material of his bags, but he did succeed in filling soap bubbles with hydrogen, and the bubbles rose rapidly until they hit the ceiling of the room and burst. Experiments in the use of hydrogen led to the successful development of the balloon.

C. B. ROUTLEY GOING OUT OF BUSINESS

A Surprise to the People of Peterborough and Surrounding District.

The announcement that Mr. C. B. Routley has decided to retire from business will come with surprise to the citizens of Peterborough and surrounding district. For over forty-seven years Mr. Routley has been well known as one of Peterborough's progressive business men. To-day he has the distinction of being the longest established business man on George Street. His decision to retire from business after nearly half a century of prosperous merchandising furnishes an important event in the city's local business history.

Mr. Routley's untiring attention to business during this long period certainly entitles him to a season of well-earned rest and relaxation, which his friends will be pleased to learn he is still able to enjoy.

Preparations commenced this morning to arrange the entire combined stock contained in the three storeys of his large store premises at No. 341 George Street for a bona-fide Sweeping Reduction Sale. Due notice of the date will be given in The Examiner.

Mr. Routley's splendidly varied and attractive stock is well known to most Peterborough shoppers. It embraces Fancy Goods, valuable China, Crockery, Dinner and Tea Sets, Wall Papers, Paints, Muresco, Alabastine, Brushes, Trunks, Valises, Gift Goods, Toys, etc. Coming, as it does, just a few weeks before the Christmas shopping season, this sale will furnish an excellent opportunity for providing gift buyers with their needs. The entire stock goes— every price will be smashed. Watch for the date. 1d-115-3480.

MODERN MILK PLANT SET UP.

Campbell Dairy Products Has Complete De Laval Installation.

LOCAL CONTRACTORS.

What constitutes one of the most modern plants in Eastern Ontario has recently been opened at the corner of Sherbrooke and Park streets, in the premises formerly occupied by the Canadian Packing Company as a retail store.

The new firm operates under the trade name of The Campbell Dairy Products, the owner being Alexander Campbell, who has gained fame in this district and throughout the Province of Ontario as an expert butter and cheese maker. Mr. Campbell has been over thirty years in the business, gaining most of his experience in this district. He spent nine years at Central Smith, seven years at Harwood, eight years at Stayner, four years at Garden Hill, two years at Mount Pleasant, and one year at Hastings.

The Harwood brand of butter, one of the best selling brands in this district, was made by him, as also was the famous "30" brand of the Stayner Creamery.

The new plant, which is open to public inspection at any time, is a model for cleanliness and sanitation and is arranged so that a maximum of cleanliness may prevail at all times.

The walls of the store are finished in white tile, while the counters are composed of marble. The test and work tables in the factroy are cement with marble tops, thus ensuring their spick and span condition with a minimum of labor.

A large refrigerator has been installed in the store so that all the products are kept in first class condition. It is built so that access may be gained from either the store or the plant.

To ensure that all the milk received at the plant is of the highest possible quality Mr. Campbell has made arrangements that the farms and herds he selects are under the supervision of the sanitary inspector.

Milk coming in is weighed and inspected and then enters the receiving vat situated in the basement. This vat has a capacity of 200 gallons and is strictly sanitary in every way. It is then pumped to the clarifier, which by centrifugal force thoroughly cleanses the milk of all sediment and other objectionable matter. This machine, like the De Laval Cream Separator, operates by centrifugal force and separates the sediment from the milk, but does not separate the milk from the cream, and is the only method by which absolutely clean milk can be produced.

From the clarifier the milk is pumped to the pasteurizer, which is a 200-gallon white enamel, motor driven Alpha "B" type. In this operation the milk is heated to a temperature of 145 degrees and held at this heat for thirty minutes, thus destroying harmful bacteria without damage to the milk itself. This is the only way in which all pathogenic bacteria can be destroyed without changing the natural condition of the milk. With the Alpha "B" method milk is as wholesome and easily digested as though unpasteurized. The pasteurizer is sturdily built of specially selected wood covered with galvanized steel, and is lined with special tinned copper sheets. A coil built of seamless copper tubing stirs the milk so that the entire contents of the pasteurizer are thoroughly and evenly heated.

The milk is then pumped over an Alpha Tubular cooler, the process of cooling being that the tubes are filled with a cooling medium and the milk trickles down the outside. It then enters a rotary filler and capper, capable of filling and capping about thirty quart bottles a minute. The tank for the milk is of vitrified porcelain, enamelled both inside and out.

A Kawartha bottle washing outfit, fitted with an electric washer, is installed in the basement. The bottles are first soaked in a hot washing solution and are then brush cleaned and put through a bath of hot rinsing water.

The equipment also includes a motor-driven De Laval cream separator.

De Laval machinery, the product of a local firm, has been installed exclusively. Those responsible for the installation were the De Laval Company and F. T. Tuggey. The interior decorations are the work of A. Olin. The electrical installations were made by Grant & Thorpe and Miller Powell Company. The plumbing was done by Adamson and Dobbin.

Drivers call each day by telephoning the dairy, phone No. 520. Routes cover the whole city; in addition, they fill all individual orders promptly at any hour up to 6 p.m.

PRESENTATIONS MADE.

The installation of officers of the Peterborough Chapter, No. 161, Order of the Eastern Star, was held in the Canadian Legion Hall recently, and will long be remembered in the Chapter history.

The Canadian Legion Hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion and the members and visitors, who attended in large numbers, showed their appreciation of the officers and their labors on behalf of the Chapter.

The officers and members of Peterborough Chapter then delighted the guests with a beautiful floral service, which won many compliments.

A banquet concluded the evening's entertainment, which was evidently enjoyed by everybody.

Mrs. House and Miss Patterson sang solos.

At the conclusion of the regular meeting of Peterborough Chapter, held in the Canadian Legion Hall last evening the members and a large number of their friends enjoyed a very pleasant social evening.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

"DEATH."

Any school boy who has access to a dictionary can give the meaning of the word "death." Death is the extinction or cessation of life. The declaration that many make, saying "there is no death"; that, what is called "death" is merely the gateway into some other state of existence, is as absurd as to declare "black is white." To claim there is no death is giving allegiance to Satan, who lied to Mother Eve, and told her "man would not die." Satan's lie is repeatedly preached from the pulpit and in the house of the bereaved ones. To see more clearly the falsity of such preaching, note the following and many other passages from the Scriptures: Psalms 6.5, Psalms 13.3, Rom. 6.23, bearing on the subject of death. Death is the result of Adam's sin. Gen. 2.17, Rom. 5.12, Job. 14.1.2, Psalms 4.10. The dead are surely not in heaven; for the dead praise not Jehovah. Psalms 115.17. The dead are not in purgatory or in a place of endless torment; for the dead know not anything, Ecc. 9.5. Death is likened unto a sleep. Numerous passages of Scripture make this statement clear. When man dies he goes into hell (the grave), if there is money enough to pay the undertaker, or from some other cause he has no burial. Be that as it may man dies. The poet truthfully calls the grave a narrow bed. According to Etymology the cemetery is a dormitory. This leep in the narrow bed in the cemetery is not permanent. A glad and glorious resurrection is to take place in the future, John 5.25. Others statements from the Scriptures go to show that this will take place in the near future. What a good thing it would be if the preachers would preach Jesus and the resurrection, instead of preaching Satan's lie, 'thou shalt not surely die" and its concomitant falsehoods.

Robbed, Stripped and Thrown Into Lake; Toronto Fruit Dealer Accuses Four Men

TORONTO, Ont., November 15 (Canadian Press). — That he had been ordered into a motor car at the point of a revolver by four armed men downtown shortly before midnight last night, driven to the eastern end of Queen Street, and there robbed of thirty dollars, partly stripped, and thrown into the lake was the story told to the police early to-day by Demetro Nicholoff, a fruit dealer. Nicholoff, clad only in shirt and trousers, crawled from the water and telepponed the police from a nearby store.

IN POLICE COURT.

William Linn and Charles Toplis, who were found guilty of stealing automobiles recently, were sentenced this morning by Magistrate O. A. Langley, to one year in prison.

The police car stopped at the corner of George street and King street, last night at 11.05, and while there the officers got the numbers of three automobiles that speeded across the intersection. Only for the good driving of the constable a bad smash-up would have resulted. Chief Newhall will bring the drivers before the magistrate, as soon as the records showing who the owners are, can be consulted.

AROUND THE CITY.

There were two fires yesterday, the first, a chimney at 12.08 p.m. at 258 Reid street and the second in front of 182 Hunter street at 5.35 p.m., caused by a short circuit in the electric wires.

DEVASTATION MARKS SCENE OF EXPLOSION

Two Bodies Recovered as Rescuers Continue Search For Victims.

MANY MISSING.

Estimated Property Loss Will Run Into Millions of Dollars.

PITTSBURGH, November 16 (Associated Press). — Under the glare of powerful floodlights, the monotonous search for additional victims of Monday's gas tank explosion went forward last night in the ruins of the devastated lower North Side district.

Although hundreds of workmen cleaned up tons of debris during the day, only two bodies were recovered, bringing the known death-toll to 23. All but three of these have been identified.

Rescue workers generally, however, believed the fatalities would mount when the task of clearing away the jumoled wreckage of the Pittsburgh Clay Pot Company has been completed. Officials of that concern, one of the chief sufferers in the blast that killed more than a score, injured 500 others and caused property damage running into the millions, announced late yesterday that a revised check-up had revealed that thirty-two of the 117 men at work in the plant at the time of the explosion, were missing. Six were killed outright, a dozen or so are in hospitals and some seventy reported themselves safe. Plant officials pointed out, however, that some at least of the 32 men listed as missing probably were safe, but had faield to report.

Check-ups of employees at all other factories ravaged by the explosion showed every man accounted for, so that the wreckage of the Clay Pot Company holds the secret of what to expect, if any, the death-toll will mount.

Great progress was made in removing the tangled ruins of the Clay Pot Company, which was located immediately adjoining the huge Equitable Gas Company tank which let go on Monday morning, turning the city blocks into shambles. Officials, however, estimated that it would be ten days before all the wreckage could be removed and probably as long before they could say definitely how many of their employees had perished.

Loses Life in Rescuing.

The hazardous rescue task cost one life yesterday. Frank Kuepferle, a laborer was killed while moving some twisted steel when reinforcing steel fell upon him. Two other workmen were injured in other accidents.

Meanwhile residents of the desolated district surveyed the ruins with a calmer eye than had been possible on Monday, and began the work of reconstructing, aided by a $100,000 emergency fund provided by City Council. A resolution was introduced in City Council to use a part of the emergency fund to provide material and workmen to repair the shattered dwellings. Mayor Charles H. Kline, after an inspection of the district, said at least fifteen buildings would have to be torn down to prevent their toppling with the danger of additional fatalities or injuries. Work of demolition was begun late yesterday afternoon.

Streets Cleared.

Streets in the desolated area were completely cleared of debris during the day. Health conditions were reported excellent.

Little actual want was reported for charitable organizations as well as the city, had quickly mobilized their forces and held the suffering to a minimum. Relief organizations continued the work of feeding hundreds made homeless by the blast, and provided clothes for those who needed them.

Investigation seeking to discover the cause of the blast were continued, but no findings were announced. Some experts felt that the secret was known only to the thirteen workmen who were repairing the tank when th blast let go. All of these are believed to have been killed.

Mrs. W. H. Morton gave the report of the Rebekah Assembly held in June, in Toronto.

Confirms Report Of Sighting Plane

NEW YORK, November 16 (Canadian Press). — Captain Joseph Blanchart, master of the liner Ile de France, which arrived yesterday, confirmed his radio report of the sighting an airplane headed west 250 miles south of Halifax on Monday.

The ship was flying high and fast, he said, but he made out two uniformed officers, a civilian, and a passenger in a sailor's uniform in the cockpit. The plane was white, but bore no distinguishable marks of identification, he said.

GALE ON LAKES IS MOVING EAST

Many Ships Anchored in Sheltered Parts of Lake Superior.

NO STORM AT SARNIA.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.— (Canadian Press.)—Gales that lashed Lake Superior and blizards that buried parts of Northern Wisconsin and Upper Michigan in deep snow moved eastward to-day, dissipating to rain toward the south, but carrying much colder weather to a wide territory.

Radio beacons were kept in operation through the night, guiding the ships fighting the stormy seas of Lake Superior. Nine craft were in shelter in Lily Pond, near Portage Lake Shipping Canal. The freighter Duluth was overdue at Houghton, Michigan, but was believed to have gone into White Fish Point to wait for the storm to abate. There has been virtually no movement of vessels on Lake Superior since Monday night, when the storm broke. Some vessels which sailed before the gale broke have not arrived at their destinations, but were believed in shelter along the lake. The Canadian Pacific steamer Assiniboia was riding out the storm at anchor off Thunder Bay.

No Storm at Sarnia.

SARNIA, Ont., Nov. 16.— (Canadian Press.)— The blizzard reported sweeping Lake Superior has not yet extended to Lower Lake Huron, and marine traffic is moving normally past this port to-day. Storm signals were up here last night and are still flying, but the anticiapted gale has not arrived.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Nov. 16.— (Canadian Press.)— Lake steamers which have been held up as much as twenty-four hours by gales on Lake Superior and Huron were moving again to-day after one of the most severe periods of November weather ever experienced on the Upper Lakes. The mercury went to fifteen above zero during the night. No marine casualties were reported to-day, probably because the storm warnings have been displayed almost continuously at Upper Lake ports for the past two days and no ships were far from anchorage of some kind.

Still Bad in West.

PORT ARTHUR, Nov. 16.—(Canadian Press.)— After a brief lull, a north-east wind is sweeping the western portion of Lake Superior to-day, precluding a general resumption of shipping which has been tied up since Monday. Despite heavy seas and foggy weather the Northern Navigation steamer Huronic left last night for Sault Ste. Marie and at nine o'clock was reported passing Otter Head on the north shore. The Hamonic also braved the storm, having left the Soo for Port Arthur early to-day.

HEAVY TRUCK SINKS THROUGH PAVEMENT

Rear End Breaks Cover Over Creek in Montgomery Hotel Yard.

While one of the large trucks of the R. M. Andrews' Transportation Company was turning around in the yard of the Montgomery Hotel last night, the rear end dropped through the pavement that covers the creek which runs through the yard.

The length of the truck was the only thing that kept it from being pulled in. The truck was unloaded and men worked for several hours prying the truck up before it could be gotton out.

DELEGATES OF LAKE HARBORS BEGIN SESSION

Denounce Opponents To Deepening of St. Lawrence To Ocean.

NEW YORK CITED.

Chicago Drainage Canala Diversion Also Attacked By Delegates at Toronto.

TORONTO, November 16. Canadian Press. — Upwards of four hundred delegates were present when the annual convention of the Great Lakes Harbor Association of Canada and the United States got under way to-day under the chairmanship of William G. Bruce, Milwaukee, president. Mr. Bruce incidentally, was endorsed by the Board of Directors at its pre-convention meeting for re-election as president. The directors elected Raymond H. Weins, Milwaukee, secretary-treasurer of the association.

The resolutions which the delegates discussed to-day voiced denunciation of those interests opposing the development of the St. Lawrence waterways and expressed enthusiastic support of the project of a deep waterway from the lakes to the sea. The efforts of "influential interests" to nullify the scheme were outlined to the convention. The answer to the St.Lawrence deevlopment question now lies with Canada, asserted Mr. Bruce in his presidential address. The "question in hand is now an international one. Americans are agreed. The answer lies with Canada."

In denouncing the obstructionist tactics Mr. Bruce confined his remarks to his own country. New York city he said, "is seeking to deprive the mid-west of its God-given right of access to the Atlantic ocean, and the further right to convert its lake harbors into ocean ports."

The battle with Chicago over the diversion of water from Lake Michigan through its drainage canal, was reviewed at some length. He pointed out that the diversion still continued, and asserted that one of its most devastating results was accentuating the Mississippi floods.

Major Dewitt C. Jones, United States District Engineer at Buffalo, later in the day outlined the fundamentals of the Lake Harbor development. This afternoon the Canadian view point was presented by the Hon. F. H. Keefer, Port Arthur, Ont., and Governor Harding of Iowa gave the American view point on the question of an outlet to the sea. L. D. Sabin, vice-presideent of the Lake Carriers Association outlined the essentials of a lake port.

SALE AND PLAY ARE SUCCESSFUL

Girls' Auxiliary of St. Luke's Presents Amusing Program.

The Girls' Auxiliary of St. Luke's Anglican Church held a sale of work and candy, and presented an entertaining little play, in the Parish Hall last evening. The play, a two-act comedy, was entitled "Mr. Bobs," or "When Brown Came Down," and was presented in good style by the cast of clever amateur actors. It deals with the misadventures and complications arising out of a misunderstanding as to whether a visitor is a young lady or a young gentleman with resulting confusion in the household which has prepared for one, and receives the other. The same household is also upset by the wish of an erratic maiden aunt to have plans made for the building of an establishment devoted to the care of cats.

The various parts were taken as follows: Mrs. W. Hepburn as Aunt Becky; Miss Queenie Hope as "Mr. Brown"; Miss Amy Droupe as the niece; Miss Clemena Long as Catherine; Miss Annie Simmons as "Mr. Bob"; Cecil Hope as Philip, the ecusin; and Roland Kraut, as the butler.

A programe of music included comic songs by Mr. C. Coleman, with accompaniments played by Mr. Thompson, St. Luke's Church organist; piano solos by Miss Muriel Davies; a monologue by Mr. Jack Primeau, who also acted as chairman, and Hawaiian orchestral numbers by the Misses Hamilton and Melville Hamilton.

MONTREAL, Nov. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Financial Service today says, "An echo of the Home Bank failure is the news that James Ogilvie Co., Ltd., one of Montreal's largest departmental stores, has been purchased by A. J. Nesbitt, Montreal, at a price which give to the liquidator of the Bank all the advances made originally by the bank to the Ogilvie Company and a small profit in addition. It is understood that more than three quarters of a million dollars were involved in the transaction."

Problem of Alloting Votes Among Nations Laid Over Until Next Radio Conference

WASHINGTON, November 16 (Associated Press). — The international radio conference, in session here since October 4, reached the last group of numbers on its programme yesterday after eliminating the last remaining centre of interference in a meeting of the Convention Committee.

The problem of how to allot votes among nations in future conferences was settled by adopting a suggestion that the article in question be left to future parleys to solve. It was indicated that the question would be taken up diplomatically before the next conference, so as to have a formula ready for approval at that time.

Upwards of 15 articles of the convention and of the general wireless regulations are ready for consideration at to-day's plenary session of the conference. As yet, however, none of the more controversial provisions of the convention or regulations have been reported by the Drafting Committee.

Stephen B. Davis, vice-chairman of the conference, said yesterday that completion of the conference's labors by next Monday was almost a certainty. Another plenary session is planned for Friday when it is hoped that the remaining articles will be approved, leaving only the signing of the treaty for Monday's final meeting.

The Convention Committee yesterday decided that the new convention will go into effect on January 1, 1929, up to which time the London 1912 convention will continue in force.

The committee also ordered exchanges of ratification of the convention to take place in Washington.

MANOILESCU ACQUITTED OF PLOT TO RESTORE CAROL TO THRONE

Rumania Breathes Easier Following State of Higher Nervous Excitement.

SETS WARNING.

Trial Had Given Rise To Much Dangerous Talk Throughout Country.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, November 16 (Associated Press). — Rumania, which for a fortnight has been in a state of high nervous excitement, breathed easier yesterday with the acquittal of Mihail Manoilescu, former Under-Secretary of Finance, who was charged with sharing in a revolutionary plot.

The trial had given rise not only to dangerous talk about the establishment of a republic, an absolute dictatorship, and abolition of the dynasty, but undisguised anxiety on the part of the Government which ordered the trial to be terminated as speedily as possible.

While Premier Bratiano feels taht Manoilescu's arrest set a warning and example before other politicians who might feel a tendency to meddle in the dynastic situation, the fact is that the trial has broken wide open again the troublesome question of the claims of former Crown Prince Carol to the throne. More than that, it made Carol and Manoilescu heroes in the eyes of many impressionable and sentimental Rumanians.

Opposition Heartened.

Heartened and emboldened by Manoilescu's acquittal, leaders of dissenting political parties now appear certain to be more inclined than ever to use the possibility of the prince's return as a means of agitating the otherwise indifferent and somnolent peasantry and the neutral army, thereby undermining the Bratiano Government. Many disinterested persons here, however, feel that no matter how much Carol may have been wronged by Bratiano, if at all, the prince's return would bring social and political chaos at a time when Rumania needs to devote her energies to staggering financial and economic problems.

In any event the Government is prepared to take the most drastic measures to frustrate further attempts to restore Carol either to the throne or to the regency. Premier Bratiano, is expected to apply ruthlessly the so-called Draconian law recently passed by Parliament making even discussion of the Carolist question a prison offence.

After a Cabinet meeting yesterday an official communique was published which declared in placing M. Manoilescu on trial the Government felt it was desirable to make an example of the first attempt to upset public security and thus discourage further dangerous attempts. The court-martial, disregarding these eventual consequences, did not think it necessary to apply the full rigor of the law.

"It will, however, soon be seen from the conduct of those whose machinations imperil the future of the state whether its leniency was justified. The fact that the trial did not end in conviction will not deter the Government from enforcing the law against anyone attempting to disturb public order or threatening the state's security."

It was announced yesterday that the Government will forbid a public meeting which the national peasants' party proposed to hold here next Sunday.

THE WEATHER

There was another heavy rain last night, this time .87 falling. The lowe. temperature last night was 47 degrees. Some very cold weather prevails at present in some parts of the prairie provinces. Our turn is coming. The stage is all set for a general freeze-up, which, however, will likely be only temporary.—W.P.

NO COUNTERFEIT MONEY OFFERED

Local Banks Have Not Received Any Bad U. S. Bank Notes.

TENDERED ON LAKE SHORE.

The epidemic of bogus United States money that has been raging for several days in the Lakeshore towns has not reached this city, according to the banks. The bills are rather crude imitations of the genuine thing, and are in $5.00 and $10.00 denominations. The paper is softer, and the most outstanding feature is that the numbers are upside down.

Present indications show that oil company service stations are being victimized more than any other branch of business. In Bowmanville seven merchants have reported to the police that they have received counterfeit five and ten dollar United States Federal Reserve bank notes.

The local police have been asked to be on the lookout for the swindlers. They have been described as travelling in a Hudson car carrying Michigan license number 92-908.

LEARNS OF SON'S DEATH IN ACTION

Port Dover Man Reads Account in Memoirs of Richthofen.

BRANTFORD, Ont., Nov. 15.—Publication of the memoirs of Baron Von Richthofen, German ace of aces, has brought to Wilson Porter, Sr., Port Dover, the first news of the fate of his son, Flight Lieut. Wilson Porter, Jr., of that village. Hitherto he only knew that after August 24, 1918, his son was reported missing.

Richthofen turned in formal reports of his victories to German headquarters. A synopsis of his activity for the date mentioned included the shooting down at 7,500 feet of a British S E 5 plane, west of Combles. As Wilson Porter, Jr., was alone reported missing on that date in that area in such machine, he takes it as proof positive that Richthofen's story at last changes "missing" to "killed in action." This makes the young Port Dover flier one of the last of the victims of the greatest of German war aces, for shortly afterwards he met his death in a fight with a Canadian flier.

STEAL TINY PORTRAIT.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—The smallest portrait in the world has been stolen from an exhibition of the Royal Photographic Society and police are searching for it. It is that of Nelce, pioneer in photography, and is so small that it must be enlarged 150,000 times to make a picture the size of a half dollar.

U. S. TO IGNORE MEXICO'S PART IN NICARAGUA

Charges Not Proven in Any Case, is the Attitude.

CONTINUE RELATIONS.

President Calles Alleged To Have Stopped Peace Move.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (United Press).—Administration officials indicated yesterday there will be no change in the present friendly American policy toward Mexico as a result of the allegedly documentary expose that the Calles government subsidized the recent Nicaraguan revolution, published in copyright articles by The Washington Herald.

Ignore Incident

The State Department continued to ignore the incident on the ground that it had no information whatever regarding the authenticity of the alleged document. Anything aimed to interfere with the attempt to establish better relations between the two governments, being made by American Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow in Mexico City, is frowned upon by officials here.

Alleged documents, reproduced in the second Herald article appearing yesterday, purport to show that the Corinto peace conference, arranged by the State Department in October, 196, to end the Nicaraguan revolution, was broken up by President Calles of Mexico.

Document Reproduced.

An alleged order from General Jose Alvarez, Calles' chief of state, to Foreign Minister Saenz, was reproduced, ordering Saenz to inform the Nicaraguan Liberal leader, Sacasa, through the Mexican ambassador in Guatemala, that Mexican financial and other aid would be withdrawn if Scasa accepted different peace plans than those arranged in Mexico City.

Only Woman Killed Leaves Five Children

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Five grief stricken children yesterday lingered about a casket in a north side home, looking upon the body of their mother, Marie Congelier, the only woman victim of yesterday's terrific gas explosion. The mother was killed while working over a wash tub in the basement of her home, just a block from the ill fated gas tank. She met death when a large piece of flying glass severed an artery in her leg. Relatives will care for the children.

FLIERS THOUGHT CROSSING ASIA

Nothing Has Been Heard of Princess Xenia Since It Left Upavon.

VISIBILITY POOR.

LONDON, November 16. — Canadian Press. — A cloudy and snowy night behind them, the two British airmen who are attempting to achieve the first non-stop flight to India, this morning were believed to be starting on the leg of their flight which carries them across southern Russia, the Caspian Sea and Afghanistan.

The plane, the Princess Xenia, bearing Captain R. McIntosh and Bert Kinkler, has not been sighted since it passed over the Manston aerodrome, England more than 120 miles from Upavon, their starting point. This caused no surprise however, because the plane does not carry a radio, and the clouds over the continent decreased the visibility.

CENSURE VOTE BEING DEBATED

Resolution By Ramsay MacDonald Calls Attention To Difficulties.

ASKS FOR ACTION.

LONDON, November 16. — Canadian Press. — Consideration of the vote of censure of the government for neglect of the coal problem was the principal business before the House of Commons to-day. Former Premier Ramsay MacDonald moved the resolution. This resolution called attention to the growing difficulties in the coal industry and the increasing distress and unemployment among the miners. It called for immediate constructive action to bring about efficient organization of the industry and also asked that the distress and unemployment be dealt with.

Sentence Suspended On Two Conspirators

VANCOUVER, November 16 (Canadian Press). — Sentence was suspended my Mr. Justice W A. Macdonald on Fay Millard Lear, 35, and John Andrew Anderson, 38, who had been convicted of conspiring to defraud the public in connection with the promotion of a motion picture industry on the north shore of Burrard Inlet. Before ordering their release from custody, Mr. Justice Macdonald directed them to enter into $2,000 bonds for good behaviour. In not sentencing the two men to prison, His Lordship explained that he was giving effect to the jury's recommendation for mercy and a petition for leniency which had been signed by 100 of the 200 subscribers for stock in the enterprise promoted by Leard and Anderson.

BRITISH HOUSE IS DISORDERLY

Speaker Finds It Necessary To Adjourn To-day's Session Twice.

IN CENSURE DEBATE.

LONDON, Nov. 16. — (Canadian Press.)— Renewed disorder late today caused a second adjournment of the House of Commons seven minutes after it had been called to order after a temporary suspension of sitting earlier in the afternoon.

A disorderly scene in the House late this afternoon caused the Speaker to adjourn the session until six o'clock. The House was debating the Labor Party motion of censure charging that the Government had neglected unemployment and coal problems.

SENORA GOMEZ STILL VERY ILL

Widow of Executed Candidate For Presidency of Mexico Suffers Collapse.

TERMS DEATH MURDER.

LOS ANGELES Calif., November 16. United Press. — The condition of Senora Encarnacion Elias de Gomez, who collapsed when she saw photographs of her husband's recent execution and funeral in Mexico, is said to be "extremely critical."

Senora Gomez has been suffering from pleurisy for some time. When her husband, General Arnulfo Gomez, was killed, she became worse. This condition was greatly accentuated when she viewed the photographs from Mexico City.

She had termed the death of Gomaz, a presidential candidate, "A fiendish murder on the part of President Calles."

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Nov. 16.—Acting Chief Darl announced yesterday that in future all fines must be paid in Canadian currency. It has been the practice for many U. S. citizens to tender their own currency which is discounted in local banks. Similar action was taken at the Post Office where notices are displayed "American currency not accepted."

Leaves Wife in New York But Denies Any Quarrel.

FAREWELL AFFECTIONATE.

NEW YORK November 10. Canadian Press. — Lyle Womack was bound back to Panama alone to-day while Ruth Elder, his pretty aviatrix wife, turned to collect the spoils and more of the glory accruing to trans-Atlantic air heroes.

Still blushing from an affectionate farewell in public, Womack who had come to New York from Balboa, to welcome his wife, and take her back to their home in the Canal Zone, was left aboard the liner Christobal 30 minutes before sailing time yesterday while the girl flier hastened away to "another business conference."

Womack assured the newspapermen who waited with him until sailing time, that he had "a date with Ruth in Balboa when she is through with her present program." He said there was no hint of estrangement between them.

MONTREAL, Que., Nov 16.—Stealing stars led five lads between seven and eight before the juvenile court yesterday. Good little boys in the King Edward VII. School are distinguished by golden stars pasted on their lesson books. The bad gang will not make the grade, and decided that might was right. The only trouble was they turned up at school with too many stars. The judge lectured them.

WORLD'S SUGAR PRODUCTION TO BE REGULATED

Four Countries Sign Pact To Restore Balance To Industry.

ACCEPT CUBAN PLAN.

Effective For One Year With Renewal at End of Period.

PARIS, Nov. 16 (Associated Press). —Cuba took effective lead of the world's sugar interests yesterday when suggestions of Colonel Jose Tarafa, head of the Cuban Sugar Defence Committee, were incorporated in an agreement signed by the biggest exporters of the sugar world to stabilize production and exportation so the industry will be able to wait for consumption to catch up with the present over-production.

Tarafa, who was a leading figure in the negotiations with representatives of Germany, Poland and Czechoslovakia, was given a vote of congratulation by the European delegates when the agreement was signed yesterday. They were quite as pleased as the Cuban representative because they realized they could not cope with the island, which is the greatest producer in the world, if it came to a fight for the world's market.

The Cuban was highly gratified by the results of the arduous work he has done here in the past few days. He said immediately after the agreement was signed that he would continue his mission which is to get other sugar exporting interests, such as those of Java, to join the agreement. He will go to Amsterdam the last of the week to take up that part of his task.

The agreement signed yesterday is effective for one year and is renewable at the end of that period. It provides for the admission of all sugar importing countries. Only the general outlines of the agreement were given out yesterday, it being explained that there was some details which it was desired to reserve for explanation to other sugar interests likely to come into the combinations before they are given to the general public. All of the leading delegates, however, declared there was nothing in the agreement that could be interpreted as tending toward the trust or a combination in restraint of trade.

The basis of the organization for the control of production and exportation is an international committee of two members from each country adhering to the agreement. Their mission will be to apportion exportation so as to avoid useless competition between members and as far as possible furnish a steady output for everybody in proportion to present consumption.

As far as could be discovered, there is no clause in the agreement fixing prices, the arrangement being devoted rather to rational distribution of output irrespective of what producers get for it. Some of the delegates pointed out that with a surplus on the market, it is a bad time for trying to control prices. They explained that the object was rather to prevent the glutting of any market, thereby bringing about conditions that will be bad, first for the capital invested in the sugar industry, and, second, for the consumer who would pay higher prices when the industry became demoralized and production fell below requirements.

WINTER COMES ON PRAIRIES

Fourteen Below Reported at The Pas—Fishermen Trapped.

ICE HOLDS BOAT.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 15.—(Canadian Press).—Bitter north winds played an icy tatoo on the mercury glasses in the Prairie Provinces during the night and there was no sign today of an early let up in the frigid wave which has blanketed the West for the past week. Manitoba particularly felt the lash of sub zero blasts with the temperature dropping to the low point of fourteen below at The Pas. The sudden advent of extreme temperatures has brought great hardship to fishermen caught unprepared in the Northern stretches of Lake Winnipeg. Reports were received here that a gasoline launch Victoria, which put out from Gimli, Man., two weeks ago to bring back to winter quarters a number of fishermen, had been trapped in a heavy ice field, five miles from shore. The Victoria, which carries a crew of three, is believed to have at least six passengers aboard.

THREE MEN MAKE LONG CANOE TRIP

Down Albany River and Up Through James and Hudson Bays.

TORONTO, Nov. 16.—(Canadian Press).—A three hundred mile canoe trip down the Pagwa and Albany rivers, around nine hundred miles of the treacherous coast of James Bay, up the east coast of Hudson Bay, and finally into Richmond Gulf and the land of the midnight sun, was the perilous journey recently concluded by Captain William Lucy, Hugh Rogers and William Broadbrook of Toronto. Their Indian cook and Eskimo guide were both native missionaries "and better Christians than any of us", the captain remarked today.

Adverse weather and icy conditions of the corn held down his total by six bushels less than his state record of 21.7 bushels.

Would Lower Rates Transoceanic Phone

LONDON, Nov. 16. — The possibility of a decrease in the present telephone rate between London and the United States at periods of the day when the traffic is lightest, was suggested in the House of Commons yesterday. The present rate is £5 (about $25) a minute, with three minutes the minimum call.

The postmaster general replied that he considered it too early in the development of trans-atlantic telephone service to make such a reduction and that further experience was needed for adequate study of the question.

UNITED STATES PAYS OFF DEBT

Take Over Second Liberty Bond Issue of $3,807,000,000.

MAKE REPORT LATER.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 16. — (Associated Press).—Insofar as its creditors would allow, the United States yesterday took up and paid off one of its greatest war loans, the second Liberty bond issue of $3,807,000,000.

The figures involved were so large that Ogden Mills, Under-Secretary of the Treasury, refused to make any estimate as to how successful the Government's efforts to retire the second liberties had been.

Not until the twelve reserve banks make their report late this week will the treasury be enabled to tell how many of the bonds remain outstanding, though interest upon them ceased yesterday.

By various conversions and continuous sinking fund purchases, the second Liberty loan had been reduced last February to a total of $3,104,000,000. Since that time the Government undertook a series of financing operations intended to bring about the payment of the bonds or their conversion to other forms of securities with the result that when the loan was called for redemption, there was a total of $730,000,000 of the bonds outstanding.

It is expected that most of these outstanding bonds will be turned in before the end of the present week, although it is believed that some will remain unretired for years due to oversight of the redemption call or the mislaying of securities.

The final conversion offer in which second liberties participated also was cleared up yesterday, Secretary Mellon announcing that the November 15 seven months' offering of 3 1-8 per cent. treasury certificates had all been allotted. The Government accepted cash subscriptions for the certificates to a total of $419,770,000 out of the total of $1,103,261,400 that subscribers tendered, but it allowed new certificates in full for the total amount of subscriptions made in second Liberty bonds, which was $2,336,500.

LELAND AND SON SUE HENRY FORD FOR $6,000,000

Act Under Power of Attorney Granted By Lincoln Shareholders.

WANT FULL ACCOUNT.

Failure To Carry Out Agreement in Connection With Sale Alleged.

PONTIAC, Mich., Nov. 16.—(A.P.) —Nearly two thousand stockholders scattered throughout the country of the old Lincoln Motor Company are plaintiffs in a suit in chancery against Henry and Edsel Ford involving approximately $6,000,000 filed in circuit court here yesterday.

The suit brought by Henry M. Leland and his son, Wilfred C. Leland, former president and vice-president respectively of the Lincoln Motor Company, under power of Attorney obtained from the stockholders, seeks reimbursement for losses alleged to have been suffered at the time Henry Ford purchased the Lincoln properties in 1922 at a receivers' sale for $8,000,000.

Failed To Keep Agreement.

The bill of complaint charges that Mr. Ford failed to keep a verbal agreement to buy the outstanding stock of the active stockholders. This outstanding stock, according to the complaint, aggregated about $6,000,000 in value.

Charging that but for the agreement made verbally with Mr. Ford, they wouldd have been able to effect a re-organization of the company or to have re-established its business on a basis that would have assured the payment of the company's creditors and stockholders, the Lelands ask that the stock of the new Lincoln Motors Company, now operated by the Ford interests be decreed held in trust for the plaintiff stockholders.

The bill charges that after the new company had been established, and met with "extraordinary success," with the Lelands in charge of operations, the Lords "took the same from the direction and control of the Lelands" and have since directed it and controlled it themselves.

"They came into possession of a going concern, the fair value of which was upward of $25,000,000," the complaint alleges.

The Lelands accuse Henry Ford of having "permitted it to be announced in various newspapers and magazines that he had voluntarily and as a matter of generosity paid the creditors in full." The plaintiffs state that filing of the suit was deferred because they believe it was the intention of the Fords to pay the stockholders as agreed, and upon so doing, again to pretend "that said payment was an act of beneficence and generosity, and not pursuant to their agreement."

The bill winds up with a petition asking that the Fords be required to make full, true, direct and perfect answers to all the charges it contains.

Seek Accounting.

That an accounting be made of the sums invested by the plaintiffs in the old company;

That the stock of the new company, issued in consideration of the transfer of the assets of the old company and now held by the Fords, be decreed to be held in trust for the plaintiffs;

An accounting by the Fords of all dividends received by them from the new company, the dividends to be impressed with a trust and decreed to be held in trust for the benefit of the plaintiffs;

That the defendants be required to transfer the stock of the company to the plaintiffs ,as the respective interests of the plaintiff may appear in proportion to their several investments, subject to the repayment by the plaintiffs of any sum in excess of the sum that may have been repaid them;

Or that the stock may be sold under the direction of the court and the proceeds paid to the defendants in repayment of advances made to them, and the balance distributed among the plaintiffs proportionately to their interests;

That the Fords may be decreed to be personally liable to the plaintiffs in the amounts found to have been invested by them respectively, with interest at five per cent.

Plaitniffs in the suit are represented by Kenneth M. Steven and William Henry Gallagher of Detroit. Gallagher was chief counsel for Aaron Sapiro in the latter's million dollar libel suit against Henry Ford, recently settled out of court.

Raoul Dandurand, Government leader in the Senate, was appointed Canada's representative at the next session of the League of Nations Council, Premier Mackenzie King announced yesterday, following a meeting of the Privy Council. 900 ATTEND FOWL SUPPER

Annual Fall Festival at St. John's, Campbellford, is Great Success.

PROGRAM FOLLOWS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 16.— Last night large crowds thronged the auditorium of St. John's United church awaiting their turn to gather around the tables in the basement which the members of the Ladies' Aid had laden to capacity on the occasion of the annual fowl supper. The rows of tables literally groaned beneath the weight of delectable edibles. Cornucopia seemed to have been there and from her flowing horn to have poured forth the choicest of her treasures in undiminishing quantity.

The quality of the feast was par excellence; the service by the willing ladies under the efficient supervision of Mrs. Charles Davidson, president of the Ladies' Aid, was the acme of attention, and the amount consumed was prodigious.

As the dining hall could only accommodate 183 persons at one time, it was necessary for the late comers to bide their turn. In the interim orchestral music entertained them. Before all had satiated the demands of healthy appetite, nearly 900 people had partaken of the bounteous offerings of good things before them

Dawn—and a magical stillness on earth,
quiescence profound;
On the waters a vast Content, as of hunger appeased and stayed;
In the heavens a silence that seems not mere privation of sound,
But a thing with form and body, a thing to be touched and weighed!

Yet I know that I dwell in the midst of the roar of the cosmic wheel,
In the hot collision of Forces, and clangor of boundless Strife,
Mid the sound of the speed of the worlds, the rushing worlds and the peal
Of the thunder of Life.

Demand Abolition Of Press Censorship

BUCHAREST, November 16.— Nine independent and opposition newspapers joined yesterday in a vigorous demand upon the government for the immediate abolition of the censorship which they say permits a free reign of the worst of public plagues, namely blind rumor.

The protesting papers delare It is a sad delusion for the government to think it can impose peace upon the country by means of a censorship. They argue that only complete liberty of the press can disperse the dust of legend and lies now polluting the political atmosphere.

Hannington Rides in Motorcycle Beside Army En Route To London.

MARCHERS WEARY.

HUNGERFORD, Eng., Nov. 16. — The army of the unemployed started for Newbury yesterday morning. As it is only a ten mile hike the marchers expect to arrive there in time for tea.

Walter Hannington, representative of A. J. Cook, secretary of the Miners' Federation, is having troubel with his feet, and was forced to use a motorcycle to keep up with the procession. He hopes to be able to march into London with the men. A chiropodist at Hungerford gave the men free treatment.

Under Royal Arms of King John.

NEWBURY, Eng., November 16.— The Red marchers en route to London to call the attention of Parliament to the distress of the unemployed rested last night under the Royal Arms of King John.

When the men plodded last night into this old town, where King John granted the Magna Charta of English liberty in 1215, they were so tired they did not care what Moscow might think of their bunking within buildings that bear a Royal title.

The unemployed army from Wales found rest in buildings that are a part of alms houses called King John's Court. The shelter was turned over to the men by the municipality.

One of the men Walter Hannington, called 'Comrade' by some of the marchers and 'Colonel' by others, wears the Soviet armlet, bearing three red stars, a sickle and a hammer. He says he hopes to have enough armlets to distribute to all the marchers before they reach London, which probably will be next Sunday.

An Endorsement That No One Could Buy

Given to the Parker Duofold by Anthony Fokker, Famous Monoplane Designer

Read what he says about this famous writing instrument

When Anthony Fokker, designer of monoplanes used in record-breaking flights to the North Pole, France and Hawaii, endorses the Parker Duofold, he speaks with authority.

"Any engineer," he says, "appreciates a precision instrument. That's why I use a Parker Pen."

To him, precision in a pen means immediate writing at the touch of point to paper. It means the famous pressureless touch, which makes the Parker Duofold the easiest-writing instrument the world has ever seen.

It means continuous perfect writing—a pen that clears the track for thinking, with no petty interruptions.

If you want to know why "Fokker" endorses Parker Pens, try one at your dealer's.

But don't be misled by colour. That may be imitated. The pen that writes differently—Fokker's favorite "precision pen"—is stamped "Geo. S. Parker" on the barrel.

Pancakes for Supper!
Oh, Boy!

"Tse in Town, Honey."

Here they come from play. Appetites sharpened by the brisk autumn air. Eager to eat. What's for supper? Pancakes! Aunt Jemima's! Oh, Boy!

Every plate comes back for more Aunt Jemima pancakes. Golden-brown—light, enticing. Served with butter and brown sugar, or syrup, or garnished with bacon or fresh sausage. Nothing just like these delicious food-morsels.

Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour is made with an old recipe—now the most famous recipe in the world. The ingredients are so deftly mixed as to make certain of light, easily digested pancakes, with the real pancake flavor everyone loves.

Simple to make, because Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour is ready-mixed. To one part of the flour add an equal part of milk, stir to a smooth batter, and pour on a moderately hot griddle or waffle iron.* If milk isn't handy water will do. Small pancakes are easiest to cook.

Get Aunt Jemima prepared Pancake Flour from your grocer today. It's economical; no waste—for you use only what you need.

*Note: Use a thick, cast iron or aluminum griddle when making pancakes as a thin frying pan of steel conducts the heat too rapidly for the best results. Cook with a moderate rather than a hot fire.

Some people prefer the Buckwheat flavor

Aunt Jemima prepared Buckwheat Flour is the Pancake Flour with Buckwheat Flour added. Nothing more pleasing than the appetising buckwheat aroma and the delightful buckwheat flavor. No other buckwheat pancakes can be so light. Keep both kinds on hand and have variety.

A BETTER PAPER FOR OUR READERS

IF YOU WERE ASKED, Mr. or Mrs. Reader, why thousands of community newspapers thrive all over this land, what would be your answer?

We'll tell you: Because these community newspapers publish news and information which their readers can get in no other way.

This news and information consists largely of "personal," social and local news items recording the joys, pleasures, sorrows, recreation, success and daily life of YOUR neighbors and friends—and OURS.

Oftentimes these news items are simple; sometimes almost "homely." They contribute nothing to the settlement of international problems, but, after all, while we are concerned about the affairs of our Province, Empire and the world, are we not MOST interested in the things nearer home?—the things that contribute to the smaller world of those whom the famous newspaper poet, Edgar A. Guest, calls "Just Folks."

Believing this to be true, we always have published as many news items as we could get about our home folks. We always have wanted to print MORE and we believe we have found the way to do it.

Beginning on Saturday, a score of girls and women started to write news for The Examiner. They will be paid for their efforts.

Remembering that YOU like to read NEWS ABOUT OTHERS, help these contestants all you can. Give them news about yourself and about your friends—that is, if it is clean, kind and wholesome news.

Remember that many of these contestants are daughters of some of your own friends. They will also profit by the training it will give them in their school work as it relates to English composition, spelling, etc.

Our chief purpose in this announcement is to ask YOU to HELP these contestants and to join with us in making one big family of friends and readers.

S.O.E. LODGES CONFER DEGREE

Lindsay and Peterborough Branches of Order Hold Joint Meeting.

BANQUET FOLLOWS.

In spite of the inclement weather a number of the Sons of England from Lindsay visited Lodge Lansdowne last night to take part in the exemplification of the White Rose Degree. The candidates were from Lindsay. The degree team, led by Bro. Fred Parsons, consisted of members of Lansdowne Lodge.

After the closing of the degree the company adjourned to the Paragon rooms, where Bro. Charlie Coleman had prepared a splendid menu for the banquet. After the banquet the toast to the King, proposed by Bro. A. Follis, was honored in the usual way by the singing of the National Anthem. A toast to "Our Society" was proposed by Bro. W. G. Shiner, who emphasized three of the cardinal principles of the society, A belief in the maintenance of social order and good government; a belief that the Protestant faith is an essential element for the upbuilding of a nation, and a belief in a sane reasoned patriotism that can admire the good in other nations as well as its own.

In replying to this toast Bro. B. Lemmon, the District Deputy Supreme Lodge officer, stressed the great need for building up the membership of the individual lodges, referring to the reports that were presented to the Supreme Lodge held at Ottawa last August which showed the western provinces gaining steadily in membership, but the eastern provinces not doing as well. The society is founded on sound principles and is financially in good condition. All that is needed is more members to enjoy these privileges.

The toast to "Our Visitors" was proposed by Bro. W. Gray, who welcomed the visitors and recalled the several occasions on which the two lodges have joined together for social purposes or at the annual church parade.

Bro. H. Cousins, President of Westminster Lodge, replied, thanking the members of Lansdowne Lodge for their hospitality and good cheer, and assuring them that they would receive a warm welcome at Lindsay any time the members could pay them a visit.

A toast to the caterer, Bro. C. Coleman, was proposed by Bro. Fred Parsons and responded to by Bro. Coleman singing two songs in his own inimitable way.

Two monologues by Bro. Caley of Lindsay, brought the social part of the evening to a close, and the singing of the National Anthem and Auld Lang Syne ended a very pleasant evening.

Toronto Trading Heavy; Listed Shares Feature

TORONTO, Nov. 16 (Canadian Press).— Strong upward movements in Brazilian, Steel of Canada, and City Dairy were features of this morning's session of the Toronto Stock Exchange when trade was much heavier in the regular stocks than formerly. Brazilian touched 209¼, less than a point from the record high, and at noon at 208 was 4½ points higher than yesterday. Steel of Canada gained about ten points at 183½ and the Preferred on one sale jumped from 170 to 180. City Dairy climbed 2¼ at 202½. International Nickel had a big turnover but was steady around 66¾.

The unlisted oils and liquors were either unchanged or slightly lower. British American Oil lost ⅝ at 35c, and Imperial was fractionally lower. Hiram Walker rights were traded in between 100 and 101, while both Walker and G. and W. eased fractionally.

Gains General To-day In Confused Market

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (Canadian Press).—Confused price movements continued in today's stock market with the day's advantage again resting on the side of those working for high prices. The selling pressure was directed chiefly against some of the pivotal industrials, such as United States Steel Common, General Motors, and American Can, and a few recently high-priced specialties such as American Tobacco. Commercial Solvents, and Warren Brothers. Dupont broke below 320 and then rallied to around 327, and Houston Oil shot up from 154½ to 160 in the early afternoon.

News From Argentine Sends Wheat Lower

CHICAGO, Nov. 16 (Canadian Press).—Responsive to an Argentine official crop report of pronounced bearish character, wheat values here underwent an early setback today. The report said the new wheat is in generally good condition and the actual damage insignificant. Opening unchanged to ½c off, wheat declined all around. Corn and oats turned easier with wheat, corn starting ⅛c lower to ⅜c up, and later showing a general drop. Provisions were firm.

Opening prices were: Wheat, December 128⅛, March 131¾. Corn, December 85⅞, March 89⅝. Oats, December 49⅛, March 51⅛.

Mine Trade Decreases And Prices Go Down

TORONTO, Nov. 16. — (Canadian Press).—With a substantial decrease from the past few days' record breaking trading, something of a reaction set in on the standard mining exchange to-day. Potter Doal sold down more than four points at 23¾, and losses of two points were shown by Columbus Kirkland, Howey Gold, Bidgood, Beaver and Barry Hollinger. Tough Oaks, Newbec and Jackson Manion were also lower. Laval Quebec sold up two at 37 and Teck Hughes was a feature with a climb of 23 cents at 11.10. Sales were 1,765,[illegible] shares.

MRS. ANNA DUNN IS 93 YEARS OLD

Charlotte Street Lady Still Takes Active Interest in Affairs of the Day.

EATS WELL; SLEEPS WELL.

"Grow old along with me, the best is yet to be. The last of life, for which the first was made."

To have mastered the art of growing old gracefully is to have learned a lot from life. To some age has been robbed of its real or fancied terrors and has taken on a quality of sweetness and ease that makes it a noble garment.

Anyone who knows Mrs. Anna Dunn, of 165 Charlotte Street, will agree that age, to her, means little. She has an active interest in the things of every day. Rosary in hand, she sits for hours during the day and evening watching the busy passers-by on Charlotte Street and taking in the many small happenings of a thronging thoroughfare. At ninety-three years of age, she looks out at the world without spectacles, unless she is reading, and her small hands are occupied with many things of profit.

Mrs. Dunn was born in Brockville, but she is probably the oldest resident of the city since the death recently of several of the senior members of the city's population. She has lived here for ninety consecutive years and can remember the time when Peterborough was composed mainly of forest, with one bright spot in the "lovely Otonabee," of which she speaks with enthusiasm.

On the ceuebration of Confederation this year, Mrs. Dunn watched the parade from George Street, with keen interest, but she seldom goes out now, although she has free use of her limbs and faculties with the exception of a slight deafness. A life of service to others in various ways still finds its outlet in the making of small garments for children and knitting woollen things. A little black sateen frock for a small girl, its very careful cutting and fashioning evident in its nice appearance when completed, its black and gold colorings bringing appreciative comment from observers, was finished yesterday by this old lady, whose hands knitted more than one hundred and fifty pairs of socks for the soldiers in war time, and did all the cutting for the garments made by the members of St. Peter's Patriotic Society in those years of conflict. For more years than can be remembered Mrs. Dunn was an energetic and active member of the sewing circle of St. Peter's that looks after the clothing wants of the children at St Vincent's Orphanage.

Mrs. Dunn eats well and sleeps well. She is fond of peppermints, and always has a supply on hand for herself and chance visitors. Her kindly and genial manner and her interest in things of the moment bring many feet to her door, for a chat with this old lady with white hair and dark eyes. Among these visitors some years ago was a Chinese laundryman who was very devoted to Mrs. Dunn. He admired intensely an oil painting of her, painted some twenty years ago by her niece, Miss Annie Simons, hanging on the wall of her home, and wished to take it back to China with him, to show to his mother.

Mrs. Dunn is a great advocate of The Examiner, and reads its columns with much interest, by the aid of a magnifying glass which brings to larger dimensions the bits of news that attract the notice of this kindly nonagenarian.

TURNED DOWN, WED ANOTHER SAME DAY

DENVER, Nov. 16. — Everything was all set for the wedding of William Jackson, who plays in a theater orchestra, and pretty Miss Irene Swim, member of the troupe at the theatre. But at the last minute Irene said: "I'm sorry Bill, but I can't marry you. I'm going home."

"Let's have a wedding of some kind, anyway," suggested the leading lady. Bill agreed, and although he had just returned from the marriage license bureau, he raced back again and got a license to marry Alice Clifford, 19, another member of the troupe.

Alice was to have been the bridesmaid under the original agreement, but she readily consented to take the leading role.

S.O.E. LODGES CONFER DEGREE

Lindsay and Peterborough Branches of Order Hold Joint Meeting.

BANQUET FOLLOWS.

In spite of the inclement weather a number of the Sons of England from Lindsay visited Lodge Lansdowne last night to take part in the exemplification of the White Rose Degree. The candidates were from Lindsay. The degree team, led by Bro. Fred Parsons, consisted of members of Lansdowne Lodge.

After the closing of the degree the company adjourned to the Paragon rooms, where Bro. Charlie Coleman had prepared a splendid menu for the banquet. After the banquet the toast to the King, proposed by Bro. A. Follis, was honored in the usual way by the singing of the National Anthem. A toast to "Our Society" was proposed by Bro. W. G. Shiner, who emphasized three of the cardinal principles of the society, A belief in the maintenance of social order and good government; a belief that the Protestant faith is an essential element for the upbuilding of a nation, and a belief in a sane reasoned patriotism that can admire the good in other nations as well as its own.

In replying to this toast Bro. B. Lemmon, the District Deputy Supreme Lodge officer, stressed the great need for building up the membership of the individual lodges, referring to the reports that were presented to the Supreme Lodge held at Ottawa last August which showed the western provinces gaining steadily in membership, but the eastern provinces not doing as well. The society is founded on sound principles and is financially in good condition. All that is needed is more members to enjoy these privileges.

The toast to "Our Visitors" was proposed by Bro. W. Gray, who welcomed the visitors and recalled the several occasions on which the two lodges have joined together for social purposes or at the annual church parade.

Bro. H. Cousins, President of Westminster Lodge, replied, thanking the members of Lansdowne Lodge for their hospitality and good cheer, and assuring them that they would receive a warm welcome at Lindsay any time the members could pay them a visit.

A toast to the caterer, Bro. C. Coleman, was proposed by Bro. Fred Parsons and responded to by Bro. Coleman singing two songs in his own inimitable way.

Two monologues by Bro. Caley of Lindsay, brought the social part of the evening to a close, and the singing of the National Anthem and Auld Lang Syne ended a very pleasant evening.

Toronto Trading Heavy; Listed Shares Feature

TORONTO, Nov. 16 (Canadian Press).— Strong upward movements in Brazilian, Steel of Canada, and City Dairy were features of this morning's session of the Toronto Stock Exchange when trade was much heavier in the regular stocks than formerly. Brazilian touched 209⅛, less than a point from the record high, and at noon at 208 was 4½ points higher than yesterday. Steel of Canada gained about ten points at 183½ and the Preferred on one sale jumped from 170 to 180. City Dairy climbed 2¼ at 202½. International Nickel had a big turnover but was steady around 66¾.

The unlisted oils and liquors were either unchanged or slightly lower. British American Oil lost ⅝ at 35c, and Imperial was fractionally lower. Hiram Walker rights were traded in between 100 and 101, while both Walker and G. and W. eased fractionally.

Gains General To-day In Confused Market

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (Canadian Press).—Confused price movements continued in today's stock market with the day's advantage again resting on the side of those working for high prices. The selling pressure was directed chiefly against some of the pivotal industrials, such as United States Steel Common, General Motors, and American Can, and a few recently high-priced specialties such as American Tobacco, Commercial Solvents, and Warren Brothers. Dupont broke below 320 and then rallied to around 327, and Houston Oil shot up from 154½ to 160 in the early afternoon.

News From Argentine Sends Wheat Lower

CHICAGO, Nov. 16 (Canadian Press).—Responsive to an Argentine official crop report of pronounced bearish character, wheat values here underwent an early setback today. The report said the new wheat is in generally good condition and the actual damage insignificant. Opening unchanged to ¼c off, wheat declined all around. Corn and oats turned easier with wheat, corn starting ⅛c lower to ⅝c up, and later showing a general drop. Provisions were firm.

Opening prices were: Wheat, December 128½, March 131⅝. Corn, December 85⅞, March 89⅝. Oats, December 49¼, March 51¼.

Mine Trade Decreases And Prices Go Down

TORONTO, Nov. 16. — (Canadian Press).—With a substantial decrease from the past few days' record breaking trading, something of a reaction set in on the standard mining exchange to-day. Potter Doal sold down more than four points at 22⅜, and losses of two points were shown by Columbus Kirkland, Howey Gold, Bidgood, Beaver and Barry Hollinger. Tough Oaks, Newbec and Jackson Manion were also lower. Laval Quebec sold up two at 37 and Teck Hughes was a feature with a climb of 23 cents at 11.10. Sales were 1,765,[illegible] shares.

MRS. ANNA DUNN IS 93 YEARS OLD

Charlotte Street Lady Still Takes Active Interest in Affairs of the Day.

EATS WELL; SLEEPS WELL.

"Grow old along with me, the best is yet to be. The last of life, for which the first was made."

To have mastered the art of growing old gracefully is to have learned a lot from life. To some age has been robbed of its real or fancied terrors and has taken on a quality of sweetness and ease that makes it a noble garment.

Anyone who knows Mrs. Anna Dunn, of 165 Charlotte Street, will agree that age, to her, means little. She has an active interest in the things of every day. Rosary in hand, she sits for hours during the day and evening watching the busy passers-by on Charlotte Street and taking in the many small happenings of a thronging thoroughfare. At ninety-three years of age, she looks out at the world without spectacles, unless she is reading, and her small hands are occupied with many things of profit.

Mrs. Dunn was born in Brockville, but she is probably the oldest resident of the city since the death recently of several of the senior members of the city's population. She has lived here for ninety consecutive years and can remember the time when Peterborough was composed mainly of forest, with one bright spot in the "lovely Otonabee," of which she speaks with enthusiasm.

On the celebration of Confederation this year, Mrs. Dunn watched the parade from George Street, with keen interest, but she seldom goes out now, although she has free use of her limbs and faculties with the exception of a slight deafness. A life of service to others in various ways still finds its outlet in the making of small garments for children and knitting woollen things. A little black sateen frock for a small girl, its very careful cutting and fashioning evident in its nice appearance when completed, its black and gold colorings bringing appreciative comment from observers, was finished yesterday by this old lady, whose hands knitted more than one hundred and fifty pairs of socks for the soldiers in war time, and did all the cutting for the garments made by the members of St. Peter's Patriotic Society in those years of conflict. For more years than can be remembered Mrs. Dunn was an energetic and active member of the sewing circle of St. Peter's that looks after the clothing wants of the children at St Vincent's Orphanage.

Mrs. Dunn eats well and sleeps well. She is fond of peppermints, and always has a supply on hand for herself and chance visitors. Her kindly and genial manner and her interest in things of the moment bring many feet to her door, for a chat with this old lady with white hair and dark eyes. Among these visitors some years ago was a Chinese laundryman who was very devoted to Mrs. Dunn. He admired intensely an oil painting of her, painted some twenty years ago by her niece, Miss Annie Simons, hanging on the wall of her home, and wished to take it back to China with him, to show to his mother.

Mrs. Dunn is a great advocate of The Examiner, and reads its columns with much interest, by the aid of a magnifying glass which brings to larger dimensions the bits of news that attract the notice of this kindly nonagenarian.

TURNED DOWN, WED ANOTHER SAME DAY

DENVER, Nov. 16. — Everything was all set for the wedding of William Jackson, who plays in a theater orchestra, and pretty Miss Irene Swim, member of the troupe at the theatre. But at the last minute Irene said: "I'm sorry Bill, but I can't marry you. I'm going home."

"Let's have a wedding of some kind, anyway," suggested the leading lady. Bill agreed, and although he had just returned from the marriage license bureau, he raced back again and got a license to marry Alice Clifford, 19, another member of the troupe.

Alice was to have been the bridesmaid under the original agreement, but she readily consented to take the leading role.

CHICKEN STEALING.

Although the Peterborough district has not suffered as severely in this respect as other sections of Ontario, there has been enough chicken stealing to make our farmers rejoice at the announcement from the Attorney-General of Ontario that the Federal Minister of Justice proposes to increase the penalties for this offence.

At present, unless the value of the birds stolen does not exceed $20, chicken stealing is punishable with a fine; it is proposed to provide for jail sentence henceforth in such cases.

In Western Ontario where poultry has been removed by the truck-load by motor thieves the need of more drastic legislation has long been recognized—in fact, the request for such action came in the first place from Hon. John S. Martin, the Provincial Minister of Agriculture, who is, of course, one of the best known poultry men on this Continent.

It is impossible to provide a rural police force large enough to adequately protect farmers from such thieving, and it is almost as impossible for the farmers to supply their own protection.

Stiffer penalties, it is hoped, will do something to discourage the wholesale theft of poultry, which represents in the case of many farmers a very heavy loss.

BETTER PICTURES.

So important a place have moving pictures assumed in every-day life, even among children of tender years, that it is with satisfaction The Examiner notes a very evident tendency among those concerned in the movie industry, whether as producers, distributors or exhibitors, to eliminate disagreeable features from the screen.

The recent trade practice conference of the motion picture industry, called by the United States Federal Trade Commission, spent much time in discussing this aspect of the industry.

Certain rules for the elimination of objectionable pictures were drawn up and agreed upon, the formula of the producers for rejecting salacious books and plays were approved.

A list of eleven subjects which may not be used in motion pictures was presented and endorsed by the conference, and a list of thirty-three subjects which must be carefully handled was also approved.

These are subjects which occasionally must be used for dramatic value and truth, but the director will be required to use good judgment in how they are used.

These important steps to secure clean pictures will, The Examiner is sure, be approved by the public, who should be interested in having good pictures changed into better ones and the vile, suggestive and debasing eliminated from the screen.

SAVED FROM THE PENITENTIARY.

The Examiner in calling attention several weeks ago to the case of two Lakefield youths sentenced to two years in penitentiary for burglary mentioned the instance of Cyril Bailey, a young Port Arthur sailor who was given a penitentiary sentence for escaping from the jail farm where his inability to pay a fine for drunkenness had caused him to be confined.

Both of these cases were pointed out as examples of sentences likely to make criminals out of the youths affected.

It is interesting to note, therefore, that the efforts made in his home city to secure the release of Bailey have been successful, and the Department of Justice has cancelled the balance of his sentence.

The majority of Canadians will approve of this action on the part of the department, feeling that the sentence originally imposed upon him was a travesty of justice.

The Examiner would be glad to learn that the Lakefield boys now in the penitentiary have received similar consideration from the Federal Department of Justice.

We maintain that the penitentiary is not the place for offenders of their calibre, and that the interests of justice would be served by their release from an institution where they are likely to be schooled in the ways of crime.

THE PROBLEM OF THE NEW CITIZEN.

The plea made by David M. Wright, of Stratford, the Governor of the 27th Rotary District, in his address to local Rotarians on Monday is one that well might be taken to heart, not only by members of service clubs, but by all Canadians.

There is a responsibility toward new citizens of this country that we have not always been ready to assume.

The assimilation of immigrants into the every-day life of Canada is a matter that should be of general interest, but too often we have been content to let these newly arrived Canadians fight their own battles, with little or no concern shown as to whether they succeed or not.

Mr. Wright has touched upon a real problem, and flung out a challenge that cannot be ignored.

There is much that might be done to make the path of new citizens more rosy, to remove some of the difficulties that their transplanting into new conditions has caused.

The sooner they become Canadians in their viewpoint, their manner of living and in other particulars, the better will it be, not only for the communities in which they have located, but for this country as a whole, and the task of giving them a better start in their new life should be willingly shared by all citizens.

UNIFORMITY IN RULES A NECESSITY.

The Department of Sighways in Ontario is making an effort to secure a standard of uniformity of traffic rules throughout Canada and the United States. For the past four years in dealing with the traffic problem, this paper has predicted that such uniformity will some day come to pass, because it is based on common sense. It may never reach such perfection that it will be known to an exact science what a woman driver contemplates doing when she sticks her hand out the car window, but standardized rules for all the States and Provinces will be a tremendous help in spreading general education among motorists and make that education of a practical nature.

It does not look as if Federal authority can be invoked to inaugurate a standard set of rules for every driver. It will come largely by the association of motor club memberships striving to secure an improvement in highway conditions. The Ontario department is merely providing a good lead and in time, State Legislatures which have passed many conflicting laws will tend to get together for uniformity.

A common set of rules governing speed, rules how to turn, when and where to stop and not to stop, traffic-light colors, the right-of-way of pedestrians on the country highways, and many other points could be taken care of. It is the day of long motor trips. This year we have witnessed many tourists, from as far as the Pacific Coast and the Florida everglades, not to mention the Middle West and the Mississippi States. It should not be necessary when a tourist crosses a boundary line to acquire a new set of rules for driving. There is also great diversity in cities, and the St. Catharines Traffic Commissioner will be well advised to follow the rule of city uniformity as much as possible, if things are to be more pleasant for those who arrive here.—St. Catharines Standard.

WINTER AIR MAILS.

The steady expansion of the air mail service being planned by the Post Office Department indicates very clearly that there is an earnest desire on the part of the Postmaster-General and his associates to accelerate the movement of the mails and at the same time to render encouragement to civil aviation in accordance with the policy which has been laid down and is being followed by the Department of National Defence, the Minister of which, Colonel the Hon. J. L. Ralston, is pursuing an energetic policy in this regard.

It is patent that the training of a larger number of civilian pilots, through air clubs and other agencies, can be of little use if pilots so qualified are given no opportunity to put their training into effect. If Canada is to develop what has been termed an "air sense," if civil aviation is to attain in this country the popularity that it has reached elsewhere, there must be more avenues of employment open to the pilots of the country, for aviation is still too expensive a business for the young man of average means to engage in without return and, in spite of a growing use of the airplane in forest protection, mapping and similar services, only a limited number of airmen can be accommodated in this connection.

The opening of the new air mail services under the direction of the Post Office Department is perhaps the best method that might be adopted to render encouragement to civil aviation. Great progress has been already made in this connection. Starting with a number of short lines operating in the northern parts of the country, where railways are still unknown and where the topography of the country furnishes a formidable barrier to the despatch of the mails by courier, the department has gradually extended the service to the older and better known parts of the country. The experiments which have been conducted in the forwarding of the mails to and from ocean liners in the Lower St. Lawrence have proved most satisfactory and have led the Post Office authorities to undertake other experiments. One of these will have to do with the despatch of mails to and from ocean liners docking at Halifax and St. John, the winter Atlantic ports, under which there is likely to be a marked saving of time in the delivery of European mail matter in such centres as Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto. There is also to be a twice-weekly service from Moncton, N. B., to the Magdalen Islands in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, while the north shore of the Lower St. Lawrence, heretofore served during the winter months by dog teams, will be accommodated by a weekly service from Rimouski. Finally, Pelee Island, in Lake Erie, is to receive its mails by air from the neighboring mainland.

Here is work for the Canadian flier which challenges the reputation for courage and resourcefulness which he gained during the Great War, when it was estimated that fully 50 per cent. of the Royal Flying Corps operating on the western front was composed of Canadians. Hitherto, flying in Canada has been very largely conducted during the summer months when weather is propitious and the risks are proportionately lessened. Attempting to operate regular mail services during the winter season, particularly in rather isolated sections of the country, will be a new undertaking calling for the exercise of considerable skill and hardihood and upon the success or failure of the experiments will largely rest the future of air mail transportation in this country. If those who accept contracts for the services in question demonstrate that the proposed schedules can be carried out under the trying weather conditions which are bound to prevail, there will be no obstacle to the further extension of the air mail service, ending eventually in the trans-continental line which Major-General MacBrien has predicted as a development within a few years' time.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Nov. 16 (Canadian Press).—A moderate amount of business was done by Montreal exporters yesterday in Manitoba grades of wheat with foreign buyers for shipment via the Coast, but the trade for shipment from the East was slow.

A feature of the local grain market was the demand from exporters for wheat late on Monday and sales of some 200,000 bushels of No. 3 Northern were made at 4 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg May option, c.i.f., Montreal. The only change in coarse grains was an advance of one cent per bushel in the price of No. 2 Canadian Western oats.

Owing to the continued strength in the Winnipeg cash wheat situation, the local flour market for Spring wheat grades was again stronger and millers announced another rise of ten cents per barrel. The demand was quiet. The undertone to the Winter wheat situation was also firm with a fair trade passing.

Prices for all lines of millfeed were advanced one dollar per ton which was attributed to the continued active demand from local and United States buyers. Tone of the market for standard grades of rolled oats was firm under a steady demand.

The export trade in Canadian baled hay was moderately active, but the local demand was dull and prices were unchanged.

There were no new developments in the local egg trade, prices for all grades being firmly maintained under a good demand. The receipts were 652 cases.

The trade in potatoes was moderate and the undertone was steady Sales of car lots of Prince Edward whites were made at $1.35 per bag of 90 pounds; New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.35 per bag in bulk, and Quebec varieties at $1.00 to $1.10 per bag in bulk.

The bean market was active and firm. Sales of car lots of choice white hand-picked on spot were made at $2.50 per bushel, and to arrive at $2.60 per bushel, ex-track, while broken lots sold at $2.75 per bushel, ex-store.

Only a small volume of business was done in butter, but prices were unchanged. The receipts were 63 packages.

The foreign demand for cheese continued good. The spot trade was fair, and prices were firm. The receipts were 4,582 boxes

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 16 (Canadian Press).—Corn as well as wheat scored a sharp advance in prices yesterday with gain holding better, however, for corn than for wheat.

Corn was in active speculative demand based on extreme scantiness of receipts, persistent adverse husking returns and on export buying. Wheat owed its strength largely to export sales totalling 1,000,000 bushels and to renewal of crop damage advices from Argentina.

Closing quotations on corn were strong 2¾c to 3⅛c net higher, with wheat 1¼ to 1½c up. Oats showing ⅝c to 1⅞ and 2c advance and provisions varying from 5 cents decline to a rise of 2½ and 5c.

The finish in the corn market was at the day's topmost level after a rapid advance on heavy general buying in which wheat traders took a conspicuous part. The recent bearish government crop report on corn was lost sight of, and attention turned toward the fact that only 63 cars of corn arrived in Chicago yesterday, that the corn belt weather was unfavorable and that country advices showed much smaller yields than in 1926 and less also than was looked for a short time back.

Aggressive buying of future deliveries of corn was especially stimulated as a result of a dearth of speculative offerings and owing to word that 70,000 bushels had been sold at the Gulf of Mexico to exporters at three cents over Chicago December f.o.b., with more being inquired for. Meanwhile, eastern cash demand for corn showed improvement and there was a forecast of rain or snow throughout the corn belt. Oats went up with corn.

Rust, frost and extreme hot weather were all reported as responsible for Argentine crop losses and it was noted that the rust damage advices came from a Chicago observer who has had thorough experience with rust. Other authorities, however, indicated that Argentine conditions were generally favorable, with the crop making good progress and rains occurring in the south, where wanted.

Provisions rallied from downturns at the start. Cash interests were purchasers of nearby deliveries.

DEEP WATER ROUTE RECEIVES SUPPORT

President of Great Lakes Harbor Association Announces Stand.

TORONTO, Nov. 16.—(Canadian Press).—"We support with enthusiasm and energy the deep water route to the sea," said William G. At the same time the Association believed the all Canadian route and all American route were in themselves visionary and impracticable.

WARSAW, Nov. 16.—The regular annual meeting of the U.F.O. will be held on Wednesday evening, Nov. 16.

Women's Institute.

The regular monthly meeting of the Warsaw Women's Institute was held in the Institute rooms on Thursday afternoon, with the President in the chair.

An item of new business was a request for children's clothing.

Mesdames George Taylor and Munro sang "Sweet Rose of Sharon."

There was a roll call, answered by suggestions for the next six months' program. Among them were grandmothers' day, extra music, lessons in sewing, planning community games, etc.

Among the questions asked was how to prevent and cure hacked hands. Drying the hands thoroughly and avoiding extremes of heat and cold help prevent. To drop in warm sealing wax helps cure, and mutton tallow is good to use. Electricity on the farm was mentioned. The longed-for community hall was mentioned, and it was suggested that there could surely be something done to the cook shed. It is cold and dirty as well as unsanitary, and it was suggested that it might be well to have the Health Officer examine the only place provided for serving food.

It was decided to have a domestic science and cooking class this winter.

At the close a social half-hour was spent.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Joy, who had been playing with Hope while Cherry dressed for dinner, appeared in the dining room with her sister while Bob was drawing out Faith's chair for her, and it was Joy who first noted the amazing fact that the new maid-of-all-work had taken her place at table with the family.

"Oh!" Joy squealed. "Is Rhoda going to——"

"Joy!" Bob broke in swiftly, loudly. "Go right back to your room and comb your hair. It's strange that you have to be reminded before every meal."

"Attaboy, Bob! Tear into her! Assert yourself!" Cherry applauded him flippantly. Then her eyes fell upon Rhoda, sitting at the table. "Well, for heaven's sake! Faith, have you gone stark, staring mad! What do you mean——?"

But before Cherry had an opportunity to finish her indignant sentence Bob had sprung from his seat and was striding toward her, his face grim, his blue eyes flashing a warning which served to check his sister-in-law until he reached her side and drew her forcibly out into the hall, closing the door after the two of them.

What Bob said to Cherry Faith could not imagine, but within a minute they returned, Cherry looking sulky and rebellious, one of her small, perfectly kept hands rubbing her shoulder resentfully. But she took her seat at the table without a word. When Rhoda's peculiarly musical voice asked her timidly if she would have bread, she refused curtly, her golden eyes raking the genuinely bewildered "maid" with a fire that should have scorched Rhoda's creamy, pink-flushed cheeks.

"Tell us about yourself, Rhoda," Bob encouraged the girl. "Mrs. Hathaway tells me you're from Minnesota. Are you an orphan?"

"Yes, sir," Rhoda answered eagerly. "Pop—my father, I mean—died last winter of pneumonia, and my mother has been de ad for five years, ever since I was twelve. I'm seventeen now. I kept house for my brother and father after Mama died. That's how I happen to know how to cook so good," she added ingenuously.

"You lived on a farm?" Bob persisted gently.

"Oh, yes, sir!" Rhoda assented, but her turquoise eyes clouded a bit. "We have a big farm in Minnesota, but it got awful lonesome for me, and when Pop's sister, my Aunt Hulda, come to live with Nils and me and wouldn't let me have my own way in the kitchen any more, I got terrible dissatisfied. I always wanted to see what a big city was like, so I run away from the farm and come here to live with my aunt—my mother's sister, she was. She died last week, and I didn't know what to do——"

"And your brother Nils?" Bob probed, still in a gentle, considerate voice. "Did he let you go out into the world alone? Does he know your aunt is dead?"

"—I don't know," Rhoda faltered, answering his last question first. "He was always awful mad when I said I wanted to leave the farm. He's crazy about it. He went to college to learn all about farming—scientific farming, but he didn't want me to go to college. He says a woman's place is in the home," she added forlornly. "But Nils is terrible sweet when he's not mad. I—I'm awful crazy about him. He may come here looking for me," she added honestly. "But I don't want to go back, while Aunt Hulda's there. You won't let him make me go, will you?" she pleaded.

THE TRIALS OF MARY.

Play at George Street Sunday School is Well Received.

A large and appreciative audience greeted the presentation of the four-act play, "The Trials of Mary," under the auspices of the C.G.I.T. in the Sunday School Hall of the George Street United Church last evening.

The parts were all well taken, and interest was sustained throughout.

The scene was laid in the office sitting-room of the Fairview School, with Miss Lavinia Elder as principal and Mr. William Foster her able assistant, the plot revolving around the arrival of a new girl, the jealousy of one of her companions who made things particularly unpleasant for the new-comer, the staunch friendship of one of the girls, the gallant support of the boys of the school, and her final vindication.

The play was bubbling over with humor, but at the same time contained a moral which was especially emphasized in the trial scene of the last act.

Dr. Middleton acted as chairman in his usual happy manner.

The opening chorus, "Follow the Gleam," was well rendered by the girls in the cast. Between the acts, a number of recitations were given, the first by little Ruth McNeely, who charmingly responded to a well-deserved encore.

Miss Irene Cox was well received in Pauline Johnson's "The Cattle Thief," and gave as an encore, "The Romance of a Rose."

Mrs Eva Outram, always a popular entertainer, recited "Exercises and Recipes," gracefully responding to an encore.

At the conclusion of the play, beautiful bouquets of roses were presented to Miss Myra Baird and Miss Spencely, who were responsible for training the girls and boys taking part. Refreshments were served later to the members of the cast.

The principal roles were:
Miss Mary Dean—Irene Cox.
Lavinia Elder—Gertrude Butcher.
Miss Lolo Wallace—Jessie Irwin.
Miss Maud Reilly—Olive Elcome.
William Foster—Albert Delahaye.
Jack Harvey—Walter Outram.
Nick Bowser—Claire Northey.
Isaac—Jack Pritchard.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

For the woman who wears black is this frock of black broadcloth trimmed with bands of the material and a gun-metal buckle and a black fur collar, worn with felt hat and suede shoes. For mourning wear the bow on the fur collar may be of black crape with crape trimming on the felt hat.

Once donned with the object of economy, durability—now chosen because of its possibilities of great smartness.

Once the emblem of mourning and lost hopes—now often worn on gala occasions and in joyous moods.

Once usually found in stuffy, heavy materials—now given a charm all its own in chiffon and transparent velvets, in georgette, supple broadcloth, and lovely lace.

To say that a woman was wearing black was once synonymous with saying that she was wearing mourning, and to say she was wearing mourning meant that her clothes were heavy, gloomy and depressing. Now a very large number of women do not change the color of their raiment at all as a sign of bereavement. When they do custom no longer demands clothes of a lugubrious cut, material and general appearance.

And since so many well-dressed women appear in black simply as a matter of smartness, the woman who is wearing it as a matter of mourning is fortunately very much less conspicuous than she used to be. In this country at least there is something a little offensive in mourning apparel that makes a woman look really eccentric in a group of other women.

All black coats have rather unexpectedly become extremely smart in Paris. They are of broadtail cloth trimmed with lynx, of pliant broadcloth trimmed with black astrakan or Persian lamb.

For afternoon wear there is a decided vogue for black transparent velvet which adds tenfold to its becomingness when worn with cream-colored lace.

The woman who wears black for mourning of course avoids the cream-colored lace. Instead of white or cream-colored gloves which usually are worn with black she wears gloves of black suede. She chooses fairly transparent black stockings or those of dark gunmetal. Shoes are preferably of dull kid or suede—but these may also be worn with any smart black costume. For deep mourning there may be a bit of crape by way of trimming, but the wide bands of crape though still seen in France are seldom adopted here.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1927

Astrologers read this as an unfavorable planetary rule under which to buy or speculate.

The date is one for steady work that permits no chance to risk money. Routine duties should be followed.

While this planetary government prevails women will do well to confine their efforts to personal affairs and to avoid public work.

All the stars appear to frown upon women in politics, except as campaign helpers.

Although women probably will initiate reform movements and will attain more or less success they may not expect personal victory this autumn, astrologers foretell.

Arrogance and egotism are supposed to increase under this direction of the stars and for that reason it is not a lucky day for any sort of dealing with persons who represent extreme success.

Both men and women desiring employment should hesitate about trying their luck in seeking positions.

There is a sign that presages irritability and a tendency to quarrel, when the stars are posited as they are in this configuration.

The sign is menacing where sports are concerned and are read as forecasting unexpected results on the football field.

Again the stars frown on the signing of contracts or leases. There is a forbidding aspect for financial settlements.

Under this sway the temptation to spend instead of to save may be strong, and many may experience discomfort because of light purses.

Women may be peculiarly susceptible to the lure of extravagant dress and will be wise to postpone shopping expeditions.

Persons whose birthdate it is may expect changes that may have the appearance of reverses, but they will enjoy average success in the coming year.

Children born on this day will prosper all through life for they are likely to be wisely thrifty.

THINK WOLVES KILLED SHEEP

Officials of Guelph Township Offer Reward For Slaying of Marauder.

35 SHEEP KILLED.

GUELPH, Ont., Nov. 16.—Forcing their way into a pen, dogs Monday night caused the worst slaughter of sheep that has yet been reported in this district, killing four valuable animals owned by William and Roy McCartney, Guelph Township, and so badly injuring four others that they will have to be destroyed. The remainder of a flock of fourteen were more or less worried.

The dogs had evidently opened the door of the pen and dragged the frightened animals into the open. The four dead sheep were outside of the enclosure and were in various parts of the farm. Township officials who visited the scene of the carnage yesterday morning declared that it looked more like the work of a wolf than a dog.

During the last three weeks over thirty-five sheep, all valuable animals, have been killed. The township authorities have offered a substantial reward for the destruction of the maurauders, and the efforts of farmers are being redoubled for the protection of their stock.

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND ON BEACH

Hunter Stumbles Over Remains, Ending All-Day Search.

BOWMANVILLE, Ont., Nov. 16.—The body of Winnie May Ward, 26, was found here at 5 o'clock yesterday evening on the shore of Lake Ontario, near a place known locally as Third Marsh. The body was half-covered with gravel and sand, evidently from the action of the waves on the beach. The dead woman had been missing from her place of employment since Sunday night, when she left to attend the evening service of Trinity United Church. She was employed as a domestic in the home of Ross Stephens, a dairy farmer, who lives about a mile from town.

John Lunney, who was hunting in the district, stumbled over the body and reported his find to Frank Morris, the local undertaker. Mr. Morris reported to the Chief of Police, and the search which began yesterday morning was ended. Coroner Dr. A. F. Tilley viewed the body, and it was decided that the preliminary inquest would be held Tuesday morning. It was then to be adjourned until the last of November.

BREWERY OBTAINS LICENSE RENEWAL

Reinhart Company, Suspended Some Time Ago, is Reinstated.

TORONTO, Nov. 16.—(Canadian Press).—The license of the Reinhardt Brewery Company has been renewed on application of the brewery, D. B. Hanna, Chairman of the Ontario Liquor Board, announced yesterday. The license had been suspended some months ago for what the Commission described as "flagrant bootlegging." "Definite representations have been made to the Board that the brewery will comply carefully with the law and regulations", Mr. Hanna said.

FIVE ARRESTED HAD REVOLVERS

Toronto Police Also Find Burglars' Tools in Automobile.

SEEK IDENTIFICATION.

TORONTO, Nov. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Loaded revolvers and a number of burglars' tools were found in a motor car chased by police who early yesterday responded to information that a fight was in progress at an Edna avenue address. The officers found a motor car leaving the house and when they stopped it arrested its four occupants, two of whom attempted to escape. A fifth man was arrested at a house visited by the car. The five are held on a nominal charge of vagrancy. The staff of a branch bank recently held up here and the manager of a chain store who was robbed of $2,500 two days ago were asked to look over the prisoners.

Hypnotized By Water Under Balcony Seventeen Women Plunge to Death

BUDAPEST, Nov. 16.—Seventeen suicides in a night club have caused the municipal authorities to start an investigation. The club had a balcony which looks out upon the Danube. It was from this balcony that 17 persons, all women, jumped to their death in the water.

Having hidden himself behind a screen, an investigator noticed a young woman, in company with an army officer, become nervous and stare with wide eyes at the water. Just as she jumped up with the apparent intention of throwing herself over the railing, the investigator and her escort managed to seize her. After she had recovered her wits, the girl said that a sudden overwhelming urge had come over her to rush forward and clear the balustrade.

P.A.T.A. DISBANDING.

Manufacturers Give Notice of Withdrawal From Drug Combine.

OTTAWA, Nov. 16.— (Canadian Press). — The Proprietory Articles Trade Association, found to be a combine of druggists under the Combines Investigation Act, may disband shortly. While the Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Labor, had no statement to make to-day on the case, he admitted that a number of manufacturers who had had membership in the P.A.T.A. had notified him of their resignation from the Association.

A recent report from Montreal stated that the members of the manufacturers section of the P.A.T.A. had voted almost unanimously against any attempt to continue the activities in view of the adverse finding of Commissioner L. V. O'Connor. It is rumored here that the wholesale and retail druggists connected with P.A.T.A. may take a similar course.

12-YEAR-OLD BOY SELLER OF LIQUOR

Convicted On Evidence of Companions—Buyer Committed Suicide.

MAGISTRATE SHOCKED.

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 16.—On evidence given by five of his companions ranging in age from 12 to 15 years, a 12-year-old boy was yesterday convicted of selling liquor by Magistrate Maxwell in County Court. The lad, witnesses stated, sold liquor to a 16-year-old Port Burwell High School pupil, who afterwards leaped to his death from a bridge into Otter Creek while intoxicated.

Magistrate Maxwell said he was astounded at the awful conditions existing in Port Burwell. He reserved decision as to what action would be taken.

The father of the convicted lad testified that liquor could be found all over the village; that bottles of "pine knot" whiskey could be picked up any day between the boards of the lumber piles.

WINNIPEG WHEAT

WINNIPEG, Nov. 16 (Canadian Press).—Aggressive support from continental buyers gave wheat values a sharp upward lift on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday.

A good supply which was dumped into the pit in the early stages of the season was quickly absorbed and the activity was sustained until the close. Final quotations reflected net gains of 1⅛ to 1¼c.

Coarse grains also encountered fair foreign demand, barley particularly finding an easy outlet. Prices for these commodities were substantially higher.

A gift of a dozen silver tea spoons (old Colony pattern) for Mrs. Dunford and amber pipe with silver ferule for Mr. Dunford were presented on behalf of the family including Mr. Dunford's mother, and Mrs. Dunford's sister, Mrs. Walton

The accompanying address was read by Miss Ethel Dunford while Misses Keitha and Flora Dunford presented the spoons and a tray and Miss Jean Frankish presented the pipe. These young people are grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Dunford. Despite their genuine surprise, the couple thanked their family in a suitable manner.

The evening was spent in music and games. Refreshments were served.

The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion made last week a week of remembrance and request donations of fruit and pickles, etc. for the Soldiers' Hospital at Christie Street, Toronto. These donations are being left with Mrs. Marling, Regent Street and Mrs. Leonard, Queen Street.

Man Fined For Driving Broken-Legged Horse

HAMILTON, Nov. 16.—(Canadian Press).—John Evaskin was fined ten dollars by Magistrate Jelfs in police court yesterday for driving a horse which had a broken leg. Citizens noticing the man thrashing the horse called an inspector of the S.P.C.A., who found that one leg was swinging loosely from the shoulder, so badly broken that he at once ordered the animal destroyed.

and still there was left over a surplus quantity to provide for another repast.

A well balanced program of speech and song, music and mirth, held those who packed the church auditorium in the grip of avid interest. Not a draggy moment was experienced and all those who aided in the program were given rapt attention and well earned applause.

Preceding the speeches the orchestra played a splendid overture. Especially fine was the playing of Cecil Searles, violinist; Albert Hazel, at the piano, proved to be an able leader. E. C. Dolman, trombonist, George Frederick, at the traps, and Ronald Hazel, second violin, all did their share in making the orchestra numbers a success.

The Rev. E. Harston, pastor of the church, proved to be a past master in the role of chairman. His ready wit and genial manner were even more pronounced than usual. In his opening remarks he commented on the rather peculiar circumstance whereby all the Protestant ministers in Campbellford were young men. He wondered if the community should be considered fortunate or otherwise in this respect, there being no older clergymen to guide or advise them in times of stress. However, he pointed out that young men are not apt to quarrel as much or so bitterly as the older men. Suppose they did have differences, the spirit of youth is more easily reconciled. Taking everything in, the pro and con of the question, it seemed as though youth would manage quite nicely. At least ever since his advent here, he had been on the friendliest terms with his fellow clergymen and he felt confident that the future held even further promise of mutual understanding and whole hearted co-operation.

Mr. Harston then intimated that the ministers present should express the greetings of their various congregations. One and all voiced their deep appreciation for the kind invitation to be present and extended the friendly greetings of their pastorates.

The Rev. Mr. Smith, from the Baptist Church, spoke in a humorous strain. Referring to the diners, he said that it was a wonderful thing to see so many people doing the same thing at the same time and all doing it so well.

A song by the choir was followed by a recitation on "Earthenware," ably given by Mrs. J. H. Bell. In her apt comparison of man with earthenware creations, there was a good deal more truth than appeared on superficial contemplation. Her second number was an inspirational poem which illustrated the saying that "obstacles to the great are stepping stones to success."

A violin duet by Masters Ronald and Donald Richardson evoked considerable applause.

The delightful quartette by Miss Cherrie Turner, Miss Irene Stephens, George Lucy and W. Henson was well received.

The Rev. Clarke Wallace, Anglican rector, was given a hearty reception as this was his first public appearance since his return from England, where he and Mrs. Wallace have been on their honeymoon trip. Mr. Wallace came back with a very bright and encouraging report of England and her future, which in view of the troublesome times she has been experiencing of late, was very glad news to all.

In part he expressed himself thus: "I have just come from the greatest country in the world. I don't know of any other country which has done, or is doing, such great things and solving such difficult and tremendous problems, both in Church and State. With their usual indomitable will the people of England are steadily plodding ahead and simply seem to refuse to have anything go radically wrong."

Dorothy Henson and Nellie Hays then favored the audience with a piano duet.

A reading by Miss Rita Palliser greatly amused the youngsters, nor were their elders beyond breaking into involuntary smiles as Miss Palliser presented her interpretation of the reading examination as told by Ralph Connor in his "Glengarry School Days."

Introducing Captain McMillan, of the Salvation Army, the chairman graphically portrayed the great work done overseas by the Salvation Army. It was, he claimed, the organization over there most appreciated by the soldiers.

Captain McMillan captured the ears of his listeners by a new Scotch joke. The captain is of Scottish descent and feeling that he must redeem certain of the prestige lost to Scotland through disparaging points, he described the great aid that country had been to Col. C. A. Lindbergh on his famous flight.

The vibration of the engine, during the trip over the ocean, had loosened some of the nuts in the machine which might eventually have ended in disaster. However, when flying over Scotland all the loose nuts were tightened up and the flight was completed in safety.

Speaking in a serious vein, Captain McMillan reverted his thoughts to the time of the war. Then the Salvation Army gave away a number of things free. It is impossible to do that now with one exception, and that the best of all—the Gosepl.

He stressed the wonderful results that could come through the strength of unity. In Campbellford there is more unity among the clergy than in most places. Such a state of affairs is both admirable and significant, and if more universal it would mean that the greatest of all gifts, the spreading of the Truth, would be greatly facilitated and a united Christendon immeasurably hastened.

George Lucy sang, by request, "Friend of Mine." His excellent tenor voice literally permeated the atmosphere with expression.

Unfortunately the Rev. C. H. Daniels was unable to appear. The chairman quietened the fear that he might be in the "lion's den," as he had been authentically informed that Mr. Daniels was acting as dean in a short school course in religious education.

The concluding number of the program was that rare exhibition of a pianoforte trio. As Mr. Harston remarked, few had ever seen or heard one before, and were markedly pleased with the splendid way in which the number was rendered by Miss Cherrie Turner, Miss Irene Stephens, and Albert Hazel. The trio were enthusiastically encored.

Following the National Anthem the joyous, contented throng made its way to the street. Even a heavy downpour of rain failed to diminish by so much as one iota the concensus of opinion which said "Amen" to the best supper and most interesting program that had ever provoked peals of laughter and presented such talented, amateur entertainers in Campbellford under church auspices.

The Libau-Gluda railway line in Latvia, which is being pushed to completion, will form a new link between the hinterland of Soviet Russia and the Baltic Sea.

Fortify Yourself Against Colds!

Toronto, Ont.—"I would have a spell of sore throat a couple of times every year, especially in the winter, and it would be a couple of months each time before I would fully recover and get my voice back. I doctored and took medicine with little relief until I began taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it has so completely relieved me of this trouble that I scarcely ever have a sore throat or suffer in any way from my former trouble. It has been worth its weight in gold to me."—Mrs. A. McDonald, 28 McMurrich St.

The Importance of Being Well Knickered!

IN these brisk days, the adequacy of the garment beneath the skirt takes on a fresh importance. Formerly, unrumpled frills, lace or starched, were essential. In our busy times Milady has no leisure to expend in tussles with frills and an iron. Her lingerie must be beautiful, but tailored to a trimness that is almost severe. It must be a perfect fit so as to make a smooth, imperceptible basis for the gown. Moreover, it must wash, be quick to don and suitable to the occasion.

LAVENDER LINE knickers are all this. For, besides a choice of myriad colours, and the lustre of all, there are three knickers especially made for modern modes. The STRIDE knicker is a long, easy-fitting design for street wear. The DEB comes well above the briefest skirt, while the DANCE with its girdle, hem and garter-hems, rests under the filmiest dance frock without a ripple.

These knickers, and many other delightful LAVENDER LINE under-garments, await you in Canada's smart shops. Finding the LAVENDER LINE shop in your vicinity will be worth your while.

Famous Kings

THE defeat and death of Harold the last of the Saxon Kings, at the battle of Hastings placed the Norman William on the English throne. No event in history has left a deeper or more lasting impression on the language, laws and customs of England.

WILLIAM ruled with an iron hand and repressed with the utmost severity the many rebellions that broke out. He was feared and hated, yet England advanced and prospered under his sway and for the first time in her history became a really united and powerful nation.

Maroons Defeat Senators 2-1 In Opening Tilt

LEAFS LOSE FIRST GAME OF SEASON

New York Rangers Score a 4 to 2 Victory at Toronto Arena.

OTTAWA LOSES.

Maroons, Les Canadiens and Detroit Win Opening Games.

TORONTO, November 16. — Too much "Ching" Johnson spoiled the opening N.H.L. festivities at the Arena Gardens last night before a crowd that comfortably filled the seating capacity of the building .The husky New York Ranger defence veteran with the bald pate, was the most effective player the Toronto team had to contend with, and his work played an important part in the defeat of the home hopes. The Rangers emerged victorious by 4 to 2. and Johnson scored two ,and figured in a third goal for his team.

As an opening night exhibition of hockey, it left nothing to be desired except a victory for Toronto. The mild, wet weather did not dampen the enthusiasm of the crowd, and the attendance was, no doubt, gratifying to the local management. The Hon. W. D. Ross, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, and his party were present, and the Lieutenant-Governor performed the opening night face-off ceremonies

Misty Atmosphere.

The warm weather affected the thin sheet of ice so that clouds of misty vapor hung low over the playing surface and obscured ,at times, the goalkeepers at the respective ends of the rink. However, the fog was not responsible for any of the goals, though both teams attempted lifting drives from centre ice in an effort to sneak a tally in under cover of the misty blanket.

While the Rangers were victorious, they suffered a severe loss in an accident to "Taffey" Abel, stocky defence mate of Johnson. Abel broke a bone in his wrist following a tumble early in the first period, and he was removed to St. Michael's Hospital at the first intermission. The injury will keep Abel out of the game for some weeks.

Lorne Chabot, former Port Arthur Allan Cup star, was another obstacle in the path of a Toronto victory, Chabot fog-enshrouded or not, proved a formidable barrier to the Maple Leafs' attempts to pierce his guard. The Toronto players were inaccurate in their shooting, but when the puck did come flying netward, it was ably handled by the Thunder Bay resident.

Maroons 2 Ottawa 1.

OTTAWA, Nov. 16.—The maroon-clad clan of Montreal dented the world's championship silverware of Ottawa with a 2 to 1 defeat in the opening tussle of the National Hockey League here last night. A goal by "Red" Dutton, lanky rearguard, two minutes after the final period opened, won the game for the visitors by breaking a one-all tie that had existed since the first period.

For the initial engagement of the schedule, the match sparkled with speed in the first two frames.

Both teams were early on the attack and each showed a close-passing combination that was spectacular.

Nels. Stewart gave Gerard's team an early jump by netting from a scramble in front of the Ottawa cage less than a minute after the fray had opened. The locals' tying counter came off the stick of Capt. George Boucher in the middle of the session.

Standing out in the performance of the champions was the speed and neat stickwork of the rejuvenated forward line of Nighbor, Kilrea and Finnigan.

The game was marked throughout by the heavy body-checking of both teams which had players sprawling on the ice almost continuously.

A capacity crowd of some 8,500 attended the game.

DETROIT 6, PITTSBURGH 0.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 16.— Detroit sent Pittsburgh down to an overwhelming defeat, 6 to 0, in the opening game of the National Hockey League season here last night. The score does not indicate how fiercely fought the encounter was.

After a goalless first period, Detroit scored one goal in the second. Five more came across in the last period, when the Pittsburgh defense fell to pieces. Hay scored two of the visitors' tallies.

BOSTON 1, CHICAGO 1.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 6.— Boston and Chicago opened the National Hockey League season here last night with a 1 to 1 tie score, which ten minhtes of overtime failed to break. Neither team was in the best of condition. Team play was rather ragged, and 15 penalties were handed out.

The visitor held the locals even for the first two periods, each goaler turning in 20 stops, but tired under the rugegd Boston style of body play, and withdrew to a purely defensive game in the last stanza and the two five-minute overtime periods.

Chicago scored in the opening period, when Nick Irvan, one of the league's high scorers last year, caged the disc with Lionel Hitchman, Boston defence man, was in the penalty coop. Dit Clapper, a new recruit in the Boston ranks, evened the count in the second period, while two Bostonians and one Chicago player were in temporary banishment.

Canadians 6; N. Y. Americans 1.

MADISON SQUARE, New York, November 16. — Between seventeen and eighteen thousand people saw Les Canadiens of Montreal walk away with the opening National Hockey League game here last night by a score of 6 to 1. The game was fast and furious, despite a high temperature and sticky ice surface.

Art Gagne was in fine scoring fettle, scoring three goals, and Howie Morenz notched two before he was forced to retire with an injured kidney. Lafrance making his N.H.L. debut, scored the sixth.

Norman Hines saved the star-spangled team from a shut out in the second period. Gagne, Morenz, and Lafrance gave Canadiens a 3-0 lead at the end of the first period, and Morenz got the second in the next session, when Hines and Gagne also scored. Gagne got the third in the final period. All the goals were on individual plays but on the night's performance Canadiens outshone the Americans in combination efforts.

Three major penalties were meted out, Leo Reise getting five minutes for slashing, and Clarence Boucher and Art Leduc one each for a mild display of fisticuffs near the end of the play, indicating that the officials are going to watch rough work closely this season.

Besides Morenz, the Americans' centre player, Billy Burch was forced to retire from the game. He suffered an injury to his knee.

O.H.A. CHATTER

The O.H.A. annual convention will be held at 10 o'clock on Saturday morning. There is very little matter of a contentious nature to come before the meeting. The delegates will be guests of Arena Gardens and the Maple Leaf Hockey Club at the pro hockey game between the Leafs and Chicago at the Arena in the evening. President Geo. B. McKay and other senior officers have been re-elected by acclamation, but there will be a contest for the executive committee with four of the seven delegates to be elected.

Seniors on November 26

The first senior S.P.A. game will be played at the Arena Gardens on Saturday evening, November 26, and fans will better understand that the senior series will also be productive of high-time talent. The Parkdale Canoe Club team, winners of the trophy last year, are expected to put up a mighty smart team out on the ice in defense of the silverware.

There will be some other powerful senior clubs seeking the senior S.P.A. title. Marlboros, the other local favorite, have already an exceptionally strong senior team lined up while Preston, Galt, and Kitchener fans will have their hockey players in the series.

QUEEN'S RESUME HEAVY PRACTICE

Prepare for Game With Tigers in Dominion Semi-Finals.

KINGSTON, Ont., Nov. 16 (Canadian Press).—Minus their star half, Harry Batstone, Queen's Seniors, champions of the inter-collegiate union, resumed their heavy practices at the Richardson Stadium yesterday afternoon in preparation for their big game on Saturday with the Tigers in the Dominion semi-finals. The players were again sent through heavy linework such as prevailed all last week, and while they were slow in getting started, after their gruelling game of Saturday, they stepped fast, despite a muddy and slippery field.

Batstone was not even in uniform, and while his injured knee is improving, it is by no means certain that he will be ready for Saturday. Even if he is, he will not be as effective as he was against Varsity and in other games.

All players were on the field yesterday, and none of them reported any bad effects from Saturday's game. Captain Howard was among the first on the field, and did most of the ball carrying against the "ineligibles."

The seat sale for the game has been tremendous and yesterday there was a continual stream at the athletic board office. Several hundred seats in the bleachers still remain but these will be taken up today, it is expected, and, in anticipation of a bigger crowd than in the McGill game, additional seats on the track have been arranged.

Continued rain all Monday night and yesterday morning, put the field in the worst condition it has been this week, but with the return of better weather, it is expected that a dry field will be ready for the semi-finalists on Saturday.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

Editor, Examiner.

Sir,—Wishing to convey my sincere thanks through The Examiner to the Ladies' Aid of Mark Street United Church, individually and collectively, for their "gift of remembrance," a beautiful black onyx and brilliant bar pin, accompanied by an address. The gift is beautiful, but to me the spirit which prompted this act of kindness is far more so, and, personally, I did so little in the few months I was connected with that church (less than 14 months) to merit such a gift. I was drawn to the little church by the friendly spirit which prevails. Also the splendid pastors, past and present, the Rev. R. T. Richards and the Rev. A. E. Thornley, and in leaving have carried away very pleasant memories. I earnestly hope all the United Churches in that city will assist them in their splendid efforts to erect a new church, which is so badly needed. I wish also to thank the president of the W.C.T.U. (Mrs. Throop) for the letter and pin.

SECURE FULL CLUB CONTROL

Cleveland Business Men Take Over Controlling Interest of Indians.

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Alva Bradley announced late yesterday he had received a long distance telephone call from E. S. Barnard, president of the American Baseball League, at Chicago, saying he had secured from W. J. Garvey, Chicago, 156 shares of stock in the Cleveland baseball club, thus closing the deal whereby Cleveland financiers secure full control of the local American League Club.

The Cleveland financiers who secure control of the club are Mr. Bradley, his brother Charles, John Sherwin, Sr., and Percy Morgan.

The deal has been hanging fire for several months, the Cleveland men being unable to purchase the shares from Garvey at a price which they thought reasonable.

Barnard who was president of the Cleveland club until named head of the American League, succeeding Ban Johnson, acted as agent for the Cleveland men. The new owners will take immediate possession of the club. They announced they would launch plans for rehabilitation of the roster.

Sale of the Cleveland Indians ends the ownership of the Dunn family that started with purchase of the team by the late James C. Dunn from Charles Somers in 1916.

The price of the franchise while not made public, was reported to have been around $950,000.

Alva Bradley is salted to become president of the club.

The new owners announced last night their first move would be to secure a new manager to succeed Jack McCallister. Tris Speaker has been mentioned for the job, but Bradley intimated that the men he has in mind has never been connected with the club.

Well informed circles here have it that Eddie Collins, now the Philadelphia Athletics and former manager of the Chicago White Sox, and Arthur Fletcher, former short stop for the New York Giants in their pennant winning days of 1911, 1912 and 1913 and later manager of the Philadelphia National, were being considered for the managership.

ADVISORY COUNCIL CONCLUDE SESSION

Make Out 18 Proposed Amendments to Big League Procedure.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—(Canadian Press).—The rejuvenated advisory council of major league baseball ended a two-day session last night, handing out copies of 18 proposed amendments to big league procedure. All related to the administrative end of the game, and none to the playing rules.

"Since the supply of skilled players is not equal to the demand," begins one amendment, no club shall have under its control, in any manner, more than 40 players at any time.

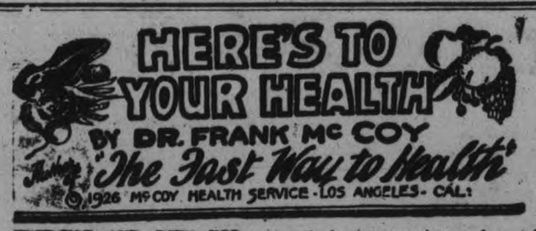
The draft problem was referred to in several of the new rules, which will be submitted to the joint session of the major league December 15 at New York. None of the amendments mentioning the draft indicated any change in the selection process by which the majors lay claim to minor league players in those circuits which permit the drafting.

Accompanying the copies of the rules, Commissioner Landis issued the formal call for the joint meeting in New York next month.

A rule for handling postponed or tied games, to prevent the transfer of those contests such as the Cincinnati-Pittsburgh case of last summer, was agreed upon by council. Postponed contests must be played on the grounds where they were originally scheduled, before any more regularly scheduled games can be played.

The dates assigned for the regularly scheduled games shall be moved forward. The season schedule may, however, arrange explicitly in advance for playing off postponements in the visiting team's park.

Most of the rules related to players' contracts, and the amendments generally were in protection of the players' contract rights.



EXERCISE AND DIET FOR CONSTIPATION

In yesterday's article I explained that the first step in curing constipation is to take daily colon irrigations for several weeks in order to cleanse the intestines of any accumulated feces and to keep the membranes clean so as to bring about a cure of colitis or any inflammatory condition which may exist.

The next thing to consider is the need for more vigorous exercise. Daily walks should be taken, covering several miles each day, starting, of course, with a short distance and gradually increasing the distance each day. At least one hour should be spent every day in taking these walks.

The principal thing to remember in the diet for constipation is to eat plenty of greens, both in the cooked and salad form. These supply a large quantity of bulk and roughage which furnish material to fill the intestines and encourage peristaltic movements.

It is a good plan to cut down slightly on the foods of a high caloric value, such as the starches and proteins, and to use two or three times as much of the green vegetables.

After the enemas have been used for two or three weeks, and long walks are well started, the next thing to do is to begin taking a course of "setting-up" exercises each day. It is better if these are taken two or three times during the day, starting carefully at first so as not to produce too much soreness of the abdominal muscles. These exercises should take from ten to twenty minutes. The time does not need to be increased, but the exercises can be taken more vigorously as the muscles improve in strength.

After four or five weeks of the regime with walking, exercising, and eating more greens, it is then all right to try the experiment of waiting for the bowels to move voluntarily. At first, discontinue the enemas for at least two days, as the colon must fill up sufficiently before enough feces can reach the rectum to produce a normal movement. If the bowels do not move in two days, take an enema and then wait again for two days.

After trying this experiment for not over two or three times it will be found that the bowels will begin to move naturally two or three times daily.

Unless there is some abnormal kink in the colon, the method I have described will always bring about a cure of constipation, no matter of how long standing, but the exercising and dieting must be kept up to assure a permanent cure.

Questions and Answers.

Question—Mrs. Roy H. asks: "How can I take the reducing diet with a nursing baby without injury to it?"

Answer: It is not wise for you to try to reduce your weight while you are nursing your baby, as the baby's supply of nourishment will surely be cut down. Do not nurse your baby for longer than six to eight months, and then you can start reducing.

Question—Mary L. Asks: "Are butter substitutes as nutritious as real cow's butter?"

Answer: While butter substitutes do not contain exactly the same kind of food material as cow's butter, these substitutes are in no way inferior in quality or wholesomeness. For instance, oleomargarin, which is so widely used, is a nutritious substitute, being composed mostly of animal fat. The nut butters are good substitutes also, the best butters being made from ground pecan or almond nuts, or from roasted peanuts.

Question—Myron H. writes: "Have pains in kneecaps which were diagnosed as water on the knee. Kindly advise a cure for this."

Answer: The formation of water on the knee does not usually cause pain. Maybe your trouble is some form of rheumatism. By all means have an X-ray examination made of your knee and find out what is causing the trouble. I cannot very well suggest a cure without knowing more about your case.

BRINGING UP FATHER IN POLITICS.

A new style of musical comedy has been established in the latest triumph, "Bringing Up Father In Politics" which is to be the attraction at the Grand Opera House on Saturday with the customary matinee. The offering as its title indicates is based on the famous cartoons of George McManus. Not so long ago somebody made the assertion that these comics were a national institution and as essential to the happiness of the community as the laws of the land. Millions of folks have been set laughing through the antics and exploits of those famous, yet beloved characters—"Jiggs Mahoney" "Maggie", his termagent wife, and "Dinty Moore." In this up-to-the-second vehicle this trinity of favorites will have plenty of scope to demonstrate their ideas of disseminating fun and adding brightness and joy to the world. "Maggie" has aspirations. She wants Jiggs to be either President, Governor, Mayor or hold some such high office within the gift of the citizens of these United States. So he enters the political arena assisted by "Dinty" who succeed in upsetting Maggie's greatest dreams, but eventually contributing a satisfactory denouement. If you have grown in avoirdupois or become mentally alert through the humor, screams, revelry, screams or tribulations of the renowned "Jiggs" in the realm of the dailies, you will no doubt become an extra convert to his present adventures and vicissitudes on the stage. All in all with its multitude of original ingredients, surprises and novelties, jingling melodies and beautiful women "Bringing Up Father in Politics" is bound to set a pace in hilarity that will be difficult for competitive offerings to follow.

AT THE REGENT.

OLD SEA-GOING CRAFT ARE SEEN

There is an ancient calling, long since thought dead, that has been revived by the motion picture industry. Square-rigger men—the sailors who could handle the now almost obsolete type of square rigging sailing vessel—are in big demand in Hollywood right now. Just how ancient is this oldest of professions may be realized somewhat when it is known that there are only some half dozen square-rigged sailing vessels on the whole Pacific coast. And these old boats, until revived for motion picture purposes, have been lying idle for years.

Then came an era of sea pictures, which of course included the necessary use of the most picturesque of all sea-going craft—the square rigger. This is the type of vessel used in Cosmopolitan's "Captain Salvation," which John S. Robertson directed at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, and which comes to-morrow to the Regent Theatre.

A.Y.P.A. HEARS TALK ON CANADA

Mrs. Howard Fallis Gives Instructive Address at All Saints'.

TELLS OF PROBLEMS.

A very pleasant evening was spent on Monday by the A.Y.P.A. of All Saint's Church. The members were favored by the presence of several lady soloists, a very fine violinist and a most gifted speaker.

Miss Daisy Murray delighted her audience with "The Song of the Robin," "Lady Moon," and "Advise," while Mrs. Ingram gave "Rose in a Bud," "My Little Teddy Bear" and "My Dear Soul." Mr. Roy Rome gave very fine violin selections which were very much enjoyed by all. Accompanists for the evening were Miss Margaret Rome and Mrs. G. F. Liddle.

In the absence of the Rector, Rev. J. D. Paterson, the President, Miss B. Dawson, introduced the speaker of the evening, Mrs. Howard Fallis.

Mrs. Fallis, in a very few words expressed her appreciation to the members of All Saints' A.Y.P.A. for their very kind invitation, saying that she had previously been asked to address them, but unfortunately she had been unable to, through no fault of her own.

During the last week or ten days, said Mrs. Fallis, there have been held all over the Dominion, services in commemoration of the many men who died during the Great War. Because of the war of 1914-18 the young men of today have to take their place and so, as it were, stretch forward and fill the gap that was made vacant. The young men and women of today must be made to feel their responsibilities, and so serve Canada in such a way as the men would have done who sacrificed their lives. They must be made to see their duty to their God and their Empire, and to know each person's own duty to Canada so that they will be able to fit themselves into their particular place in the service of their country. "We must educate our children in such a way that they will grow up to understand that Canada has a place for each one of us," she said, "but which can be attained only through work. National unity of the progress of this country is the chief thing which will put Canada in the place that it should so occupy. At the time of Confederation, the Fathers said that 'a bundle of fagots is better than a single stick.' Let us join together and face the problems that arise. Geographical, industrial and transportation problems are the main difficulties which so trouble our people.

The Middle West

"In the Middle West, that vast country which includes the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the greatest difficulties of the people are transportation for their wheat, and the marketing of it. What would we do," continued the speaker, "if the people of France, Japan and China stopped buying our wheat. Why we would then be forced to manufacture it into flour, which in its own way would be a very good thing for Canada. The Chinese Government has said that their people must continue to use the rice and not the white bread made from our wheat, and the Government of France has started a system which gives a bonus to the French people who will grow their own wheat. If this continues, there will be no market for our wheat and we will have to manufacture it.

"Immigration is another problem which is giving our leading statesmen trouble. People are brought out here and are settled here and there, each nationality settling in one part by themselves. Are these people loyal to Canada? Some may say, yes; but during the war eighty per cent of them were loyal to the land of their birth and not the land of their adoption. During the last two or three weeks the interprovincial convention at Ottawa gave much consideration to this question. We must unite these people together, teach them our language, ways and beliefs, so that they may become good Canadian citizens.

"The people of British Columbia, although separated from the rest of Canada by the Rocky Mountains, are not narrow minded. Being connected by water with the East, they have the advantage of having many boats call at their ports along the coast, thus keeping them in touch with most of the world. British Columbia's chief problem is her Oriental population. Today there is born in this province one Japanese to every 12 white, which shows that the yellow race is rapidly increasing. The salmon trade, hot house business and many grocery stores are chiefly operated by these people.

The Maritimes

"The Maritime Provinces' chief problem is that the people are not content to stop but pass right by and go further inland. Then again many of the young men and women leave these three provinces and go to the United States where they can get work and have a wider scope for their ambitions. If more of our Canadian people would spend their vacations travelling east or west, learning new things about our own wonderful country, instead of going south we would soon realize what a wealth our country owns. For every one Canadian tourist in the Maritime Provinces there are 100 Americans.

"Quebec, the most historical province of the Dominion, from the early days combined the State and Church as one. As an illustration of this," the speaker continued, "we can go as far back as Cartier when he claimed the land for France with a Cross. Unlike the people of the Maritime Provinces, they are content to let the immigrants pass on to the West, so that their own young men and women may grow up and work the land of their fathers.

"Next comes Ontario, with whose history we all are familiar. The chief problem today in our province is the timber resources. The government has undertaken to take the farmers off their farms in the north, whose land is all stones, and locate them on fine fertile farms in New Ontario, in order that they may plant thousands of trees on this land, so as to build up our greatest asset, our timber.

"Ontario has many natural resources. She supplies eighty per cent of the world's nickel, has much iron, has a fertile soil, and last but not least, has a wonderful waterway system.

"We are now reaping the benefit," continued Mrs. Fallis, "of the thousands of miles of fine highway, the foundation of which was laid by our forefathers many years ago. We must likewise build up our industries here so that the young men and women need not go to the United States to find work, but remain in their own country, so that with their talents and gifts which God has given them, and which it is their duty to use for the benefit of Canada, national unity of the provinces of Canada may not be the problem it is now." In conclusion, Mrs. Fallis quoted a verse which pointed this out quite clearly.

The evening was closed by the serving of dainty refreshments which were very much appreciated by all.

In Peterborough Churches

ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN.

"Living Too Far From Patmos."

These words were the subject of the morning discourse of Rev. William Allan on Sunday in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. They are found in Revelation 1, 1-11, and dealing with them he gave some very keen thoughts anent the little knowledge the majority of layman and preachers have of the deep teachings of the last book of the Bible. This is the first of a series of sermons on the Book of Revelation.

In part he said: This is one of the outstanding prophetical books of the New Testament. While prophecy is to be found in other parts of the New Testament, this book gathers up all the threads of the past to weave them into one great chain of many links with which to bind all history to the throne of God. It is a revelation which God Himself gave to Jesus Christ—on this ground alone you would imagine there would be no need to exhort Christians to patiently study it. But there is no book, in the entire Bible, perhaps, so much neglected and so little understood.

Blessing Is Promised.

Could it have been because, looking down the corridors of time, God saw that man would neglect it that so often these words are to be found. He that hath an ear let him hear what the spirit saith unto the churches? It is the only book I know of", continued Mr. Allan, "with the promise attached. 'Blessed is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of this prophecy, and keep those things which are written therein; for the time is at hand.' It is not to those who understand that this blessing is promised—it is only to those who read, and those who hear, even if they are too illiterate to read for themselves. Perhaps it is too much used by some because it is abused by others. This is a foolish attitude to take.

Communication From God to Man.

The mistakes that have been made should not be used to discourage our study of it. Let such mistakes keep us humble, and use mistakes as arguments for more prayer on our part that we might be saved from similar errors.

"Revelation is from the Greek verb Apocalupto, to unveil. Apo, away from; and Kalumma, a veil. As when a statue is unveiled, and that behind is seen. Revelation is that in which is a direct communication from God to man. It does not conceal, but reveal! There may be three reasons why we do not understand it.

The Three Reasons.

"We are not servants—We are too much like some of whom Paul writes when he says, 'For all seek their own, and not the things which are Jesus Christ's.'

"We live too far from Patmos—It must follow that since the great bulk of Christians in our day live in the world, and are one with it in spirit, this book must remain to them as they say, a sealed book.

"We are not in the spirit—The human mind, however cultivated, is utterly incapable of seeing or understanding the person of Jesus Christ. One reason why some services mean so little to us is that we are not in the spirit. And that is just the reason", Mr. Allan concluded, "why the study of this book yields so little."

The Prelude.

The evening prelude drew a large congregation to hear the answers Mr. Allan would give to the two questions to be dealt with.

No. 1—What do you consider to be the primary object of Christian education?

The answer—"The object of education, to Plato, was personal, ethical, spiritual growth. It would be hard to believe that this is the object of much of our present-day education. The end of education is not information but inspiration; not facts, rules, tables, but insight, initiative, grasp, growth, character, power.

"Our systems of education should train our young people for intelligent liberty, develop their sense of personal responsibility, and equip them to take care of themselves. I am strongly in favor of teaching ethics in Public schools, training the children there is honesty, and in cleanliness of body and mind", said Mr. Allan.

"At the present moment Christian education is left mostly to the church and home.

The primary object, as I see it, is to inform young life of its need of a new nature which is the gift of God through faith in Jesus Christ. Then it is the further business of Christian education to watch over that young life, instructing it that it will grow in grace and in the knowledge of Jesus Christ as Lord and Savior."

No. 2—Was God aware, before He created this earth, of all the fearful things that would happen? Did He endow the cat or the tiger with the nature they possess—with such fiendish appliances for torturing other creatures? Does such a belief not make it impossible to believe in a God of love?

The answer—If God be God, then He must be infinite in knowledge and must have known the end from the beginning. I know", said Mr. Allan, "there are those who don't admit this, but that is what I believe. But to state this as my belief is not equivalent to saying that He is responsible for the terrible things that happen. Man as a free moral agent, according to the Scriptures, is responsible for all the tragedy in the human and animal realms (Gen. 3, 17-18 and Romans 8, 19-23). When redemption is complete all this shall be changed.

"Use It or Lose It."

A few thoughts were brought forth by Mr. Allan in dealing with this subject, the text of which is to be found in Luke 19, 20-26. He said he had no thought of trying at this time to expound the teaching of this parable of the pounds. "Let us use it", he said, "as illustrating a principle that is always in operation, in the natural and spiritual worlds. It is a fact that failure to use certain things is the ground upon which we ultimately lose them.

"It is the law of the natural world—Neglect a garden and the wilderness rushes in. The athlete must train if he is to have any chance of winning. The student must keep on using the new language or he loses it. The farmer who neglects agricultural implements loses them by rust.

Divine Revelation Refused.

"It was so in the history of the Chosen People when they gathered manna in the wilderness. No matter how much they gathered, it stunk if it were not used at the appointed time. And it is so with Israel in her mission—the divine revelation she got was to be given to the world. She refused and God rejected her and raised up the church. She refused to use her national power as God intended it to be used, and it was given to the Gentiles. Jesus and His Apostles turned first to the Jews, but when they refused the message it was passed on to the Gentiles, and the question now is, 'How shall we escape if we neglect—fail to use—so great a salvation?' There will be no escape. You will remain under condemnation, spiritually dead, waiting for the second death."

When a Man Loves

By ALLIE LOWE MILES

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
John Barrymore in "WHEN A MAN LOVES" is a Warner Bros. Pic turization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

In old France, Fabien des Grieux, a youth as handsome as good, awaits the coach to St. Sulpice, where he will train for the priesthood. Meanwhile, on the lumbering diligence, rides a beauteous young orphan, Manon Lescaut, being taken to a Convent by her only relative, a brother, who doesn't want to be bothered with her; but who, seeing rich Ravoir, a connoisseur of women, feasting his eyes on her, suddenly realizes her worldly value, and proposes a stay overnight at Amiens Inn. Fabien and Manon meet, rapturously thrilled.

Fabien stood rooted to the spot, unable to take his eyes from her dear departing figure.

It was thus that Tiberge, Fabien's loyal student friend, found him.

"You must hurry, Fabien, the diligence is packed and ready to leave."

But Fabien only shook his head impatiently and continued staring after Manon.

"They will go without you—where is your portmanteau?" said Tiberge as he took his friend's arm and tried to make him come.

Quickly Fabien searched his mind for an excuse—he could not go, now, and leave—her—behind. "The diligence is overcrowded; it is better that I travel by coach, later."

This was the first lie Fabien had ever uttered and he looked away from Tiberge in embarrassment. The latter saw and was hurt,but continued urging him on.

With set jaw Fabien jerked away and said, stubbornly: "The point is not to be argued—I say here!"

For a moment their glances clashed, then Tiberge went out into the courtyard alone.

And still Fabien remained. The hand that had touched Manon was pressed to his lips, as he whispered: "The caress of this wonderful girl has engulfed my soul and done—what, to my reason!"

CHAPTER III.

Without knowing what his next move would be, Fabien proceeded aimlessly along the hall. Suddenly he was aware of voices in an adjacent room, and stopped to listen when he heard a man say:

"I am concerned, Sir, about your sister—the Convent will be a dull frame indeed for such fresh young beauty."

"What would you?" inquired Lescaut. "One cannot provide gold frames with an empty purse."

Instinctively Fabien knew that they were discussing the girl who had just conquered his senses. Crossing to a position where he could look into the room without being conspicious, he saw Andre Lescaut and Comte De Ravoir at a table near the window, drinking wine. With conspicuous affability the Comte was urging Lescaut to indulge freely. Then leaning across the table his eyes narrowed, he moistened his lips greedily and said insinuatingly:

"Paris is the proper setting for her. As a connoisseur—and one of ample means—may I suggest . . ." And the Comte's hand reached for his purse.

Fabien was overcome with repugnance. He involuntarily made a move toward the window, eager to confront these men. Then he thought it would perhaps be helpful to learn more before exposing himself. He drew back in horror when he saw the Comte scatter a handful of gold on the table before the greedy brother's eyes. Fabien felt that the gold was to barter for the girl's very soul. Every nerve and muscle in Fabien's body was taut. He was fast learning about reactions to worldly passions.

From his place of concealment he saw the two men clink their flagons of wine together and drink a toast to the successful completion of their deal! With a satisfied smile Lescaut scooped up the gold and pocketed it.

"Landlord!" beckoned the Comte as this rotund individual chanced to pass through the room, "come here—just so. Now lend an attentive ear. Have you such a thing as a clean, comfortable coach in your stable?"

"The very best, sir. A beautiful thing," replied the landlord proudly.

"Good. Now tell me about your horses—all old and slow, I presume?"

Ah, not at all, sir. I have four that will travel faster and longer than anything in the neighborhood."

"Then those are the four I want—hitched to your, ah, beautiful coach and ready at my command, as soon as possible, to carry me and a young lady on to Paris. And here," giving him a gold piece, "take this so that you will be sure to remember."

With an understanding chuckle the landlord waddled away.

Lescaut rose to his feet and saluting the Comte said, "Comte De Ravoir, I am indebted to you! I shall go now and prepare my sister's mind for—what shall we say—her journey with you."

From his place in the hall, Fabien knew what all this meant. Love had awakened an understanding of worldly things that he had not before imagined. His only thought was to see Manon and save her from this old roue and her brother's greed. He decided that she must have retired to her room. It was out of the question for him to follow her, so he rushed out into the yard and walking around the Inn eagerly scanned the windows, praying that he would see her. Luck was with him.

On a beautiful vine covered balcony, not far up from the ground, Manon stood with her fluffy little white kitten cuddled against her neck. But Fabien was forced to restrain himself because Lescaut was just joining her. He knew that it was to tell Manon about plans far more distasteful than entering a Convent.

While Fabien was trying to think of what he could do to prevent the situation, Lescaut was saying to his sister:

"I had not realized before that you are pretty—you are worth studying," scrutinized Lescaut.

"Why, Andre! Why are you so flattering?" Manon was puzzled and pleased at this first compliment from her brother.

"In truth, my dear, you are worth it! Let me see your eyes—your profile—your neck is truly beautiful." Lescaut tilted back her chin and half squinted through an experienced eye as he looked her over. "Is that color on your cheeks real?" he asked as her face flushed crimson at this bewildering procedure.

"Of course it is!"

"Well, one should pay high for that. The old buffalo is right—you are a beauty, Manon."

Manon started to laugh. This was such a funny way for her indifferent brother to act. Yet she was pleased, so made him a graceful courtesy and said, "I like to have you nice to me and think I am—all right."

"How would you like to forget the Convent and go to Paris?" inquired Lescaut airily.

"I would adore it!" Manon's face lit up with eager childish pleasure.

"It was the Comte's idea," supplied Lescaut casually.

"Why should he be interested?" inquired Manon, with her pretty white forehead all wrinkled up in an effort to solve the puzzle.

Not until then, when Lescaut realized that she was helplessly innocent, did he bluntly explain the Comte's proposition.

Manon was horrified. Her hands frantically covered her ears and then her eyes as if to shut out the whole terrible thing from her mind.

"No—not that ugly old man who was in the diligence?" Manon looked appealingly at her brother through a mist of tears.

"Yes. He will give you all the things I cannot afford to buy—laces, velvets, diamonds! You are young and pretty—now that I think it over, you should not be buried in a musty convent." Lescaut talked soothingly, patting his sister's shoulder, but all the time there was a quizzical, sardonic gleam in his eyes.

"But I would rather go to the Convent than to him!"

"My dear, you are too young to know what you like. It is very generous of the gentleman to want to do so much for you."

Manon was like a poor little trapped bird.

Lescaut had won his point and felt that he could be magnanimous. "You will not be lonesome in Paris—I will drop in often." With that he patted Manon on the shoulder and sauntered from the room.

All of Manon's vivacity had been crushed out of her. Her dainty little figure drooped. Leaning contemplatively over the rail of the balcony she dabbed at her tear-stained eyes.

Mrs. Wm. Healey, 524 Hill Street, London, Ont., writes:—"My daughter, aged fourteen, was subject to bronchitis every winter.

What is wrong with the tea? If this question is ever asked at the table you may find that the tea you are using was in a poor package. Careful experiments have proven that Aluminum is the only fit package to keep good tea in. You should try Red Rose Tea and see how fresh and brisk and pungent it is in the Aluminum package. 10T

THE CONQUEST OF THE AIR — VII — by Nicholas Afonsky

Stephen and Joseph Montgolfier, brothers, of Annonay, France, are credited with being the inventors in 1783 of the modern balloon. As they sat one night watching the smoke from the fire curl up the chimney one of them exclaimed, "Why couldn't smoke be made to lift bodies into the air?"

They began experimenting with smoked-filled paper bags, which they held over a brazier in which there was a fire. The bags so distended rose to the ceiling. The Montgolfiers probably knew that it was the hot air in the smoke, not the smoke itself, that made the bags light enough to rise.

The widow of a neighbor of the Montgolfiers, coming in one day when they were filling their paper bags, noticed their difficulty in holding them over the brazier. She suggested that they tie the bags down to the brazier, which they did, and thereafter their work of filling them was easy.

Encouraged by their experiments the brothers made bigger bags and filled them out of doors. Finally they made a big linen and paper bag which they filled with smoke. When it was filled to its 600 cubic feet capacity it broke the strings holding it down and soared away to a great distance.

Her Secret Beautifier Envy of Her Friends

Miss C. Delano, Washington, writes: —"About two years ago I was bothered a great deal with a muddy, sallow and pimply skin. I found I could cover the blemishes with cosmetics, but this was only a temporary relief. "My druggist recommended your purely vegetable laxative, and suggested my trouble might be constipation. After taking a short while I noticed a wonderful difference. My complexion has improved, also headaches, indigestion and biliousness never bothered me any more."

Pyorrhea's victims are 4 out of 5

A ruthless enemy that gives no quarter is Pyorrhea. Its poisons sweep through the system, undermining health and often causing such serious diseases as rheumatism and neuritis, appendicitis, ulcers, stomach troubles and nervousness.

Four out of five past 40, and thousands younger, pay this heavy toll. But you need not fear these uneven odds.

Go to your dentist at least twice a year. And start using Forhan's for the gums, today. This dentifrice, the formula of R. J. Forhan, D.D.S., prevents Pyorrhea or checks its course.

It keeps gum tissue firm and healthy. It protects teeth against acids which cause decay and keeps them white.

IN POLICE COURT.

William Kelly, who is looking for a home for the winter appeared in the police court this morning, and pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy. Mr. Kelly since the nights became cold and wet, has been sleeping in the police station, but this morning Chief Newhall thought he ought to be moved to more confined quarters, so he was given ten days in the common jail.

George McIlwain pleaded guilty to stealing coal, valued at $1.00 from the C. N. Railway, and was fined $10 and $9.25 costs, or ten days imprisonment.

The sum of $34.30 was the amount of the fine and costs levied against a resident of Smith for consuming liquor in other than a private residence.

The prisoner was asked if he had anything to say for himself, and he was also reminded by His Worship that in some of these liquor cases silence was golden, but contrary to good advice the prisoner told about giving an Indian a drink. His Worship told the officer in charge to see that the Indian Agent was given this information.

HOCKEY TEAMS BEGIN WORKOUTS

The Peterborough Seniors will begin training at the Brock street rink to-night at 7.30 o'clock, and all players anxious to try-out with the Petes are invited by Manager Eddie Wright to be present at this initial training work-out.

St. John's Junior O.H.A. team had a dozen players out for the first night's training stunts last night in spite of the down pour. The squad was put through half an hour's setting up exercises and finished the work out with a run. There will be another work out in St.John's parish hall at 8 o'clock to-night and any junior players wishing to try out with St. John's will be made welcome. Arrangements have been made with the Y.M.C.A. for shower baths for the players after each work out. Joe Dunkerly will be in charge of the training to-night.

Man, 78, Milks Cows And Farms 87 Acres

"My husband who is 78 had given up work. Then he took Vinol. Now he farms 87 acres and milks the cows."—Mrs. G. E. Boyd.

Vinol is a compound of iron, phosphates, cod liver peptone, etc. The very FIRST bottle makes you sleep better and have a BIG appetite. Nervous, easily tired people are surprised how QUICK the iron, phosphates, etc., give new life and pep. Vinol tastes delicious. McDermid & Jury, Druggists, E. L. Payne, McDermid Drug Company.

CHAIN RED & WHITE STORES

MANY SELL FOR LESS

And Many End in the Graveyard of Business Failure

Unfortunately, in not a few cases, "Selling for Less" means either a sacrifice of quality or elimination of legitimate profits; and both policies lead to business disaster. To sell for less on a sound business basis, giving unqualified satisfaction to the consumer, necessitates strong organization and unusual buying advantages. RED & WHITE Grocers can sell at the lowest possible prices consistent with those HONEST VALUES for which they are famed, because the tremendous buying power represented in their co-operative chain of hundreds of stores enables them to BUY FOR LESS. Quality IS NOT sacrificed to prices, and the profit from this group system of wholesale buying is shared with customers in the way of money saved on Number One Grade food products. RED & WHITE Chain Stores always give the very utmost in value at live-and-let-live prices—and service you like.

OBITUARY

MRS. EDWARD SKITCH.

Campbellford, November 16. — The funeral of Mary Jane Hohl, beloved wife of Edward Skitch was held from the residence, 61 Rear street, on Tuesday afternoon. Service was conducted at 2.30 o'clock by the Rev. E. Harston. Captain McMillan, of the Salvation Army, and the Rev. C. D. Daniel assisted. Favorite hymns of the departed were sung during the service. Burial was made in Mount Pleasant cemetery.

The late Mrs. Skitch leaves two sisters, Mrs. Maggie Wunder, of Toronto, and Mrs. George Baldwin, of Galt. One daughter, Mrs. Wesley Bushner and one son, W. E. Skitch, both of Calgary. Another son, Ernest, lives in Toronto.

Mrs. Skitch was in her seventy-first year and had been in poor health since the first of March last, when she sustained a fractured shoulder bone. Since that time she has been subject to three strokes, the third one last Saturday, proving fatal shortly before noon of the same day.

Born in Hamilton, and educated in Galt, she married Edward Skitch April 19, 1877. From that time until her lamented death she had resided in this town. The happy couple celebrated their golden wedding this year.

The deceased was a devout member of the United Church and took a great interest in the work of the Women's Missionary Society and the Royal Templars.

Many beautiful floral tributes weer received from former friends and connections.

Those attending from a distance were William R. Skitch, Lindsay Alfred Skitch Welland, W. F. Skitch, Peterboro. The pall bearers were W. J. Armstrong, S. J. Abernethy N. Thompson, L. Boyd, William Dunston and George Oliver.

BIG ELMS BRING SPLENDID PRICE

$1200 For Ships and David Tully Sells 35 For Planes.

SOME GO TO ENGLAND.

Near Lily Lake, on the farm of David Tully, is a large wood containing tall, straight elm trees. Because these trees are used in the manufacture of airplanes and ships, there is a growing demand for such timber. Mr. Tully recently sold 35 of these live trees for about $1,200. His brother John, who died a few months ago, was offered $1,000 for eleven trees. He did not sell then, but waited for prices to advance.

Last spring, Mr. Tully sold a number of elm trees to be cut this winter. This timber is to be sent to England for ships.

IN MEMORIAM

FALCONER.—In loving memory of my dear son, Douglas Grant, who died November 16, 1925:

Just two years ago to-day
Since God took home our darling.
Placed our bud amongst his flowers.
Took back the bud he lent us
To a better world than ours.
He was too pure for this cold world;
Too beautiful to stay,
And so God's holy angels
Bore our darling Douglas away.
—Inserted by his Mother and Father and Brother Philip.

IN MEMORIAM.

ATCHISON. — In loving memory of our dear Father, Mr. George Atchison who departed this life Nov. 16, 1926:

The midnight stars are gleaming
On a lone and silent grave;
Beneath sleeps one we dearly love,
But whom we could not save.
The happy hours we once enjoyed,
How sweet their memory still,
But death has left a vacant place
The world can never fill.
—Fondly remembered by the family.

IN MEMORIAM.

CONWAY—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. John Conway, who passed away November 16, 1926:

Just one year ago to-day, God called the sweetest of mothers away,
She bade no one a last farewell, she said Good-bye to none;
The heavenly gates were open wide, a loving voice said 'Come.'
She never failed to do her best, her heart was true and tender;
She worked hard for all of us—that was something to remember;
Her loving voice is silent, her true heart ceased to beat,
We miss her well known footsteps, and the face we used to greet.
We often think of the days gone by, when we were all together;
A shadow o'er our lives is cast—a loved one gone forever;
So November brings back sad memories of you that's gone to rest,
But you shall always be remembered by those who loved you best.
But peaceful be your home dear mother, it is sweet to breath your name;
We loved you very dear in life, in death we do the same;
As we loved you so we miss you, in our memory you are near;
Loved, remembered, longed for always bringing many a silent tear.
—Sadly missed by Father and family.

FEAR AVIATORS FORCED TO LAND IN SOME OUT OF THE WAY PLACE

McIntosh and Hinkler Due at Delhi Early To-day.

NOT SEEN SINCE TUESDAY.

Nothing Has Been Heard of Them Since They Passed Over Kent.

NEW DELHI, India, Nov. 17 (Canadian Press).—Lack of news of the plane Princess Xenia, in which Capt. R. H. McIntosh and Bert Hinkler set out from England on Tuesday on a non-stop flight to India, caused fear to be expressed that the airmen may have been forced to land somewhere along the route. The authorities figure that if all went well the plane should have been here between eight and nine o'clock this morning (Indian Standard time). It was estimated, however, that the airmen had enough fuel to last them until 4.30 this afternoon.

ANXIETY IN LONDON.

LONDON, November 17 (Canadian Press). — Much anxiety was felt this afternoon for the safety of Captain R. MacIntosh and Bert Hinkler, who are now overdue on their flight to India. No word has been heard from them since their start on Tuesday. It was estimated that their fuel supply would be exhausted by 11.30 a.m. today (London time), and it is therefore considered certain that they have come down somewhere.

Captain A. Barnes, one of the backers of the flight, said at four o'clock this afternoon that he had become much concerned over the men. Fear was expressed that they might have landed at some forsaken spot such as the Afghanistan region in the Himalayas escape from which would likely be extremely difficult.

GILES DELAYED.

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., November 17 (Canadian Press). — Heavy fog to-day delayed the start of Captain Frederick Giles, British aviator, on his projected flight to New Zealand by way of Honolulu. Giles said if the fog lifted by noon he would hop off, otherwise he would not leave until to-morrow.

He was riding in an automobile with Mayor Mederic Martin, of Montreal, when he collapsed. It was found he had died when the car reached the Beckman Street Hospital.

Brodeur had an appointment with Mayor Walker at City Hall. He was on the way to the Mayor's office when he died.

The trip took an hour and a half. They used the plane flown by Brock and Schlee across the Atlantic.

BOTTLE THROWERS ARE GIVEN WARNING

Those Putting Broken Glass on Highways Will Be Prosecuted.

Highway Traffic Officer Hugh Wilson warns all motorists against throwing glass and beer bottles on the highway. Recently a Peterboro girl pleaded guilty to throwing a bottle on the highway, and was fined $15 and costs. Mr. Wilson states that all along the highway broken bottles are found on the pavement, and where it is possible to get the offenders he is determined to prosecute them.

Swindle Uncovered In Smuggling Case

ST. ALBANS, Vt., November 17 (Associated Press). — The story of a crafty swindle, based on the smuggling of fake opium was brought to light yesterday at the hearing of Oscar Mouvet, Paris hotelman and father of the late Maurice, dancer, and John Wilson, who gave his home as Colebrook, N.H. The two men had been held in $10,000 bail each on charges of smuggling of opium, but they were released yesterday when it was found that the substance thought to be opium was merely a compound of figs, rhubarb and chemical coloring, with no trace of the drug.

Immediately after their release they were re-arrested by immigration authorities and are being held pending deportation proceedings.

Mouvet and Wilson disclosed that they had made a deal with a wealthy Canadian under which they would smuggle opium from Persia to the United States by way of Canada. The drug was to be held at Isle la Motte awaiting delivery. Instead of getting real opium, however, the pair gathered together the fake compound which, they admitted, was made in New York State and in New Hampshire.

The two were arrested several weeks ago when they delivered sveral hundred pounds of the alleged opium to Federal narcotic agents posing as customers who had arranged for the delivery of opium at $50.00 a pound.

Wilson is said to be a Canadian.

POLICE DOUBT BODY GLOVER'S

Considerable Out of Direct Route From Stratford To Mitchell.

BADLY DECOMPOSED.

STRATFORD, November 17. Canadian Press. — Doubt that the body found near the village of St. Pauls is that of George Glover missing since he sought his brother early last month, was expressed to-day by the police who have been investigating. Glover came from England to Canada twenty five years ago, and has spent most of his time in Northern Ontario mining district, it is learned. On October 4th he called by telephone from Stratford, the farm house of his brother Charles at Mitchell, near here. He said he would visit his brother whom he had not seen since both were boys. The body of an unindentified man, was found in the vicinity, considerably out of the direct route from Stratford to Mitchell and the police say there were indications that the body might have been there since October 2 at least. It is badly decomposed, and identification will be difficult.

White Deer Shot By Perth Hunter

PERTH, Ont., Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press).—A party of hunters at Mosquito Lake, Frontenac county, returned to town yesterday and brought with them a rare prize in the form of a white deer. The deer, which is a year-old buck, is snow white except for a few small spots on its head and flanks. The deer was shot by William Dixon. Some of the older hunters in this district state they have heard tell of white deer but rarely.

Sleeps Peacefully In Prisoners' Dock While Standing Trial On Murder Charge

MONTREAL, Que., November 17 (Canadian Press). — Gerard Filiatreault, alleged murderer, slept peacfully in th prisoners' dock of the Court of King's Bench yesterday while the Crown commenced the forging of a chain of evidence which may send him to the gallows for the murder of Fabien Martin, a St. Henry butcher. The youth, who was pronounced sane after being under the observation of allenists throughout the summer, entered the dock with an expression of ennui upon his face. The lengthy business of choosing the jury, in whose hands his life will rest, apparently bored him, and, sitting back in his chair, he lapsed into slumber. The jury was chosen in a few hours.

Only once, while his former sweetheart, Marie Louise Laluniere, was giving evidence, and told about him promising her a watch for a New Year's gift, did Filiatreault sit up. He replied to a question put to the girl by Mr. Justice Wilson.

Filiatreault displayed little emotion when Dr. Wilfrid Derome, medico-legal expert, described the wounds inflicted upon the body of the victim. Dr. Derome told how the throat of Martin was gashed by four axe strokes, one of which penetrated so deeply that it fractured the spine.

Dr. Golden of the King's County Hospital, with a pair of forceps made especially for emergency work, successfully extracted the coin. It was a bloodless operation and Walter is recovering.

CYCLISTS HURT BY MOTOR CARS

Two Riders Knocked Down on Slippery Streets Yesterday.

BADLY BRUISED.

On the slippery streets yesterday afternoon two cyclists were knocked down by motorists and slightly injured. A car driven by Frank Brown struck Percival Simpson, on George Street north of the C.P.R. track, injuring Simpson on the head and breaking his bicycle. Mr. Brown was going south at the time of the accident and a second car was coming north. Mr. Simpson, who was coming behind Mr. Brown, passed him and in some way got in front of his car and was knocked down. Dr. R. Scott was called, and on examination he found the cyclist to have a bad bruise over one eye and several cuts and bruises on his body.

Leigh Hewett, a driver of one of Gilmour's delivery trucks, struck James Clark just as he went to turn into the bakery on Dublin Street. Clark was bruised on the left leg and shaken up. Dr. Clark attended to the injuries.

TORONTO, Ont., November 17 (Canadian Press), — Constables are patrolling the streets in East York Township on which smallpox cases have been reported, to prevent any person from breaking quarantine.

Dr. C. E. McLean's request to this effect met with immediate compliance by Chief of Police Thomas McCann. Seven more cases brought the total reported up to twenty-seven, while two thousand school children have been vaccinated.

THINK DIVERSION BACK OF CAMPAIGN

U. S. Delegates To Harbor Confrence Believe Thompson's Drive a Mask.

TORONTO, Nov. 17 (Canadian Press).—Unanimous disapproval of the anti-British campaign of William Hale Thompson, Mayor of Chicago, was expressed by the United States delegates to the Great Lakes Harbor Association today. The declaration signed for the American members of the committee by W. McCormick, Duluth; G. Wright, Detroit, and W. Armstrong, Racine, Wis., set forth that the campaign was clearly "for the purpose of insuring the illegal diversion of our waters of the Great Lakes and injuring the development of the St. Lawrence Waterway."

DRYS WIN FIGHT IN NEW ZEALAND LOWER HOUSE

Committee Rejects Proposal To Increase Time Between Referendums.

MAJORITY SUFFICIENT.

Bill Would Have Required 55 Per Cent. Vote on License Referendum.

WELLINGTON, N. Z., November 17. (Canadian Press Cable via Reuters.) — The Prohibitionists won a notable victory in the House of Representatives to-day when the Liquor License Amendment Bill was considered in the committee stage. Though it was drawn up by Premier J. G. Coates, it was not a Cabinet measure and supporters of the government were left free to vote as they personally wished. The bill provided for the taking of a referendum on the licensing question every six years instead of every three years as at present, and it also provided that 55 per cent. of the total vote in a referendum would be necessary to carry the measure.

Despite the fact that the bill had pased its second reading in the House by a vote of sixteen to ten and by sixty-eight votes to seven when it came before the committee of the House, the fifty-five per cent. majority proposal was defeated by forty-three votes to thirty-two and a resolution substituting for the fifty-five per cent. vote a bare majority of the votes in the referendum, carried.

The proposal to hold a referendum every six years instead of every three years, was rejected by fifty-one votes to twenty three.

The bill provides for a two-issue ballot, namely for the original or against liquor license, and it eliminates the state control issue which has figured in on the ballot papers heretofore.

VENISON SALE IS FORBIDDEN

Act Very Explicit in Warnings Against Sale or Purchase.

OTHER GAME INCLUDED.

A reader of The Examiner complained yesterday that Peterborough's newspaper had been misinformed when it said some time ago that deer could not be sold. He claimed that a hunter who shot a deer and was unable to use all the venison could, under the Act, sell it to his friends.

The Act distinctly says that venison cannot be sold, and one of the paragraphs in the "Don't" column in the synopsis of the 1927 Game Laws issued by Hon. Charles McCrea, Minister of the Department of Game and Fisheries, says: Don't purchase or sell deer, moose, caribou, and many other game animals, birds, and fish.

Members of the Peterborough Fish and Game Association, as well as local butchers, claimed that The Examiner had been rightly informed.

CANADA'S TRADE UP.

Increase of Nearly Twenty-six Millions in Total For Seven Months.

OTTAWA, Nov. 17. Canadian Press —The grand total of Canada's trade for the seven months ending October 31st, was $1,324,198,638, as compared with $1,298,800,389 for the corresponding months last year, according to figures made public to-day by the Department.

GLOVE MAKERS FACING UNFAIR COMPETITION

German Product is Making Inroads on the Canadian Market.

CHEAPER LABOR.

Driving Industry to the Wall, Manufacturer Tells Tariff Board.

OTTAWA. Nov. 17.—E. R. Griffin of Griffin Gloves, Ltd., Toronto, as the only manufacturers of chamoisette gloves in Canada, represented to the Tariff Board yesterday that foreign competition was gradually driving the industry to the wall. Mr. Griffin said that while the German female worker was paid $5.70 for 60 hours work, the Canadian female operative got from $15 to $18.

Discussion was proceeding, when Commissioner Lambert suddenly handed one of his gloves to Mr. Griffin.

Bore No Stamp.

"Is that a Canadian-made glove?" he asked.

Mr. Griffin fingered the glove for a moment.

"It is not," said Mr. Griffin, "it is a foreign made glove."

"It was sold to me as a Canadian-made glove," said Mr. Lambert. "I specially asked for a Canadian-made glove."

"It ought to have been stamped to show where it came from," Mr. Griffin said.

"But," rejoined R. D. Beachman, of the Canadian Consumers' League, "if every man out of a job were labelled with his country or origin only Scotchmen would be employed."

A moment or two before, Mr. Griffin had said that while some retailers placed a spread of fifty per cent. on Canadian gloves, they place a spread of over 100 per cent. on the German glove, but the price to the consumer was the same.

No Gain to Consumer.

"Those who profit by the substitution of the German glove for the Canadian are not the consumers," Mr. Griffin added, "but those merchants who find it profitable to push the sale of German gloves."

Mr. Griffin produced a German glove which he said could be laid down in Canada at not more than $5 per dozen. This glove was sold to the Canadian consumer at $1 per pair. A spread to the retailer of more than 100 per cent.

"These jobbers are very fortunate," said Commissioner Lambert.

"The jobber is getting the protection we should have for the industry," said Mr. Griffin.

EXPORTS DROP; IMPORTS GO UP

Imports were $645,000,000, an increase of $48,000,000 when compared with the same period of last year. Total trade was $1,311,000, an increase of $21,000,000.

Home Town Tires Of Powerless Man

MOSCOW, Nov. 17. United Press.—Gregory Zinovieff's home town tired of him because he is no longer in power, has petitioned the government to change its name from Zinoviefsk to Djerjinsk, in honor of the late president of the secret police.

It was only a few years ago when, as secretary of the Communist Internationale Union, his name was world known, that the town's name was changed from Elisavegrad to Zinovievsk.

COBHAM STARTS TOUR OF AFRICA

Plans To Fly Around the Continent To Survey Airway.

HAS LARGE PARTY.

ROCHESTER, England, Nov. 17 (Canadian Press)—Sir Alan Cobham, noted British aviator, who has won the sobriquet of Britain's "Air Taximan," started at 1.35 p.m. today on a twenty-thousand mile flying tour around Africa. In his plane, the largest and fastest of all-metal flying boats in the world, were Lady Cobham, Capt. H. Worrall, who will serve as second pilot; F. Green and C. E. Conway, engineers, and S. R. Bonnetty photographer.

The trip which is one of the most ambitious flights ever undertaken in the name of commercial aviation will carry the flying party from Cairo to Captown around the "Dark Heart of Africa." The purpose of Sir Alan is to survey an airway for the establishment of a trans-African air service and in addition to study aerial lanes linking the trans-Atlantic route with all British territories on the West Coast.

TORONTO, Ont., November 17 (Canadian Press). — Shaw Street residents were alarmed early to-day by an exchange of shots between a constable and two fleeing men whom the constable said he had seen leaving an apartment when a woman had been heard to scream a few minutes earlier. The couple escaped.

About fifteen minutes earlier Sam Benson, in slippers and night clothes, chased a burglar whom he found going through his pants in his bedroom. This burglar got away with the pants and $26.00.

The Magistrate expressed doubt that he was a proper person to try the case because of his long personal acquaintance with the defendant. The Court Room was crowded with citizens, and the proceedings were brief. The charges were laid by the Public Utilities Commission.

CECIL ATTACKS GOVERNMENT OVER DISARMAMENT PROBLEM

No Word Is Received From British Fliers

LONDON, November 17 (Associated Press). — The darkness of a second sundown last night cloaked the fortunes of two British airmen on their way to India in a non-stop flight.

No word was received all day yesterday of the progress of Captain R. H. MacIntosh and Bert Hinckler, who set out on Tuesday from the airdrome at Upavon to break the distance record now held by Clarence Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine.

The only news from the fliers in the monoplane Princess Xenia was that they had been sighted passing over Manston Airdrome at Kent, England, 120 miles from their starting point on Tuesday.

The Air Ministry looked upon the lack of news as good news in the belief that any accident to the fliers would be reported quickly.

Estimating the plane's speed at 90 miles an hour, observers calculated that the Princess Xenia must have been well over Asia last night unless forced down. The 4,000-mile route of the fliers to Karachi, India, lay across Germany, Poland, Southern Russia, the Caspian Sea, and Afghanistan.

The Princess Xenia carried fuel for 50 hours, and the fliers believed they could reach their goal within that time, probably early this morning.

Says English Women Grow Prettier In Spite of Larger Feet and Hands

LONDON, November 17 (Associated Press). — "The average Englishwoman of to-day is more beautiful than the Englishwoman of twenty years ago, despite the fact that she is bigger and has bigger hands and feet."

This is the opinion of the principal medical officers of one of London's principal hospitals. He attributes the increase in stature to the better conditions of life that now enable them to reach their full growth.

"The young woman of to-day," he said, "wants to rival her brother in health and strength. She wants to wriggle her toes inside her shoes and to keep every joint supple and beautiful. The desire for beautiful hands and feet may have helped in attaining the new freedom and increase in size, but it is far more likely that improved health has brought about this change.

"I can remember when girls who were proud of a size three shoe came into my out-patients department with crippled feet. It was very seldom in those days that I saw a decent-looking foot. To-day it is just as seldom that I see a foot distorted by wearing tight-fitting shoes. The growth of the feet, however, is not nearly so noticeable as the astonishing increase in good looks. With full growth has come full beauty."

Cruiser Question Was Not of Sufficient Importance to Break Up Conference.

SERIES OF CLASHES.

Denounces Whole Attitude of British Government Towards Peace Offer.

LONDON, Nov. 16 (A.P.). — The unyielding attitude of the United States delegates to the tri-partite disarmament conference at Geneva was entirely wrong, but it seemed madness to allow the negotiations for reduction of armaments among Japan, Great Britain and the United States to break up on such a point as the right to put eight-inch guns on any cruiser. So said Viscount Cecil to the House of Lords yesterday. Refusal of the British Government to admit the principle of mathematical parity of naval strength with the United States, "bangs, bolts and bars the door" against any hope of agreement on naval armaments with the United States, he declared dramatically.

In a speech bearing on the conference at Geneva last summer, the veteran statesman explained his recent resignation as British delegate to the League of Nations. His explanation included a severe attack on the whole attitude of the British government toward disarmament.

Was Discouraged

His gaunt figure stooped and his shoulders like those of a tired man, Viscount Cecil told the Lords he returned from Geneva "exhausted and discouraged."

Viscount Cecil declared that at the conference he was repeatedly put in the position of having to defend in league committees propositions which seemed indefensible to him. He said the impression was produced at Geneva that the British Government's desire for the success of the disarmament commission was lukewarm.

Admiralty representatives scarcely concealed their indifference, if not their hostility, to the whole proceeding, said the Viscount, adding that he was sure that this was not the attitude of the entire cabinet.

Defends Government

Lord Cecil's speech brought another elder statesman, the Earl of Balfour. He spoke in behalf of the Government.

"In regard to the Geneva conference," he said, "as interrupted, not ended." Nothing will make me believe that the two branches of the English-speaking race are incapable either of understanding each other or coming to a common agreement. Our interests are identical, our traditions are largely the same."

Viscount Cecil's attack on the government was one which he had withheld at the Premier's request at the time of his resignation from the cabinet. His speech indicated that his resignation was the culmination of a long series of clashes with his cabinet colleagues over their detached attitude toward disarmament conference and their refusal to take a strong line with the admiralty technical experts.

Not of Sufficient Importance.

He brought this out on the point that caused the Geneva breakdown—the size of guns on cruisers. He believed the United States delegates were in the wrong, but also that this issue was not of sufficient importance to justify either the British or Americans in insisting on their views.

"If we cannot agree with the United States over a question of minor importance in naval armaments," said Cecil, "what prospect is there of agreement with a number of Powers over much more complicated questions.

"I feel deeply the fact that whereas Japan was ready to agree on any scheme of limitation, provided it permitted her to make a reduction in armaments, the two great Anglo-Saxon communities, who always claimed to be the most peace-loving of all countries, could not agree on the relatively insignificant question of the gun power of second class cruisers. Surely our two nations, instead of meticulously counting up every tone and every gun in each others state, should rather be equal contributors to a joint force whose chief duty would be maintenance of the peace of the world."

Lord Cecil concluded by declaring that in all well meant efforts for peace and disarmament the government could count on his support.

ONLY AN ATTEMPT TO CAUSE TROUBLE BETWEEN NATIONS

Opinion of Nicaraguan Envoy Regarding Documents in U. S. Newspapers.

FERMENT ILL FEELING.

Denies Liberals Had Ever Received Money From President Calles.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 17.—(A.P.)—Unnamed interests are attempting through publication of false documents in some United States' newspapers to foment ill-feeling, not only between Mexico and the United States, but between all of the Latin-American republic, in the opinion of Ameerican republic, in the opinion of Dr. Pedro J. Zepeda, representative in Mexico of the Nicaraguan Liberal party.

Dr. Zepeda denied categorically that he or any other of the Nicaraguan Liberals headed by Juan B. Sacasa ever received any money directly or indirectly from President Callas or the Mexican government as alleged by the Hearts newspapers. He declared that any documents intended to prove this were pure fabrications.

"I believe that publication of such false documents," Dr. Zepeda told the Associated Press yesterday, "is not only intended to prevent Mexico and the United States from adjusting their differences and to continue the friction that has existed between the two countries, but is intended to make the approaching Pan-American conference at Havana an occasion for ill will instead of good will toward the United States and to defeat realization of President Coolidge's seemingly altered Latin-American policy and his apparent hope for creating better feeling toward the United States through the Havana conference.

Documents Are False.

"I do not know the details of these falsehoods being published in the United States and I only express my personal opinion, but it is clear from what is known here that the documents are false. The question then arises 'what is the motive?' It seems to me the only purposes could be for forgers to get money through selling their fake documents and, on the part of the buyers, to continue the friction that has existed between Mexico and the United States and any ill-feeling against the United States in Latin America.

"However, I am glad the false documents are being published, because they have again brought the entire Latin-American question into public attention and have again interested the people of the United States in Nicaragua, thereby giving us an opportunity to tell the truth about the Nicaraguan situation.

Revolution Still Under Way.

"The Nicaraguan revolution is still under way. The Nicaraguan revolutionists are only fighting for liberty yet the United States' marines are being killed by Nicaraguans and Nicaraguans are being killed by Marines, without the people of either country wanting war or having any quarrels. The people of the United States have not known much about this or been interested and for anything that directs their attention to Nicaragua, I am glad."

The Mexican foreign office to-day issued a statement in regard to the Hearts documents which says "publication of the pretended documents in regard to the activity of Mexico in the recent Nicaraguan case, has scandalous and opportunistic aspects."

Western Breeders To Show at Chicago

CHICAGO, Ill. November 17 (Canadian Press). — The horse breeders of Western Canada, long renowned for their success in the production of high-grade draft animals, will come to the International Live Stock Exposition here next week favored to win a large share of the ribbons in the draft horse division. Particularly in the Clydesdale class are they expected to make a strong showing.

Last year's grand champion Clydesdale stallion, Forest Favorita, was Canadian bred, being entered by Haggerty & Black, of Belleplaine, Sask. The animal received higher commendation from the judges of the division than any horse entered in recent years.

TWO ARE INJURED IN WAREHOUSE FIRE

1,500 Automobiles Valued at $2,000,000 Destroyed in New York Blaze.

NEW YORK, November 17. — Two firemen were injured and 1500 automobiles valued at $2,000,000, were destroyed yesterday in a five-alarm fire which razed a $500,000 warehouse owned by the New York Central Railroad at 59th street and Twelfth avenue.

Every piece of fire apparatus between Fulton and 110th streets was called out and hundreds of policemen formed lines about the block in which the flames raged. After four hours the blaze was under control but the warehouse and its contents were a total loss.

The two firemen suffered minor injuries when a 100 foot brick wall, two stories high, toppled from the burning building through a blanket of dense smoke and crushed a $20,000 steel water tower from which hose lines were trained on the flames.

The automobiles were stored temporarily in the warehouse awaiting delivery to dealers along "automobile row." While the fire was at its height several explosions heard from within the building gave rise to the belief that gasoline had been left in the tanks of some of the cars.

A 1,000-gasoline tank buried under the building was untouched by the flames.

Traffic in the vicinity of the fire was halted for nearly four hours and freight service on the New York Central tracks on 11th avenue was at a standstill. Fire fighting forces ashore were aided by fireboats which turned streams on the flames from the river.

The fire was believed to have started from an explosion in the tank of a motor boat, owned by Jay A. Mellian the lessee of the warehouse.

The boat, firemen said, had been removed from the river to the warehouse, shortly before the fire was discovered.

SOME PLOWING NOT YET DONE

Farmers in Burnbrae District Find Grain Feeding Profitable.

CHEESE SEASON OVER.

BURNBRAE, November 17. — While some farmers are practically finished with fall plowing, others still have a good deal to do, and are hoping for open weather for the rest of the month. The temporary freeze-up of a week ago did not delay plowing to any appreciable extent, and with the recent rain to soften the hard sod fields the job should go along at a little faster rate. In contrast to last fall, which was extremely wet, this season has been almost as extremely dry and many farmers were either compelled to give up plowing sod altogether or put on greater horse-power. Four horses on a single furrow plow has been no uncommon sight.

The cheese factory season is about over, and most factories will close this or next week. The fall make has been well up to the average, and some few herds have dropped in the flow, others have held or even gained where grain feeding has been practised. Many farmers found grain feeding quite profitable in view of the high cheese prices prevailing through the early autumn.

It is exxpected that most of the local cheese makers will be back in their usual stands when next season opens.

Yarnell is to command the Saratoga, which will have a crew of 2,200 officers and men. The boat is 888 feet in length. The cost was said to have been more than $35,000,000. She is a sister ship to the Lexington, now under construction at Quincy, Mass.

Four Liquor Acts To Be Consolidated

WINNIPEG, Man., November 17 (Canadian Press). — Four Provincial Liquor Acts, the Manitoba Temperance Act, the Liquor Control Act, the Liquor Appeals Act, and the Licensing Act, are to be consolidated in the new beer by the glass legislation which the Government is to introduce at the coming session. The new Bill will be the principal item of business before the caucus of Government members to-day.

The cash and carry system is a certainty, as it was stated by Premier Bracken last session that this plan would be introduced if the people voted in favor of beer by the glass. The Premier refused to divulge any further information yesterday.

CAROL PLANS RETURN TO HIS NATIVE LAND

Eagerly Awaits Downfall of Dictator, Premier Ian Bratiano.

PRINCE ELATED.

Reported Peasant Party To Begin Bitter Campaign Against Government.

PARIS, Nov. 17.—Former Crown Prince Carol intends to return to Rumania immediately if Premier Ian Bratiano, his principal enemy, is forced to resign, following the acquittal of former Finance Minister Manoilescu, sources close to Carol told the United Press yesterday.

Hindered by Scandal

Carol and Mme. Lupescu still are separated, though it is hinted that the separation is purely a political one that might be terminated at once if Carol's return to Rumania became impossible. Carol's supporters figure that because of the scandal of his affair with her, Mme. Lupescu is a liability politically.

Part of Carol's entourage remains in Paris, in close touch with him and with Carolists in Rumania. They act as relay agents for exchanges of secret communications.

Carol's men here are jubilant over the unexpected turn in Rumania and hold it to be a great victory for Carol. One of them is leaving here for Belleme to confer with Carol over the situation and the possibility that Bratiano's position might be weakened so that he would have to resign.

Carol Elated

Carol, his intimates said, was elated over Manoilescu's acquittal, believing that it placed Bratiano in an extremely difficult position.

It will be remembered that Manoilescu was charged with smuggling into Rumania letters intended to advance Carol's ambition to return from exile and either assume the throne himself or direct Rumanian affairs through his six-year-old son, King Michael.

Bratiano, virtually dictator of Rumania, had hoped to crush Carol's hopes.

Carol still is in his rural retreat at Belleme, in the Orne department. He went there when, a few weeks ago, he resumed his throne-seeking activities.

First he dismissed Mme. Lupescu, the mistress, for love of whom he had abdicated his position as heir to the Rumanian throne.

Peasant Party Aroused

VIENNA, Nov. 17.—Reports from Bucharest yesterday said that the National Peasant party had announced it would begin on Thursday in parliament a bitter campaign against Premier Bratiano.

OLD MASTERS

Earth has not anything to show more fair:
Dull would he be of soul who could pass by
A sight so touching in its majesty:
This city now doth, like a garment, wear
The beauty of the morning: silent, bare,
Ships, towers, domes, theaters and temples lie
Open unto the fields, and to the sky;
All bright and glittering in the smokeless air.
Never did sun more beautifully steep
In his first splendor, valley, rock, or hill;
Ne're saw I, never felt, a calm so deep!
The river glideth at his own sweet will:
Dear God! the very houses seem asleep;
And all that mighty heart is lying still!

—William Wordsworth: Sonnet composed upon Westminster bridge, Sept. 3, 1802.

SWEET FIELDS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—It won't be long now until the winds across the farmlands will bear a refreshing aroma like a newly-opened can of cocoa. Cocoa meal has proven itself an excellent fertilizer and may be produced cheaply and in great quantities. The meal contains about 4 per cent nitrogen and the shell 3 per cent.

PAPER ATTACKS GEDDES' SPEECH

Manchester Guardian Upholds Cecil's Action in Resigning.

REBUKES COLLEAGUE.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—(United Press).—A recent speech by Sir Auckland Geddes, in which he condemned Lord Cecil's action in resigning from the Government because of his dissatisfaction with disarmament progress and charged him with injury to the cause of Anglo-American understanding, was severely criticized by The Manchester Guardian yesterday in a leading article. That paper declares that Lord Cecil's action helped to remove some of the soreness in the minds of Americans, who were disappointed at the failure of the disarmament conference and rebukes Geddes for presenting such "ill-judged partisan view before a partisan assembly at which foreigners were present."

WINNIPEG WHEAT

WINNIPEG, Nov. 17. — Prices on the Winnipeg Grain Market yesterday followed an erratic course. Early weakness was caused by profit-taking on the part of "longs," while a subsequent buying spurt through commission houses brought about a sharp recovery.

The holiday in general European markets curtailed export business, and a belated break in the Liverpool prices influenced late trading here. Closing quotations were unchanged to 3-8c. below Tuesday's finish.

A good demand existed for rye and barley, but the price range was narrow, and values weakened fractionally in the closing minutes of the session.

MARCH AGAINST CAPITALISM

A. J. Cook Calls Army of Unemployed Miners En Route To London.

ARE ADVANCED GUARD.

READING, Eng., Nov. 17.—(A.P.)—"You are marching against capitalism and Baldwinism and you 260 men are the advance guard of a revolutionary army."

In these words, A. J. Cook, secretary of the miners' federation, last night addressed his little army of marching miners.

These unemployed, tramping many miles, are on their way to London, where they will invade the halls of parliament to protest against conditions which they hold responsible for their poverty and lack of work.

"This historic miners' march to London," continued the miners' leader, "is a tragedy to set the real situation of the country before the British public. It is the duty of the working classes to remove those who are responsible for such a calamity."

Are Disappointed.

READING, Eng., Nov. 17.—(A.P.)—The unemployed marchers en route to London to call the attention of parliament to their plight were disappointed, especially those with a sweet tooth, when they arrived in this townfamed for its production of cakes, biscuits and chocolates, to find a cakeless and sugarless meal awaiting them.

Sympathizers here provided them with food and shelter as have the sympathizers in other cities on their long march from Wales, but the meal last night consisted of beef stew, tea and bread. The marchers were sent to bed in the grain exchange building near the site where the ancient Danes encamped when they invaded England in the year 871, more than a thousand years ago.

The column will proceed to Maidenhead to-day.

WEST RECOVERING FROM FIRST STORM

Upper Great Lakes States Digging Way Back To Normalcy.

CHICAGO, November 17. — Michigan and Wisconsin were recovering yesterday from the destructive effects of the middle west's first winter storm as the blizzard swept eastward over Lake Huron.

Subjected during the past 24 hours by a dual attack of snow and wind, the Upper Great Lakes states were digging their way to normalcy. Shipping still hesitated to venture out upon the subsiding Lake Superior, which for the past two days lashed by a 40 mile gale, had driven all vessels into land-locked refuges.

The temperature hovered around the freezing mark in th Chicago district with intermittent but light flurries of snow.

At Superior, Wis., traffic was being resumed after all available snow plows had been pressed into servic to clear the streets. Ironwood, Mich., in th upper peninsula region had re-established contact with the outside world. Deer hunters along the Gogobic range country, marooned for three days, emerged to find the hunting grounds covered with heavily drifted snow.

Schools Re-opened.

Schools re-opened in Northern Wisconsin and Michigan.

Damage to docks and fishing craft near Ashland Wis., was reported.

Whether any lake steamers were damaged was not ascertained. Capt. H. C. Hanson, master of an ore vessel which arrived at Ashland yesterday said that he encountered the worst seas he had ever experienced. The Duluth-Superior harbor was covered with ice.

The lowest temperature in the northwest was at Havre, Mont., where the thermometer was 8 below.

Ashland, Wis., reported that no word had been received from the tug Butterfield and the Canadain tug James Whalen. The Butterfield left Ashland on Sunday with a load of pulpwood for Port Arthur, Ont., and the Whalen embarked the same day with a load of "broomsticks."

FIRE DESTROYS OLD LANDMARK

Machlem Homestead, 125 Years Old, Burned to the Ground.

LOSS PLACED AT $30,000.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., November 17 (Canadian Press). — The old Machlem homestead at Chippawa, Ontario, one of the landmarks of the Niagara frontier, was destroyed by fire yesterday. The property loss is estimated at $30,000. The building, a two-storey brick dwelling, was erected 125 years ago, and during the past season it was used as a tourist camp. During the war the Canadian Government leased it as an army barracks. The cause of the fire was not determined.

Leader on the affirmative was Thomas Foulkes, with Miss Helen Ross and Kenneth Reid. Their worthy opponents were W. T. Faujoy, with Miss Lyda Wilson and George Nicholls.

The arguments and replies were humorous and interesting, and displayed the effort which each one had put forth to bring the points to a successful issue. Acting as judges were Miss Ila Giles, Messrs. Cecil Jones and W. S. Derry, whose final decision was given in favor of the affirmative.

Assisting on the program were Miss Margret Wolstenholme, vocal solo, and Roy Rome, accompanied by Miss Rome, in a violin solo. Both numbers were excellently done and greatly appreciated by the large attendance of club members.

TOO MANY LAWS.

MOBILE, Ala., Nov. 17.—When Judge Robert S. Hall made his address at the opening of circuit court, he declared that there are at present 1,900,000 laws in the United States, 93,000 of which were placed on the statutes last year. "The reason for the non-enforcement of so many laws", he said, "is because 75 per cent of the people do not want them enforced."

Miss M. Dickson closed the meeting with prayer after which refreshments were served by Mrs. Morrison.

STRATON DEFIES ATHEIST SOCIETY

New York Pastor Calls the Association "Bunch of Reds."

NEW YORK, November 17 (Canadian Press). — An ultimatum that he would "not stand a minute longer the actions of that little bunch of Reds" went yesterday from Dr. John Roach Straton to the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism.

"That was the vilest business ever done in New York City," said Dr. Straton in reply to an announcement by Charles Smith, president of the association, that "under cover" a man for the organization had undergone the "faith healing" rites of Calvary Baptist Church, and then reported them as having been conducted under the "most unsanitary conditions."

PETERBOROUGH WELL SERVED.

The announcement that four new areas are to be included in the city's garbage collection system will be heard with satisfaction by residents of those districts and incidentally calls attention to the fact that Peterborough is very well served in this important matter of garbage collection.

Many citizens may not be aware of the fact that in numerous centres in Canada, some of them considerably larger than this city, there is only one collection a week.

The twice-a-week system in force in Peterborough is much more convenient and prevents a congestion of garbage, thus proving of decided value from a health standpoint.

Not only is garbage here collected twice a week but excellent service has been given by the contractors who have adhered to their schedules with reasonable regularity under all kinds of weather conditions.

In this essential work Peterborough can stand comparison with most other cities in Canada.

The work is done regularly, done well and done more frequently than is the case in many other places of larger size than Peterborough.

THE WINTER FAIR.

As the Canadian National Exhibition is now the largest annual exhibition in the world The Royal Agricultural Winter Fair, which opened yesterday, is now recognized as the biggest event of its kind on this continent.

From all indications this year's fair—the sixth to be held—surpasses all the previous winter exhibitions, and Ontario farmers who are anxious to improve the quality of their stock, get into touch with the latest methods and learn to better their farm produce generally, should not fail to attend this great fair.

Every branch of agriculture is, of course, represented and besides exhibits from every province in the Dominion there are some of great merit from the United States.

The magnitude of the fair—which, although covering thirteen acres is all under one roof—can be judged from the fact that the exhibits of live stock number 10,000 at least 2,000 horses and a similar number of cattle being included in this total.

The Winter Fair, like the Canadian National is a Canadian undertaking that is eloquent of Canadian enterprise, vision and executive ability.

THE PUBLIC HEALTH.

Complaints from the Board of Health at the alleged failure of the City Council to co-operate promptly in carrying out works that the Health Board have recommended as desirable from a health standpoint should not be dismissed lightly.

There should be teamwork in this business of protecting the public health and no recommendation from the Board of Health should be ignored unless for very serious reasons.

After all there is not more important responsibility than that of providing conditions that will lead to a higher standard of health.

When a body entrusted with considering such matters urges sewers to be constructed because they are needed to provide such conditions the city fathers should naturally be expected to consider very earnestly the recommendations.

Certainly it should not be necessary for the Board of Health to continue year after year suggesting public works in the interest of health without being able to secure action.

Somehow or other—and this applies also to larger fields of jurisdiction than that exercised by municipal council—it is usually along the lines of health work that the most lthargy and the greatest reluctance to act are shown.

KILLING DEER.

The conduct of two women near Pembroke who clubbed a deer to death in the water has caused general condemnation of the cruelty to a dumb animal shown in this battering of a defenseless creature with a paddle.

There does not seem to be the slightest excuse for this inhuman action and there is natural surprise that such a cruel act has been charged against the gentler sex.

Perhaps they were actuated by the thought that if their husbands considered it sport to paddle alongside a swimming deer and shoot it at point blank range they were justified in using a paddle when no other weapon was at hand.

From the viewpoint of sportsmanship there is little real difference between shooting a deer under these conditions and killing one with a paddle save, of course, that death comes quickly and more mercifully in the former case.

Stalking a deer or even hunting with the use of dogs gives the quarry a chance when shooting is confined to the land, but it is difficult to conjure any appearance of sport out of the shooting in the water of an animal that has no opportunity to escape and at such close range that no marksmanship is necessary.

DANGER OF MONOXIDE GAS.

(From the Chatham News)

The time of year is approaching when the annual warning against the dangers of carbon monoxide gas is timely and seasonable. People need to be reminded of many things that are of common knowledge—and the risk of taking any chance with carbon monoxide gas is one of them. Nearly everyone in these days knows that a gasoline engine when it is in operation emits fumes which are poisonous and deadly. They know that if they remain in a garage, or any enclosed space where these fumes are being spread around, they will be affected by them, and that they will be overcome, and rendered unconscious, before they are aware that the fumes are taking effect. Yet there are people who disregard the warning which this knowledge should provide for them, and they need to be reminded of the danger. This is proven by the annual casualty list chalked up to the credit of carbon monoxide gas.

A few days ago the Duluth Herald opened the season's discussion by pointing out that there is always danger around a gasoline engine that is being operated in any enclosed space, and added:

No one should ever work around a car with the engine running, when it is in a garage. No person should sit in a car that is standing in a garage. No person should sit in a car that is standing with all the windows closed and the engine running. These practices are extremely dangerous.

The Duluth paper goes on to say that garage doors should be kept open while the owners are working on their cars and it is good practice never to run the engine in a garage or to sit in an enclosed car with the windows closed and the motor running. Even when running it is well to have a widow lowered. As our contemporary says, it is better to be sure than sorry.

TWELVE WOMEN JURORS.

On the heels of a cable telling that fourteen women have been elected Mayors of Welsh and English towns comes another despatch saying that for the first time in English history a jury composed entirely of women have tried a civil case at Newcastle. Truly, we live in a period crowded with the making of history. Fifteen years ago suffragettes were storming Westminster to secure the right to vote. Mr. Asquith, with his oracular eloquence, was telling the British House of the grave reasons why his wife and other men's wives and all other womenkind could not undertake the same electoral responsibilities as the superior male; and even graver pundits "viewed with alarm" the very idea of a mere woman putting a mark on a ballot paper. Today, what a change! All women in all English-speaking countries vote; they sit in Parliaments and Legislatures; they are in law and journalism and sit as judges and some are captains of industry. Women are taking their place in science; they go up into the clouds with airships; they swim channels; they preach from pulpits; they take their place in sport.

Time was, not so very long since, when women were simply property; they just "belonged." Today the daughters of Eve are the lords and masters of creation, not only no longer "property," but sitting down as jurors to determine what shall be done with the property of males. Truly a new world.

And it is a better one. The woman who just "belonged" had her charms and wiles, and sometimes she dominated things notwithstanding stupid and man-made laws, and her successor, the Jane Austen type of wallflower who was horrified if she exhibited her pretty ankle and fainted if she saw a mouse, had some enchantment, too. Yet most of us should consider ourselves blessed because we live in a day when women go out and rub shoulders with their brothers, when they can do things, from "stepping on the gas" in a roadster or a Fokker, or acting as a juror or an M.P., or just wielding a tennis racquet too mean for some male. It makes for more of comradeship, more of healthful companionships, and all the moralists to the contrary notwithstanding, it makes for little of evil.—Ottawa Journal.

THE NEW AIRSHIPS.

Sir Sefton Brancker having announced that the experimental voyages of the two new airships being built in Great Britain will be made next summer upon the Canadian route, via the Azores, it may be interesting to learn something about the dimensions of these dirigibles and the accommodation which has been arranged upon them for passengers.

The pioneers of aviation would rub their eyes could they glimpse such an air liner as the R-100. In its hull there are not less than fourteen miles of main tubing and thousands of stays. In all of its 709 feet there is not a straight piece of main girder. Every part has been built on the floor of the shed before being assembled in the shop. Approximately 350 men are at work making and assembling the parts and 50 girls are employed on the four and one-half acres of fabric which will be used to cover the hull, inside of which there will be 15 balloonettes.

In addition to space for 150 passengers, there will be an up-to-date restaurant, promenade decks, elevators, lounges, and a floor specially laid for dancing. Passenger accommodation will be in three storeys and two and four-berth cabins will be reached by corridors and staircases. The restaurant will seat fifty people and the promenade decks will have windows fitted so that a view of the country may be obtained. Each passenger will be allowed 112 lbs. of baggage and the ship's capacity will allow the transport of ten tons of mail.

All cabins will be fitted inside the hull. Cooking, lighting and heating will be by electricity and ventilation will change the air three times every hour.

When finished, the R-100 will have cost about $2,300,000. Its total displacement will be 156 tons. It is fitted with six six-cylinder Rolls-Royce engines of 700 horse-power each. The ship will develop a top speed of more than 80 miles per hour and a cruising speed of 70 miles per hour. Her cruising range will be over 5,000 miles and she will carry 30 tons of fuel, although gasoline may later give way to heavy oil.

The experimental flights of the R-100 and her sistership will open a new era in trans-Atlantic transportation. It has been already demonstrated that the crossing from Great Britain to America may be made by a dirigible without undue trouble, whereas every attempt to negotiate the same route by airplane has been attended by failure. The immediate hope of inaugurating commercial air service across the Atlantic thus rests with the airship rather than with the airplane, and it is extremely doubtful if any airplane will be devised for years to come which will compete with the dirigible in point of safety and commodiousness, although the airplane may easily eclipse the airship in speed.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 17 (Canadian Press). — Active selling and lower prices in the wheat market yesterday followed receipt of an Argentine government report describing the Argentine crop situation as favorable. Opposite advices from a Chicago crop expert in Argentina failed to act as an offset.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, ⅛ to ⅞c net lower; with corn unchanged to ¼c up; oats showing ⅛ to ¼c advance, and provisions unchanged to 10 and 12½c down.

According to the official Argentine report, new wheat in Argentina shows generally good condition and no actual damage of consequence.

Contrasting with this statement, dispatches sent from Las Varillas, Argentina, by a private expert, for a Chicago house, said that new wheat is very light in weight, not as good as last year in quality, that frost has done serioussa harm, and hot winds heavy damage. Meanwhile news regarding export demand for wheat from North Armerica was also conflicting, but the day's business was finally estimated at 600,000 bushels.

Wintry conditions in Canada had but little on wheat prices here, the bulk of Canadian threshing being at an end. However, some notice was taken of advices that extreme scarcity of No. 1 and No. 2 wheat in Canada is developing. On the other hand, Canadian country marketings for one day were reported as totalling 3,100,000 bushels, against 2,897,000 bushels a year ago.

Corn displayed notable power to rally from price setbacks, but had to contend with liberal selling done to realize profits. Special attention was given to word from Omaha that corn export bids were at a higher basis than a week ago. Besides, Texas and Oklahoma reports indicated smaller yields of corn than expected, and some advices said the corn movement was about over in that quarter. Oats were firm, independent of corn. Good buying of oats appeared on all dips.

Provisions weakened at the last on account of selling from cash interests.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—Your worthy correspondent, Mr. M. T. Butcher, does not seem to realize that people need not be guided by right and wrong any more but by what they think is good for them. That is the new right. All else is wrong. If he will refer all his arguments to that great general principle he will have no difficulty in reconciling what to him at present appears inconceivable.

CHAMPIONSHIP HORSES ARRIVE FROM EUROPE

W. J. McCallum Bringing Big Importation of Pure-Bred Horses.

100 HEAD.

They Will Be Exhibited at Royal and Other Big Winter Fairs.

The biggest importation of pure-bred horses in years reached Montreal a few days ago from points in Great Britain, France and Belgium.

They were brought over on two C.P.R. freighters, the Bosworth and Bolingbroke, for W. J. McCallum, of Brampton, Ont., and Regina, Sask., who has spent most of the past summer in Great Britain and the Continent selecting them. The horses were shipped to Brampton prior to being exhibited at the winter fairs to be held during the next few weeks at Toronto, Chicago, Guelph and Ottawa.

Over a quarter of a million dollars has been invested by Mr. McCallum in Percherons, Suffolks, Clydesdales and Belgians. His first shipment to Canada this year included 14 animals which arrived in August.

The present lot, numbering 100 head, contain many prize winners at European shows. The most noted horse in his shipment is probably Lord Willingdon, a two-year-old Clydesdale, named after the Canadian Governor-General. This stallion, alone, cost ten thousand dollars. He was the only two-year-old in Scotland winning double championships this year, being champion at the Royal show at Newport, Wales, and also champion at Kilmarnock show. This noted stallion goes back to Scotland after being exhibited at several shows on this side, as he is booked for service up until 1930.

Mr. McCallum also has the Royal winner at Newport, Wales, in Suffolk stallions, and several Paris winners in Percherons, and Brussels winners in the Belgians. With the present arrivals he expects to exhibit fully one hundred stallions at the Royal Show, Toronto, in November; the International Show, Chicago, in December.

During the winter months, beginning in January, Mr. McCallum is shipping the horses west through the Prairie Provinces as far as Calgary where they will no doubt appear in Western show rings. Since early days Mr. McCallum has been interested in horse buying and in this work has crossed the Atlantic on 37 trips. On this tour alone he travelled 20,000 miles in Great Britain and on the Continent, some of it by aeroplane, when he experienced the excitement of a forced landing in the fog.

KEEN COMPETITION EXPECTED AT FAIR

Different Provinces Plan Exhibit at Coming Royal.

Ontario has always laid claim to the proud position of the banner Agricultural Province of the Dominion. To maintain this position has become no easy task with the amazing development that has been going on in the other Provinces of the Dominion, more particularly in Western Canada in connection with "Jubilee of Agriculture," which the Dominion and Provincial Governments are planning to hold at the Royal Winter Fair here next month, competition is going to be amazingly keen in this contest for agricultural supremacy. Not only will the other Provinces have special exhibits showing the progress that has been made in farming since Confederation, but in the competitive classes at the show the cream of the West, Quebec and Maritime herds and stables, their seeds, fruits, vegetables and dairy produce, will meet with the best that Ontario can produce in open competition.

Starting from the West coast, British Columbia has announced that she will send to the "Royal" the largest and best display of the Agricultural produce of that Province ever assembled together. Every farm product grown in the Pacific Province will be included in the enormous exhibit to be staged by the B.C. Government. There will in addition be a large display of pure bred cattle, three carloads at least and the usual impressive showing of B.C. fruit.

Alberta is sending, in addition to its usual competitive exhibits, a special display which has been shown at a number of Western Canadian and American Fairs this summer. For the "Royal" it will have a number of additional features which will make it, in the opinion of publicity commissioner D. A. McConnell, the best display of its kind ever put on by this Province. It will include all descriptions of farm, field and poultry produce.

Saskatchewan is planning to show a carload of sheep, including about thirty-five heads of market animals, breeding hogs, a carload of bacon hogs and a splendid string of breeding and draft horses.

The Manitoba display will include a carload of Clydesdale horses, one of Percherons and Belgians, one carload each of sheep and swine and probably two carloads of beef cattle. This will be the most ambitious thing of its kind ever carried out by Manitoba and the Province has been combed for livestock that will meet the high standards of quality that have been set.

Advance information from Quebec and the Maritime Provinces indicates that they will be worthily represented and from Prince Edward Island there will be the usual fine display of silver foxes.

Discovery of diamonds in the alluvial fields of the Transvaal last year has caused a jump in production in South Africa from 200,000 to 808,000 carats a year.

FOREST AREAS ARE RESERVED

Timber in British Columbia Grows at Rate Nearly Equal to Cutting.

LARGE TRACTS HELD.

VANCOUVER.—Perpetuity of operation in the huge and ever-growing British Columbia timber industry is the objective sought by the provincial government, announced Hon. T. D. Pattullo, minister of lands, recently. Mr. Pattullo has headed the department charged with administration of B.C. timber for the past eleven years and during that period several radical departures have been made toward scientific forest management.

Mr. Pattullo said that the government was gradually acquiring large areas of forest lands which would be held in reserve. Logging operations would not be permitted on these tracts for years to come and when they were permitted the timber would be removed scientifically, so that wastage would be reduced to a minimum. The fire menace, he said, was the most serious destructive agency to be combatted. So far as reforestation in British Columbia forests was concerned, nature was 97 per cent. efficient if the fire hazard was eliminated.

False Economy.

Veteran coast lumbermen say that artificial reforestation in British Columbia under present conditions is unnecessary, and government officials agree with them. And they are likewise convinced that preservation of mature timber stands for the mere sake of conservation is false economy.

In the Pacific northwest there are thousands of trees that are exceeded in size only by the giant sequoias of California. These are the Douglas firs which comprise about 75 per cent. of the timber of the northwest woods, and in these woods stands one-third of the continent's timber.

The trees grow very tall and densely and exclude practically all sunlight from the ground. On the forest floors there are millions of seedlings lying dormant in the moist duff, awaiting that sunlight which will reach them and master germination only after the trees have been removed.

"From my own observation," said one of the biggest timber operators on the coast, "I know that under normal conditions a second growth of Douglas fir on our company's property attained a height of 96 feet and a diameter at base of 21 inches in thirty-five years. It has been said that in less than fifty years a second growth Douglas fir forest will produce 30,000 board feet to the acre—a far heavier stand than is common in virgin forests in other sections of the country.

Harvest Trees.

"Give these seedlings sunlight and careful protection from ground fire, and they will have rapid growth. To do this we must harvest the trees. The present stand of Douglas fir will provide timber for some 100 years, and to-day the North-west is growing timber at a rate almost equal to the cutting.

The gradual adoption of scientific logging will, within a few years, make the new growth in the Pacific Northwest equal to the cut, and this will assure a perpetual supply of timber for posterity."

TURKEY CROP IS LATE IN MATURING

Wet Spring and Cold Weather -- Weather Affected Early -- Setting.

The turkey crop in Canada is about three weeks later maturing than usual, owing to a cold, wet, backward spring. In some sections the first eggs set, either did not hatch at all or the young turkeys died off. Turkeys, above all other kinds of fowl, cannot stand wet, cold weather when young. Some sections have marketed a few turkeys, but they are immature, poorly fleshed birds and not yet fit for table use.

There are only four weeks of a turkey's lifetime in which it is ideal for table use. That time is reached as soon as the young bird is fully grown—in other words, has reached maturity—and before nature prepares it for breeding purposes. This period corresponds with the time it takes the eggs to hatch.

Storage stocks of choice quality turkeys in Canada are very low, except in the smaller sizes averaging 6 to 8 lbs., and those over 10 lbs. each. Perhaps the best values that can be purchased in turkeys today, of prime quality, are young hen turkeys weighing from 6 to 8 lbs. each. These are available in fairly large quantities from all the poultry dealers who store the best quality during December and January each year.

PASTOR GOES TO WORK.

LAGUNA BEACH, Cal., Nov. 16.—When the Episcopal Mission Board failed to appropriate a sum of money asked by the Rev. Percy Wise Clarkson for the upkeep of his church, he announced he was going to work. Dr. Clarkson will be a high-pressure bond salesman until he has earned enough to make up the fund.

CO-EDS ALTAR SHY.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—British university women graduates do not marry readily. Only one in 20 of the women who have gone through colleges in the past seven years is married now. Asked why, many of them say that education has led them to demand more in a man than they are able to find, and that men are afraid of educated women.

MEXICANS GROW RUBBER SUBSTITUTE

Guayule has recently came in prominence through the efforts of the United States to break Britain's monopoly on rubber. On the LEFT, Mexicans picking the guayule shrub, from which is obtained rubber, inferior only to first-grade plantation rubber, and on the RIGHT, the primitive methods by which the guale rubber plant is baled in the Mexican desert before being sent to the factory for refining.

PROTECTING FRUIT TREES FROM MICE

Fall is Time to Protect Trees From Rodents During the Winter.

TWO METHODS.

Building Paper May Be Used or Wire Protectors Placed Around Trees.

As each spring comes around, complaints come in of damage to trees from mice. As much of this can be prevented by precautionery measures taken in the fall we venture once again to remind our readers that the time is now opportune to guard against such loss. This may be accomplished in two ways: (1) by the use of building paper, and (2) by the use of wire or metal protectors. The building paper is a very cheap means of protection from the standpoint of material, but, as it lasts only the one season, is extravagant of time through the necessity of wrapping the trees each fall. ingle-ply white or grey building paper is used. Tar paper may be used, but is not recommended as there is a possibility of injury to the trees. The paper is cut into strips about six or eight inches wide and the full length of the roll, which is generally about thirty inches. The paper is wrapped fairly snugly around the trunk of the tree and tied with binder twine top and bottom. After tying, a little earth is mounded up around the base to prevent rodents working under the paper. This paper is generally removed in the spring.

The other method, the use of wire or metal, is more permanent, more expensive in material, but cheaper in labour, for the metal protectors last for a long period of years. Fine meshed galvanized wire netting is the most lasting material. It is fastened by small pieces of wire and is made large enough to allow for the trunk expanding as the tree grows.

Another very satisfactory and cheaper material is made from expanded metal, such as is used in building. It is better when both galvanized and dipped in paint, in which state it may be obtained from the factory. This material is fastened around the trunk by small wire fasteners as is the wire netting. It is advisable to stick the ends of these wire protectors in the soil so that there will be no danger of the mice working from underneath.

LOW TEMPERATURE IN STORING APPLES

Storage Life is Greatly Extended When Kept at Freezing Point.

An investigation has been carried on during the last two years at the Summerland, B.C., with the object of ascertaining the influence of temperature on the storage life of apples. In his latest report the superintendent of the station gives in detail the effect of different temperatures on a number of commercial varieties grown in British Columbia. From the results of the experiment it is apparent that by reducing the temperature of apples to 32° F., soon after they are picked a greatly extended storage life may be obtained. The advantage of cold over common storage lies largely in the fact that it provides low temperatures during October and November, whereas common storage temperatures during that period are frequently close to 50° F. It is pointed out, however, that cold storage should not be regarded as a cure-all. Even at 30°F., the life processes of the apple continue to progress, though at a reduced rate. To be most effective, low storage temperatures must be accompanied by other factors, such as efficient harvesting methods, high humidity, proper ventilation, and the use of oil wraps for such varieties as Grimes Golden and Wagener, which all tend to ensure the delivery of a perfect product to the consumer. In commenting on this point the superintendent states that the consumer also should know how apples should be treated after they come into his hands. A week or two in a warm furnace room or under the kitchen table will seriously impair the appearance and quality of even the best apples. Ideal conditions are provided by a cool, damp cellar from which the apples may be drawn as required.

EARLY FEEDING IS ESSENTIAL

Scratch Grain of Equal Cracked Corn, Wheat and Oats.

PROPER CARE.

The preparing of pullets is of very great importance and this is the right time of the year to make such preparation. Pullets which are not properly developed or those which are undernourished cannot be expected to do well when they enter the contest on November 1st.

Starting about the middle of September the pullets should be gone over carefully and the most desirable ones selected and confined in a house by themselves. If a small grass run is convenient it can be used for a time and thus reduce range conditions gradually. About October 10th the pullets should be confined to the house which should be bright and comfortable. The size of the pen should be about six feet wide by ten or twelve feet deep and should face the south.

The practice of feeding pullets is of considerable importance as changes in daily routine, even though the same grains are used, often produce unsatisfactory results. The method of feeding birds in the Canadian National Egg Laying Contest is given below and contestants would be well advised to adopt the method and follow it fairly closely.

The scratch grain used in the feeding is made up of equal parts cracked corn, wheat and oats. All grains are of good quality. Shrunken or heated grains are never used. This scratch grain is fed sparingly morning and late afternoon in deep, dry litter, the object being to induce the birds to work.

Perhaps the secret of success in feeding for egg production lies in the proper administration of feeds so as to induce birds to eat dry mash. It has been found at the laying contest at Ottawa that the birds which lay the best are those which consume the most dry mash. The dry mash used at the commencement of the contest year consists of equal parts by weight of bran, shorts, cornmeal and ground oats, with 12% beef meal, 5% ground charcoal and 1% cod liver oil. This mash is placed in a self-feeding hopper and kept before the birds at all times.

Birds should be regularly supplied with green food such as kale, cabbage, mangels or fine cut clover or alfalfa. Fresh water, grit and oyster shell should be before them at all times.

Trapnests should also be provided so as to train the birds which may start laying before leaving home and thus prevent a loss through floor eggs after the contest commences.

Simplicity in feeding, constant care and regular attention are essentials in the preparing of birds for the laying contest and a good start quite frequently means a strong finish.

SIFTED OAT CHOP FOR LITTLE PIGS

Hulls Are Unpalatable anid Difficult To Digest.

If oat chop is to be fed to little pigs it is a worth-while practice to sift out the hulls. The hulls are not only unpalatable to the young stock, but they are very difficult to digest. If time cannot be taken to remove the hulls, it is doubtful if oat chop can be fed profitably to pigs under three or four months of age unless one is growing the hullers oats which threashes out ready for grinding into oatmeal which is good for all classes of stock. In an experiment conducted at the Lacombe, Experimental Station to test the advantage of removing the hulls from oat chop for little pigs, it was shown that during a feeding period of 127 days the gains made by the lot fed the oat chop with the hulls removed, cost a little less than $4 a hundred pounds, whereas it cost $5.70 per hundred pounds with the pigs given the oat chop complete. Furthermore, the lot getting the unsifted chop had to be carried on for about six weeks on a ration of barley chop to bring them up to a finishing weight. Bulletin No. 73 of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, entitled "Swine Husbandry in Central Alberta" expresses the view that the labour involved in sifting the oats by hand prohibits following the practice when large numbers of hogs are fed. Hulless otas, the author of the bulletin claim, is the logical feed to use in the weaning ration where middlings and shorts are not available. The conclusion is reached that oat hulls as contained in oat chop are detrimental to young pigs during the weaning period and for the entire feeding period of the market hog when the oat ration is continued throughout the entire feeding period.

By a new device an approaching train completes a circuit and thus swings a crossing light into a commanding position, rigs a bell and displays a danger flag.

STORING COMBS REQUIRES CARE

Must Be Carefully Protected When Not in Use on Hives.

PLACE IN SUPERS

Preparing the bees for winter and putting them away in cellar or packing case is not the only work that demands the beekeeper's attention in the fall. In addition to the bees there is a lot of valuable equipment that requires careful storage during the winter if losses are to be avoided. The most valuable asset a beekeeper can have, outside of his bees, is a good supply of drawn combs but if these are not carefully protected when not in use on the hives they may be totally destroyed by rodents or wax moth larvae.

The best method of storing combs is to place them in supers and then stack the supers one above the other in tiers with a queen excluder or inverted hive cover beneath and another cover on top of each pile, this will save the combs from the ravages of rats or mice. To prevent damage from wax moth the supers of combs should be stored in some unheated building for the winter. Wax moth will not develop in low temperature and 21 degrees of frost will destroy them without harming the combs. Any unused foundation is best wrapped in paper and stored in tight-fitting boxes. Foundation should not be exposed to low temperatures as it becomes very brittle when cold and is easily broken. Other equipment, such as hive bodies, supers, floor boards, covers and empty frames should of course be stored under cover where it is convenient to do any work that is necessary to them during the winter. The extractor, honey tanks, capping melter and honey pump should be thoroughly cleaned and kept in a dry place for winter to prevent rusting, etc. Proper care and storage of equipment when not in use retards deterioration and reduces cost of production.

MACKAY PEAS ARE BIG CROP

Pea Growing Will Be Stimulated With New Varety.

HEAVY YIELDER.

Pea growing is likely to receive a considerable stimulus as the result of the introduction of Mackay peas by the Cereal Division of the Dominion Experimental Farms. This very productive variety was placed on the market in commercial quantities for the first time in the spring of 1926, and the results of the field trials have proved very satisfactory. The new pea has been tested in comparative trial plots on practically all of the branch experimental farms, as well as at Ottawa, for several years, and has demonstrated its ability to produce large yields of grain and straw. The peas are creamy in colour and possess a black eye or hilum and are darker than most sorts. They ripen rather late, for which reason, together with their ability to produce a heavy yield of fodder, they make a good crop to mix with such varieties of oats as Banner, or O.A.C 72, for the production of hay or green-feed. The two crops grown together will mature about the same time if allowed to stand, making it possible to harvest a crop of grain if the season is not suitable for cutting for hay at the proper time. The introduction of Mackay peas, especially into the dairy sections of Eastern Canada, is expected to constitute a real contribution.

ALFALFA AND CANADA THISTLE

Possibly one of the easiest and surest methods of controlling Canada thistle is to put the land where possible into alfalfa. The frequent cutting of alfalfa and thistle tops over a period of years will starve the thistle roots and result in complete eradication of this very undesirable perennial weed.

LIGHT FEEDING OF TURNIPS IS RECOMMENDED

Steers Found To Make Greater and More Economical Gains.

15 POUNDS DAILY.

Prove To Be a Daily Laxative and Tonic When Fattening Cattle.

The Experimental Farm at Nappan, Nova Scotia, has been conducting feeding trials for the past five years, comparing turnips with corn silage and sunflower silage for milk production.

Three experiments were conducted comparing turnips and corn. A total of 23 cows were fed for three weeks on turnips, three weeks on corn silage, then three on turnips again, the grain and hay ration being constant. The production of the third week in each period was used in computing the results of the trial. The average daily production when on turnips was 17.9 pounds milk and on corn silage 16.1 pounds milk while the cost per 100 pounds of milk was $1.61 and $1.69 for the two feeds respectively.

Five trials were conducted, comparing turnips with sunflower silage, in a similar manner. A total of 31 cows was used. The average daily production, when turnips were fed, was 18.5 pounds and with sunflower silage it was 16.8 pounds milk. The cost per 100 pounds milk was $1.57 and $1.63 for the two feeds, respectively.

Two trials, comparing corn with sunflowers, were carried on. The 13 cows on corn silage produced 15.8 pounds milk daily at a cost of $1.79 per 100 pounds while the same cows on sunflowers produced 16.2 pounds milk, costing $1.80 per 100 pounds.

It was found that the cows would not consume as much sunflower silage as they would turnips and that there was a greater tendency to go off feed when on the silage ration. In the years when corn gave a good yield and was well-cobbed as in 1924, this silage gave excellent results and was a cheaper feed than turnips. It is such an uncertain crop, however, that it cannot be recommended generally. Turnips and sunflowers are almost certain to give good yields, the average at the Nappan Experimental Farm for the five year period being 18.93 tons for turnips, 18.10 tons for sunflowers and 13.85 tons for corn. The cost of production was $3.71, $3.58 and $4.21 per ton for each crop respectively. The average dry matter yield per acre was for turnips, 4354 pounds, sunflowers 5430 pounds and corn 3600 pounds. The feeding trials showed that pound for pound the digestible nutrients in sunflowers were apparently equal to turnips. This may be due partly, however, to the fact that the cows were following a turnip period with sunflowers and then turnips again and consequently kept up in their milk flow while on sunflowers, by losing slightly in body weight.

The growing of sunflowers necessitates a greater overhead expense than does turnip production, a silo and cutter being essential for the former. Turnips require more field labour in hoeing, but may be stored very cheaply in a pit or root cellar. Until more data are available, our recommendations are in favour of turnips as a succulent feed for winter milk production.—S. A. Hilton, Dominion Experimental Farm, Nappan, N.S.

CLEAN STRAW GOOD COVERING

Department Recommends Straw for Covering of Strawberry Plants.

THREE INCHES DEEP

When permanent frost has set in and the ground is quite solid, strawberry plants should be covered with a light coat of clean straw. Straw that will not pack closely over the plants is the best to use. For this work marsh hay is well adapted. Green manure may be used, but as it usually contains many weed seeds, and sometimes may smother the plants, it is not to be recommended. About 2 or 3 inches of this mulch is enough. From 3 to 3½ tons of it will be sufficient for an acre. The author of a Dominion Department of Agriculture bulletin on Strawberry Growing states that in those parts of Canada where spring frosts are frequent, it is desirable to hold the plants back as long as possible in the spring. To do this the first heavy fall of snow should be covered with straw or evergreen boughs which are left on as long as possible in the spring. After the frosty weather of early spring is over and before the plants begin to grow, they should be uncovered and the straw put between the rows to keep the fruit clean.

SHEEP CLUBS ARE FORMED

Two Boys' Sheep Breeding Clubs Are Organized in Peterborough County.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

During the last month, two boys' sheep Breeding Clubs have been organized in the County of Peterboro. This work was carried on by Eric McGreer, of the Dominion Livestock Branch, in co-operation with the local County branch of the Department of Agriculture, J. B. Nelson. The members of these clubs purchased from 3 to 10 grade sheep and are assisted for the next four years in their management by the Department of Agriculture. This assistance includes shearing and dipping demonstrations, the installation of dipping tanks for the use of the club and the provision of prize money for club competitions in the fall.

The officers are—

Indian River Jr. Farmers' Sheep Club: President, Roland Tedford; Sec.-Treas., Alex Carlow.

Warsaw Sheep Club: President, Clarence Tedford; Sec.-Treas., Thomas Davis.

The members of the Clubs have now purchased their sheep and are commencing an interesting and profitable work.

Interest Increasing.

From almost every part of Canada come reports of increased interest in the sheep business. There il no big boom—sheepmen themselves do not wish for such a thing—but the industry is developing steadily and in a way which bids fair to become permanent. With but one or two exceptions, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports an inion Bureau of Statistics reports an increase in the sheep population of the various Provinces, with particularly heavy gains in the West. The highly satisfactory prices for lamb and wool, coupled with efficient wool marketing machinery which takes this product into the leading markets both on this continent and in Europe, are largely responsible for the expansion.

Fortunately, during this period of steady growth breeding stock is sufficient to meet the demands, and on the whole buyers are choosing their purchases carefully and with an eye to the future. At Raymond, in Southern Alberta, the other day 17,000 high quality Rambouillet sheep were purchased from the Knight Sugar Company for distribution through the range areas of Alberta and British Columbia. At Langley, in British Columbia, the first of a series of boy's and girl's sheep clubs has been established. This is the same sheep club idea which has already worked out so satisfactorily in certain sections of Ontario. In Ontario breeders of pure-bred sheep report surplus stock all cleared out, with shipments to all parts of Canada and many states in the Union. These reports not only indicate steady expansion, but also that only the very best stock is being used to produce the larger flocks of the future.

There is, too, a more general interst in the problems that confront the sheep breeder. Through the medium of the National Research Council, wool manufacturers and officials of the Federal and Provincial Departments of Agriculture, and the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers, have joined together in forming a committee of the Council to study the problems of the wool grower. As a result of their activities it is hoped that any prejudice still remaining on the part of Canadian manufacturers toward Canadian wool will disappear, and consumption of the domestic product in the country will increase. Not content alone with studying marketing questions, the Council is also striving to solve problems which breeders must face, such as the production of a more uniform quality of wool, and the elimination of black fibres through the fleece. The latter are a decided detriment in the production of blankets and similar goods of natural color. This is very largely a question of selection, and paying more attention to the fleece of the ram.

World Market.

Canadian wool and Canadian sheep have long been popular in the United States, but the heavier duties placed on the first named product shortly after the war made the opening of new and alternative markets imperative. A few years ago the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers made the first direct shipment of graded wool overseas, and as a result of careful selection and rigid grading the trade quickly developed.

This year the demand from abroad has been particularly marked, and just recently the Steamship "Manchester Commerce" sailing from the Port of Montreal carried a quarter of a million pounds of Canadian wool—eleven carloads—destined for the English and Continental markets from the Canadian Co-operative. Although this is the largest shipment of wool ever made from a Canadian port, it is only one of several made by the same Organization this season, and is conclusive proof that Canadian wool has now found its way into every market of the world.

ALBERTA HAS FIRST PLACE

Wheat Yield This Year Surpasses That of Saskatchewan.

30 BUSHELS PER ACRE.

Although normally not the largest producer of wheat (Saskatchewan occupying that distinction) Alberta this year will have a much greater crop of wheat than either of the other two prairie provinces. It is claimed that the yield per acre will be nearly 30 bushels. This is unprecedented.

The remarkable yield will operate directly to the benefit of Alberta Pacific Grain Co., which not only owns many country elevators in the province, but has a terminal elevator at Calgary and elevators at Vancouver. The larger the Alberta crop the greater the flow of grain toward the Pacific coast.

It has been estimated that the company this year will earn in the neighborhood of $10 the share, compared with less than $4 in the last year. The stock has risen in the last two months from the early thirties to the late forties.

FERTILIZERS BIG SUBJECT IN RESEARCH

Importance To Farmer Cannot Be Too Often Stressed.

MILLIONS INVESTED.

Insects and Pests Destroy Ten Per Cent. of World's Crops Every Year.

By A. E. Tomlinson.

The Imperial Agricultural Research Conference which held its meetings in Britain during the month of October is of vital importance both to the industry of agriculture as a whole and to the development of the Empire.

The importance of scientific research to the farmer has often been stressed by leading authorities and cannot be too much or too often stressed. It has also been practically demonstrated over and over again. The importance of concerted and co-ordinated agricultural research from the broad Imperial viewpoint is equally vital.

The object of the Conference was to explore the way towards co-ordination of agricultural research throughout the Empire and to ensure a pooling of the results of research and a prompt application of new discoveries. Never before has there been a conference for research workers in agriculture throughout the Empire, and never before has the knowledge and experience of the Empire been gathered together in order to take common counsel about the development of their greatest Imperial industry.

As Mr. Guinness, the Minister for Agriculture, pointed out at the opening of the Conference, even in crowded Britain where everyone seems to be packed into towns and cities, the value of the yearly agricultural output is 225,000,000 pounds, whilst in the vast Dominions about eighty per cent. of the population make their livelihood by cultivation of the soil.

In tropical parts of the Empire where diseases of man and of plants and animals are so rife the value of scientific research is too obvious to demand proof. As a single instance we may take Ross's work on malaria which has saved thousands of workers in tropical regions from illness and death. There are striking instances also where plant pests and cattle plagues have been successfully combated and hundreds of thousands of pounds saved to Empire farmers.

Insects and pests are estimated to destroy ten per cent. of the world's crops every year and twenty per cent. of crops that are grown in the tropics. These figures sufficiently show what a wide field there is for agricultural research throughout the Empire and what a paying proposition it can be when successful.

The biggest contribution of science to farming is undoubtedly artificial fertilisers. One of the most instructive and interesting of the visits of the Imperial Agricultural Research Conference was paid to the tiny Durham village of Billingham, where a huge nitrogen fertiliser factory has been established since the war.

Only four or five years ago the site of the great Billingham fertiliser works was little more than a wilderness on the North bank of the river Tees. To-day where once stood the little village and the isolated farm-houses is a huge factory, or almost one might say, a collection of factories with structures of gigantic proportions with miles of grotesque-looking gantries and pipe-bridges, with a network of railway sidings, with magnificent office-buildings, while near-by is a modern garden village of three hundred houses.

Millions of capital have been employed in this gigantic project, absolutely the last word in modern machinery has been installed, and the factory already gives employment to between four and five thousand work-people. Moreover, this is only as it were the beginning. The future will see the capacity of the factory quadrupled, and even newer and perhaps even more important industries will be added to the new one already established.

As Sir Alfred Mond, chairman of Imperial Chemical Industries Ltd., of which the Billingham factory is a subsidiary, said in his message of welcome to the delegates of the Imperial Agricultural Research Conference, "I would like to say how very glad we all here are to see representatives from every corner of the far-flung British Empire gathered together to discuss the most important and most ancient of all industries and how it can be improved. The agricultural problems of the Empire are diverse in many ways, but they have at least this as a great common factor—their attitude towards the use of fertilisers.

"I therefore propose to tell you something of the way in which this organisation began, and of the difficulties the eventual solution of which constitutes one of the most brilliant triumphs of British engineering and chemistry.

"At the outset our carefully chosen staff, picked men, who have so well justified their selection, were entirely without similar experience. This process operates at very high pressures, running into thousands of pounds per square inch. The mastery of high pressure technique, which we can now so confidently claim, was not in the beginning an easy matter to attain.

"The absolute smoothness with which the eventual large scale unit started was due to the vast amount of careful preliminary research and staff work which was undertaken.

Mine Trade Increases With Gains Continuing

TORONTO, Nov. 17 (Canadian Press).—With an increase in volume of trading, which was not far below two million shares this morning, the upturn was resumed on the Standard Mining Exchange. A few recent upward leaders, however, continued to recede. Aconda, on a heavy turnover, gained 3¼ at 40¼. Amulet led today's advance with a 39 point gain at 534, and Teck Hughes climbed 40 cents at 11.75, and Bidgood, McIntyre, Crown Reserve, and Kirkland Lake advanced substantially. Howey Gold lost nine at 159.

Wheat Little Firmer On News From Abroad

CHICAGO, Nov. 17 (Canadian Press).—Unexpected higher quotations at Liverpool, along with reports of adverse weather in Argentina, gave an early upward trend to-day to the wheat market here. Temperatures were too cold over Southern Argentina and rain threatened to extend to the harvest region north. Opening at ¼ to 5-8 cent higher, Chicago wheat advanced a little more but then re-acted somewhat. Corn and oats were also firmer, corn starting 1-8 to 5-8 cents up and continuing to climb.

Stock Market Strong Covering Broad List

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press.)— The stock market gave an impressive demonstration of strength to-day. Buying was usually broad in character, with bullish demonstrations particularly effective in railroad equipments, low priced motors, amusements, foods and some other recently neglected groups. Extreme gains in some of the high priced specialties ran from eight to twelve points, while two to five point gains were scattered over a wide list. The steady accumulation of high grade investment issues, coincident with strength of the bond market, indicated the existence of a strong reinvestment demand. Pools failed to be disturbed by reports of the imminence of gold exports, marking up more than a score of issues to new peak prices for a year or longer.

City Dairy Advance Feature At Toronto

TORONTO, Nov. 17 (Canadian Press).—City Dairy, climbing five at 213, was the only stock that advanced substantially in the heavy trade on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Steel of Canada climbed to 190¾, but was sold down to 186 at noon, a net gain of one point, while Brazilian, selling to 206¾, was more than a point lower. Hayes Wheel and Page Hersey had fractional gains.

The unlisted liquors and oils generally firmed slightly. Carlings led the brewery stocks with a gain of ⅞ at 28⅜. British American Oil, gaining a quarter at 35½, was the leader of the oils.

MANITOBA WINS JUDGING PRIZE

Two Boys From Prairies Best Junior Hog Judges in Canada.

TROPHIES PRESENTED.

Toronto, Ont., November 17. — Manitoba won the Dominion championship for the boys' and girls' swine judging competition throughout the Dominion, and the W. D. Robb trophy was presented to Albert Wilton and Mervin Anderson of Roland as winners of the Canadian contest. By the winning of the prize Wilton and Anderson have won the distinction of being the best hog judges in the Dominion of Canada.

For some years past W. D. Robb, vice-president of the Canadian National Railways, has taken a deep interest in the livestock production of Canada, and as it has come under one of his departments he generously saw fit to donate a cup for the younger generation. This cup was donated about four years ago and as a result of Mr. Robb's interest the improvement in the hog industry was marked. Each year the various boys and girls' teams compete throughout the provinces for the honor of winning his trophy, emblematic of the championship of Canada, which is awarded at the Royal Winter Fair, Toronto.

In the past the Robb cup has been won by Ontario, Saskatchewan and now by Manitoba. Following a dinner which Mr. Robb gave to the representatives of each province, the boys who proved themselves to be the best hog judges of the various provinces, Mr. Robb personally presented to each member of the team a gold medal for their provincial championship, and to the team from Manitoba he also gave the cup. Mr. Robb stated that outside of grain, the most important industry for the Dominion was the raising of hogs, and he heartily congratulated the boys upon their success in adjudging the fine points of the industry.

In conclusion Mr. Robb pointed out that it was particularly important that everything possible should be done for the farmers who wished to develop the hog industry. He also spoke upon the necessity of having registered stock and drew attention to the annual increase in live stock shipments which has taken place during the past decade.

The meeting at which the presentation took place was presided over by Dr. W. J. Black, director of colonization development and natural resources, who pointed out the fundamental importance of agriculture to Canada in an eloquent address.

Addresses were also made by Dr. McPherson of Nova Scotia; H. Mitchell of New Brunswick, and Dr. A. A. McMillan, chief of the Swine Department of the Dominion Live stock Branch, Ottawa. All three speakers paid a tribute to the deep interest which Mr. Robb took in the development of swine in Canada, and what his interest meant in dollars to the various members of the Boys' and Girls' Clubs.

Those who know the trials and discomforts of Bladder Weakness should be interested in this letter: "I have been bothered with Bladder Trouble for more than 3 years. A burning irritation was almost constant—and I was obliged to get out of bed perhaps five or six times during a night. Then I heard of Dr. Southworth's Uratabs and, without much hope of help, tried them. Wonderful relief came within a few days, and I now feel my trouble is practically ended. Am very grateful for what this grand medicine has done for me, and will always use Uratabs whenever I feel it necessary."

No matter what your age may be, if you want to end days of troublesome annoyance and nights of restless misery due to Bladder Weakness and Irritations—you should try the amazing value of Dr. Southworth's "URATABS" at once.

Dr. Southworth is a well-known practicing physician of nearly 50 years' successful experience. URATABS are made from his own special private formula and all druggists are authorized to supply them on guarantee of money back if not satisfactory.

LAKEFIELD LEGION HONORS ARMISTICE

Reunion Dinner is Held Under Auspices of Local Branch.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 6.— The first annual Armistice night dinner of the Lakefield branch of the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League was held on Friday night, November 11th. About forty members were present, some coming from Apsley for the event. The President, Dr. M. P. Kennedy, occupied the chair. It was a night's re-union arranged by soldiers for soldiers and was decidedly informal and therefore enjoyable, as the soldier's love for informal pleasure is well known to all, especially the readers of Kipling's inimitable "Soldiers Three."

Dr. Smith and E. de C. Fletcher added to the enjoyment of the occasion with their music. The former sang several times and was encored. Mr. Fletcher accompanied Dr. Smith and also played very accetpably. The veterans sang the old favorite marching songs, which have been laid away in moth balls in memory's attic to be brought out and enjoyed anew on an occasion of this description. 'Art' Backer and 'Ernie' Robertshaw distinguished themselves in the vocal line throughout the evening and were ably assisted by the entire assembly in the choruses.

Tongues were loosened by the aid of memory, which in turn was aided by that unseen hand of the contact of comrades, and yarns of the Somme, of Vimy and Arras, and of Mons, where a good many of those present spent the first Armistice Day, nine years ago, were exchanged, mingled with threats of what "I'd do to that colonel now."

The president proposed the toast to the King and the secretary proposed the toast to the Empire, both of which were honored in the usual manner. The president briefly outlined the aims and objects of the Legion and thanked the members for their support during the day. The secretary, K. A. Mackenzie, then asked the men to pay tribute to the work done by the president in the recent and present celebration and to his energy and thoroughness. Three hearty cheers were given and after singing the national anthem the diners withdrew to another room, where the evening was finished with song and story and the avowal that the same would be repeated each and every year following. The officers of the Legion are: President, Dr. M. P. Kennedy; Vice-President, L. J. Charlton; Secretary, C. A. Mackenzie.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe To Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients for only 75 cents, all ready to use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.

MEN'S CLUB HEARS ABOUT FINANCES

Investments Are Explained By W. J. Jeffers, of Toronto.

The Men's Club of George Street United Church held its regular meeting on Monday. The president, Dr. J. E. Middleton, occupied the chair. After a few announcements, with the approval of the Club a nominating committee composed of Messrs. F. E. Pratt, C. B. Thornton, and Vaughn Walker were appointed to report at the annual meeting in December.

The speaker of the evening, W. J. Jeffers financial editor of The Toronto Globe, was introduced. Mr. Jeffers chose as his subject "Our Investment Problem." He showed a thorough preparation of his subject and gave a very lucid explanation of many terms often not understood by people, who dabble in stocks and other investments. He laid down very definite broad principles for investing depending upon the age, responsibility and financial standing of the investor.

His subject proved quite interesting and at the close when he gave an opportunity of asking questions a number took part in the discussion.

J. F. H. Wallace of the Sun Life, J. E. Smith of the De Laval, and F. E. Kerr of the Public school staff, were among those who expressed their interest.

A vote of thanks was moved by S. R. Armstrong. During the evening Douglas Carlisle rendered two very acceptable solos, accompanied by Miss Gwen Donley.

DRIFT IN LAUNCH FOR THREE DAYS

Mount Clemens Men Have Harrowing Experience on Lake St. Clair.

WALLACEBURG, Nov. 17.— Harry Carney and Louis E. Gruett, of Mount Clemens, Mich., were marooned in their broken-down motor launch on Lake St. Clair from Sunday until yesterday morning, when their perilous plight was observed by J. A. Taylor, A. McVean and R. Purser of Wallaceburg, who found the unfortunate men on the verge of nervous prostration and collapse.

In Desperate Straits.

They had drifted about in the lake, five miles from land, for three days and nights in a terrific gale. In their efforts to attract the attention of those on land of their plight after dark they tore up the life-preservers and saturated them with gasoline and, lighting them, placed them on the top canopy of the boat. They also attempted to attract the attention of two air mails which passed directly over them. As a last resource, on Tuesday evening, they attempted to wade towards the shore, but had to return to the boat owing to the depth of the water, and it was only with some difficulty that one of the men, who was on the verge of collapse, was helped into the boat by his comrade.

A Timely Rescue.

The rescuers hurried to their aid and brought them back to their shanty at Mitchell's Bay, where their immediate wants were attended to, after which they were brought to Wallaceburg and were able to proceed to their homes in Mount Clemens. Both are married with families. From the time they left their homes on Sunday morning till they were rescued on Wednesday their only food comprised a small loaf of bread and some sausage. But few boats travel in the location where the Wallaceburg men went, and just at the present time the majority of the hunters have returned to their homes owing to the unclement weather. Had it not been for the timely appearance of the Wallaceburg men the unfortunates might have perished of exposure and hunger.

Song Writer Fails To Live Up To Song

CHICAGO, Nov. 17 (United Press)—A year or so ago, Vincent Youmans wrote the song hit which ran:

"A little girl for you,
A little boy for me,
Oh, don't you see
How happy we will be,
We will raise a family."

And his prophecy came true, all except the last line. His wife, Mrs. Anne Youmans, presented him with twins, Varley and Cecily, but she asserted today that Youmans has never seen or recognized their existence.

Mrs. Youmans filed suit for divorce several days ago and both she and her husband were in court when the case came up today, when a continuance was agreed upon. Youmans, musical comedy impressario, didn't notice his pretty blonde wife and the twins, who are two months old, were in the care of a nurse at Mrs. Youmans' hotel.

Mrs. Youmans asks a hearing to determine alimony. She said her husband was worth $1,500,000 and had an annual income of $10,000 from a play running in Chicago and the same amount from another show in New York.

SHOWS HUNGER.

DALLAS, Tex., Nov 16.—Doctors at Baylor University here have discovered that they can determine with an X-ray whether or not a person is hungry. Experiments have been made for some time in observing the hunger contractions of the stomach muscles, but it was only recently that the action could be clearly seen and photographed

WEATHER FAIR FOR BIG FLIGHT

Capt. Frederick Giles Expects To Hop Off For Hawaii To-day.

ON WAY TO NEW ZEALAND.

SAN FRANCISCO, November 17.— Canadian Press. — The Pacific Ocean smiled a fair weather challenge at Captain Frederick Giles, the British aviator, as the last details were arranged for his take off to-day on a projected flight to New Zealand by way of Hawaii and Australia. He said he planned to start between 12 and 12.30 p.m. Eastern Standard time. Favorable weather was predicted for most of the distance between here and Honolulu.

HIKERS AGREE MARCH SUCCESS

Discuss Angry Scenes in House During Walk To Maidenhead.

"GOOD OLD COOK."

READING, Eng., November 17. — Canadian Press. — "Good old Cook!" is a sign that adorns the side of the food lorry accompanying the little army of unemployed miners marching on London. Whether the wording refers to A. J. Cook the secretary of the Miners' Federation or to the cook who commands the kitchen, was not made clear when the marching men set out for Maidenhead today.

Their sole topic of conversation was yesterday's angry scenes in the House of Commons during the coal debate when Premier Baldwin was hissed and Sir Phillip Cun-Lister, the president of the Board of Trade, was shouted down by the Socialists.

The men agree that so far the hike has been a great success but they all hope that they do not have to walk back to South Wales.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

Annual Thank Offering Meeting -- Addressed By Dominion -- -- - - - President. - - - - -

The Autumn Thank Offering meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S., was held Tuesday in the Sunday school hall, and was very largely attended.

The president, Mrs. J. W. Gordon, was in the chair.

After routine business had been transacted Mrs. B. L. Barns read the Scripture lesson following with prayer by Mrs. J. Forbes Allen, and Mrs. C. H. Edwards.

Mrs. Mendel Braund kindly contributed the beautiful vocal solo, "The Lord is my Shepherd," greatly to the pleasure of those present.

The principal speaker was Mrs. John MacGillivray, B.A., President of the Dominion Board, who in her quiet and unassuming manner brought messages of hope and encouragement from the Mission fields.

The speaker assured the women that their task was truly worth while and spoke of the wondrous blessings which had been wrought through the missionary work. She stressed the need of still greater cooperation among the members of the churches, giving statistics showing a still low percentage of church members who are missionary workers. Mrs. MacGillivary's closing words were "Greater things than these shall ye do."

During the meeting Miss Hannah Bathgate received her certificate, having made hersef a life member.

The Thankoffering was very gratifying, amounting to $207.

SHOWER FOR LAKEFIELD BRIDE

Miss Carrie Moloney Receives Many Gifts—Lakefield News.

LAKEFIELD, November 17. — On Tuesday evening last a number of friends of Miss Carrie Maloney met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Charlton and presented her with a miscellaneous shower, which was contained in a daintily trimmed wagon which was drawn into the living-room by two little girls, Josephine White and Eleanor Allen. Miss Margaret Bissonette read the following address:

Lakefield, November 8, 1927.

Dear Carrie,—Your friends and well-wishers of the parish of St. Paul's, and also the Catholic Women's League, could not let this very auspicious moment in your life pass without showing in some little way our sincere wishes for your future happiness and welfare. It is with double interest and pleasure that we learned of your approaching marriage, because we know that, though taking up a new sphere of life you will still be with us in Lakefield. Your work in parochial circles has always been discharged in a very kind and efficient way, and we are still looking forward to many more bright and happy days with us. You have served as an officer of the Catholic Women's League, also as president of the Altar Society, and in both roles all who worked with you found you most sympathetic and efficient. We feel that we are only voicing the opinion of our reverend pastor, Father Garvey, in thus giving expression to our appreciation.

And so, dear Carrie, we would ask you to accept our gifts as slight tokens of our good wishes to you in your new duties of wedded life, and we hope that you will enjoy many years of wedded happiness.

Signed on behalf of the League:

Mrs. George Charlton, Mrs. R. Allen, Mrs. Joe Maloney, Miss Mona Fortier, Mrs. Lawless, Miss Emma Kennedy.

Mis. Maloney made a graceful reply, thanking all her friends for their kindness in making such a generous presentation ,and especially thanking Mr. and Mrs. Charlton for opening their home for the occasion, and in closing she assured her friends that there would always be a welcome for them in her new home, and she hoped that they would avail themselves of it after her return to the village. Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Charlton, and a social evening which was spnt in dancing, music, and conversation was brought to a close by singing "For she's a jolly good fellow" and "Auld Lang Syne."

Miss Maloney's marriage to Mr. Harry Armstrong takes place this week.

Correction.

In the report of the Thanksgiving dinner of the Regent Street Ladies' Aid, the receipts were given, by a typographical error, as $24.00, whereas the correct amount was $294.

Badminton Club.

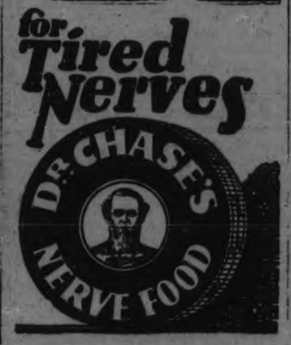
The Lakefield Badminton Club was formally opened on Saturday afternoon with an informal and very pleasant afternoon tea. Tea was served from four to five o'clock by a number of young ladies and gentlemen, Mrs. G. J. Elmsley and Mrs. W. W. Leonard pouring tea at the dainty tea table which was set in the southeast end of the auditorium. Two courts have been marked out and one was in use during the afternoon and the charms of what is really a fascinating game were displayed. One might say it has a similar relation to tennis as softball has to baseball. The general rules are the same, but it is easier and is not too strenuous. The person who finds tennis rather beyond him as age and weight increase would probably enjoy badminton very much.

The afternoon was pleasantly spent in social chat and in watching the players, for one group followed another in quick succession. The game has a charm which grips, and holds one, especially the younger set. Like tennis, it gives an opportunity for graceful movement that fascinates the spectator.

Each member was allowed two guests at the tea and it is hoped that as a result the membership of the club will be materially increased. Mrs. Lawrence H. Grahame, president of the club, was the charming hostess of the afternoon.

The fifth of the series of card parties given under the auspices of the ladies of St. Paul's church was held on Friday evening last, when twenty-one tables were played. Mrs. Frank Leahy won the ladies' first prize, a bed spread, and Mr. W. G. Morrison won the men's first prize, a handsome scarf. Consolation prizes were won by Mrs. Meade and Mr. Dominick White. The special prize, a fine ham, was won by Mr. D. F. Garvey.

The third card party of the A.Y.P.A. series was held on Thursday evening. Fifteen tables were played. Prizes were won by Miss Grace Watson and Mr. Fred Moon. Consolation prizes went to Miss Alma Pringle and Mr. Flynn.



DOUBLE SHOOTING RESULTS FATALLY

Girl Dead and Man Expected To Die at Waltham, Mass.

WALTHAM, Mass., Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press).—A double shooting in an automobile early yesterday resulted in the death of Grace Milles, nineteen, of this city and sent Joseph Buckley, twenty-three to Waltham hospital with probably fatal wounds. Police said Buckley had told them that the girl shot herself and that when he saw she was still alive he took the revolver from her and sent another bullet into her body to end her suffering and then shot himself.

Mrs. Eunice G. Layton has won five tons of coal offered by a Denver coal firm for the nearest guess as to when the first snow would fall this season.

A number of visitors from Keene, including Mrs. MacLaughlin, Worthy Mistress of Keene Lodge L.O.B.A. made a fraternal visit to Vimy Ridge L.O.B.A. No. 244 on Tuesday evening at their regular meeting.

The second degree was very beautifully exemplified by Mrs. C. Wright, W.M., and her degree staff.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting and a social hour spent.

Read the advertisements and then ask grandmother to tell you what people wore and used in her day. The comparison will often show you what a force in modern progress advertising has come to be.

MISSION CIRCLE HOLD MEETING

Regular Business Transacted at November Meeting of Golden Links Circle.

MILLBROOK NEWS

MILLBROOK, Nov. 17.—The Golden Links Mission Circle held its November meeting on Tuesday evening at the home of the Superintendent, Mrs. V. C. Lambert, the attendance being quite gratifying.

The President, Mrs. J. McKnight, was in the chair, and the program throughout was of a Thanksgiving character, the annual thank-offering which was taken up amounting to about $12.00, with a number of envelopes yet to come in.

To reach its objective of $65.00 for the nine months' year, which closes in December, the Circle decided to have the Bethany Dramatic Club give its play, "Mail Order Brides," Wednesday, Nov. 16, in the Town Hall. With the funds already on hand and the receipts from the mite-boxes, the full amount it is anticipated will be reached. Fifty dollars of the Circle money is sent each year toward the salary of Miss E. C. Hawken, missionary teacher at Wanstao, Alberta.

Little Lenore Lambert gave a reading, "Grandpa Gay's Thanksgiving," and the chapters from the new study book, "Please Stand By," by Margaret Applegarth, on Saint Mark and Saint Matthew, were taken up by the Secretary, Dorothy Crossley, and by Mrs. Lambert.

Misses Wilma Fallis and Dorothy Crossley were appointed the Program Committee for the next meeting; the election of officers will take place in December.

A pleasant social hour was enjoyed at the close, and Mrs. Lambert served ice cream and cake before the gathering dispersed.

Hallowe'en Frolic.

The Hallowe'en Frolic, under A.Y.P.A. auspices, held in the Parish Hall of Saint Thomas Church on Wednesday evening, was a very enjoyable event, and was attended by over fifty of the young people.

The decorations which featured the usual witches, black cats, bats, owls, etc., with yellow shades on the lights, helped to create the proper atmosphere for the jolly games, stunts and contests which are always in order for a Hallowe'en gathering.

The new officers were in charge for the first time, and included: Mrs. (Rev.) P. C. Howard, President; Mr. R. Stone, Vice-President; Miss Gladys Gray, Secretary; Mr. Howard Jordan, Treasurer; and Miss Muriel Smith, Pianist.

The membership has been divided into two groups, or sides, for the current year, called respectively the "Busy Bees," with Miss Kathleen Fowler as captain, and blue for its color, and the "Live Wires," Miss Ada Attwooll captain, and white for its color. This means a promising drive for members, five points being awarded for each new name enrolled, two points for punctuality in attendance, and one point for those who come in after 8.30 p.m. The losing side will have to banquet the winners at the conclusion of the year.

The programs for the new year were distributed on Wednesday evening, and promise a "Radio Evening" for the next meeting, two weeks hence.

Those present at the Hallowe'en Frolic were divided into four groups, and some special stunts were provided for the men, such as ducking for apples in a tub of water and eating a "sandwich" which turned out to have a thin layer of cheesecloth for "filling" in the shortest time, and drinking Boston cream from a bottle which had a rubber covering on the top, which made the process a slow one. There were lists of "doings" for the ladies of the party also and games which included activity for everybody before the supper hour.

The menu was appropriate to the occasion, having baked beans and pumpkin pie among its main features.

Under the able supervision of Rev. P. C. and Mrs. Howard, the A.Y.P.A. has grown in membership, attendance and interest during the last year or more, and there is every promise of better things ahead.

W.M.A. Meeting.

The Women's Missionary Auxiliary of the United Church held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. F. P. Stinson on Wednesday afternoon, over forty-five members and visitors being in attendance.

During the opening business period, which was led by Mrs. (Rev.) F. H. Howard, the annual thank-offering was taken up, amounting to about $58.00; this will be considerably increased as several envelopes have not yet been returned, and some are making their contribution at next month's meeting.

Group G, Mrs. (Dr.) Rae, Convener, had charge of the program, Mrs. Stinson reading the devotion leaflet on "Thanksgiving," and Miss S. Dean led in prayer.

The main feature of the meeting was an interesting and inspiring address given by Mrs. (Rev.) P. C. Howard, detailing as far as time would permit many personal experiences during five years spent in active work among the Indians at Rupert's House, on the east side of James Bay, where her husband was in charge of the Anglican Mission Station, his parish covering an area of 25,000 square miles, and extending 100 miles from north to south and 250 miles from east to west.

"Needless to say, Mr. Howard could hardly visit every corner of his wide territory, one reason being that means of travel were very expensive; dogs and one or two drivers must be hired from the Hudson's Bay factor and food provided for the time of absence, which might extend into several weeks. Catechists assisted in the visiting and reported to the missionary."

Mr. and Mrs. Howard really took their honeymoon trip to their parish in the Far North, leaving Montreal after some trying delays, in July, 113, two weeks after their marriage, and going by the Hudson's Bay boat by way of the Labrador coast, through Ungava Bay, Hudson's Straits, Hudson's Bay, and so into James Bay, and finally, hardly recovered from a severe attack of sea-sickness, reaching Rupert's House and being kindly received by the Indians. Two months were required for the journey, and the expense involved was at least $250.00.

The Indians made strange demands on their missionary, coming almost at once for help in sickness, expecting that medical knowledge would naturally be part of his equipment; failure to help would have injured his influence from the start, and the speaker emphasized the fact that earnest prayer and strong faith were absolutely essential to the successful carrying on of God's work among these simple-minded folk.

Faithful attendance at the service of the church, reverence for God's word, an eagerness to have their children baptized, and especially a delight in being present at the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, were results that greatly cheered the hearts of the missionaries in their distant field. "Some of our Indians would travel twenty days' journey, over unsafe ice in many cases, leaving their traps for that time, though this meant real monetary loss to them, to be present on Easter Sunday at the communion service."

Liquor made available, particularly among the half-breeds, added to the difficulties of the missionary's task, and the fact that mail, supposed to be received three times a year and sometimes failing to come even that often, with the many things that must be done without, necessarily, because of the distance from the source of supply, are all features to be reckoned with, as well as the loneliness which will obtrude itself at times, when our missionaries leave home and friends for work on the home field. Prices for household commodities range high, butter being 94 cents a pound; baking-powder, $1.00, and coal-oil, $1.50 a gallon; eggs and milk are among the things which we consider daily and ordinary requirements in this part of the country, and which must be done without, as Mrs. Howard found when she took charge of the mission house at Rupert's House in the Far North.

"The formal vote of thanks to the speaker was moved by Miss Burnham, and seconded by Miss Dean, the hearty applause which followed showing how keenly the address had been appreciated.

Group G assisted the hostess in serving tea at the close of the formal session, and a pleasant social time was fully enjoyed.

News Briefs.

Miss Olive Elson, of Belleville, spent the holiday week-end at home, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Elson, motoring to Belleville on Friday evening in order to bring her with them on the return journey.

The Ladies' Aid of Grace Presbyterian Church has held a number of business meetings recently in order to complete plans for its annual bazaar which is given in the Armouries each year, usually about the latter part of November. The play, "Are You a Mason?" by the Orono Dramatic Club, will be presented in the Town Hall here on Saturday night, November 12, under the auspices of the Grace Church Society, the members arranging to add to their funds by this entertainment.

Alvin Lambert, the three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Lambert, had his hand caught in the wringer of the electric washer last week, the fingers being somewhat severely bruised and crushed. The injury occurred when no one happened to notice what the little lad was doing, and though very painful, recovery is proceeding satisfactorily.

The Program Committee of the United Church Sunday School met on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. E. S. Burnham and discussed plans for the annual entertainment always held on New Year's night. It was finally decided to engage Miss Pearl Newton and her concert company, if they can be secured for that date, and have the entertainment in the Town Hall. This will dispense with training the scholars for the concert, but in view of the fact that the children are used for the annual Mission Band "White Christmas," when they are taught to give rather than receive gifts, and also for the Public School Christmas entertainment, it seemed advisable to ask no more time from their studies for practices than the claims made in these two instances demand. Providing Miss Newton cannot be secured, the school will prepare a cantata, entitled "The Love Gift," and give the program in the basement of the church.

Mrs. E. H. Barnes and two children, Owen and Margaret, spent the last week-end with friends in Keene.

Mr. McDowell, Sr., of Toronto, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm McDowell recently, left for home last Friday.

A MODEL LADY! TOO.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 16.—Arthur B. Neeb, art instructor, was modelling a statue of a woman when he discovered that a valuable ring he had been wearing was missing. Realizing that it must have come off his finger to remain in the clay, Neeb was confronted with the loss either of the ring or the statue. Then he thought of having the figure X-rayed and now, after the statue is cast in bronze, he knows just where to operate to recover his jewelry.

Give Yourself a Share

HOW much do you spend on fun? Your car—entertainment—sports—theatre—all those little pleasures which make life worth while—how much do they cost?

Total it all up and you'll find that you spend a considerable sum in a year's time.

Have you been giving yourself a share? Do you realize how easy it is to get just as much fun out of life as the next fellow and still arrange things so that at the end of each year you will have more than pleasant memories left.

Say, for instance, that you give yourself even as little as $1.00 for every $5.00 you spend on pleasure.

Suppose this amounts to $10.00 a month. Placing this in a North American Life Insurance Policy you would have, in a few years, in the neighborhood of $5000 in cash!

And remember—from the day you start to share up with yourself this way, your Policy protects your wife and kiddies. If you die they receive the full amount.

Let us show you the wonders you can accomplish by giving yourself one dollar out of every five you now spend in fun.

CAUSE SENSATION IN PICTON

Picton, Ontario, has been prolific as a sensation producer of late, the most recent being the elopement of Mrs. Clara Mounce, wife of Charles Mounce, the town's most prominent baker, with Claude Brown, a driver employed by her husband. Mrs. Mounce took her little daughter and a considerable sum of her husband's money with her. The party was picked up by the police at Windsor and brought back to Picton, where Mrs. Mounce and Brown appeared in the Police Court. Mrs. Mounce was placed on suspended sentence in care of her husband. Brown was remanded, bail being set at $5,000, which he said he was unable to furnish. These pictures were taken as the terrified elopers were leaving the Police Court. When they eloped Mrs. Mounce's 17-year-old daughter, Winnifred, and 18-year-old Conger Allison, a prominent youth of Picton, were in the party. These young folks got married and are now on their honeymoon.

QUEBEC PAGEANT WELL DESCRIBED

Mrs. C. H. Saunders Tells Art Study Club of Festival Last Spring.

"The Quebec Pageant" was the subject chosen by Mrs. C. H. Saunders as the basis of her paper, given to the members of the Art Study Club of the Women's Art Association, at their meeting on Tuesday evening, held at the home of Mrs. W. H. Meredith, Water Street.

The address described very interestingly the Festival of Song and Handicraft held at the Chateau Frontenac, Quebec City, from May 20th to 22nd of this year, under the auspices of the National Museum of Canada at Ottawa, and designed to promote a better knowledge and appreciation of Canada's great wealth of folk songs, dances, arts, textiles, and handicraft of fireside and workshop.

Exhibits were made of paintings, drawings, figurines, wood carvings, bronze figures, bas reliefs, jewel cases, illuminated manuscripts, and specimens of French-Canadian and Indian handicraft.

Mrs. Saunders described in interesting detail various specimens of these sections as exhibited at the Festival, which also featured the folk songs of the Quebec people, who make songs for every activity, for canoeing, where the background is the soft "dip, dip" of the paddle, for work in the woods, where the "smack" of the axe is heard, for beating the flax and threshing the grain, for fishing and mending sails, making nets and spinning, with the steady "thrum" of the wheel as the basis of the music, for paddling and rowing, for making shoes and moccasins and for curing skins. Dr. E MacMillan and Healy Willan of Toronto and Oscar O'Brien of Montreal composed harmonious string arrangements for melodies based on the chansons, the Hart House Quartette played some of these, Rodolphe Plomondon, tenor of the Paris Opera House, with Juliette de la Verendrye of the Boston Opera and J. Campbell McIness of Toronto, were some of those taking part in this song festival, as well as the "Bytown Troubadours" and several famou fishermen singers from St. Anne des Monts Gaspe.

Primitive dances for children were also demonstrated at this festival, the description of which concluded with the singing of several French-Canadian songs, by Mrs. Saunders

A CALL TO AID YOUR CITY.

We have not been stricken with storms or floods, but disease and pestilence still stalk abroad. The Peterborough Health Association is doing a noble work in combatting disease in our city, and it would be a serious misfortune if their efforts were curtailed through lack of funds.

You will be called upon to aid in their work and make Peterborough a better place, by the purchase of Christmas seals. The letters containing the seals will be mailed next week to a selected list of names. If you receive a letter you may feel complimented, because you will know your name is among those who are known to help a worthy cause. When you receive a letter containing a dollar's worth of seals do not hesitate for a moment, but enclose the dollar in the return envelope which will accompany them.

The members of the Health Association are giving of their time, and energy, and professional skill every day throughout the year, and they are appealing to you to aid them with funds that their work may be carried on. Surely no one will fail them, but will gladly help to make Peterborough a better place in which to live.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

"It was a wonderful dinner, Rhoda. We all enjoyed it very much," Faith said, smiling into her new "maid's" flushed, happy face. "Joy will help you wash the dishes—"

"Aw, Faith!" Joy protested, as she speared the last flaky crumb of Rhoda's perfect apple pie. "I didn't have to help Mrs. Lundy! Isn't Rhoda going to be our new—"

"Joy!" Faith's voice was sharp with warning. "See that she polishes the glasses nicely, Rhoda. She's a lazy little demon sometimes. Come into the living room and listen to the radio when you two children are through in the kitchen."

Cherry scarcely waited until she and Faith and Bob were in the living room before she turned upon her sister in fury:

"I think the whole thing is perfectly ridiculous! Getting a maid and then treating her exactly like one of the family, or even better! Making a guest out of her! We'll be the laughing stock of Serenity Boulevard when this story gets around! Dad marries the first servant you have and then you hire another one, and—"

"Cherry," Bob interrupted, in a portentously stern voice, which caused Cherry to turn the contemptuous fire of her golden eyes upon him. "I thought I made it clear just before dinner that you were not to meddle in this particular affair. Faith is the mistress of this establishment, and I am, to use an old-fashioned but very good expression, the head of it. I think it is up to us to decide how this child shall be treated."

"Please, Bob," Faith pleaded.

"I prefer not to quarrel," Bob said coldly. "But I think it is perfectly clear who and what Rhoda Jonson is. She is a rather fine type of American girl, and undoubtedly will one day be a very rich girl. Not that that alters things," he caught himself up contemptuously. "The point is, she is not a servant in the ordinary sense of the word. I saw instantly that it had never occurred to her that she would be humiliated, 'put in her place,' as a domestic menial. She simply took it for granted that she would be an honored member of any family that was lucky enough to get her as a helper. Probably she herself has had 'hired girls' helping on her farm in Minnesota, and has treated them like farm folk do. You must remember she is country born and bred, as self-respecting as you are, and in her own eyes she has not degraded herself by seeking the only employment for which her life has fitted her. Personally, I admire her spunk, and I'll tell the world I admire her cooking!"

Faith's hand had crept up his arm as he talked, and before he had finished, it was cuddling and patting his cheek. She had not felt so close to him in many weeks as she felt then, curiously enough, when he was defending another girl against Cherry's selfishness.

"Thanks for the Chautauqua lecture on democracy!" Cherry flashed, refusing to admit defeat, but accepting it in her own way.

"Please don't be bitter, Cherry," Faith pleaded. "Bob is right. It would have been an unpardonable cruelty to send her away from the table tonight, to banish her to the kitchen. I only hope we can keep her, that that awful brother of hers doesn't come to claim her. Be sweet to her, honey. You can be so very sweet when you want to be."

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Snow white for snowy days is to be much used this winter. This little girl's costume consists of a brushed wool cap, sweater and glove set worn with a pleated white cloth skirt. White wool stockings may be worn under the white ribbed socks.

When winter comes the stoat puts on a coat of spotless white and becomes an ermine. When snow covers the ground the slate-blue fox puts on a fur coat to match and becomes the white fox. when we choose pure white for sn days in winter we have the best precedent. Still there are many folk who consider white appropriate only for warm summer days. Dull dark colors seem more appropriate.

I was delighted the other day with a snow ensemble made for a little girl of seven or eight, and as I looked at the snow-white garments as they had been assembled in the store from which they had been ordered I could imagine how becoming they would be to the little rosy-cheeked girl who was to wear them.

Pure white costumes, I was told, are coming into prominence for winter sport wear for girls of all ages. There have already been many orders for heavy white woolen sweaters with caps to match, so when the season for winter sports begins, if you happen to be in a part of the country where snow means skating and tobogganing and snow shoeing and skiing, you will doubtless see many girls all clad in white.

Some of the new sweater costumes for little girls consist of pull-on knitted sweaters worn with short knitted skirts to match. The little skirt is a straight bit of knitting the width of the skirt's length. At one side of the knitting the ribbing is omitted for three or four stitches so as to give a plain edging that comes along the bottom of the skirt to produce a slight flare. The little knitted skirt is then mounted on a bodice of cotton or silk worn under the sweater.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

FOR FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1927

While the early morning is read by astrologers as rather menacing in its planetary government, the later hours of this day are well directed.

This is read as an unfavorable rule for investments for any sort of speculation.

Although routine business affairs should be satisfactory this sway is most unfortunate for any sort of commercial venture.

The seers foretell many alluring projects, which will tempt capital in the coming winter, but they warn against hasty decisions.

There is a forbidding sign for those who would borrow money today. Bankers will not be easily persuaded to lend while this rule of the stars prevails.

Writers should not expect to be lucky in selling their work today, but they have the promise of an unusually profitable winter.

Advertising and publicity will be even more sought than in the past, astrologers foretell, and they predict much profit from printer's ink.

In the afternoon and evening of this day benefic aspects rule meetings or conferences in which prominent men and women are interested.

Promoters and men who desire to obtain the co-operation of men of wealth should make the most of the late hours of this day.

There is a sign of much promise for the presentation of gifts under this rule. Benefits as well as gratitude will accrue.

Men and women of wealth will be inclined toward superb acts of generosity, it is foretold, and the nation will benefit greatly.

Art and music as well as educational institutions and hospitals are to be developed marvelously, it is prophesied.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year that is satisfactory in a financial way. They should push affairs.

Children born on this day have the best sort of forecast for their future. They should succeed in commercial careers and will not feel the need of money.

Peaceful sleep

Holding 13 Hearts Player Passes Bid

CROCKETT, Calif., Nov. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Oscar Pritz Crockett, wins the hand painted door knob for the part he played in a bridge game. He left the tablet for a moment during the deal and on returning found thirteen hearts in his hand.

"Ha ha", said Pritz to himself. "A little joke they're trying to play on me". He passed and figured that he had turned the laugh. One of the others made successful bid and Pritz laughingly revealed his hand. The other players assured him it was legitimate.

Terrible skin now lovely and clear

"AFTER three months of A regular treatment," writes Miss A., "I now have the clear complexion I used to dream about and long for. Only the girl who has suffered as I did, with continual eruptions on my face just when I wanted to look my best, can know how I felt. I feel I owe a lifelong debt of gratitude to the friend who told me the best thing to do. There's nothing like it. I tried everything and I know. Lotions and salves help but they don't get at the root of the trouble. Like most skin troubles mine were signs of poison in the body. Nujol cleared those all out in three months. I took a tablespoonful every night. Never missed once. I've got my reward now."

Churchill Wants Half Village Police To Protect Him At Nearby Country Home

LONDON, November 17 (United Press). — Winston Churchill is in trouble again. There are only two policemen in the village of Westerham, famous as the birthplace of General Wolfe. Churchill has a country house at Chartwell nearby. When he goes to Chartwell for week-ends he brings along with him a detective to protect him and his property, but when the detective is off duty he demands the presence of one Westerham policeman to guard his house, or, as is said by a member of the Westerham Council, "he has half the town force on night duty in his personal interest."

The councillors of Westerham are up in arms against what they call a scandal, and are demanding the fullest inquiry into Churchill's actions and his rights. The investigation is certain to add to the gaiety of nations and to furnish British cartoonists with a fund of interesting material.

INSTITUTE HOLDS ANNUAL BANQUET

Mount Pleasant People Spend Enjoyable Evening at Fee Residence.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Nov. 17.—The annual banquet of the Mount Pleasant branch of the Women's Institute, which was held on Monday evening, was a decided success. Too much cannot be said for the efforts put forth by the different committees in charge and for the hospitality of the genial host and hostess. Once again Mr. and Mrs. Norman Fee opened their home for the occasion. The large living room, transformed into the banquet hall, was very beautiful indeed. The predominating colors of the decorations were yellow and black.

The guests, who came with "merriment and jest" made another happy event to go down on record for the W. I. The menu consisted of roast goose, vegetables, pickles and various salads. Tea was served with cake and ice cream.

After doing justice to these good things, the toast mistress, Mrs. Eggleston, called order and the following toasts were given: "The King"; "The Institute," proposed by Mr. John Handley, responded to by Mrs. Ira Lowes; 'Mine Host and Hostess," proposed by Mrs. Melville Jones, responded to by Mrs. Norman Fee.

The guests then moved 'en masse' to the drawing room, where a program was given, with the president, Mrs. Ira Lowes, in the chair. The opening selection, "The Maple Leaf," with Mrs. Eggleston at the piano, was followed by community singing of a number of old familiar songs. Three young artists, each in her own line, were much appreciated. Piano selection by Miss Dorothy Morden; a recitation, Miss Verna Gardiner, and Miss Irene Shields a vocal selection.

The following are those who responded to the minute speeches: Mrs. Brown, 'What privileges does a watch provide for us"; Mrs. Ira Lowes, "How the Institute may help the community uplift; Mrs. Eggleston, "Value of time"; Mr. Thomas Graham a recitation, "Some one to care"; Mrs. John Handley, "Christmas joys"; Mr. Garnet Shields, "Powder or not to powder"; Mrs. Henry Lowes, "Education"; Miss Finley, "Hallowe'en"; Mrs. Clew Morden, A selection from a favorite poem; Mrs. Thomas Graham, "You and I as nation builders"; Mrs. Norman Fee, a selection having the thought of 'vigilance.' Last but certainly not least, Mrs. Garnet Shields, a recitation, 'Home.'

A five minute debate, 'Resolved, that the world is getting better,' was given. Those taking part were: Affirmative, Miss Finley, Mr. Garnet Shields. Negative, Miss Sanderson, Mr. Hubert Gardiner. Judges, Mrs. Norman Fee, Mrs. Henry Lowes and Mr. Harry Bland. Time-keeper, Mr. Clew Morden. A tie was his decision.

W.M.S. MEETING.

Mount Pleasant Branch of Society Held Meeting on Wednesday.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Nov. 16. — The Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. George Jamieson on Wednesday afternoon with an average attendance.

The meeting was conducted by the Vice-President, Mrs. Thomas Graham. "Suggestions and Demonstrations of Christmas Gifts" was the topic for the roll call, which was answered by the members with many helpful hints on Christmas shopping and gift-preparing.

Numerous correspondence was received during the month and read at the meeting. A letter from the Navy League asking for a donation from the Institute was voted on, and it was decided to send five dollars. From the Neighborhood Workers' Association asking for a donation of clothing, bedding, etc. From the department at Toronto announcing the approaching convention to be held in Toronto, Nov. 15, 16 and 17, and urging each branch to send one or more delegates to the convention, according to the number of members in the branch. A vote was taken, the result being that the majority of the members were not in favor of sending a delegate to the convention.

From the numerous requests for donations of clothing, bedding, etc., a discussion followed on the preparation of some clothing, quilts, etc. It was finally decided for each member to bring to the December meeting a block for a quilt. These blocks are to be of a uniform size of 18 inches square, consisting of nine blocks six inches square, the material to be of flannelette or dress goods. These quilts will be made up and held in reserve for some worthy association.

The programme of the meeting was in charge of Mrs. W. H. Lowes and Mrs. Brown, both of whom were absent from the meeting. A reading, "Farm Life From the Woman's Side of the Fence," was given by Mrs. Thomas Graham, which was enjoyed by all present.

Lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by the Lunch Committee, Mrs. Rutherford and Mrs. Richard Graham, and the usual social half-hour enjoyed, when all adjourned to meet at the home of Mrs. Richard Graham on Wednesday, Dec. 7, with Mrs. Chester Best and Mrs. Joshua Eggleston responsible for the program of the meeting, and Mrs. C. Morden and Mrs. John Handley to assist with the lunch.

Those who were present included: Mrs. Gertrude McLean, Mrs. C. Morden, Mrs. Hanna Rutherford, Mrs. Garnet Shields, Miss Dorothy Paragreen, Mrs. S. Paragreen, Mrs. Richard Graham, Mrs. Ira Lowe, Mrs. Rosenburg, Mrs. Thomas Graham and Mrs. Jamieson.

KING'S WHARF

KING'S WHARF, November 16. — The weather has been ideal for ploughing, but some places the ground is very hard and rain is wanted. Everyone who has clover is at present drawing it in, and it is very dry, as there was no rain. The cattle are still on the ranches and are doing fine, as there is plenty of good grass. The roots and the corn are all in. Corn is a poor crop in this locality. It was too wet and cold all summer for it.

On Wednesday evening a pleasant time was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Angus Twomey, when the members of St. Luke's Choir, Douneyville, gathered to spend an evening and for the purpose of a presentation on the occasion of Mr. Twomey's marriage. The present was a beautiful silver tea service. Mr. Ray Morrissey read the address and Mrs. Patrick Perdue made the presentation. Mr. Twomey, who is a member of the choir, thanked them for their present and hoped they would spend many evenings at his home in the near future. Father Galvin acted as chairman and addresses were also given by Frank Milloy, Paul McGuire, Clare Harrington, and others. A pleasant evening was spent, and all sang "For he's a jolly good fellow."

The Misses Irene, Florence, and Madeline Winn, of Peterborough, spent the week-end the guest of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Winn.

Miss Mabel Shine, of Lindsay, spent the week-end the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Patrick Duffy.

Miss Clara O'Neill, of Lindsay, spent the week-end the guest of her parents here.

The Misses Marguerite and Carmelita O'Neill, of Toronto, spent the holiday the guests of their parents here.

Messrs. Martin and Joseph Doran, of Ennismore, spent Sunday the guests of friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hoolihan and baby, of Peterborough, spent the week-end the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Morrissey.

LEAGUE HEARS TALK OF ARMISTIC NATURE

Attendance Good at Meeting at Zion—Chicken Thieves Busy.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Nov. 16. —League service on Thursday evening was quite well attended in spite of the rain, with thirty-four present. Of this number only one had not attended service on Sunday, so that almost double points were scored, with the Khaki leading. The contest standing to October 31 is as follows: White, 992 points; Blue, 765; Khaki, 1,032; Red, 894.

The meeting Thursday evening was in charge of Earl Fairman, missionary convener, with Fred Fry as leader. In addition to the usual business and devotional period, there was an interesting talk by Rev. C. Daniel. Miss Evelyn Totton gave a splendid address on "Thanksgiving." Earl Fairman gave a reading, entitled "November 11, 1927," in place of the usual topic, and a short sketch of the Bay of Quinte Young People's conference at Smith Falls was given by L. Anderson. Beginning with next meeting, the League service will commence at 7.30 instead of 8 o'clock.

A very enjoyable and profitable social time was spent in Sentinel Hall on Wednesday last when over forty members of Zion Ladies' Aid and their friends gathered for an old-time quilting bee. The ladies met during the forenoon, and some commenced the serious part of the program, while the younger members arranged tables and prepared the sumptuous dinner to which all did full justice. Four quilts were finished, as well as some articles of apparel to be used for missionary and charitable purposes. This event, which has become annual, is eagerly looked forward to by the ladies as it has become a real community re-union.

The threshing season is over at last, the final jobs being done during the past week. No one is sorry to have a disagreeable job finished.

Chickens Stolen.

A few farmers in this and neighboring communities have recently disposed of most of their hens, but not willingly. A few well-timed raids by some chicken-loving individuals have left several roosts quite bare.

Changes its own Records

Plays twelve records without attention.—Runs itself for a whole hour. No operating effort on your part.—Just listen.

WHEN you turn on the current, the turntable starts to revolve; a mechanical "hand" takes the first record from the group of twelve and places it on the turntable; the tone-arm moves into position; the sound-box is lowered and the music begins. At the end of the selection, the mechanical "hand" removes the record from the turntable, slides it gently into a felt-lined concealed drawer, and "picks off" the next record from the magazine arm. These operations are repeated until the last record is played, then the mechanism stops automatically.

So magnificent an instrument demands an exterior of exceptional beauty. Victor craftsmen have designed a distinguished cabinet for the Automatic Orthophonic Victrola, in which every luxurious touch that ingenuity can devise has been incorporated.

Dempsey Claims Kearns Tricked Him in Contract

COUNSEL SAYS CONTRACT ONLY SCRAP OF PAPER

Designed To Deceive the New York State Athletic Commission.

SIGNED BOTH NAMES.

Kearns Claims $333,333 As Earnings in Dempsey-Tunney Battle.

NEWARK, N.J., Nov. 17 (A.P.)—Honors were described as even by spectators who filled the tiny court room yesterday in which the legal battle between Jack Dempsey and his former manager, Jack Kearns, had its first round before Federal Judge William N. Runyon.

Kearns is suing the former champion for $333,333.33, alleging breach of a contract signed on September 22, 1923.

The trial got under way at noon with the selection of the jury, and ran smoothly enough until Arthur F. Driscoll, Dempsey's counsel, began his opening address to the jury, declaring that the alleged contract was "merely a scrap of paper designed to deceive the New York State Athletic Commission." He explained that it "was all right with Dempsey," and added that Kearns signed both names to the paper, realizing that it was "only a scrap of paper."

The document, however, was returned by the Commission and Dempsey himself signed the next one. It was only for the purpose of having the way for the Dempsey-Firpo fight, Driscoll announced, pointing out that Dempsey always shared 50-50 with Kearns, yet the contract called for a 67-33 split. The contract was signed on September 22, 1923, and was to be retroactive to September 14, the day of the Firpo fight, he said. Kearns said that the agreement was retroactive to August 3, 1923, and was effective until August 3, 1926.

Arthur N. Eager, of Kearns' counsel, opened for the plaintiff with a caustic attack upon Dempsey, Judge Runyon calling a foul only when he began painting Dempsey as a tramp of the road. Sager swept quickly through the background of the litigation, telling of the contract and how it bound Dempsey to pay over to Kearns one-third of what he would have received if he failed to carry out any engagement Kearns contracted for him. In all engagements executed Kearns was to receive half, he said.

The plaintiff, went on the lawyer, signed contracts for Dempsey to fight Harry Wills and Gene Tunney in 1926, with a $500,000 guarantee for Dempsey in each, and it was upon the boxer's alleged refusal to carry out these that the suit was based.

Dempsey, at that time, Kearns' counsel charged, was travelling in Europe and elsewhere, taking part in exhibitions. Rickard finally signed him up to fight Tunney in Philadelphia, in which the title changed hands. In that fight, taking place in September, 1926, Dempsey had a guarantee of $500,000, Sager said. He added that he had reason to believe, from what he has heard and read in the newspapers, that Dempsey actually got $820,000 for that fight.

"Tex Rickard," Sager said, "stepped in between fighter and manager, and lured Dempsey away."

Kearns also seeks an accounting of all the money received by Dempsey in exhibition bouts and other engagements which were without the consent of Kearns, Sager added.

As though the court room were the scene of a championship battle, well known gate crashers and bright stars of the boxing world appeared from far and near.

Police reserves were called out to handle the vast crowd which gathered in front of the Chamber of Commerce Building, in Branford Place, where the 75-man court room is located. The crowd flowed in and out of the building, halting traffic and impeding hurrying office workers.

It was indicated last night that, on account of the illness of Arthur F. Driscoll of Dempsey's counsel, that the trial would not be resumed today.

Operator's Mistake

NEWARK, N.J., Nov 17 (A.P.)—Although Jack Dempsey, Tex Rickard, and about twenty others believed they narrowly escaped death yesterday when the elevator in which they were riding "dropped" from the ninth floor to the basement of the Chamber of Commerce Building, it was only an elevator operator's mistake.

It had been planned to have Dempsey to go to the basement of the building to avoid the crowds. In the building there is only one elevator that goes below the street level.

Dempsey and his party didn't take that elevator and when the operator of the car in which they rode was instructed not to stop before he got to the basement, in the excitement of having such personages riding with him, forgot his machine didn't go below the first floor.

After passing the first floor doors on its descent, the car stopped with barely a jolt. The power had been automatically cut off.

"Gosh," Frank Udistky, operator of the car, said.

NO CHANGES IN THE O.H.A. PLAYING RULES

Present Code Eminently Satisfactory to the Big Association.

CHANGE IN FINALS.

Best Two Out of Three Games is Proposed.

TORONTO, November 17. — The 38th annual meeting of the Ontario Hockey Association, will be held in Toronto on Saturday morning at ten o'clock. All clubs in the association are requested to send representatives to the meeting. The delegates will be the guests of the Maple Leaf Hockey Club and Arena Gardens at the pro. game in the evening.

There is very little of a contentious nature in the suggested amendments which have been sent out to the clubs.

No Change in Playing Rules.

There will be no changes made in the playing rules this year. The present code has proved eminently satisfactory.

Attention is called to the rule which goes into effect this year that the maximum width of goal-keepers' pads is 10 inches lying flat, instead of 12 inches as heretofore.

This rule was passed a year ago, to go into effect season of 1927-28.

That it be a recommendation to the Canadian Hockey Association that beginning the season of 1928 the present 30-minute overtime rule be abolished and that the games be decided by the first goal scored in the overtime, with a maximum limit overtime, ten minutes play each way.

Two out of Three Games in Finals.

It is suggested that all final games, senior intermediate and junior be a series of best two out of three games. Home and home games shall be played, and if an extra game is necessary it shall be played on neutral artificial ice at the discretion of the O.H.A. executive committee.

The arrangements shall also apply to the junior play-offs with the N. O.H.A. champions.

The intermediate playoff between the O.H.A. and N.O.H.A. champions shall be two games, goals to count, the winner to play off best two out of three games, with the O.H.A. senior champions; all of these games to be played at Arena Gardens Toronto.

Tightening Amateur Rule.

The following suggested clauses are to be added to the amateur rule:

"An amateur cannot sign a contract agreeing to take a professional position in athletics or to take part in any athletic sport for money.

"An amateur cannot receive any compensation for using the goods or apparatus of any firm, manufacturer or agent, nor shall he allow his name to be used as means of advertising or recommending the goods of any manufacturer or firm.

"Any player who for a consideration, monetary or otherwise, binds himself directly or indirectly, to play hockey with any particular club at any future date, is automatically suspended until the case is dealt with in accordance with the regulations."

Past Presidents' Privileges.

There is an amendment to permit of past presidents being invited to all meetings of the executive committee instead of two meetings as at present but without a vote.

Other suggestions are as follows:

The sub-committee of the association shall consist of the president, the secretary and the treasurer, with the immediate past president and A.A.U. of C. Governor as alternates in case of the inability of any of those named to attend any sub-committee meeting.

The president of the O.H.A. shall be the official representative of this association on the executive committee of the Canadian Hockey Association. Where other C.A.H.A. delegates are necessary they shall be appointed by the O.H.A. Executive Committee.

Regulating Industrial Hockey.

In connection with industrial hockey it is suggested that the O.H.A. endorse the principle laid down in the following resolution, which was carried at the annual meeting of the Ontario Branch A.A.U. of C.:

"Whereas, if the primary object of industrial athletics is to promote recreation for employees, be it resolved that it is not in the best interests of amateur athletics that athletes should participate in athletic games for industrial firms, for which they are not bona fide employees;

"And further, that the best interest of amateur sport would be served by not granting amateur cards to athletes who participate in so-called industrial or commercial sport where the same is not 100 per cent. industrial."

Also for the O.H.A. to supplement this by adopting the following amendment:

"Commercial clubs wishing to use players registered with the Ontario Hockey Association must register these players with this association in accordance with the regulations of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

"In addition, an O.H.A. player may play for the firm by whom he is employed and for no other industrial firm or organization.

"When an O.H.A. player signs his certificate he must state the name of the firm by whom he is employed, and he cannot play for any other industrial team during the current season, except with the consent of the O.H.A. Executive Committee."

"Exceptions" To Residence Rule.

Two suggestions are made as "exceptions" to the May 15 residence rule, as follows:

(1) When prior to October 1 an employer changes the residence of an employee who has had six months' continuous service prior to this change of residence, and that player still continues in that same employment during the whole of the playing season. Players receiving certificates under this clause automatically forfeit them if they leave that service, or

(2) When in the case of a boy (under 20 years of age on Jan. 1), the parents and family change their residence and the boy continues to reside with his family.

CHART SHOWING NEW N.H.L. RULES

Hockey fans should study this chart. Contrary to the general impression, the National Hockey League rulemakers did not make many changes this season. Only one real change was made and that was the addition of the C.A.H.A. rule regarding no offside in the defense areas by defending players. This is easily explained with the aid of the chart displayed above. The diagram above illustrates the change in the rules with regard to offsides and kicking the puck. Last season in pro. hockey offside play and kicking the puck was legal for both sides in the centre zone. This year the defending side may kick or play offside in their own defense zone as well as in the centre zone, and the referees were instructed that any player who was wholly behind any blue line may go forward into the next area and play a puck passed there by a man behind him, provided that the puck crosses the line before he does.

Must Defend Title Against Lombski

NEW YORK, November 17.—Canadian Press. — Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo, must defend his light heavyweight crown against Leo Lombski, of Aberdeen, Wash., within 30 days, or forfeit the title, according to an edict, by Thomas E. Donohue, president of the National Boxing Association yesterday.

Slattery is the champion of the National Boxing Association, which embraces a membership in Canada and 24 states, whereas Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia is recognized as a standard bearer of his class by the New York and Pennsylvania boxing Commissions.

"JOEY" SANGOR

Don't overlook "Joey" Sangor of Milwaukee when considering the likely featherweights. Recently at Los Angeles, Sangor won a close decision over the sensational 'Bud' Taylor, a big favorite in California. The two drew better than a $30,000 gate and the fans are yelling for a return match. Sangor has been threatening for several years and appears to have arrived finally.

Yankees Will Build 15,000 More Seats

NEW YORK, November 17 (Associated Press). — The Yankee Stadium will come a bit closer next year to seating the hundreds of thousands who applied this fall for tickets to the Army-Notre Dame and Army-Navy football classics.

The business office of the American League club announced yesterday that stands adding 15,000 to the seating capacity of the park would be ready for the fall rush of 1928. The new tiers, to be added to the left field side of the present stands, will bring the seating capacity to 85,000, largest in the East with the exception of the Sesqui-Centennial Stadium at Philadelphia, and exceeded in the West only by Soldier Field in Chicago.

TUNNEY WARS WITH RICKARD

Resents Promoter's Business Interest in Former Heavyweight Champion.

READY TO BREAK.

NEW YORK, November 17. — The smiling Gene Tunney, who left two weeks ago for an outing at Racquette Lake, N.Y., was back in town to-day "fighting mad" and ready to declare war on Tex Rickard. The reason was "Tex Rickard's business activities with Jack Dempsey" and its result was a new type of Tunney whose eyes flashed angrily as he talked with jaw tilted pugnaciously.

"I have no definite statement to make at this time," Gene said grimly, "pending the result of investigations I am making in regard to Rickard's business activities with Dempsey. But you can bet everything you own that things in the heavyweight championship fight situation in 1928 will not turn out the way Mr. Rickard hopes and thinks they will."

Wants Three Bouts.

Tunney declared that although he wishes to fight three times in 1928 he will not see the promoter for some time, and then only to arrange for the single battle Rickard's contract calls for in the coming year.

"If I fight only once it will be because I get licked in the first bout and retire," he said. "After all, I am heavyweight champion of the world, and the champion should have something to say about where and when and whom he fights.

"I have lost money and put myself in embarrassing and critical positions before by being too trustful and believing everyone to be fair and absolutely honest. From now on I am looking out for the best interests of three persons only—and they are Gene Tunney, Billy Gibson, and Bill McCabe.

Protected by Contract.

"Rickard claims to have an ironbound contract with me that allows him to dictate to me about whatever I do in my boxing career. But my contract, drawn by capable lawyers, protects me and gives me the legal right as well as the right of the champion to say something about what I shall do in my profession. Rickard can dictate to Dempsey and a lot of other heavyweights, but he can no longer dictate to me."

The titleholder said he plans to visit Detroit and Cleveland after several weeks here. About the middle of December, he will leave for Florida for an extended stay.

HOLD WORK-OUT DURING DOWNPOUR

Batstone May Appear on Field For Saturday's Game.

KINGSTON, Ont., Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press.)—Practicing on a field that was covered with mud, while rain fell continuously, Queen's champions had a tough work-out yesterday afternoon at the Richardson Stadium in preparation for the game with Hamilton Tigers on Saturday. The field was a quagmire, as rain had been falling heavily all day, and last night there was a harder downpour than ever.

Excepting Harry Batstone and "Chick" Mundell, all the players on the squad were out to practice. Batstone's knee is still troubling him, but it is fast responding to treatment, and it is now considered likely he will be on the field when the game is started Saturday. It is a question however, how long he will be able to play, though Carter was yesterday being groomed for the kicking task, and may take up this end of the play on Saturday in order to relieve Batstone, and thereby allow the Queen's star to remain in the game longer.

The players were mud and water from head to foot at the end of their two hours' practice yesterday, for Coach Carson seemed entirely oblivious of the conditions, and drove the team at the same pace they travelled in fine weather and on a dry gridiron.

Whether Queen's will work an aerial attack on Tigers remains to be seen, and it is merely a question of the weather. The tri-color players are all in the pink of condtion except Batstone. The latter will have his knee bound up with a leather guard and expects himself to be in shape for the full game.

Yesterday another rush for tickets was experienced and only a few bleacher seats and track seats remain unsold. On Thursday the team will line up against Jimmy Wright's team of intermediates and "ineligibles."

Equally responsible with the new All-Weather Tread for the quality of the new Goodyear Balloon is SUPERTWIST, the Goodyear cord which adds immensely to the life and ability of the Goodyear Balloon carcass — because SUPERTWIST cords stretch and rebound like rubber ropes under the blows of the road.

LADY BOWLERS HONOR MEMBER

Make Presentation To Mrs. H. Niven, Who is Leaving City.

A very enjoyable event took place at the home of Mrs. M. Bredin, Charlotte street on Tuesday evening when the members of the Peterborough Ladies' Lawn Bowling Club assembled to honor one of their members, Mrs. H. Niven, who is removing to Toronto next week. The following address was read by Mrs. George Johnson:

Dear Mrs. Niven:

We, the members of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club, feel that we cannot let you leave us without some small remembrance of the good times we have enjoyed together. We ask you to accept this small token, hoping you will enjoy bowling with the Toronto ladies as much as we have enjoyed bowling with you.

Signed on behalf of the Club,
EDITH JOHNSON
ROSE BREDIN

Mrs. Niven was presented with a beautiful silver comport by Mrs. Bredin.

Although taken entirely by surprise Mrs. Niven expressed her thanks to the club and voiced her regrets at leaving the city and her friends of the bowling club. She extended a hearty invitation to the members to visit her in her new home. The evening was spent in playing bridge and progressive euchre. The bridge prize, donated by Mrs. W. A. Greenslade, was won by Mrs. F. Miller.

The euchre prize won by Mrs. K. Shadgett and Mrs. T. Skinner, were donated by Mrs. G. Borland and Mrs. H. Graham.

Dainty refreshments were served by members of the Social Committee of the Club.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

THE LITTLE JUDGES

God save us from the little judges,
Not judges other men elect,
But just the self-appointed judges,
Who virtue doubt, and vice expect.
For these set up their little courts,
Hear gossip, rumors and reports,
And then, without a pause for breath,
Pass sentences of life and death.

But who escapes the little judges?
They know, and nothing need to learn,
For, tried before the little judges,
You never get your chance or turn.
They do not care to listen to Another's words, another's view:
A little knowledge they possess,
And then proceed the rest to guess.

But God shall judge the little judges
Who dared their brothers to condemn,
Will punish all the little judges,
Even as they have punished them.
I think He'll have a special flame
For her who sears a sister's name,
A special brimstone will provide
For those who only heard one side.

TIGER FLOWERS DIES SUDDENLY

Former Middleweight Champion Had Undergone Minor Operation.

COLORFUL FIGHTER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Theodore "Tiger" Flowers, former middleweight champion of the world, and one of the most popular negroes in the ring, died last night in a private hospital. News of his death came as a surprise as it had been announced that he was rallying and in satisfactory condition following a minor operation for the removal of a growth over his left eye.

The announcement was made through the office of Walk Milder, Flowers' manager, after information concerning the fighter's condition had been refused by Dr. W. G. Fralick, head of the private hospital, where the operation was performed late yesterday. Dr. Fralick performed the operation.

The former champion, more known to fight fans as the 'Georgia Deacon,' was to have fought Mickey Walker within sixty days, the latter having been ordered by the National Boxing Association to meet Flowers within that time or stand suspended in the N. B. A. territory, including twenty-five States.

Wins Title From Greb.

Flowers sprang into fistic prominence by knocking out in quick succession Bob Lawson, Jack Townsend and Tut Jackson at the Harlem Arena in 1924. He won the middleweight championship of the world February 26, 1926, by winning over Harry Greb in 15 rounds. Greb died under almost similar circumstances in October, 1926. He lost his title to Mickey Walker on a decision in Chicago, December 3 of the same year.

Flowers was a colorful battler, who wore down his opponents with tireless energy. He was known as one of the most gentlemanly fighters in the game.

His projected meeting with Walker was agreed to, according to Flowers' manager, before the Chicago fight. Legal measures were planned, it was said, to force the present champion to meet the negro here.

Flowers' last battle in New York took place November 12, when he knocked out Leo Gates, a heavyweight in four rounds.

The negro battler, one of the busiest present day fighters, won 19 contests this year and seemed due for another chance at his old title, due to legal measures planned at Madison Square Garden yesterday to secure a match with Mickey Walker. Flowers fought twice last week, gaining a draw with Maxie Rosenbloom in Detroit on November 9, before knocking out Leo Gates, heavyweight, in four rounds here last Saturday.

Flowers, 32 years old, is survived by a widow and one child.

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT.

"CAPTAIN SALVATION"
A SAGA OF THE SEA

The romance of the old days when men braved the sea in square-rigged ships—when hardships and hardtack were the sailor's lot; when glorious romance gilded the terrific struggle of man against the elements—these are the things echoed in "Captain Salvation," Cosmopolitan's vivid drama of the high seas now playing at the Regent Theatre.

"Captain Salvation" is a saga of adventure; a story of strong, sometimes brutal men, in a strong, sometimes brutal calling; a story of terrific emotions and terrific adventure; a play so gripping that it leaves the audience fairly gasping at its intensity.

Adapted from the novel by Frederick William Wallace and directed by John S. Robertson, it is played largely on a ship on the high seas; an actual sea voyage was made in an old time clipper ship for these scenes, which are so intensly genuine that the actors themselves found it an adventure of their lives, and, on the screen, the audience senses this tang of genuine peril in the remarkable play.

One of the outstanding figures is Ernest Torrence, as the brutal sea captain, laughing while men went to torture; gloating as they screamed their agonies on his hell-ship.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer gave the land scenes splendid settings, and Robertson, in his direction showed the same artistry that made "The Bright Shawl" and others of his successes famous.

FOOD PRESERVATION

One of the chief difficulties of the primitive man was his lack of knowledge of ways and means for the preservation of food. Even in the Babylonian days it is apparent that the people at that time had not learned how to preserve flesh foods against decay, and were therefore forced to eat such food as meat, fowl, and fish within a day or two after killing.

The primitive man learned to dry herbs and roots to keep them sound against decay and conserve them for the time when they were not plentiful, but it seems that only the North American Indian understood the art of drying meats. He cut the meat into thin strips and dried them in the sun. This preserved the meat for weeks and even months, and supplied the tribe with flesh food during the winter and when game was scarce.

I was surprised recently when visiting small Mexican towns quite close to the United States border that the butchers do not have any way of preserving meat except to hang it in screened enclosures to keep out the flies. The customer is limited in his selection, as usually only one kind of meat is available until the whole carcass of the animal is sold. Of course, the meat gets pretty ripe in a few days.

The greatest advance in food preservation came when a Frenchman named Tellier invented the first cold storage process in the year 1876, when he shipped a load of steer meat from South America to England. The French were so doubtful of the success of refrigeration that they would not allow the meat to land in France, and so Tellier sold the meat in England, and probably started the English on their roast beef habits.

It is only a little over fifty years since this revolutionary refrigeration method was tried, and its application has completely changed our dietetic habits.

While meats are, undoubtedly, one of our most nutritious foods, great care had to be exercised in their use prior to this time because of the putrefactive processes which so easily set in.

Now, when meats are properly refrigerated there is little change in the nutritive qualities and practically no decomposition for over many years.

If the viscera are completely removed before the meat is put into cold storage there will be no injurious changes and, in fact, the meat so preserved is more readily digested than when fresh. Many vegetarians and dietitians do not seem to realize this fact, and their arguments that flesh foods are unwholesome are based mostly upon contentions which were often true a half century ago.

Again, man's ingenuity has triumphed over nature, and the plentiful use of ice when needed has broadened the scope of our dietetic horizon.

Questions and Answers.

Question: E. L. M. writes: "I am troubled most of the time by a drowsy heavy feeling. It does not necessarily follow eating. I sometimes have it immediately upon arising. Will you please tell me the cause and remedy?"

Answer: You are probably suffering from some kind of toxic condition. Try eating less and exercising more. Take a good walk twice daily, finishing with a cold shower each time.

Question: Mrs. C. J. writes: "I would like to know what you think of using baking soda in cooking vegetables?"

Answer: I do not recommend the use of soda in cooking vegetables as it is wholly unnecessary if the vegetables are properly cooked, although I do not believe that the use of bicarbonate of soda is particularly injurious.

Question: J. L. writes: "I am a daily reader of your articles, and I would be deeply indebted to you if you would answer the following questions in your column. Nobody seems to be able to answer the first one: (1) What is the cause of appendicitis? (2) Is there any way of curing it outside of an operation? (3) Is it a dangerous operation?"

Answer: (1) Inflammation of the appendix is mostly caused by constipation, and any bad eating habits which will bring on colitis. (2) Most cases can be cured by dieting, and colon cleanliness. (3) The average operation for this trouble is not dangerous, as it is seldom more than an inflamed condition. If pus has developed, the operation may be dangerous.

John Barrymore in "WHEN A MAN LOVES" is a Warner Bros. Pic turization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

In old France, Fabien, a youth as handsome as good, awaits a coach to bear him away to train for the priesthood. In Amiens he meets Manon Lescaut, a beauteous orphan, being taken to a Convent by her only relative, a brother, who doesn't want to be bothered with her. The brother, seeing Ravoir, a rich connoisseur of women, feasting his eyes upon her, suddenly realizes Manon's worldly value, and barters her for gold to Ravoir, who plans to take her to Paris. Manon is bullied into the agreement by her brother. Fabien, meanwhile, seeks to help her.

CHAPTER III.—Continued.

Slowly Manon began to realize that someone in the courtyard was trying to attract her attention. It was Fabien. He had been waiting patiently for Lescaut's departure.

When Manon saw him he was gazing at her with worship and true adoration in his eyes. His whole attitude and the comfort he seemed to inspire made her feel that he was the one person in the world she could trust. She held her hands appealing toward him.

With an expression denoting only unselfish love and tenderness Fabien answered her call for help.

Moving quickly over toward the low hung balcony, he impulsively climbed up the jutting stone wall and grasped the railing so that he could look adoringly at her.

"There are tears in your eyes—"

"They will go away now," she replied tremulously, but when more tears continued to come she explained, "My brother has made some miserable plans or me and my heart is breaking."

"I know—I heard them talking. That is why I am here."

"But nothing can be done. Apparently it is the will of Heaven."

The sweetness of Manon's expression and the air of sorrow with which she announced her fate so affected Fabien that without a moment's thought of what might be involved he said, impulsively:

"You have inspired me with a tender interest. Trust to my honor and I will sacrifice my life to save you from the tyranny of this situation."

"Oh, if you could I shall owe you more than life itself could repay."

"No, not that—just trust me more than anyone else in the world."

"I do trust you, Monsieur, and I—I—need a friend."

Fabien's hand went out to hers in protection. As they looked deeply into each other's eyes the moment was too big for either of them to speak.

A noise in the stable yard drew their attention that way, and Manon cried out in sick realization as she saw the coachman climb on the box and gather up the reins that held four prancing horses in check.

"That is the coach that the Comte has ordered to take you away." Both of Fabien's hands tightened over Manon's slender ones.

"I can't go with him!" cried Manon, looking hopefully at Fabien.

Slowly he grasped her meaning. She was suggesting that he take her away. The very thought made him forget his boyhood.

Trembling with emotion, he inquired, "Will you trust yourself to me?"

"Oh, yes! . . . . Wait while I get my things."

Manon forgot her former terror, and running into the room gathered up her bag and little Fifi. She was back on the balcony in a moment, her arms full.

With difficulty Fabien helped her over the railing and they began their dangerous and thrilling ascent to the ground. Like two children on a lark they raced across the courtyard and drew up breathlessly at the waiting coach.

Fabien opened the door with a lordly gesture, and turning to Manon said, "May I help you in—and here is your bag and basket!"

Fabien was fast learning that he was less a boy than he had imagined.

The man on the box looked down protestingly, "This coach was ordered for the Comte De Ravoir."

"Well?" thundered Fabien threateningly. Then with an eloquent swing he took out a purse of gold from his belt, and tossed it indifferently to the coachman.

"Your pardon, M'sieu le Comte," apologized the man. "I had not expected to see so young a gentleman."

Fabien raised his hand in a gesture that seemed to signify, All right, but no more mistakes from now on. Then he said, "Just a moment and we will pull out with all speed."

A clever thought had come to Fabien, and dashing into the stables he disappeared from sight for a few seconds. When he climbed into the coach with Manon he wore a worldly expression of cunning and satisfaction that would have amazed the Bishop.

With the crack of a long whip and the clatter of horses' hoofs, the coach started down the road.

In the meantime, Lescaut had been vainly searching the Inn for Manon. In chagrin and desperation he was finally forced to admit to the Comte that he could not find her.

"What?" The Comte paused in the midst of ordering the servants to carry his luggage to the coach. "She must be about some place!"

Lescaut glanced out the door rather than meet the Comte's eyes. He saw the coach going down the highway. Grasping the Comte's arm he cried in amazement, "My God! There is Manon—see her through the rear window—and there is a man with her!"

This last was uttered as Fabien's head came through the window, urging the coachman to lash the horses into greater speed.

Lescaut and the Comte hastened out into the courtyard.

They were joined by Tiberge, Fabien's friend, who had recognized his fellow student as Manon's companion. Tiberge had a singular affection for his friend and from what he had seen of Fabien's strange actions he suspected the youth's passion. He wanted to save him from ruin. But was it too late? Unconsciously Tiberge fingered the rosary at his belt and whispered a prayer for Fabien's salvation.

"Landlord!" shouted Lescaut frantically.

The fat little man came running from the Inn.

"Prepare some horses immediately! We must overtake the coach."

Lescaut was in a furious temper. To think that inexperienced Manon could get away from him just when she had become a valuable property! Putting aside his own annoyance he tried to soothe the Comte as they walked hurriedly toward the stable.

No sooner had they arrived than the landlord met them at the door with this startling news, "There is not a horse in the stalls! The young scoundrel cut them all loose before he left."

"But we must overtake them!" whined the Comte impatiently.

"Impossible, Sir. There are no horses in the countryside that can overtake the ones I assigned to that coach."

In hopeless, temporary defeat, Lescaut and the Comte retired to the inn to plan on setting a trap for Manon as soon as she arrived in Paris with her young escort.

CHAPTER IV.

Manon was on her knees, perched up on the seat, looking out the small back window of the coach at her brother and the wealthy roue, from whom Fabien had just saved her. As a bend in the road hid the courtyard from sight she settled down into the seat with a great sigh of relief.

"Do you suppose they will come after us?" This was a new worry.

"They may want to," consoled Fabien. But they will have a hard time getting started because I turned all the horses loose just before we left."

This amused Manon and she laughed delightedly. It was the first time Fabien had seen her in a gay mood. The laugh was so infectious that he joined her in sheer delight. Again they were like two youngsters on a day's excursion, with no thought of trouble to mar their enjoyment.

Gropingly Fabien's hand went in search of Manon's. A thrill of ecstacy passed through them at the warm contact, and sitting close together they looked trustingly into each other's eyes.

Fabien's heart expanded to include a thousand bits of pleasure of which until now he had not the remotest idea. A delicious consciousness of enjoyment spread through his mind and soul. He sank into a kind of delirium in which he thought only of the beautiful trusting young girl at his side and the fact that he was her chosen escort.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Mrs. Mary Kennedy was working in her kitchen when she heard a faint call for help. For a long time she couldn't locate the sound, although she recognized it as the voice of her 11-year-old son, Eugene. Finally she traced it to the wall just behind the kitchen stove, and called firemen. They tore out the wall and rescued Eugene from where he had fallen through the chimney from the roof. An ambulance surgeon examined him, and said, "All he needs is a bath."

External treatments seldom banish Piles.

The cause is inside—bad circulation.

The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send fresh, healthy blood to the raw, sensitive membranes. Internal treatment is one safe method. Ointments and other external treatments can't give lasting relief.

J. S. Leonhardt, M.D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in hundreds of cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at McDermid & Jury, McDermid Drug Co., who will gladly refund the purchase prices to any dissatisfied customer.

THE CONQUEST OF THE AIR — VIII — by Nicholas Afonsky

On June 5, 1783, the crowd invited to the first exhibition of the Montgolfier brothers saw a big bag of paper and linen hanging limply from a rope. The bag was sewed fast to a big wooden ring, which was suspended over a deep pit in which was heaped wood for a fire.

At a signal, one of the brothers put a torch to the bonfire, and it burst into flame. Its smoke went through the hooped opening of the bag, and soon the big balloon began to fill. Two men tended the fire, adding fresh fuel, and eight men held down the big balloon with ropes until it was full.

Then they let go the ropes and the huge globe ascended and sailed majestically away. Men shouted and threw their hats into the air, women wept and fell on their knees and prayed. A little later peasants in a field not far away were astonished to see a great moon descending upon them.

Armed with pitchforks and scythes, and led by the village priest, they attacked this supposed evil omen. They prodded and slashed at the gently heaving balloon, which had lighted on the ground, until it was all in shreds. Then they tied it to a horse's tail and beat him until he dashed away.

PETES AND ST. JOHN'S TEAMS WORKING OUT

The Peterborough Seniors began their long grind last night when a big squad gathered at Brock street rink for the first training record. Running was the chief exercise taken by the players and they put in some useful work. There will be another workout to-night in the rink at 7.30 o'clock.

The St. John's Junior O.H.A. club had an hour's drilling in St. John's Parish Hall last night with Joe Gaskell and Joe Dunkerly in charge. The new junior team is being put through a complete course of army physical training, a set of exercises that promises to have them in good shape when they take to the ice. As the exercises are different each night a full attendance is expected at all the workouts, which finish up with a run outside, and showers at the Y.M.C.A. To-night's workout at St. John's will be at 8 o'clock and all players intending to try out with St. John's are asked to be on hand.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the cresote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

"If I Should Die"

NEW YORK, November 17. — "Tiger" Flowers a deacon in a church at Atlanta, Ga., where he made his home, wore the famous "Tiger" bathrobe that has appeared in rings all over the country, when he walked to the operating room yesterday afternoon. After a few breaths of ether, he murmered his last words:

"If I should die before I wake,
I pray the Lord my soul to take."

P. BLACK'S PROGRESS.

Since entering business I have felt that I could do nothing better than give the public consistent square dealing, believing that it would eventually bring success to any plodding business man.

We can receive no better compliment than to have it said of us that we are just what we appear to be.

Looking back sixteen years ago, when we opened a small store in the Lundy Block, contrasting it now with our two busy stores, located in the same spot, corner George and King streets, we feel that we must have enjoyed a considerable degree of confidence of the public that has made this possible.

Recently we have been engaged in redecorating the interior of our two stores, so that it will be a pleasant place to shop.

Just now we are conducting a four days economical sale, and we wish you to believe that the values that we are offering are just as reliable on this occasion as they have been in the past.

TO THE READERS OF THE EXAMINER

A number of girls and women have entered a contest promoted by The Examiner for the gathering of personal and social and general news items in all parts of the town and the field of this newspaper.

We ask for these young folks encouragement and assistance. They will gain in many ways. They will be using part of their time in learning to earn. They will be improving their mental equipment for school work. They will be helping to make The Examiner more "newsy" for ALL its READERS. And they will be paid for what they do, besides having the opportunity, through their industry, to win special weekly prizes.

The average woman, if asked, would say that the Personal and Social news in her home paper commands her first and principal attention. Many of the "men folks" also find it interesting.

But there can be no Personal and Social department without the good-will and co-operation of the readers. The Examiner has long enjoyed this co-operation. We now ask our readers to remember that if they like to read personals, about other folks, they must not object to seeing their own names in print, providing the news is clean and decent—and these contestants will seek no other kind, and they have been particularly instructed not to give offense, not to be too persistent, not to become bothersome.

Many of these contestants will be known to you — perhaps neighbors or the daughters of personal friends. Help them to be successful in this contest. They will gain in education, experience and purse. You will gain in reading a more "newsy" paper.

Your Home Newspaper is as Good as Its Readers Help to Make It.

OBITUARY

MRS. ROBERT HOBSON

HAMILTON, Nov. 17 (Canadian Press).—Mrs. Hobson, widow of Robert Hobson, who was president of the Steel Company of Canada, died at her home here today.

RT. HON. C. G. MASTERMAN.

LONDON, November 17 (Canadian Press). — Right Hon. Charles Frederick Gurney Masterman, former Liberal Minister and widely known journalist, died in a London nursing home to-day.

WALTER DYER

The death took place yesterday at Nicholls Hospital, after a short and painful illness of Walter, better known in military and band circles as "Dad" Dyer. The deceased was born at Tiverton, Devonshire, England, in 1865. At the age of 14 years he joined the 3rd Devonshire Regimental Band; after many years of faithful service with this band, in which he acquired great knowledge of music and band organization, he was promoted to Bandmaster of the 4th Devonshire Regimental Band in 1908, and continued as such until 1913, when he came with his family to Canada, and settled in Peterborough. He immediately became interested in the 57th Battalion and became a member of the band. On the formation of the 93rd Battalion, "Daddy," although over fifty years of age, enlisted with this unit and proceeded overseas in 1916 together with three of this sons. On his return to Canada, he became a member of the local branch of the G.W.V.A. and at once became active in the organization of a Veterans' Band, and under his guidance this band became one of the most efficient bands in Veteran circles of that time.

On the reorganization of the Peterborough Rangers "Daddy" once again played his part, and was a member up to the time of his death. His loss will no doubt be a sad blow to his comrades of the band, and to the officers and members of the regiment with whom he had served for many years. His cheery word and pleasant smile will be sadly missed both at the band rehearsals and when on parade with the battalion. He leaves to mourn his loss, besides his sorrowing widow, four sons, Will, Frank, and Reg. of this city, and Jack, of Ottawa; two daughters, Mrs. F. Simmonds, also of this city, and Mrs. Cyril Cutt of Rochester; one sister in England, and ten grandchildren.

The funeral will be held under the auspices of the local branch of the Canadian Legion. The body will lie in state in the main auditorium of the Legion Hall on Saturday morning, and the service will be held at 2 p.m. By kind permission of Lt.-Col. W. G. Hall, a firing party will be provided, and a military funeral will be carried out as far as is practicable. All members of the Canadian Legion, and all ex-service men are requested to parade at the hall sharp at 2 p.m. The cortege will leave headquarters at 2.30 p.m., proceeding to Little Lake Cemetery, where interment will take place.

WILLIAM GEORGE TELFORD.

The death occurred in this city today of William George Telford, of the Township of Smith. The deceased was in his 64th year ,and was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Telford.

He leaves to mourn his loss his sorrowing wife, two sons Grattan and Harold of Smith, one brother Robert of Smith, and three sisters Mrs. John Grant and Mrs. John Logan of this city and Mrs. William Nicholls of Bridgenorth.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, Chemong Road on Saturday at 2 p.m., and proceed to Little Lake Cemetery, with Rev. W. S. Edgar officiating.

CASE DISMISSED.

Charge Arising From Motor Accident is Thrown Out.

OMEMEE, Nov. 17.— Thursday was police court day in Omemee. Only one case was on the docket, that of License Inspector Porter, of Lindsay, against Mr. Wilson, of Toronto. The case in question came up as a result of a recent accident on the Downeyville-Omemee road, when Mr. Wilson's car and Mr. T. H. McQuade's car came together. Several witnesses were heard on behalf of the defendant, all of whom testified to the sobricty of Mr. Wilson. Evidence was also given against him, but was not sufficient to prove him guilty, and Police Magistrate Jordan dismissed the case.

Mr. Richardson, of Toronto Ontario Motor League Council, acted on behalf of the defendant ,and J. E. Anderson was Crown prosecutor.

BRIDGEMAN ANNOUNCES NEW NAVAL POLICY

STORY OF LAWRENCE'S REFUSAL TO ACCEPT HONORS FROM KING IS REVEALED IN FRIEND'S BOOK

Hero of War in Arabia Felt Dishonored Because Promises Not Upheld.

DECLINED V. C.

King Recalls That Lawrence Said He Might Have To Fight Against Britain.

LONDON, Nov. 18 (Canadian Press) —How Colonel Lawrence, who lived with the Arabs with a price on his head, organized them to drive the Turks out of Syria during the war and made Emir Feisal King of Irak, refused the decorations and honors which King George offered him was revealed to-day. Lawrence's friend, Robert Graves, poet and professor of English literature at an Egyptian University, in his book, "Lawrence and the Arabs," just published, tells Lawrence's version of his interview with the King.

Colonel Lawrence, who as Aircraftsman Shaw, is now serving in the Indian Air Force, by his own choice as a private, told Graves just what induced him to reject the King's honors, which included the Victoria Cross, the Distinguished Service Order, and a Companionship of the Order of the Bath. Lawrence came to the conclusion that the Arabs did not receive a square deal. He said they fought with him because they understood they would be allowed to keep Damascus and Syria after the war, but the treaty handed these over to the French.

Graves recited this as Lawrence's version of what he said to the King about the honors.

"He explained to the Sovereign that the part he (Lawrence) had played in the Arab revolt was dishonorable to himself, to his country and the Government. He had, by order, fed the Arabs with false hopes and would now be obliged if he might be quietly relieved of the obligation to accept honors for succeeding in his fraud."

Graves, before publishing this, asked Lord Stamfordham, the King's private secretary, to get permission to print the paragraph. He received a letter from Lord Stamfordham saying the King did not remember that Lawrence's statement was as recorded by Graves, but that in declining the decorations, Lawrence briefly explained that he made certain promises to King Feisal, that these were not fulfilled, and consequently he might possibly find himself fighting against the British forces, in which case it would be obviously wrong to be wearing British decorations.

Wealth Fixes Code Emma Goldman Says

TORONTO, Nov. 18.— (Canadian Press.)—There is one code of laws for the rich and another entirely different for the poor, was the contention of Emma Goldman in an address here last night. "When the same thing is committed by two different men, belonging to two different groups of society, they are treated differently by the public, the press and the courts," asserted the Socialist leader.

Lindbergh and Ford High In News World

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—Mussolini is not the most important man in the world news, nor Ruth Elder the most important woman journalism students at Northwestern University have voted.

The distinction instead has been given to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, and Henry Ford among the men, and to Queen Marie among the women.

Ranking below Lindbergh and Ford were President Coolidge Mussolini, the Prince of Wales, Mayor Thompson, Thomas Edison Gene Tunney, "Al" Smith and Babe Ruth, Ruth Elder, Helen Wills and Jane Addams received several votes to rank them just below Queen Marie.

Among those who did not receive enough votes to get in the list were John D. Rockefeller, "Red" Grange, Jack Dempsey, Mary Garden, "Ma" Ferguson and Millicent Rogers.

IMPORTER SAYS BACON DEMAND WILL INCREASE

A. J. Mills, British Produce Dealer, Explains Recent Slump.

UNDERSOLD ON CONTINENT.

European Nations, Short of Money, Sold Hogs Cheaply —Beef Very Cheap.

The message conveyed to the meeting of cheese makers affiliated to the United Dairymen Co-operative of Montreal, last night in Campbellford, by Arthur J. Mills, of the large produce importing company of A. J. Mills & Company, Ltd., England, was one of greatest interest to all farmers and meat exporters in Canada. Since 1925 Canadian exports of bacon have been away below par but the pendulum of fluctuation is now ready to swing back. Mr. Mills was decidedly of the opinion that within four months Canada would once more be coming into her own, and although she might not regain her former pre-eminent position of 15 years ago there still would be plenty of business for all.

The speaker accounted for the present low prices as due chiefly to increased exports from a number of continental countries, which are badly in need of money, especially in the Balkans. The supply from that source is, however, rapidly becoming less. Other countries that had gone in for more extensive hog raising than previously have suffered such heavy losses that many of the packing firms have been put out of business, and as a natural result the farmers are growing discouraged.

Another reason for prevailing conditions is the enormous quantities of Argentine beef that have been flooding the United Kingdom. The Argentine packers fell out over the proportions of export quantity that had been assigned to them by a union. On breaking loose from this combination each one tried to gain control of the market, with the resultant loss of millions of dollars. For months at a time beef sold at the very low prices of 6 to 7 cents a pound for front quarters and 10 to 12c a pound for hind quarters. Now they have patched up their differences and the beef prices will rise.

Coming then to these factors the Canadian and United States export bacon trade has been diminished by more than 50 per cent. and the export trade of the continental countries has risen proportionately. As these figures will show, the market in the United Kingdom has been saturated. In 1925 there were imported 577,897 hundredweights; in 1926, 688,596 cwts., and in 1927 to date, 715,709 cwts.

Now that the continental countries are gradually dropping off in their exports, conditions should return to normal. Consequently, Mr. Mills urges that the Canadian hog raisers and packers should not grow discouraged or disgusted with the present trend of prices as it will be only a matter of a few months before a radical change for the better can be expected to materialize.

BRITAIN PLANS SINGLE CRUISER FOR NEXT YEAR

Announcement Seen as Answer To Cecil's Attack on Government.

NAVAL DISARMAMENT.

London Circles Believe Great Britain Put in Unfair Light.

LONDON, Nov. 17 (A.P.). — The best answer to Viscount Cecil's attack in the House of Lords Wednesday on the British Government's attitude toward disarmament, authoritative official observers declare, was in the announcement of Rt. Hon. W. C. Bridgeman, First Lord of the Admiralty, in the House of Commons at almost the same hour, that only one of the three cruisers of the 1927 program will be started, at the present time.

It was declared that Viscount Cecil's statement was his personal viewpoint, while the announcement of Mr. Bridgeman pictured the real facts and showed that Great Britain actually is making as great or even greater reductions in naval armament in the absence of an international agreement than she would have been required to make had the tripartite naval conference been successful.

Official circles in London express the highest regard for Viscount Cecil's sincerity and most officials yesterday declined to criticize him, but nevertheless, official circles are anything but pleased, believing that Great Britain has been put in an unfair light.

It was pointed out that Lord Balfour in replying to Viscount Cecil's attack did not criticize the motives of Viscount Cecil, although he did declare that the Viscount did permit his view and his temper to be upset by the details of the disarmament negotiations.

Never Objected to Parity

Lord Balfour maintains that the British government never objected to Anglo-American naval parity, and this view was re-stated by other officials yesterday. The point that most irks these officials is their feeling that Viscount Cecil failed to emphasize that the Geneva tripartite breakdown came because the United States delegates refused to yield on the size of cruiser guns

(In his address Wednesday explaining his reason for resigning as British delegate to the League of Nations, Viscount Cecil declared that the unyielding attitude of the United States delegates at Geneva on some questions, such as the right to put eight-inch guns on any cruiser, was entirely wrong, but that it also seemed madness to him to allow the negotiations to break down upon such a point).

Severe Blow

It is felt here that Mr. Bridgeman's announcement that only one cruiser would be laid was a severe blow to Britain's "die hard" naval party, but alarm also was expressed that Viscount Cecil's attack would be used as ammunition by the "big navy" party of the United States as propaganda to "convince the people that Britain is insincere in a desire for a reduction in armaments.

It is stated that Mr. Bridgeman's announcement does not necessarily mean complete abandonment of Britain's 1927 cruiser programme. However, even to postpone the start of construction after the ships have been authorized by parliament and the money made available is declared to be the best possible commentary on Great Britain's armament policy.

Notables of 2 Nations Escort Bit of Radium

LILLE, France, Nov. 18. — Premier Jasper, of Belgium; former Premier Herriott, of France; four Belgian and four French Senators, sixteen Deputies from the two countries and four generals from the Belgian and French armies were mobilized here yesterday to attend delivery of a shipment that weighed only 770 milligrams—about 1-40 of an ounce.

The consignment was radium turned over to the University of Lille by Premier Jaspar for a price of 1,000,000 francs. The tallest man in the Belgian army, a grenadier, six feet four inches tall, bore the small lead and leather encased glass tube containing the radium. He was escorted by a company of French soldiers.

CRUISER BUILDING DELAYED BECAUSE CHURCHILL UNABLE TO BALANCE HIS 1928 BUDGET

Gossip in Political Circles Denied By Government Statement.

NOT YET REQUIRED.

Sharp Differences in Cabinet Reported—Admiralty Being Criticized.

(By Herbert Bailey, British United Press Representative)

LONDON, Nov. 18—An explanation as to why the Cabinet decided to postpone the building of new cruisers is now being given in political circles as due to the Hon. Winston Churchill's inability to balance his forthcoming Budget. The official reason for naval limitation is because the Geneva Naval Conference showed that the cruisers were not immediately required, but those in closest touch with members of the Cabinet say that Churchill was compelled, owing to Budget difficulties to force the Admiralty to economize.

It is understood that there has been a sharp struggle in the Cabinet but that Churchill, in view of the likelihood of a general election in 1929, was able to insist that the Government's financial record must be improved in order to face the electors. Reductions in the super tax, the necessity of speeding up collections of certain forms of the income tax, and raids which were made on the fund for road building which were features in previous budgets, are believed to have left the Government no alternative this year but to cut the spending departments severely.

Meanwhile, the storm of criticism as to why the Government should allow the Admiralty to override its professed desire for naval limitation continues. What is described as the Admiralty's "autocratic and mysterious power" are denounced as a menace to European peace and a demand is growing that a major surgical operation be carried out on the Admiralty's Departmental nerve centres. On the other hand, Government supporters argue that whatever its motives the Government has actually brought about a measure of disarmament and that this constitutes a proof of the honesty of its desire to reach an ultimate understanding with the United States

MANITOBA GOVERNMENT PLANS TO ALLOW BEER SALE BY GLASS

Supporters Approve Legislation Changing Present Liquor Act.

HARD LIQUOR BY BOTTLE.

Cash and Carry System To Be Introduced—Stores For Rural Districts.

WINNIPEG, Man., November 18 (Canadian Press). — The new liquor legislation which the Provincial Government plans to get passed by the Legislature by Christmas and enforced as soon afterwards as possible was approved by the Government Party in a caucus at the Legislature Building early to-day. After many hours of discussion the Bill was adopted with only minor changes, and it will go before the House on December 1. No official statement was made regarding the scope and character of the measures, but from unofficial sources it was ascertained that the liquor legislation will, in a general way, follow the lines of the Alberta Act.

The unofficial main features of the Bill are:

Sale of beer by the glass, sale of hard liquor by the bottle on the "cash and carry system," sale of hard liquor by the case, with delivery by the Government Liquor Control Commission.

Standard hotels, veterans' clubs, and charter clubs will, it is intimated, be granted licenses for the sale of beer by the glass. The purchase of beer by the case for delivery to the purchasers at present is provided for.

Hard liquor bought under the "cash and carry" system must be consumed at the residence of the purchaser. Government liquor stores will be established in rural districts as well as the city. The new legislation is aimed at the bootlegger, and every effort will be made to curb the activities of illicit liquor sellers throughout the province.

London Man Killed; Car Struck By Train

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 18 (Canadian Press).—Thrown from the coupe in which he was riding after a Huron and Bruce, C.N.R. train struck it, Harry Farncombe of the Proof Line and the Fifth Concession, London Township, was killed near Ilderton at 5.15 o'clock yesterday afternoon. His son, Leigh, who was driving the car, was knocked unconscious by the impact, but was otherwise unhurt. An inquest will be held today at Logan's Undertaking Parlors by Coroner C. C. Ross of Hyde Park.

According to the villagers who were close by when the fatality occurred, the train, in charge of Conductor A. L. McDonald and Engineer Reid, had slowed for the station and whistled a warning before coming to the crossing. The Farncombe car was seen proceeding east. The driver apparently not hearing the train whistle. The coupe had almost won clear of the main line track when the locomotive struck its rear end, knocking it 20 feet up the siding track.

THINK COOLIDGE WILL RUN AGAIN FOR PRESIDENT

His "Do Not Choose" Not Credited at Washington.

MAKE CAMPAIGN PLANS.

Considered the Strongest Candidate Who Could Be Nominated.

(By Paul R. Mallon, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Despite the generally accepted view that President Coolidge has eliminated himself as a candidate for re-election, his opponents on Capitol Hill believe he is still the most prominent figure in the race, and they are making 1928 campaign plans accordingly.

The president's Black Hills statement that he does not choose to run and his subsequent acts have caused many politicians to believe he cannot be nominated, but his opponents are proceeding on the theory that the Coolidge leaders are trying to "fool" them.

Now in Doubt

A prominent Republican Senator from the west, who has always maintained that Mr. Coolidge put himself out of the battle, returned recently from New York with information for his colleagues which he says "jolted" his personal belief on the subject. He now declines to hazard an opinion to to whether Mr. Coolidge will be nominated.

A Democratic leader who is conspicuous in party councils now being held here by Clem Shaver, chairman of the Democratic national committee, says the Democratic leaders have no odubt that Mr. Coolidge ultimately will be the nominee.

"I have played golf with half the Republican leaders in Washington, and they don't seem to have any doubt about it, either, although they talk differently in their public statements," this senator added.

Work for Coolidge

In this connection it was recalled that the consensus of opinion at the meeting of the Republican national committee leaders here six weeks ago was that they should work for Mr. Coolidge first and for Vice-President Dawes second. Yesterday Representative Will Wood, chairman of the Republican congressional campaign committee, came out of the White House with the statement that he considered Mr. Coolidge the strongest candidate who could be nominated.

Democrats and independent Republicans will try at the coming session of congress to "smoke out" of the president another statement which would amplify his position.

PATTERN PRICE IS INCREASED

Ideal Fashions Now Cost 25c., Following Increase By Makers.

FORMERLY 20c.

Attention of readers is drawn to the change in the price of Ideal Fashions.

The Examiner has been selling these patterns for more than a year at 20c each, but it is now necessary to raise the price because of an increase by the makers.

The patterns are well worth the new price.

PICK 6,000 FOR JURY DUTY.

The Japanese Government is choosing 6,000 persons to be eligible for the jury trial system scheduled to go into operation in October next year. About 3,000 will be selected for Tokyo and the rest from the five largest cities in the nation. Selection is by lottery.

RADIO PACT WILL BE SIGNED BY ALL POWERS OF WORLD

Settlement of Differences Between Delegates is to be Expected.

VOTING PROBLEM SHELVED.

Canada's Signature To Appear On Treaty—Chosen on Committee.

WASHINGTON, November 18 (Canadian Press). — When delegates to the international radio conference affix their signatures to the new world treaty on radio telegraphy next week the question of voting power will have been definitely shelved. Voting power has been the only real political question in this otherwise very technical conference, and delegates have given many anxious hours to its consideration.

Committee of Ten.

With an eye to precedent for future international conferences, some countries tried to increase their votes while others tried to reduce all the powers, great and small, to a vote apiece. What was virtually a deadlock on the subject was solved only by omitting from the new treaty any definition of voting power and turning over to a committee of ten, of which Canada was one, the "order" of signatures. Out of this committee came an understanding which has been quietly accepted in committee of the whole, that each country will sign for itself and, if it likes, for any "colonies" having separate radio administrations.

U. S. Will Sign.

The signatures are understood to have no significance as regards voting power, either in this or subsequent international conferences. The Canadian Press was informed by a United States delegate that the United States probably will sign once, ignoring the privilege of additional signatures for the Philippines, Hawaii, the Panama zone, etc.

Great Britain also will sign once, it is understood. Some European countries, it is said, are contemplating additional signatures to avoid complaints from their colonies.

Danger of Floods Recurring In East

QUEBEC, Nov. 18 (Canadian Press)—Danger of floods recurring in the Eastern Townships are present, according to reports received here yesterday. The rivers were rising rapidly, it was learned, and although there were no washouts reported, it was feared, with the continual downpour of rain during the past 36 hours, that floods as bad or even more extensive than those of a fortnight ago, were imminent.

The district is just recovering from the floods of the week before last, when scores of bridges were washed away and hundreds of miles or roads were completely submerged, all traffic being dislocated.

U. S. CAPITAL HIT BY CYCLONE MANY INJURED

No One Reported Killed in Violent Storm at Washington, D.C.

AIR STATION HIT.

Part of Stone Wall of Church Caved in By Blasts.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 18.—Twenty-five persons were known to have been injured yesterday afternoon in a tornado that jumped from Bennings road in the north-east section of Washington, to the south-east section, tearing down many houses. Casualties were still coming into the hospital late yesterday afternoon. None had been killed so far as police know shortly after 4 o'clock, though there were rumors that two men and a girl had died.

The storm struck a school house in the north-east section of the Bennings road. It did some damage there and smashed at houses nearby. Twenty-five persons were driven out on to the streets as the tornado blew up out of enormous clouds.

Then it made its way across the city—back of the capital building—and thundered down on the south-east section, a region of modest homes, the seat of the navy yard and the naval air station.

It moved a swath through an area in the south-east about one-half mile wide and two miles long.

Many houses were deroofed and their windows crashed in. Others were practically demolished. Panic seized many inhabitants.

Part of the stone wall of a colored Catholic church caved in.

The storm was less severe in the heart of the city and at its height the President started for the Union station to take his special train.

Lightning and heavy winds accompanied rain torrents in the centre of the city but the full force of the tornado was felt only in the narrow strip of north-east and south-east.

Meantime the President's yacht Mayflower at anchor off the navy yard was hauled out into the stream to ride out the storm.

The naval air station was reported badly damaged but this had not been checked to 4 p.m.

Bertha Butler, negro went to Providence hospital to claim five negro children living in her house who were separated when the storm hit.

"There was a howling wind and all of a sudden thunder began to break," Mrs. Butler said. "I ran out into the street and houses were crashing all around me. Everybody was running through the streets shouting. We didn't know what had happened. I got lost from my family and found out they were in the hospital."

IRISH AVIATOR SEEKS RECORD

John Carberry Hopes To Reach Capetown in Short Time.

STARTS FROM LONDON.

LONDON, Nov. 18. — (Canadian Press.)—An attempt to fly from London to Capetown in record time was started at eight a.m. to-day by John Carbery, who is really Baron Carbery, an Irish peer who dropped the use of his title on becoming a naturalized American citizen. Carbery had kept his plans secret and only a few people saw him hop off from Croyden in a Fokker monoplane. He was accompanied by a mechanic. He expects to reach Cairo in four days. From there he will follow a route across Central Africa.

White ants are the most reproductive of all insects. They have been known to lay eggs at the rate of 80,000 a day for a month.
